

Lake Chelan Community Hospital and Clinics board reviewing CEO candidates

BY DIAN PIÑON, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - Aside from all the other general businesses on the agenda. The Lake Chelan Community Hospital and Clinics board meeting of the Governing Board went over CEO recruitment updates Tuesday, June 19.

Work is still being done by the Board in closed sessions, to review a group of CEO candidates. Those candidates will then have a video interview which will be done July 16. The top two candidates will move on and will come to town and attend a few public meetings. The public and the commissioners will get a chance to ask them questions and interact with them before the board makes a final decision.

On August 8 and 9 the Board retreat will take place in Pateros at Howard's On the River Lakeshore Inn conference room. The commissioners are working on putting together the agenda and will have one ready to go by the next time they meet.

The construction of the new hospital is currently on hold. The last step for this project involves getting the approval of the loan by the United States Department of Agriculture. USDA State Director Peter McMillan met with the board and verified that everything was in order and will now go from the state to the federal government for a last word. An approval letter will be received by the board sometime in July which will inform them of the decision by the USDA.

Last week, the board attended the Washington State Hospice & Palliative Organization Conference on June 25 to 27 at Campbell's Resort. "Overall it was great conference and the commissioners learned a lot the future of medicine from different panelists," said Board Chair Mary Signorelli.

The next Lake Chelan Community Hospital and Clinics meeting of the Governing Board will be held on July 24 from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Lake Chelan Community Hospital board room 503 E. Highland Ave.

Commissioner of Public Lands Hilary Franz visits Chelan

BY DIANA PIÑON, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - This wildfire season is predicted to be a very significant one coming ahead. Since January 1, 386 wildfires have already been reported, breaking previous records. The Chelan area has been impacted by a few of those wildfires and the current dry conditions have local, state and federal fire agencies ready to fight them together.

Department of Natural Resources Commissioner of Public Lands Hilary Franz and the DNR staff held a Town Hall Meeting on June 27 at the Chelan Senior Center.

Chelan was one of the six cities Franz visited in order to prepare and engage the public on the fire season soon approaching.

"We had more snow and rain than we might of had in 2014 and 2015. The snow and rain that we got were at higher elevations which left many of lower elevations still very dry. May was the driest on record for our state," said Franz. Due to this, the DNR has recognized the severity of the situation and the likelihood of significant fires in the Chelan Valley area.

The DNR is responsible for 13 million acres of private and state-owned forest land. Not only does the DNR fight wildfires, they also prepare and protect land before fires hit. Available to the DNR are 117 wildland fire engines, six single engine air tankers and eight Type 2 helicopters. Employed are 1,400 staff members, including 550 seasonal firefighters.

The Chelan community is no stranger to wildfires and most recent wildfires have helped the DNR and other fire agencies identify big challenges. Those agencies learned from those fires and found alternatives that could potentially help in case of emergency.

"We are doing everything we can to make sure this area has more equipment and resources," Franz added. To prepare, the DNR has pre-positioned fire equipment and two aircraft, one located in Ellensburg and the other in Dallesport, which will allow quick access to them. By having aircraft closer to key points, fires will be kept small and under control, so the theory goes.

Wildfires have rapidly grown in Washington State and for the past 10 years the DNR has been working with the same amount of resources available to them. Due to this, partnerships with the local fire districts have grown. Local districts are more knowledgeable about the lands that

Inside Lake Chelan Valley Habitat for Humanity

Rahm name executive director

BY DIANA PIÑON, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - It has been a couple of months since new Executive Director Loni Rahm joined Lake Chelan Valley Habitat for Humanity.

Rahm has 40 years of experience with non-profit management and marketing. When Rahm found out about the opening job at Habitat she didn't hesitate on applying. "I looked at this and went, you know in order for us to have a viable community there has to be a workforce and there has to be a place for them to live. This felt very timely for me get involved in this organization," said Rahm.

Housing is a very critical factor to our community and it has reached "crisis mode." Rahm knows that Habitat will be one solution to housing factors in the community.

Currently, the biggest project Rahm is working on is the administration of a program in which eight new Habitat homes that will be built in Chelan throughout the next couple of years. As a non-profit Habitat for Humanity's mission is to provide housing for families.

Excavation is being done at the property located on Wapato Avenue in which the eight houses will be built. Soon a townhome duplex house will be constructed, for two families, at the end of the project the property

Chelan Re-runs expands inventory

BY DIANA PIÑON, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - It has been seven years since the Chelan Station Re-runs Second Hand Thrift Store opened its doors to the public and a lot has changed throughout the years.

The Re-runs is a place for people to donate any items they wish to get rid of, those items are then sold by the store and profits help out the Chelan Senior Center.

Currently in charge are Store Manager Debbie Reed and Warehouse Manager Shane McClellan. Reed and McClellan work together along with 10 volunteers to keep the store in great shape.

Way back when the store was first opened, it was only made up of two small rooms. However, the small amount of room the store had couldn't keep up with the amount of donations being received, which caused the store to add a bigger room to help display items more efficiently.

Store expansions continued and on June 9, there was a grand reopening of the store. It now features a seating lobby area, a furniture warehouse, wider aisles and three big storage rooms.

From the first day working there, Reed knew she wanted to move some things around. "Moving the checking counter was one of the things I wanted to do right away," Reed said. This created a lot of more open space and it eliminated the congestion created in one small area. The bigger checkout space allows the volunteers to price items and checkout people at the big wooden counter. Debit and credit cards started being accepted as well, which has contributed to the increase of sales.

The Re-runs is open Thursday through Sunday, with Saturday being the busiest business day. On an average day the store makes about $600 in sales. As of right now, beds have been a popular item and people have been buying them the most.

"Barb Brouner brought it to this, she brought it this far," said Reed as that being the reason behind the store's success. Brouner volunteered many years at the Re-runs Station and was the previous store manager.

So far people are having nothing but positive feedback to the store's expansion. According to Reed, customers say that "the store is so much more organized and it makes the shopping a lot more easier." They also get surprised at how much the store has changed.

"If you are looking for something, you come here and you can find it!" said Reed. People donate everything to the Re-runs Station, however clothing or big appliances are not accepted.

At the end, Reed is "glad that they are doing more for the seniors because they are becoming a bigger part of our population ... they need those services and they do a lot down at the Senior Center." Reed en-surround them and know their community better. The local fire districts' expertise is a huge asset for DNR to have, according to DNR officials.

Just recently a third round of training was done with 36 fire agencies from around the state. Training was received by local, state and federal fire districts. Opportunities such as this one allow for better communication and coordination between agencies before fire season even starts. This way firefighters get to know each other and work better together once they are called to service.

Since 2012, the DNR recognized the serious fire issues in the state and wanted to do something about them. After fire seasons hit back to back in 2014 and 2015, the DNR started working towards a solution. In 2016, the legislature funded and directed the 20-Year Forest Health Strategic Plan for Eastern Washington.

More direction was then given to the DNR by the legislature in 2017 to implement forest health work on about one million acres by 2037.

The 20-Year Plan calls for maximizing the effectiveness of forest health treatments and coordinating and prioritizing forest management activities across watersheds and large landscapes. "Our goal is now to treat 1.25 million acres of forest in Central and Eastern Washington for over the next 20 years, that is about 70,000 acres per year," stated Franz.

Southeast Region Landowner Assistance Program Scott Chamber, went over the Forest Health Plan more in-depth. Chamber first explained the different forest health challenges, they include fire management practices, land use changes and climate impacts.

The vision of the plan is to have forests functioning in a resilient way to the landscape and also to help with economic and social needs. In order to do so, there are five goals the plan focuses on:

1. Conduct 1.25 million acres of scientifically sound, landscape-scale, cross-boundary, management and restoration treatments by 2037.

2. Reduce the risk of uncharacteristic wildfire and other disturbances to help protect lives, communities, property, ecosystems, assets and working forests.

3. Enhance economic development through implementation of forest that maintain and attract private sector investments and employment in rural communities.

4. Plan and implement coordinated, landscape-scale forest satisfy their down payment through labor," explained Rahm. Families invest up to 400 hours of "sweat equity" as a way to compensate the down payment.

Rahm believes that, "the tempo is going to pick up ... it will move very quickly over the next three years." The demand for additional homes will always be there because of this, Rahm encourages people to donate land or materials, "both are tax deductible as a charitable investment."

Habitat's goal is to be in building mode at the Wapato property before the end of summer. By next spring they hope to start building another property and from there keep going until all residences are completed.

The Habitat Store is a profit center that helps Habitat will hold four single family homes and two townhomes duplexes.

"The two families who been selected are very excited and very anxious for us to get the project started," Rahm said. The other families have not been selected yet, but "once we are done taking care of the first two families, there will be a process by which we will make sure we let people know that we are open for applicants," she added.

The application process is a very long and serious one, those who are accepted have to go through a loan application just as a traditional loan. Habitat does not give these houses for free, instead "we work with them to

In the June 20 issue of the Lake Chelan Mirror, in the story about the Chelan Fire & Rescue monthly meeting the following paragraph should have read: Support Service member, Marcia Holmdahl, showed disappointment towards the Commissioners. As of right now, Chelan Fire & Rescue is running on 2006 Levy Lid Lift budget, Holmdahl stated "if I went to car dealership or if I went to the grocery store, I am not going to get very much." The Commissioners didn't pass a lobby that would help with this issue. Holmdahl solution is to present the community with the safety statics, so the department could get their support.

restoration and management treatments in a manner that integrates landowner objectives and responsibilities.

5. Develop and implement a forest health resilience monitoring program that establishes criteria, tools and processes to monitor forest and watershed conditions, assess progress and reassess strategies over time.

To help landowners, the Landowner Assistance Program assists small private landowners with their land.

First, a forester will walk the landowner's property for review and then assess the land's fire risk, the forester will also determine the values and needs of the land. At last a plan is created based on the forester's recommendations to the land and the program can also help provide resources to reach those goals.

Resources and funding opportunities through a cost share program are available for landowners who need assistance. For information on the

Notification of Public Risk: Bat found (rabies unknown) at Don Morse Park

SUBMITTED BY CHELAN-DOUGLAS HEALTH DISTRICT

CHELAN - A dead bat was found in the City of Chelan - Don Morse Park located at 485 W. Manson Highway, Chelan, on June 28. Animal Control delivered the dead bat to Chelan-Douglas Health District. Due to the condition of the bat, it could not be tested for rabies. However, it was clear that the bat did not get to the location of its discovery on its own, so it must have been touched at some point. If the bat had rabies, touching it without gloves might expose a person or pet to rabies.

Chelan-Douglas Health District asks that you contact your local health jurisdiction if you or someone you know, or any of their pets, touched this bat.

For any Chelan-Douglas residents, please call 509-886-6400 Monday through Thursday 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone who encounters a bat should be evaluated by a medical professional for risk of rabies. If bitten, the medical provider should immediately report the bat bite to Chelan-Douglas Health District or your local health jurisdiction.

Please remember to never touch live or dead wild animals - especially bats, and keep all pets updated on their vaccines as required by Washington State Law (WAC 246-100-197). Please contact your veterinarian if you believe your pet has come in contact with a bat.

Avoid a fine: Where to park in Chelan

By DIANA PINON, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - Patrolling the streets of Chelan, will be two parking enforcement members wearing bright orange Parking Enforcement shirts this year.

The staff will provide enforcement in parking lots located at the Marina, next to the Lakeview Drive-in, the Don Morse Memorial Park, Lakeside Park and the parking lot located at the corner of Johnson Avenue and Columbia Street.

The Johnson Avenue parking lot is a new pay parking lot for 2018. It will cost $1 per hour to park there, with a three hour maximum purchase.

Downtown Chelan is also patrolled. Johnson Avenue and Woodin Avenue between North Sanders Street and North Columbia Street have a three hour parking limit. Cars that are parked there for a longer period time will receive a parking infraction.

Vehicles are also checked in front of the Chelan Ranger Station and the parking at the end of North Park Street next to Peterson's Waterfront.

Community collaborates on new Chelan River Trail

Lake Chelan Trails Alliance to raise funds and organize volunteers to build trail on PUD land

SUBMITTED BY KIMBERLEE CRAIG, CHELAN COUNTY PUD

WENATCHEE - PUD staff Monday (June 25) outlined for commissioners plans to issue a permit for the Lake Chelan Trails Alliance to build 2.3 miles of new trail above the Chelan River on District land. The proposal reflects an extended effort by the community and the PUD to expand recreation opportunities in the Chelan Valley.

Members and volunteers of the Lake Chelan Trails Alliance will raise funds and provide volunteer labor to build and maintain the trail, which will extend southeast from the PUD's existing Reach 1 Trail. The City of Chelan has agreed to monitor trail maintenance and provide liability coverage for trail use. Trail Alliance volunteers will install signs and maintain the trail at the city's direction.

The conditional use permit will be similar to the recreation agreement with the City of Wenatchee for trails on PUD land in the western foothills, explained Jeff Smith, District Services managing director.

"This unique private-public partnership between the Trails Alliance, City of Chelan and PUD illustrates the value of multi-agency collaborative efforts for the benefit of our mutual constituencies," Smith said.

Planned are two loops with options for multiple routes and distances that are expected to be popular with hikers and trail runners, said Guy Evans with the Trail Alliance. Mountain bikes will be allowed. "It's been a joy to work with the PUD in such a collaborative fashion," Evans said.

Chelan Mayor Mike Cooney said trails are important enhancements for Lake Chelan residents and the resort area's many visitors.

It will be built in two phases, the first starting in 2019, Smith said. Plans are to build the second loop in 2020. The trail will be a safe distance from the Chelan River to protect users and guard against erosion.

The Trails Alliance may be interested in expanding the existing Reach 1 trailhead depending on increased use, he added.

Smith said Trails Alliance members must complete environmental and shoreline review before the PUD will issue its permit.

In other business, commissioners:

Brian Odell, Safety and Labor director, said immediately after the accident crews modified all the spillway rail structures at Rock Island Dam by replacing pins with nuts and bolts to reduce the probability of a similar event. The spillway gate where the accident happened was taken out of service as well as a second one of the same design. Two investigations are underway. party for a thorough review and the state Dept. of Labor and Industries will return to Rock Island the first part of July to begin the formal part of its investigation. There is no timeline for the internal investigation as the PUD wants to ensure it is meticulous and that the PUD has a deep and full understanding about the circumstances of this tragedy. State officials must finish their investigation within six months.

• Heard, that ALCOA Corp. paid the $62.4 million due on June 19 as expected. The payment under the power sales contract does not prevent the possibility of restarting the Wenatchee Works, and Alcoa's contract with the PUD remains in place until 2028. Annual impacts on PUD finances will be modest, reported Chief Financial/Risk Officer Kelly Boyd, as the revenue will be spread over the remaining 10 years of the contract.

• Approved up to $2.24 million for premiums on the District's 2018-2019 insurance coverage starting July 1. The amount is consistent with the budget and is 5.4 percent more than current coverage. Negotiations on the final amount continue, said Ron Gibbs, insurance and claims manager.

• Allocated $4 million for Public Power Benefit project funding in 2019 and assigned $2.3 million of that to continue the broadband network build-out, $100,000 to renew the important story of the Columbia River told at Rocky Reach Discovery Center and $50,000 for the day use pass for PUD parks operated by the state. Board members also assigned $900,000 from unallocated 2018 funds for other Discovery Center improvements.

• Received thanks for PUD support of the YSplash! water safety program from Dorry Foster, YMCA chief executive officer. Chelan PUD is a sponsor of the program that teaches safety around water. With the PUD's help, 451 Wenatchee Valley youngsters, plus 18 teens and adults, took part this spring. Chelan PUD also supported Iceicle Broadcasting's spring water safety campaign, reported Suzanne Hartman, Communications manager. The efforts help customer-owners and the community safely enjoy PUD parks.

• Honored bilingual employee Griselda Gonzalez, in Energy Resources and Conservation, for her interpreting help for a student at a recent "Careers After School" session at the PUD. She offered to help with no notice and at the end of her workday. "With a big smile and without any hesitation, she immediately and fully engaged with the student and stayed for the entire, two-hour class," according to her May 2018 Cycle of Personal Ownership nomination.

Liberals screaming shut down ICE, while ignoring corruption at FBI

Last week I pointed out that this entire drama over separating children from their parents was just a political smokescreen to avoid the real scandal involving the top echelons of our government.

Watching the opening of the Congressional testimony of Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein only confirms to me the depth of the problem in Washington. From the very beginning of the hearing Congressional Democrats protested the hearings. Democrat Representative Jerrold Nadler saying, "when President Trump ... was ripping children out of the arms of their mothers ... where was the emergency hearing on that issue?"

The reality is Democrats are growing increasingly concerned that tolerance for abuse of American citizens under their watch is gaining strength and could ultimately spell disaster for their hoped for "Blue wave" in the midterms.

Let's review. The Inspector General confirmed that Hillary Clinton exercised gross negligence in her handling of classified information during her term as Secretary of State. Other American citizens have gone to jail for their careless handling of classified documents.

IN MY OPINION
Bill Forhan
Publisher

Justice is supposed to be blind and equally applied to all citizens. Politicians and government employees aren't entitled to a "get out of jail free" card because they hold a high political office. American citizens are not their subjects. American citizens are their bosses and they owe their jobs and their allegiance to the American citizens.

Clinton supporters wanted her to be the first woman President. Much like they wanted Obama to be the first black President. Trouble is those are not the primary qualifications for holding the top job in the country.

Many of the supporters of Hillary and Obama were willing to look the other way when issues were raised about their qualifications. And let's be honest, Republicans did not elect an opponent to run against President Obama that had commandingly better qualifications.

The Republican candidates may have had more experience in the operation of our government, but they demonstrated little or no leadership. They were either unwilling or unable to confront Obama on his proposals to insure all Americans for $2,500 less than they were paying for insurance through the private market.

It is troubling that members of the FBI were providing cover for Hillary during the campaign. It is true that they have the right to vote for whomever they choose to support personally, but when their efforts cross over the line of failing to prosecute someone who has committed a crime because "she might be our new boss." They have tipped the scales of justice.

Add to that the fact that they were so personally repulsed by the Republican choice that they were willing to take steps to defeat him by attacking his character with untrue stories of his depravity.

Failing at that they engaged in unreasonable and illegal search activities in an effort to find out if he was guilty of a crime, any crime, so they could push for his impeachment.

Now Democrats are clinging to the story of ripping children from their mother's arms in an effort to build resistance to President Trump. They are calling for the elimination of ICE - Immigration and Customs Enforcement Agency. In other words, they want to remove any effort to enforce our borders.

During his testimony before Congress Rosenstein said he was not personally responsible for the actions of the individual agents under him. If that is the case, it is clear he did not exercise any supervision of his staff. Proving once again that in government service no one is accountable for the work they do.

We are witnessing the worst scandal of our history. When will the insanity of the far left end?

I have said for decades that term limits are within the power of the electorate. In other words, if they are in - vote them out. In most cases we won't be any worse off.

There will be riots in the streets

A 2-part diatribe

Because of many recent Trump Administration policies, I predict there will be riots in the streets of America. Family separation of immigrants is just part of the issue.

Here is the shame of it all: No one cares on the right wing because the riots will only take place in urban areas and as all good right wingers know, urban areas are filled with extreme, liberal Democrats, so who cares.

All the major cities will have riots, but not so in the quiet little country towns like Wenatchee where conservatism reigns supreme. Any sentient being who lives anywhere in America will form an opinion and downplay

APPLES TO APPLES
Gary Bégin

Trump's tyrannical policies if they are right-sided GOP and the reverse is also true - urban liberals will overplay these same policies.

Folks in Detroit, Miami, Seattle, Los Angeles, Portland, Boston, Houston, etc., will riot, especially if they are Black and Latino, while the rural Whites will remain silent with a tacit understanding that their man Trump is, indeed, doing their bidding vis-a-vis immigration and SCOTUS appointees.

What's not to love - if you are right you are winning.

If you are left, you are being crushed by all three branches of government. That should all change with the mid-term elections, but only if the Democrats motivate their base and vote enough Republicans out of office.

If they don't vote then they have no excuse to continue whining. Violence, that is rioting, may backfire and cause even more of the right wing and even GOP moderates (like myself) to come out of their complacent closets to stop the so-called predicted "Blue Wave" from ever reaching fruition.

I fail in my predictive efforts if I don't state the obvious. The extreme right may also riot in favor of Trump policies or at least against the left rioters. That means Skinheads, Nazis, White Supremacists, so-called Tea Party, etc., will also be out in those same urban streets bashing the leftists with sticks and stones and perhaps even guns.

Because so many of the extreme Whites live in the rural areas, they will be happy to ride busses and caravan cars into the inner cities to confront the left.

Wherever there is a major college, you can also bet even more riots will happen. Even if those campuses are in the country, the students will riot as they did during the Vietnam War.

Our country elected a man whose main campaign advisor, Steven Bannon, advocated the complete "deconstruction" of the status quo. Guess what folks, he is getting his way.

If you don't vote, I used to think, "well, that is your prerogative." Now I think those who don't vote may very well just shut the heck up because they have become part of the problem.

Either side with or side against, but take a side and make your stand. It is patently false to say your vote just doesn't matter. If that's how you really feel then move to Russia, China, North Korea or Cuba where votes actually don't count.

In reality I am being far too prejudicial against liberals who live in the country and conservatives that live in the cities. I am generalizing because that is exactly what President Trump is doing when he bans Muslims from specific countries from traveling to the United States.

Now the Republican dominated Supreme Court has sided with the travel ban. The millions of Democrats who failed to vote in 2016 can only blame themselves. Those who hated Hillary had better learn to embrace the right wing, because of your "hatred" of her, we have Trump.

You lazy no accounts have caused your own demise.

As the saying goes, you made your bed, now lie in it.

End of Part 1.

What to expect in prime signature-gathering season for ballot initiatives

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON SECRETARY OF STATE

OLYMPIA - Accusations of deceptive practices have been surfacing in phone calls, e-mails, and on social media as Washingtonians more frequently encounter initiative signature gatherers. With the deadline approaching, signature gatherers are waving petitions to passersby on the sidewalks, in parking lots, and around other public spaces of the state's towns and cities.

"Our office has received reports from people who believe signatures are being gathered illegally or deceptively - and that could be true,"

Wyman said. "Every voter being asked to sign a petition needs to exercise their right and responsibility to read the information on each signature page before they sign it."

While many volunteers work to circulate petitions, initiative sponsors often legally https://blogs.sos.wa.gov/fromourcorner/index.php/2018/06/paid-petition-signature-gathering-whats-wa-legal/ use paid signature gatherers as well. Signature gatherers have a Constitutionally-protected right of free speech to discuss their initiatives with voters and to carry more than one petition at a time.

However, all collection efforts must follow Washington state requirements https://www.sos.wa.gov/elections/initiatives/faq.aspx: every signature must be voluntary, and the full ballot title and initiative petition text must appear on every page that voters sign. Specifications about text placement and other requirements can be found in the state's Initiative and Referendum Manual https://www.sos.wa.gov/_assets/elections/initiatives/initiative%20and%20referenda%20handbook%202017%20.pdf.

If a voter wants to have his or her name removed from a signed petition, the voter must contact the sponsors of that initiative.

Sponsor contact information can be found on the Secretary of State's website https://www.sos.wa.gov/elections/initiatives/initiatives.aspx?y=2018&t=p.

Additionally, information on the support behind each initiative can be found at the Washington Public Disclosure Commission's database of initiative committee financial reports https://www.pdc.wa.gov/browse/more-ways-to-follow-the-money/committeesstatewide?category=Committees.

If someone feels that paid signature gatherers are in violation of state law, a complaint can be filed with the state Office of the Attorney General https://www.atg.wa.gov/file-complaint.

Sponsors who hope to put initiatives before voters in the statewide November General Election face a 5 p.m. July 6 deadline, by law http://apps.leg.wa.gov/RCW/default.aspx?cite=29A.72.160, to submit enough signatures to the Office of Secretary of State to make the ballot. With the deadline imminent, an increase in signature-gathering activity is expected this week and next. Each petition must receive a minimum of 259,622 valid registered voters' signatures to qualify for this year's election; however, the office's Elections Division recommends submitting at least 325,000 to allow for invalid and duplicate signatures.

Washington's Office of Secretary of State oversees a number of areas within state government, including managing state elections https://www.sos.wa.gov/elections/>, registering corporations https://www.sos.wa.gov/corps/> and charities https://www.sos.wa.gov/charities/>, and governing the use of the state flag and state seal. The office also manages the State

Archives https://www.sos.wa.gov/archives/ and the State Library https://www.sos.wa.gov/library/, documents extraordinary stories in Washington's history through Legacy Washington https://www.sos.wa.gov/legacy/ , oversees the Combined Fund Drive https://www.cfd.wa.gov/ for charitable giving by state employees, and administers the state's Address Confidentiality Program https://www.sos.wa.gov/acp/ to help protect survivors of crime.

Sunset Marina celebration raises over $3,200 for Chelan Valley Hope

SUBMITTED BY CHELAN VALLEY HOPE

CHELAN - The sun came out and good weather returned just in time for the ribbon cutting ceremony at the new Sunset Marina. Mayor Mike Cooney wielded the scissors and 250 or more people toasted with sparkling wine and learned about the various environmental protections that were built into the design and policies for the Marina.

Besides showcasing the beautiful new Clubhouse and all its indoor and outdoor amenities, the Saturday, May 26 Grand Opening celebration brought some good fortune for Chelan Valley Hope (CVH). Scott McKellar and his partners made available two slip rentals for the remaining months of this year. These were auctioned off during the event and the two winners were Drew Copitzky and Gordon Rice. In addition the Sunset Marina partners provided two top-of-the-line stand-up paddle boards for raffle. The lucky winners were Marvin Gellatly and Gary Davis. All the proceeds for the auction and the raffle items were donated to Chelan Valley Hope. Scott has been on the Board of CVH since its early beginnings in 2008 and has found many ways to support our mission and promote our cause. The total donation amounted to over $3,200 which will be put to good use aiding families and individuals in the Valley with emergency needs.

Watercross racing among Apple Pie Jamboree events

SUBMITTED NEWS RELEASE

PATEROS - Watercross racing action resumes in the Pacific Northwest July 21-22 during the annual Apple Pie Jamboree.

The city festival is anchored by watercross racing on the Columbia River, but it also includes a bass fishing tournament, 3-on-3 basketball, the Color Run, a parade, motorcycle run, food, entertainment and fireworks.

Racers can camp for free in the city's Methow River boat launch park, just a short walk or ride to the race site at the confluence of the Methow and Columbia rivers.

Camping opens Friday, July 20, promoter and organizer Roger Harnack said.

The Apple Pie Jamboree is the Northwest Jet Sports Association's longest-running event; this will be the eighth year watercross racers have been invited to participate.

"This is by far our best venue and event every year," Harnack said, noting the 95-degree plus temperature and cool Columbia River provide for a perfect weekend of racing.

The event usually draws more than 45 racers who bring nearly 100 skis to the small town of about 400 residents.

"Everywhere you look, there are skis," Harnack said.

There will be a variety of classes for runabouts, sport boats and skis, as well as gender and skill level, Harnack said.

Registration opens Friday evening in the camping area and continues Saturday morning. Racing kicks off about noon Saturday at the conclusion of the Apple Pie Jamboree parade and the presentation of the National Anthem, both on and off the water.

Racing continues until late Saturday afternoon, when the race site closes for the town's evening of music and fireworks, put on by the city of Pateros and the Apple Pie Jamboree Committee, led by organization president Tracy Miller.

This year, International Jet Sports Boating Association's Blake Corning will be assisting with the race that also traditionally draws a few racers from British Columbia, as well as Oregon, Washington and Idaho, Har-nack said. Volunteers that put on the event include Bill and Dawn Cox, Jen Efring and Angela Clements, among others.

The Apple Pie Jamboree is the first of two association events - the second is the international Lake Osoyoos Cup.

On Aug. 4 and 5, watercross racers will converge in Deep Bay Park in Oroville for the Lake Osoyoos Cup.

The Oroville Chamber of Commerce is building a town festival around the racing action on beautiful Lake Osoyoos, which lays half in Washington state and half in British Columbia. American racers do not have to enter Canada to get to the race site on U.S. Highway 97.

That event, too, often attracts Western Canadian Watercross Association competitors.

Free camping is available in Deep Bay Park beginning Aug. 3, Harnack said, noting the Oroville Chamber of Commerce makes the event possible every year.

For more information on either event, contact Harnack at rharnack@gmail.com or text him at 360-461-7347.

During the awards ceremony, Dr. Jobe and Ray Eickmeyer also presented statistical information regarding the outcome of out-of-hospital cardiac arrests in Chelan/Douglas as compared to state and national outcomes and discussed opportunities for improvement. Out-of-hospital cardiac arrest (OHCA) is a leading cause of death among adults in the United States. According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), approximately 300,000 OHCA events occur each year in the United States. Cardiac arrest occurs when the heart stops beating, and death quickly follows if a normal heart beat is not started again within minutes. In the first few minutes following OHCA, swift implementation of five critical actions, known as the "chain of survival", can substantially increase the chances of survival.

1) Early or rapid activation of EMS by calling 911,

2) Early initiation of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR),

3) Early defibrillation or application and use of an automated external defibrillator (AED),

4) Early access to advanced life support by EMS providers, and

5) Early post-resuscitative care.

The first two can be initiated by anyone, and the 3rd if an AED is available. Survival rates vary widely across the United States. The likelihood of surviving an OHCA is about 10% according to America Heart Association. In 2011, EMS agencies throughout Chelan and most of Douglas counties, instituted a new approach to resuscitation, which utilizes a precisely choreographed approach to minimize interruptions while emphasizing the importance of the basic concepts of chest compressions. We believe this has significantly improved survival from OHCA in Chelan and Douglas Counties. This approach is most effective when at least 6-10 EMT's are able to respond to the 911 call.

In 2017, in Chelan/Douglas Counties, the survival rate for persons with a witnessed arrest and shockable rhythm was 54.5%, this was one of the highest survival rate in all of Washington State. The second link in the chain of survival is early CPR. In 2017, citizens initiated CPR in Chelan/Douglas Counties 58% of the time. Citizens play an important role in survival of early CPR.

To improve the survival for patients suffering an OHCA in Chelan/Douglas Counties, the GWEMS Council is encouraging everyone living or working in Chelan/Douglas Counties to learn how to perform CPR by the end of the year. This can be accomplished by taking a formal CPR class or watching a video on the reliable website like the American Heart Association (www.heart.org). During recent years, changes in the CPR guidelines, including the adoption of hand-only CPR has been proven effective and important. Anyone who hasn't taken a class recently is encouraged to take another class.

Early defibrillation provided by the application and use of an AED is another critical link in the chain of survival. Therefore, the GWEMS Council is encouraging larger businesses to consider purchasing an AED that could be used to help save the life of someone suffering an OHCA. Businesses who own or purchase an AED are required, under RCW 70.54, to notify the local EMS system of the existence of the AED and its location. For more information about the Public Access Defibrillation program, including how to register or obtain medical oversight of an AED, contact The Greater Wenatchee EMS Council at gwemscouncil@gmail.com.

On June 28 Chelan Fire & Rescue along with Lake Chelan Valley EMS and Chelan County Sheriff units responded to a head on collision on Cooper Gulch Road, one mile north of Boyd Loop Road in Chelan. Arriving units found a Honda Civic had collided head on with a dump truck causing significant front end damage to the Honda along with air bag deployment. The driver of the Honda was treated and released at the scene with a minor hand injury, the driver of the dump truck was uninjured. Cause of the accident is under investigation.

Vehicles collide on Highway 97

On Thursday, June 28 Chelan Fire & Rescue along with Lake Chelan Valley EMS, Chelan County Sheriff, and Washington State Patrol units responded to a head on collision on U.S. 97 north of Apple Acres Road. Arriving units found a Honda Pilot had collided head on with a minivan causing significant damage to both vehicles along with air bag deployment. All victims were treated and released at the scene without any injuries. Cause of the accident was attributed to driver of the Honda Pilot falling asleep at the wheel and crossing over into the northbound traffic lane. Holiday traffic on U.S. 97 was slightly delayed during the investigation and clean-up of the accident.
