The celebration begins at 11 a.m. on Monday, May 31 at the American Legion Park, across from the Manson Business Center in downtown Manson. Post 108 Commander, Clyde McCullough says, I'm pleased to announce that Congresswoman Kim Schrier will be our guest speaker." Doctor Schrier represents Washington's 8th Congressional District, which includes much of King, Pierce, Kittitas, and Chelan Counties, and por-

After her speech Congresswoman Schrier will hand out a Vietnam Veteran Lapel Pin to all veterans in attendance that served our country during the Vietnam Era as a lasting memento of the Nation's thanks.

SUBMITTED BY SEVEN ACRES FOUNDATION

CHELAN - Seven Acres Foundation, developers of the forthcoming Community Center at Lake Chelan (CCLC), has revealed that their grant proposal to the Washington State Legislature has been fully funded at $2.5 million.

In making the announcement, Seven Acres board president, Ben Williams, said their board received the great news a few weeks ago at the conclusion of this year's legislative session in Olympia. "We were all dying to shout this from the rooftops right away, but we were advised to hold off on that until Governor Inslee officially signed the state's budget. Now that he's done so, we can finally let everyone know what an amazing development this is for our Community Center. Receiving this multi-million dollar grant serves as a springboard to begin actual construction of the facility, which I know everyone is very eager to see. Raw material costs, most notably steel and lumber, have skyrocketed over the last several months, so news of this major grant couldn't come at a better time." Williams also extended special thanks to State Representative Mike Steele, for his continued strong support of the grant. He also praised the tireless efforts of the Seven Acres Executive Director, Raye Evans, as well as the board's outside fundraising consulting firm, Westby Associates (Vancouver, Washington).

The grant comes out of the state's Building Communities Fund program, which was established by the Legislature back in 2008. The program awards state grants to nonprofit, community-based organizations to defray up to 25 percent or more of eligible capital costs to acquire, construct, or rehabilitate nonresidential community and social service centers. It is funded through the sale of state bonds with no assistance from the federal government. Grantees are selected through an extensive and highly competitive grant application process conducted every two years by the Washington State Department of Commerce.

For an organization/project to be considered, it must meet ten different specific criteria, including requirements such as offering "a diverse set of on-site activities that meet multiple community service objectives," as well as increasing "the range, efficiency or quality of the services provided." In addition, the project must "reflect a long-term vision for the development of the community, shared residents, businesses, leaders, and partners."

To learn more about or donate directly to the Community Center at Lake Chelan, please go to www.ccatlakechelan.org or contact Raye Evans, Executive Director of the Seven Acres Foundation at raye@sevenacresfoundation.org. TENDER LOVING CARE

CHELAN - Tender Loving Care (TLC) for Seniors, an affiliate of Chelan Valley Hope, is celebrating nearly four years of helping Chelan Valley seniors remain independent in their homes. Over 95 families have received assistance with our 20 to 25 volunteers providing 2,800 visits/5,000 hours of service and traveling 32,000 miles. In 2021 we have added one new volunteer and six new TLC clients with 27 clients currently active.

TLC's senior clients find joy in chatting with their volunteer, as well as sharing lunch and other social activities. Volunteers help seniors with transportation to important appointments and connections to other services such as Senior Meals, Food Bank. TLC provides caregiver support for spouses and family caring for seniors. This gives them time to refresh, and get needed errands done.

Claudia Swenson has loved her role in being a major spokesperson and the initial Coordinator for TLC for Seniors. With Claudia's retirement July 1, it is time for a transition and TLC is excited to announce that a new Coordinator has been selected, Sandy Zimchek. Sandy has a strong community service background, working on a nonprofit board for five years as vice-president, including public relations and special event responsibilities. She volunteers at her church as the head of the children's ministry with an emphasis on training and organizing volunteers.

She has excellent people skills and loves working with all age groups. Sandy will be fully on-board by July 1. During the transition please continue to contact Kathy Miller, 509-687-3377 or Claudia Swenson, 360-561-6090 if you are interested in volunteering for TLC or have a referral for our program. Please welcome Sandy.

CHELAN - The Chelan Earth Day Fair Committee awarded its first student scholarship to long-time volunteer, Ian Blevins, who has an academic scholarship to Gonzaga where he will study engineering. This $500 scholarship will help Ian with school related expenses.

Ian, volunteered for the Fair in various capacities for many years. He had student booths that included the plastic pollution in the ocean, wind turbines, and the gravity light. He was our imaginative and talented chalk artist drawing our planet at the information booth and sidewalk signs to help the fairgoers find difference parts of the Fair. Ian also helped Mark Tesch at the Kids Area, helping other students with the artwork and with the kids playing during the Fair. He participated with 4-H with Fair tear down and Park clean up.

Thanks to the support from community sponsors and exhibitors, the 2021 virtual Chelan Earth Day Fair was a success. In our after Fair critique meeting, the committee voted unanimously to use funds for a student scholarship, and other community donations that are pending.

Thanks again to everyone who supported and participated in the 2021 virtual Chelan Earth Day Fair. We plan to see you all in person at the 2022 Chelan Earth Day Fair at Riverwalk Park. In the meantime, the videos from 2021 are available for viewing at chelanearthdayfair.org.

Masks are still required at all NCW Libraries

BY MICHELLE McNIEL,
NCW LIBRARIES

NCW - NCW Libraries is still requiring all visitors to wear a mask, including those fully vaccinated.

The latest guidance from the CDC has loosened mask recommendations for fully vaccinated individuals, and the library district is encouraged by climbing vaccination rates and declining infection rates. Here is why masks are still required when visiting libraries and bookmobile locations:

Fully Vaccinated rates throughout our service area average 32%. In some counties the rate of fully vaccinated individuals are in the low 20%.

The guidance from the governor and the CDC does not apply to health care settings, homeless shelters, or schools, and the federal order requiring masks on public transportation remains in place. The service population of libraries is more akin to hospitals, schools, homeless shelters, and public transportation than it is to retail shops and restaurants.

We want our libraries to be free, open, and accessible to everyone and to do that all patrons can protect our most vulnerable populations by continuing to wear masks and limit their time inside our library buildings.

L&I guidance has not been updated by the state yet. In the absence of clear guidelines regarding our requirements as an employer, lifting the mask requirement for patrons would be premature.

ICE Unable to Track Most Illegal Immigrants Released Into Country

CHARLOTTE CUTHBERTSON

As thousands of illegal immigrants are released into the United States every week, the agency responsible for enforcement is unable to keep tabs on most of them.

Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) Acting Director Tae Johnson admitted to Congress that “there’s certainly some gaps in our ability to track” illegal immigrants being released.

After being apprehended at the border, illegal immigrants are processed by Customs and Border Protection (CBP) to determine who they are and whether they’re subject to being immediately turned back under the current Title 42 public health provision.

Single adults from Spanish-speaking nations are almost all subject to immediate expulsion under Title 42, according to Acting CBP Commissioner Troy Miller. But Border Patrol is also encountering more illegal aliens from non-Spanish speaking nations, in particular Brazil and Haiti.

Of the 178,000 illegal border crossers encountered

A group of illegal immigrants with Border Patrol after crossing the U.S.-Mexico border in La Joya, Texas, on April 10, 2021.

in April, around 62 percent were expelled quickly under Title 42, according to CBP data.

The remaining 38 percent (or 68,000 individuals) were released into the interior (family units), into Health and Human Services custody (unaccompanied minors), or ICE custody (single adults from non-Spanish-speaking nations).

In some border sectors, particularly the Rio Grande Valley in south Texas, the Border Patrol facilities have been so overwhelmed that many individuals weren’t released with the common Notice to Appear document that states a date and time to appear in court. Rather, they received a Notice to Report, which is an honor system that requires the person to check in at their closest ICE facility within 60 days.

“For individuals that are just released with a notification to report to ICE or to show up in court, then our ability to track those folks quite closely is much more limited,” Johnson said during a congressional hearing on May 13.

About 20,400 individuals have been released with a Notice to Report, and Johnson said ICE has no way to track those people or where they plan to reside, as the agency’s system doesn’t link to the information Border Patrol collects at the initial intake facility.

“Once they report to an ICE office, they’re put into our system of record, and at that point we can track those folks,” Johnson said. “But otherwise, we would just have to get a list from Border Patrol of the 20,000 cases and check them pretty regularly.”

Johnson said ICE has more success tracking individuals that are released under the alternatives to detention program, including those wearing an ankle monitor.

However, illegal immigrants regularly cut off their ankle bracelets or fail to honor their obligation to check in with ICE or turn up in court.

“Based on the number of individuals that we enrolled in alternatives to detention in FY20, we had about 11,000 individuals abscond from the program,” Johnson said. So far, in fiscal 2021 through March, Johnson said about 2,700 have absconded.

Under the agency’s narrowed criteria for priority removal, most of those who abscond won’t be a priority for ICE to track down unless they commit an aggravated felony. Nationwide, the agency arrested 645 illegal aliens for removal in March and 1,152 in April, Johnson said.

The Fall of Title 42

Johnson’s biggest concern is the impending removal of Title 42.

President Donald Trump implemented Title 42 in March 2020, which effectively closed the border to nonessential travel in attempts to mitigate the spread of COVID-19.

It allowed for Border Patrol to turn back illegal border crossers almost immediately, rather than be placed in ICE custody for a more protracted process through deportation proceedings under Title 8.

Once Title 42 is revoked, the 3,000 to 3,500 single adults that Border Patrol is currently arresting on a daily basis will have to be accommodated by ICE.

At the same time, ICE has less capacity than it did during the previous border surge in 2019. ICE had around 55,000 detention beds in 2019; however the capacity was reduced to 30,000 beds in the fiscal 2021 appropriations package.

“Title 42 is absolutely critical,” Johnson said. “I don’t think it’s a situation where it’s going to just be lifted electively—we will be mandated, through some sort of court order, to lift it.”

Lawmakers Demand Reinstatement of Space Force Officer Who Was Removed for Denouncing Critical Race Theory

ISABEL VAN BRUGEN

A group of Republican lawmakers sent a letter to the acting secretary of the U.S. Space Force on May 19, urging him to immediately reinstate a lieutenant colonel who was relieved of his command after publishing a book that warned of the spread of Marxism and critical race theory (CRT) in the military.

Lt. Col. Matthew Lohmeier, a former instructor and fighter pilot, was relieved as commander of the 11th Space Warning Squadron “due to loss of trust and confidence in his ability to lead,” a Defense Department official told CNN on May 14.

The decision came after Lohmeier took part in podcasts to discuss his self-published book, titled “Irresistible Revolution: Marxism’s Goal of Conquest & the Unmaking of the American Military,” which warns against the spread of Marxism and CRT in the military.

During an appearance on the podcast “Information Operation,” Lohmeier criticized Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin’s agenda. The department deemed his comments to be “partisan political activity.”

In their letter, the two dozen Republicans expressed their alarm over the decision to relieve Lohmeier. They said it appeared to reflect the development of an “increasingly politicized environment” in the Department of Defense, which has now manifested in the Space Force.

The lawmakers criticized the use of euphemisms such as “diversity training” in describing CRT. Such terms, they said, are “grotesque distortions of reality.”

CRT has gradually proliferated in recent decades through academia, government structures, school systems, and the corporate world. It redefines human history as a struggle between the “oppressors”—white people—and the “oppressed”—everybody else—similar to Marxism’s reduction of history to a struggle between the “bourgeois” and the “proletariat.” It labels institutions that emerged in majority-white societies as racist and “white supremacist.”

Like Marxism, CRT advocates for the destruction of institutions, such as the Western justice system, free-market economy, and orthodox religions, while demanding that they be replaced with institutions compliant with the theory’s ideology.

Proponents of CRT have argued that the theory is merely “demonstrating how pervasive systemic racism truly is.”

“Those leaders who are complicit with this poisonous philosophy which promotes racial essentialism and collective guilt in our beloved military will be judged by history accordingly,” the lawmakers wrote. “Promoting critical race theory will disrupt the good order and discipline in the Space Force and eviscerate our nation’s ability to attract patriotic talent to serve in uniform and fight our wars.”

Signatory Rep. Doug Lamborn (R-Colo.) said in a statement that the military should focus on threats to U.S. national security and “not pandering to one political ideology.”

“I can’t imagine a better way to weaken ourselves in the midst of a great-power competition with China and Russia,” he said. “Lt. Col. Lohmeier listened to the Secretary of Defense and stood up against extremism on the left. He should be praised for his courage.”

Space Force officials didn’t respond to a request for comment by press time.

House Passes Bill Approving $1.9 Billion More for US Capitol Security

JACK PHILLIPS

The House of Representatives voted on May 20 to approve $1.9 billion to increase U.S. Capitol security in response to the Jan. 6 breach, with several left-wing “Squad” members voting either no or present.

The House voted 213–212 to approve the measure, which faces an uncertain future in the Senate, where 60 votes are needed to advance legislation.

Reps. Cori Bush (D-Mo.), Ilhan Omar (D-Minn.), and Ayanna Pressley (D-Mass.) voted no. Meanwhile, Reps. Jamaal Bowman (D-N.Y.), Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez (D-N.Y.), and Rashida Tlaib (D-Mich.) voted present. All other Democrats voted in favor and all Republicans voted against.

“This bill is not about politics. It’s not about settling scores,” Appropriations Committee Chairman Rosa DeLauro (D-Conn.) said on the floor of the chamber. “It’s about ensuring that every person who comes onto the Capitol grounds is safe and is protected. The funding is not optional.”

Republicans have said that while the GOP supports the U.S. Capitol Police and National Guard members who were deployed after the Jan. 6 breach, they view the bill as partisan and drafted without consideration for how the funds would be spent.

The bill would reimburse the National Guard for costs incurred when troops were deployed to the Capitol earlier this year, provide Capitol Police with overtime pay, and other resources. The bill would also create a response force that would aid Capitol Police during a crisis, as well as fortify doors and windows at the building.

“House Dems just passed a Capitol security bill that costs $3.5 million per member of Congress. Defund the Police for thee but not for me,” wrote Rep. Jim Banks (R-Ind.).

to establish a force within the D.C. National Guard to respond to incidents at the Capitol, raising serious concerns about the role of our military on American soil.” Rep. Kay Granger (R-Texas) added.

Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-Ky.) indicated that the proposal needs another review when it heads to the Senate.

“We’re not sure what to spend the money on yet. So I think we are pushing the pause button here,” he said.

The three Democrats who voted against the measure said they don’t want to provide more funding for what they called police surveillance.

“This bill prioritizes more money for a broken system that has long upheld and protected the white supremacist violence we saw on display that day,” Bush, Omar, and Pressley said in a statement. Bowman, who voted present, told news outlets that he doesn’t want to provide “more funding to police budgets.”

The bill’s passage comes as the Pentagon confirmed at a news conference that the National Guard will be leaving the Capitol on May 23.

“We have received no request to extend it,” Department of Defense spokesman John Kirby said, referring to the National Guard deployment around the Capitol building.

20 Attorneys General Petition Biden Admin to Backtrack on CRT and '1619 Project'-Based Education Proposals

SAMUEL ALLEGRI

A joint letter by 20 state attorneys general directed to Education Secretary Miguel Cardona is asking the Biden administration to retract its education plans that would promote Critical Race Theory (CRT) and the New York Times' "1619 Project" in schools.

The group's criticism centers on recent proposals from the Department of Education that detail plans in April to provide grants under American History and Civics Education programs for a curriculum teaching diversity and the effects of "systemic marginalization."

The letter, led by Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita, claims that the proposed priorities issued by the Education Department are a "thinly veiled" effort to insert CRT and the 1619 Project into American classrooms.

"As the chief legal officers of our respective states, we write to express our deep concerns with the proposed priorities recently issued by the United States Department of Education. The proposed priorities are a thinly veiled attempt at bringing into our states' classrooms the deeply flawed and controversial teachings of Critical Race Theory and the 1619 Project," reads the letter in part.

It further argues that the new education proposals would "distort" the accuracy of history, rendering it at odds with state and federal law.

"CRT is an ideological construct that analyzes and interprets American history and government primarily through the narrow prism of race. Similarly, the 1619 Project seeks to 'reframe the country's history'

Then-Rep. Todd Rokita (R-Ind.) (C) speaks at a press conference on Capitol Hill in Washington on July 18, 2017.

[CRT] distorts, rather than illuminates, a proper and accurate understanding of our nation's history and governmental institutions.

Letter by 20 state attorneys general

As such, it distorts, rather than illuminates, a proper and accurate understanding of our nation's history and governmental institutions and, therefore, is fundamentally at odds with federal and state law," state the attorneys general.

The ideas being put forward by the 1619 Project suggest that the United States was founded on white supremacy and oppression and that these are still fundamental aspects of society.

The letter was signed by attorneys general from Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, and West Virginia.

"The Department should not adopt the proposed rule or, at a minimum, should make clear that grants may not fund projects that are based on CRT, including any projects that characterize the United States as irredeemably racist or founded on principles of racism," they state.

specifically cited in the new priorities that progressive politicians want to implement, with the claim that they would reduce discrimination and racism.

They assert that the biggest issue is the impact of the theories being promoted on students, and urge the department not to embrace the proposed measures.

In criticism of the potential adverse effect on students, the AGs refer to educator and political scientist Frederick Hess:

"Upon closer scrutiny, it quickly becomes apparent just how wholly Kendi's doctrine is at odds with American traditions of equality, free inquiry, and ordered liberty. Kendi holds that every single thing in the world—every action, idea, thought, and policy—is either 'racist' or 'anti-racist.'"

To illustrate their point, they give an example that demonstrates the unfairness of "equity"—a term that stems from the Marxist idea of absolute egalitarianism.

"Kendi helped lead the opposition against the selection process for the elite Boston Latin School, the Boston Latin Academy, and the John D. O'Bryant School of Math & Science," the letter reads.

"Relying heavily on a merit-based testing regime, Asian applicants received a disproportionately high number of the scarce 205 available seats. 'With COVID as a pretext, equity advocates set up a new system to fill the spots based on zip codes and grades, a plan that will result in a 24 percent reduction in Asians, an 18 percent reduction in whites, a 50 percent increase in blacks, and a 14 percent increase in Hispanics.'"

Another notable criticism is aimed at the proposal's alleged discrimination of students based on "privilege" or "oppressor" status based only on racial identity.

"Teaching this in a classroom clearly runs afoul of broad non-discrimination provisions adopted by many states to prevent the same sort of separatist teaching that the guidance attempts to integrate into schools through teachers and students," the letter maintains.

After attending the programs being put forward, the teachers would be violating Indiana law if they "indoctrinate students" discriminatorily, the coalition of attorneys general added.

The Department of Education told The Epoch Times: "We look forward to receiving the letter and responding directly to the signees."

Rubio Unveils Bills Targeting China's Collection of Americans' DNA

ISABEL VAN BRUGEN

Sen. Marco Rubio (R-Fla.) has introduced two bills to counter the Chinese regime's efforts to collect the genomic data of Americans through both legal and illegal means.

The Republican senator, who has been a leading voice in addressing the issue, introduced the Genomics Expenditures and National Security Enhancement (GENE) Act and The Genomics Data Security Act on May 20.

Beijing has for years been collecting large amounts of American health care data, using illegal methods such as cyber hacking, investments in American biotech companies, and partnerships with hospitals and universities to gain access to the sensitive information.

The National Counterintelligence and Security Center (NCSC) said in a fact sheet released on Feb. 1 that it poses serious privacy and national security risks.

"There is no reason for American taxpayers to be funding Beijing's research or for our policies to enable access to American's genomic data," Rubio said in a statement, announcing the legislation. "It's imperative that Congress take steps to confront this growing national security and privacy threat."

Rubio's office said that the GENE Act, which is co-sponsored by Sen. John Cornyn (R-Texas), would increase congressional oversight by requiring the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS) to include the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and Senate Committee on Foreign Relations in its briefings.

It would also increase cross-agency awareness of "transactions of concern" by requiring that the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) be consulted on any deal that involves a genetic data transaction.

Lastly, it would direct CFIUS to rewrite its regulations to require mandatory filing for any deal that involves a company working with genetic information, Rubio's office said.

Meanwhile, the senator's second bill seeks to prohibit any National Institutes of Health (NIH) funding from going to support entities with direct ties to the Chinese regime.

It would also require that every Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments Act certificate specify if a company with access to Americans' health data is directly tied to Beijing.

Vast amounts of genomic information (a person's entire genetic sequence) can fuel developments in the cutting-edge field of precision medicine (or personalized medicine), allowing China to overtake the United States to become a global leader in biotech, according to the NCSC. Such data can also be weaponized to target individuals in the country for intelligence and military operations.

A 2019 report found that at least 15 Chinese firms were licensed to perform genetic testing or sequencing on U.S. patients, giving them access to genetic data.

Americans' genomic information is particularly valuable to China due to the ethnic diversity of the U.S. population, the paper noted. This is because varied data sets are more useful in research to identify genetic diseases. The Chinese regime last year passed laws to severely limit the ability of foreign firms to access Chinese people's biological data.

Ohio Vaccination Rate Surges After $5 Million Lottery Announcement

New York, Maryland rolling out similar programs

ISABEL VAN BRUGEN

The COVID-19 vaccination rate in the state of Ohio has surged after Gov. Mike DeWine announced that five residents will win $1 million each as a monetary incentive for getting inoculated, health officials said this week.

Ohio's Department of Health said on May 20 that from May 14 to 17, vaccination rates for people 16 and older jumped 28 percent. The Republican governor announced the state's incentive program, named "Ohio Vax-a-Million," on May 12.

Under the "Ohio Vax-a-Million," which will be funded by existing federal pandemic relief funds, Ohio residents who are at least 18 years old and have received "at least" one dose of the COVID-19 vaccine are eligible to win the sum in once-a-week lottery drawings, the governor announced last week.

The first drawing will occur on May 26, DeWine said at the time, noting that the Ohio Department of Health will be the sponsoring agency for the drawings and the state Lottery will conduct them.

"This dramatic increase in vaccinations indicates that the Vax-a-Million drawing has been impactful in creating momentum for vaccinations throughout Ohio," Stephanie McCloud, director of the state's health department. "We are grateful that the drawings are helping spur Ohioans to take this important measure to protect their health, their loved ones, and their community."

A separate incentive for younger Ohio residents will see five vaccinated 12- to 17-year-old students receive full four-year scholarships to attend Ohio public universities, including tuition, room, board, and books.

New York and Maryland on May 20 also announced that they will be rolling out similar vaccine incentive programs.

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo told reporters that New Yorkers who get vaccinated from Monday to Friday next week will be given a lottery ticket with a cash prize of as much as $5 million.

Meanwhile, a vaccinated Marylander will be chosen at random daily for a $40,000 prize, starting July 3 and ending July 4, Gov. Larry Hogan. He said that one person will receive a grand prize of $400,000.

Companies have also started offering incentives as part of an effort to encourage Americans to get vaccinated. For example, Krispy Kreme stores are offering one free glazed doughnut for people who show that they have had one or two shots of any COVID-19 vaccine.
