Lake Chelan Community Hospital & Clinics planning ground breaking for new hospital, spring of 2020

Design of hospital coming together

By RUTH EDNA KEYS, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - Lake Chelan Community Hospital and Clinics held a Community Forum for the hospital and clinics on Nov. 13, at the Chelan Senior Center with board member presentations followed by questions and answers. The last community forum was held in March of this year.

Phyllis Gleasman, board chair welcomed those in attendance.

Topics covered were staffing, review of goals, finances, new hospital, services and quality and strategic plan.

Why are staff leaving? Gleasman said that from Jan. 1 of this year to Oct. 14, 64 Lake Chelan Community Hos-

Chelan Fire Dept. stars in 'Burning Down the House'

By GARY BÉGIN

CHELAN - Emerson Village, the idea both in vision and physical reality, took a massive turn towards fruition as the Chelan Valley Housing Trust (CVHT) sponsored a house burning party Nov. 16.

"The guys really had a great training experience, especially because this particular house had a basement which gave them a unique opportunity," said Chelan Fire & Rescue Chief Mark Donnell.

Donnell, who took over for recently departed and deceased Fire Chief Tim Lemon, said it was an excellent chance for volunteer firemen and full time staffers alike to get special training, but admits the flames spread a bit faster than expected as the 3 p.m. "burn down time" was suddenly a 2 p.m. event.

"The fire spread a little faster than we anticipated," he said.

Donnell also pointed out the area had to be made safe by cutting down a dozen or so Arborvitae trees so the pre-planned blaze didn't accidentally spread and endanger other adjacent buildings.

"This has been a com-

Chelan Transmission Fire Hardening Drop-in Session Nov. 20

SUBMITTED BY JENNA RAHM, CHELAN COUNTY PUD

CHELAN - Join the PUD for an Informational Drop-in Session on Wednesday, Nov. 20 from 3:30-5:30 p.m. at the Lake Chelan Chamber of Commerce, 216 E. Woodin Ave.

Chelan County PUD has proposed upgrading a transmission line between Chelan Falls and Union Valley from wood to steel poles to harden the infrastructure against fires. Steel poles allow fires to pass by them without burning, meaning lines can either remain in service during a fire, or experience much shorter outages to de-energize the line while a fire passes through. See the Project Fact Sheet for more details.

The PUD and its consultant have completed 30% design for the line section from Chelan Falls to Union Valley. Features of the design include:

- Upgrading all transmission power poles between Chelan Falls and Union Valley from wood to steel.
- Ensuring clearances are compliant with regulatory requirements - which means some poles may be taller than existing structures, and some may be shorter.
- Poles will remain in the same general alignment as they are currently, although new pole locations will be offset slightly from existing poles.

The next step is for the PUD to gather feedback on this design from the community.

If you have any questions or comments about the project, please contact Jenna Rahm, Customer Outreach Specialist, at jenna.rahm@chelanpud.org or 509-661-4630. You can also visit our website for more information: www.chelanpud.org/firehardening.

and what they can do: MD - Medical Doctor, DO-Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine, PA-C- Physician Assitant-Certified, PA-Physician Assitant, ARNP-Advanced Registered Nurse Practitioner and DNP-Doctorate. The Lake Chelan Clinic currently has several ARNP's, a PA-C, an MD and an incoming DO. Dr. Waszkewitz has returned part-time and Lincoln Westfall, DO, will start seeing patients in December. Another change is that all labs are now being done at the hospital, with staff from clinic now at the hospital. Lab services are available 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Those attending saw a short cell phone video from George Rohrich, incoming CEO for LCCHC. He said he plans on taking the first 90 days to observe operations and strategy before making any changes. He will be on board the second week in December.

Gleasant went over the pillars adopted for the board which are: 1. People: Vision - Highly -skilled and engaged staff and providers. 2. Service: Vision - Provide an exceptional patient experience. 3. Quality and Safety: Vision - Provide safe, quality care by preventing patient harm. 4. Growth and Innovation: Vision - Strong Primary Care with access and availability. 5. Finance: Vision - Top 25th Percent Operating Margain of Washington CAH's (Critical Access Hospital). 6. Community: Vision - Comprehensive Communications; effective outreach in wellness and education.

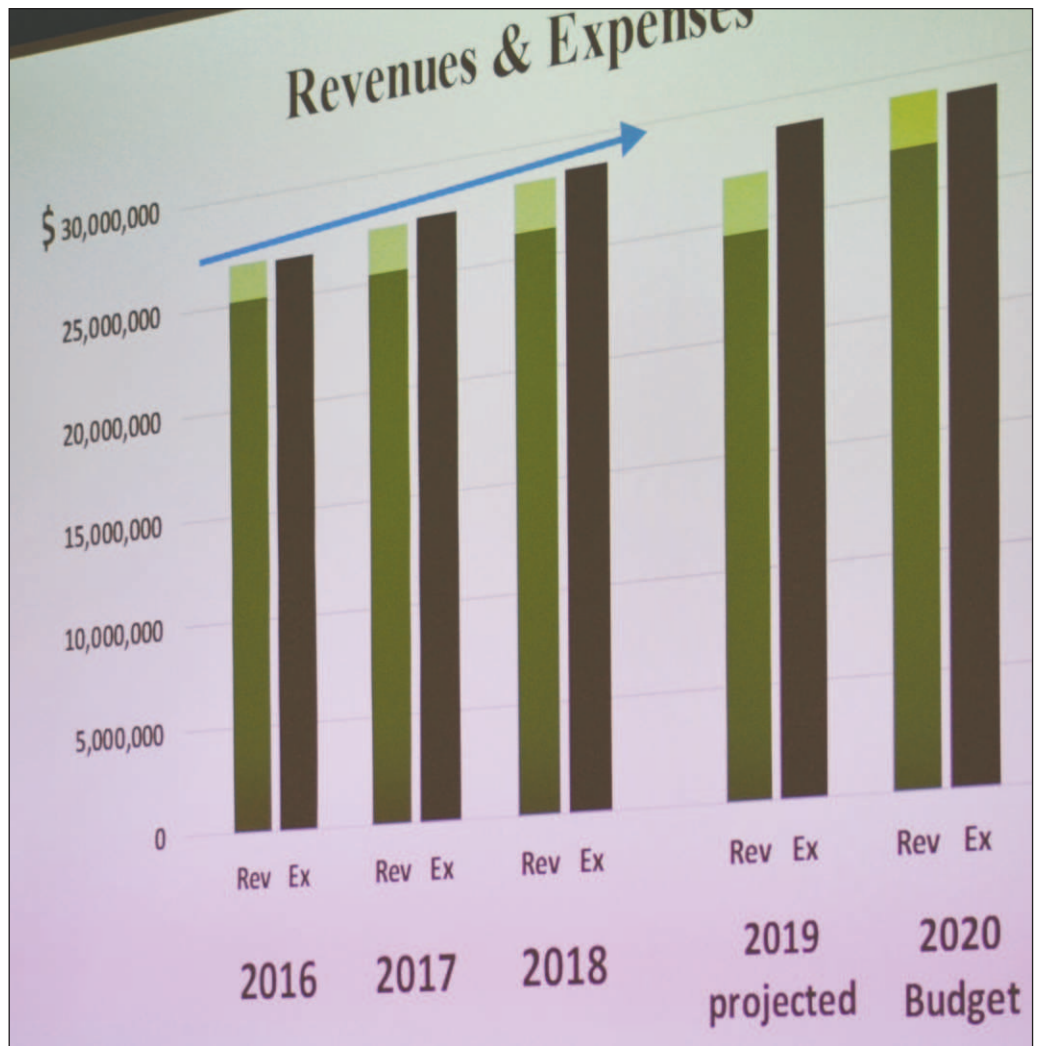

Jordanna LaPorte spoke about finances. The goal is to be operational and profitable, and to increase their cash reserves by $250,000 a year, so they can buy what need, when they need it. Labor (75%) is a big part of their costs (payroll and employee benefits). That has been taking up most of their operating revenue the past couple of years. Balance of costs have been paid out of tax dollars (non-operating revenue.) Projected revenue for 2019 is just under $25,000,000.

Mary Signorelli spoke about the new hospital and showed those in attend the layout of the new hospital. As of the Nov. 4 design, it will be 59,436 square feet, and is planned with expansion in mind. The clinic and EMS will not be part of the new hospital building. Darrell Turner of Bouten Construction, and project manager for the new hospital, was available to speak with attendees after the boards presentation. The architects have started meeting with the City of Chelan Public Works Department. Ground breaking is planned for spring of 2020.

destrians wondered what was going on and thought, perhaps, that it was a real house fire.

Needless to say, the Trust and their fire department conspirators came together to bring this newest phase of affordable housing to reality.

"We're roasting the house instead of the marshmallows," said Clint Campbell, vice-president of the non-profit housing trust.

To date, all the funding to support Emerson Village has come from businesses, the city and private donors. This fifth of an acre lot was purchased at below market pricing for $200,000.

The townhomes will sell for $200,000 and are available to those earning up to $52,000, the valley's average median income.

"While this is a milestone for the housing trust, it's just the first step," emphasizes Tim Hollingsworth, housing trust president and Chelan City Council member.

"We're in negotiations right now for other parcels of land and we can't thank the community enough for the way everyone has embraced our mission," he said.

To donate or inquire about home ownership at Emerson Village, visit chelanvalleyhousing.org or email info@chelanvalleyhousing.org.

The future village is at the corner of East Chelan and N. Emerson.

OBITUARIES

Ben Eugene Smalley

Ben Eugene Smalley, 84 of Manson, passed away Monday, November 04, 2019. He was born to Rosylyn (Clyma) Smalley and Ben C. Smalley in Ukiah, Calif. on August 23, 1935. Ben graduated from high school in Geyserville, Calif. in 1955 and worked in the logging and sawmill industries before moving to Seattle in 1970. There he worked as a mechanic and gas station manager. He married Elaine Miller on January 30, 1972. They moved to Manson shortly thereafter where he worked on the family orchards for the next 40 years.

Ben loved the outdoors and spent many days in the late fall deer hunting with family and friends. He also loved to collect model cars. Working outdoors brought him great pleasure and he always got the job done. He was a 35 year member of the Manson Kiwanis Club where he served as president twice. Ben volunteered many hours for Club projects particularly Chicken BBQ and Apple Blossom Festival Pancake Breakfast where he was the pancake batter mixer for many years.

Ben and Elaine were great supporters of the Manson schools. For many years they never missed a home football, basketball or volleyball game. They also attended many far away games, particularly when their niece and nephews were playing. They received several Super Fan Awards from the students for their great support of school events, including athletics, band, drama, Apple Blossom and graduation. They were also honored at the Manson Apple Blossom parade Grand Marshall in 2003. Also, the 1999 High School Annual was dedicated to them.

Ben was preceded in death by parents Ben C. and Rosylyn, brothers Kenneth, Clifford, Donald and sister Blanche. He is survived by wife Elaine, brother Ted Smalley of Springfield, MO, sister Marriam Kinion of Ukiah, Calif., sister Darlene King of Prescott, AZ, half brother Frank Stipsky of Las Vegas, NV, sons Wayne of Chelan and Clifford of Ukiah, Calif., and daughters Debbie and Jeanie of Santa Rosa, Calif., four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Memorial Service and Celebration of Life will be held on Saturday, November 23 at 2 p.m. at Manson High School gym. A reception will follow in the High School Commons area. All are invited. Friends and family are welcome to leave any thoughts and memories at www.prechtrose.com

Services are entrusted to Precht Rose Chapel of Chelan. For any that wish to make a donation in his memory, the Manson High School ASB and Lake Chelan Community Hospital were his favorite organizations.

CHELAN HIGH SCHOOL
VOLLEYBALL COACH

CHELAN - The last few hours have been a blur. I have been replaying the match against Kings in my head over and over again. We had a great first set but fell short 25-27. Then something amazing happened. The girls came together, played without fear, and were able to win the next two sets. Going in to the fifth set we played freely. Each player did their job, trusted in each other and gave all they had. We were able to win the fifth set 17-15 to win the championship. A few words come to mind when I think of this team: trust, family, effort, never give up mentality, chemistry and resilience to name a few.

Stats from the 4 matches:
Chelan vs Zillah
25-14, 22-25, 25-16, 25-6
Emma McLaren 10 kills, 21 digs, 10/10 serving Elly Collins 15 kills, 1 assist, 1 block, 10/10 serving, 14 digs
Katie Rainville 16 kills, 6 blocks, 2 digs, 6/8 serving with 2 aces

THE WASHINGTON OUTDOORS REPORT

Fall And Winter Whitefish

By JOHN KRUSE

Call them the Rodney Dangerfield's of the Pacific Northwest. The whitefish, whether it be the mountain whitefish found in streams or the lake whitefish found in Eastern Washington reservoirs and the Columbia River, are fish that like Rodney, "Don't get no respect". It's a shame, because in the steelhead-salmon-trout centric state of Washington, we are overlooking a fine gamefish that tastes good, fights well, and offers liberal limits of 15 fish per day with no minimum size.

Mountain Whitefish
Found throughout Central and Eastern Washington (as well as the Rocky Mountain states) the mountain whitefish is truly underfished. Many trout anglers look down on them but these scrappy fighters are a lot of fun and have a reputation of tasting very well out of a smoker. An average mountain whitefish runs from 8 to 11 inches long but 16-inch fish are not uncommon and even a 20-inch whitefish is not out of the question.

In the summer casting nymphs or streamers from a fly rod or casting small spinners works well for these fish but as the water cools in the late fall you should change your tactics. Danny Garrett is a fisheries biologist for the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife with a solid knowledge of whitefish. He suggests fishing a brightly colored nymph (with red, orange or pink) under a strike indicator above a dropper weight and near the bottom. Garrett says, "In the fall you'll find the whitefish in slow runs below riffles" and this is a prime time to target them. In late fall the whitefish will move into these riffles to spawn and they can be trickier to catch. After that, they will move into deeper holes for the remainder of the winter and in some cases will move out of streams into reservoirs such as Lake Roosevelt.

Unfortunately, many rivers and streams that traditionally provided good opportunities for late fall and winter whitefish (such as the Wenatchee and Methow Rivers) have been closed for several years because of the impacts on endangered summer steelhead. However, several rivers still offer good winter fishing to include the Yakima, Entiat and the Little Spokane Rivers (open December 1st through the last day of February) and The Kettle

This 9.6-pound lake whitefish was caught this month during a pike netting survey at Lake Roosevelt. Pictured are Ashley Caldwell and Randy Osborne with WDFW.

A small mountain whitefish taken on a fly.

River in Northeast Washington (open from November 1st through the end of February). On all of these rivers whitefish gear rules must be followed (only a single hook, size 14 or smaller is allowed and bait (usually maggots) may be used).

Lake Whitefish
Lake whitefish have a tremendous following in the upper Midwest and Great Lakes but only a few anglers target them in Washington State. These fish are not native to Washington but are now found in the Upper Columbia River and several connected reservoirs connected to include Lake Roosevelt, Banks Lake, Moses Lake, Potholes Reservoir and Scooteney Reservoir. They commonly weigh two to three pounds and the state record (caught on rod and reel) is 6.81 pounds.

Danny Garrett with WDFW says, "There is a tremendous biomass of whitefish in all of these reservoirs". However, Garrett says unless you know where to find them you probably won't run into them. In the summer the lake whitefish will stay in the deepest holes.

In the winter lake whitefish will move into shallower waters and reservoir inlets to spawn. At Banks Lake you will not only find them by the inlet but also at the very south end of the lake as well. This makes the months of December and January a great time for anglers to go after these fish from the bank or from a boat.

No matter what time of year you are looking for them, use your electronics to locate schools of these large fish near the bottom. Then, fish close to the bottom with bait like a shrimp fished under a slip bobber or use a small vertical jigging spoon such as a small Northland Forage Minnow Spoon, a Mack's Sonic Baitfish, a Swedish Pimple or a Cicada Reef Runner.

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife has produced an excellent video about fishing for lake whitefish which can be seen on YouTube at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ubC64vGneAo>.

Finally, if you are looking for some recipes to cook up these chunky lake whitefish, try the Great Lakes Whitefish website at www.greatlakeswhitefish.org. You'll find recipes there for blackened whitefish with asparagus, broiled whitefish with caper berry aioli and even cedar plank-roasted whitefish with roasted tomato and olive relish. These mouth-watering offerings alone are enough to get you bundled up and outside to try your hand at whitefish this fall and winter.

How do you know if you have dry skin?

Over the past decade, water shortages are becoming more common, limiting the availability of unlimited fresh water for irrigation, especially in the states of the American Southwest and California. Large swaths of green grass require constant watering to look healthy, and people in areas with water rationing are swapping their water-guzzling lawns for plants and features that look nice even when water access is restricted. Without unlimited water available year-round, people are trading their lawns for landscapes with xeriscaping.

Xeriscaping comes from the Greek word xero, meaning dry. There are 2 main principles in xeriscaping: choosing plants and landscape features that don't need as much water, and using gardening techniques that direct water only to where it's needed and avoiding losing water through evaporation or runoff.

Dry skin is a common problem, and the medical term for it is xeroderma, which uses the same Greek term (xero) as does xeriscaping. Successfully treating dry skin is similar to xeriscaping because it's all about getting enough water to your skin cells while also minimizing losing water from your skin by evaporation.

How do you know you have xeroderma, or dry skin? Skin areas that are scaling or flaking, redness, skin cracks and itching are all signs of xeroderma. Dry skin is considered the "gateway" to other skin issues, and treating it successfully helps prevent future skin problems.

All day long we lose water through small gaps in our skin cells by a process called trans epidermal water loss. Water from our body is continuously being released by and through our skin, not just when we perspire from exertion or excitement.

As we age our skin produces less sebum, an oily substance that slows down evaporation through the skin, and trans epidermal water loss through evaporation can increase dramatically, especially in dry, windy or cold conditions. In the winter in cold climates we heat our homes, making the air inside even drier. Frequent bathing actually encourages dry skin. After taking a bath or shower water evaporates from the cells making up the surface of your skin unless you can trap that water by applying a moisturizer before the water has a chance to evaporate.

Moisturizers improve dry skin by adding flexibility to the surface cells of your skin and by blocking evaporation. With many lotions, creams and ointments available, the more occlusive, thicker and "greasier" the moisturizer, the better it will block trans epidermal evaporation and trap water next to your skin. One of the greasiest but best at doing that is petroleum jelly, known as Vaseline®. Moisturizers can also contain compounds that encourage water to stay on your skin, like lactic acid, salicylic acid, glycerin, urea and ammonium lactate.

A new addition to moisturizers is compounds called ceramides. Ceramides are found in healthy skin and at lower concentrations in dry or less healthy skin. Three essential compounds from this family have been shown to improve skin texture, skin integrity and dryness, found in a brand of moisturizer called CeraVe®.

Here are 6 Tips for Relieving Dry Skin:

1. Keep your body hydrated. Getting enough water also helps your skin look younger. By drinking extra fluids in the early part of the day you'll avoid having to get up multiple times at night.

2. Minimize your caffeine intake.

I love caffeinated coffee, but it increases water loss by stimulating urination. Not just found in coffee, caffeine hides out in energy drinks like Red Bull, Monster and 5-Hour Energy. One of the best ways to quit caffeine without the misery of a withdrawal headache is to switch to tea, which has half the caffeine as coffee.

3. Humidify your house. Use a humidifier if you live in a dry climate or when heating your home. Warm, dry air accelerates trans-epidermal evaporation.

4. Shower and bathe with warm, not hot water. Using hot water encourages water loss from the skin. Bathing or showering with cooler water is better for dry skin.

5. Pat skin almost dry, then apply moisturizer to seal the water in.

Apply moisturizer to damp skin within 10 minutes of stepping out of your bath or shower or washing your hands. This maximizes the ability of your moisturizer to trap water in your skin cells.

6. Avoid using bath oil in your tub, despite what people may advise you.

Bath oils create a slippery surface inside your tub, not only making getting in and out of your bathtub a risky activity, but leaving you a slimy mess to clean up.

Put a turkey on your table

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE

There's more than one way to put a turkey on your table for Thanksgiving. Rather than head to the grocery store, thousands of hunters plan to get their birds during the hunting season for wild turkey already underway in eastern Washington.

Then again, who says turkey has to be the center of attention on Thanksgiving Day? November is prime time to head outside for game, fish, or shellfish.

• Deer and elk: Hunters can go afield for deer and elk this month. Get the most of your deer season, multi-season deer tags are still available.

• Razor clams: Diggers have many potential opportunities to hit the beaches this month. Are you team clam gun or team clam shovel? Check out all the clam dig information at medium.com/@wdfw/the-great-razor-clam-face-off-d44c9e1a1fd5.

• Waterfowl: Hunting seasons for ducks and geese should be getting into full swing in parts of the state, where migratory waterfowl are expected to make another strong showing this year. Follow this link for more places to hunt waterfowl this November at medium.com/@wdfw/places-to-hunt-waterfowl-b459482a60b3.

• Trout: With tens of thousands of trout recently stocked in lakes, anglers should have plenty of places to enjoy great fishing this fall.

• Crab: A few areas are still open for late-season crab fishing. For details, check the crab seasons and areas webpage.

For more information about fishing, hunting and wildlife viewing opportunities available this month, see the Weekender Regional Reports posted on WDFW's website at wdfw.wa.gov/places-to-go/weekender. These reports are updated throughout the month to provide current information about recreational opportunities around the state.

Persons with disabilities who need to receive this information in an alternative format or who need reasonable accommodations to participate in WDFW-sponsored public meetings or other activities may contact Dolores Noyes by phone (360-902-2349), TTY (360-902-2207), or email (dolores.noyes@dfw.wa.gov).
