Bringing music to Chelan students' ears

Frances Walton Competition winners perform at CHS

By ERIN ROSSELL, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN – The Ladies Musical Club of Seattle and Lake Chelan Bach Fest presented a performance from two of the winners of the 2017 Frances Walton Competition Tour, Wednesday, Sept. 13 at Chelan High School (CHS). Pianist Xiao Chen and Violinist Xenia Deviatkina-Loh performed in front of a gathering of students in the Performance Arts Center, playing various classical pieces including Claude Debussy's Fireworks and Sonata for Violin and Piano No. 3, Op. 12 by Ludwig van Beethoven.

Following the performance, Chen and Deviatkina-Loh held a brief Q&A session with the audience. Questions ranged from how their musical careers began to what goes through the artist's minds while playing.

They also performed that evening at a concert held at the Lake Chelan Lutheran Church, which was open to the public.

The Ladies Musical Club of Seattle (LMC) is a non-profit organization whose mission is focused on fostering classical music to its members and to communities throughout Washington State "through education, performance, and awards," as stated in the club's mission statement. Every June, the LCM sponsors the Frances Walton Competition. Contestants must be focused in classical music and between the ages of 20 and 35, and reside, study, or work in one of 19 western states.

Lake Chelan Community Open Space Visioning group holds final meeting

Presents implementation steps draft

By ERIN ROSSELL, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN – The Lake Chelan Community Open Space Visioning group gathered Wednesday, Sept. 13 at City Hall for presentation of the implementation plan and refining of visioning statement. "The Lake Chelan Community Open Space Vision will be a comprehensive community-based vision for balancing strategic protection of open space and recreation with continued local development," as stated on cityofchelan.us.

Amy Morris of The Trust for Public Land began by explaining several techniques and methods used to evaluate the community's consensus on what's important and contributes to the quality of life within the Chelan Valley. The group distributed surveys locally, to both English speaking and Spanish speaking homes, as well as throughout the community. The key results included the lake and parks being the two highest priority open space areas contributing to the local quality of life.

Amy Morris

Curt Soper

Curt Soper from Chelan-Douglas Land Trust spoke and provided some insight from recent Wenatchee projects. For comparison, Soper presented the Wenatchee Foothills as a comparison for what Chelan's open spaces and recreational areas could look like and offer.

Implementation steps for the Open Space Visioning include a series of steps:

Step A – Protecting highest priority local lands and resources

Step B – Create structure and expectations for ongoing implementation of Open Space Vision

Step C – Develop a strong communications strategy for the Open Space Vision

Step D – Incorporate Open Space vision into local planning efforts

Step E – Identify and pursue traditional and non-traditional funding sources or actions to implement the Greenprint

"There are huge benefits to protecting opens spaces," said Morris, "it's a huge factor in local quality of life."

WDFW fields complaints, concerns about declining steelhead fishery

By MIKE MALTAIS, STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – About two dozen residents and sportsmen gathered at Howard's on the River Central Building in Pateros last Tuesday, Sept. 19, to participate in a discussion of local wildlife issues – particularly steelhead – with Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) representatives.

WDFW Northcentral Regional Director Jim Brown opened the meeting followed by a 15-minute presentation by WDFW biologist Scott Fitkin concerning current deer and game bird populations and habitat conditions.

In response to a question about deer survival, Fitkin said that while fawn mortality over the last two winters was above average but not severe and that none of the radio-collared spring deer died over the past winter.

The balance of the two hour-plus meeting was devoted to the local steelhead fishery and its closure in the upper Columbia River system for the past two years.

Chad Jackson, WDFW's Region 2 fish program manager clarified the summer steelhead area under discussion as the upper Columbia region from Priest Rapids Dam upstream to Chief Joseph Dam, including the main stem Columbia, the Wenatchee, Entiat, Methow and Okanogan rivers and their tributaries.

"It just isn't the Methow we're talking about," said Jackson and recited the developments that affect the local steelhead fishery.

"The upper Columbia summer steelhead were listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) back in 1999," said Jackson, "and a key component of the listing is that both the wild and the hatchery steelhead are listed, they're not separate."

Jackson added that the upper Columbia hatchery programs play a role in aiding quires that certain conditions be met before a season can be opened on the Methow River.

- A minimum forecasted abundance of 9,550 fish total including wild and hatchery fish, 1,300 of which must be wild or native fish

- Upper Columbia tributaries must also meet independent minimum escapement targets.

Jackson said that 2017 steelhead forecasts above Bonneville Dam are at a 50-year low. Of those, the predicted steelhead coming over Priest Rapids Dam – the Upper Columbia fish – is about 3,400 fish, 615 of those wild. While the run is not yet completed, Jackson estimated another 1,000 to 1,200 fish would fall far short of the number needed to meet minimum requirements.

"What that means is for the second year in a row, we're not going to have an Upper Columbia steelhead fishery," Jackson said.

What Jackson referred to as a "double tap" on the steelhead numbers came from a combination of the 2015 heat and drought conditions and a poor ocean environment for fish survival.

Jackson's summary set the stage for an active audience participation with questions relating to management practices, hatchery plants and fishing regulations.

A Chelan county resident asked why the Wenatchee River has not been managed to create as good a steelhead fishery as that found in the Methow River. The reply was that the Wenatchee's shorter length, lack of tributaries and habitat compared with the Methow were big factors accounting for the difference in the two waterways.

Al Senyohl, president of the Steelhead Trout Club of Washington and part-time resident along the Methow River lamented the decline in steelhead numbers over the past decade and the economic loss to the area with the decrease in guides and sport fishermen from around the Northwest that used to fish the Methow.

"I'm a catch-and-release fly fisherman and I've seen a remarkable steelhead recovery of nine or 10 years ago with four fish limits decline to 6,700 fish this year," said Senyohl. "That's not what I call a successful program."

Larry Riggins, president of the Methow Valley Fly Fishers, has owned a piece of prime fishing real estate between Methow and Carlton, since 2005,

WDFW Region 2 Director Chad Jackson delivered a presentation on the summer steelhead fishery.

"It seems to me that if you put a million fish from our hatcheries and 250,000 from Wenatchee into the river and only get 6,000 back, something's wrong," Riggins said.

"We have seven dams and hundreds of miles that our fish have to cross to get to the ocean and back," said Riggins "and we're at the end of the chain."

Riggins said a proposed change of management of upper Columbia hatcheries from WDFW to the Douglas County PUD is another concern that leaves everything "up in the air right now."

"The Douglas County PUD owns the hatcheries and they own the fish," said Riggins "but has contracted with WDFW for quite a period to run them."

Chief Joseph Hatchery Manager Pat Phillips, who attended the meeting and knows a thing or two about steelhead propagation efforts, later summed up the mood of the fishermen who attended the meeting.

"We all want steelhead fishing the way it used to be," said Phillips "but the agency has its hands tied in lots of ways because of the ESA requirements."

Managers must work within the PUD mitigation program as part of the process within existing guidelines, Phillips said.

"Ocean and drought conditions being what they are, all you can do is rear good fish, release them, and hope for the best," Phillips said.

On another topic, Jackson said one of the more consistent complaints WDFW has received from citizen surveys is the complicated fishing regs pamphlet.

"Our fishing pamphlet is terrible," said Jackson. "The agency has been undergoing a rules simplification and reformatting the pamphlet."

Jackson said the new product will be reviewed in a series of regional public meetings and an online link at wdfw.wa.gov/ to get further feedback.

Concert raises $12,700 for CVH

SUBMITTED BY SHARON LUKACS, CHELAN VALLEY HOPE

CHELAN - Chelan Valley Hope is very pleased to report that the recent Woodstock Anniversary Concert at Watson's Alpenhorn Café raised a grand total of $12,700. This money will provide almost a third of the funds they anticipate needing for direct client services over the next 12 month. The advance sponsorships and in kind wine and other donations for the silent auction gift baskets helped generate an additional 59% over last years "fun-raiser".

The staff and volunteers are so grateful to the bands and to Bob Watson and staff who made this great event possible with almost no overhead expense. All the proceeds will remain in the Valley and will be put to good use helping those neighbor families and individuals who find themselves facing a crisis and needing a hand up and some support and hope from their community.

Salmon Fest returns for 27th annual festival this weekend

SUBMITTED BY CORKY BROADDUS

The Wenatchee River Salmon Festival is proud to present, the 27 annual award winning “School Days,” Sept. 28 and 29 at the Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery. More than 3,000 students, representing 34 schools and 90 classrooms from throughout North Central Washington, will be attending. A long list of partners and sponsors step up each year to deliver high quality natural resource education, promote healthy outdoor recreation, and share the cultural significance of salmon to the people of the Pacific Northwest. These field trip days of hands-on experiences for students provides a unique learning opportunity valued by North Central Washington schools.

This year has been one of transition for the Salmon Fest planning team as Betsy McIndoe steps down from her director role she has served in for 16 years. She now will hand the baton off to Hailey Croci, a local Cashmere Educator and active community member. Festival founders and coordinators, Corky Broadus and Sheila Bergren are assisting Betsy and have been working year-round to make this year's School Days a most special event connecting people with nature. To make the transition easier and keep costs low, the Salmon Fest will not be hosting events on Saturday this year, but instead will offer an afternoon Open House on Thursday, Sept. 28, from 3 to 6 p.m. for the general public. There will be guided Nature Tours, nature exhibits, Native American Village, fish printing, live birds of prey raptors and hands-on activities for all ages! The Salmon Fest Saturday will return in September 2018 where all festival activities will be presented in full force.

The non-profit Friends of Northwest Hatcheries hosts Salmon Fest with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, U.S. Forest Service, Chelan PUD and many “SPAWNers” that provide the funding and volunteers to make this event happen. High School students also join in the fun and are able to meet their high school community service requirements by becoming the festivals key volunteers.

Salmon Fest 2017 promises to be a true community event as well as a celebration of our precious natural resources. Come share in the salmon experience for a free family fun time for all ages.

The Salmon Fest is grateful to this wonderful NCW regional community for the many years of support and attendance that have put it on the map. Salmon Fest has been acknowledged by the International Festivals and Events as the Best Children's Program in the country.

Overall record last year: League 2-6, Overall 3-14
Returning Players: Eight returning players to the Goat's roster this season, with several key returning players including Defender Esme Vera, Goal Keeper Yasmin Granados, Goal Keeper Ashley Sams, Defender/Forward Mia Bordner, and Forward Jade Hatherell.

Aging of team: Two seniors, eight returners, and 11 new players. Despite the number of new teammates this season, the team already has some experience under the belt. "Good things happened in the off-season. We worked hard to have some open gyms, we took a tournament down in Yakima, the Yak-Attack ... we also made summer training a priority, and I think that really helped us because we have 10 freshmen and they've shown a lot of dedication so far."

Coaching Staff: Head Coach Michael Tucker with Assistant Coach Marina Williams

Past and Present: "Last year's squad was a very small squad," Tucker explained, "the biggest struggle was believing ... they had the talent to play better against some of the teams than they did, but they looked at themselves and saw that they were a small team and saw the challenges ... getting them to believe in themselves was probably the biggest challenge"

Feelings going into the season? Tucker described the potential the team has coming into league play saying, "the number of girls that immediately started showing dedication was really significant ... what we didn't have (last year) was girls showing up over summer, when there was opportunity. There wasn't a lot of commitment. That was the problem we had. That's been different this year, I didn't have that happen. Almost everyone has been here since day one, the girls are showing a lot more commitment and it's already making a difference.

Most anticipated game? "Last year, despite of our small team, we were able to beat Omak and be able to say legitimately that we were fourth in the league, instead of being tied with them. For me ... against Okanogan ... I think we have the talent to be above Omak ... I'm interested to see us take the next step, and that's why I'd like to see us play Okanogan."

An interview with Head Coach Mark Anderson

By ERIN ROSSELL,
STAFF WRITER

Returning Runners: About 75 percent of this year's team is returning.

Aging of team: There's approximately seven seniors on the team with six key returning runners: Chris Knight, Logan Menier, Javier Torres, Ashlyn Sanderson, Olivia Nygreen, and Emily Burns.

Coaching Staff: Head Coach Mark Anderson with Assistance Coach Heather Fox

Past and Present: "Last year we had a marquee team - we had a boys' team that was league champions, district champions and went to state and got sixth. We had, arguably, the best three runners we've ever had at this school, at one time, and they've graduated. In terms of the girls, we've lost some girls that were pivotal to the program. With this year's team, we have younger runners so we have to train them differently ... My philosophy is to start them a little slower (but) this group has the potential to improve every time we go out and race."

Most anticipated game? Coach Anderson stated that he most looks forward to District and League meets, as they are the last meet of the year prior to state. "That's the meet that will determine who goes to state and for me, that's always the best one," said Anderson.

Trojans remain undefeated

By ERIN ROSSELL, STAFF WRITER

MANSON – The Trojans maintain their winning streak as they blew through the Bridgeport Mustangs Friday, Sept. 22 at Manson.

The Trojan's offense and defense were at the top of their game, holding the Mustangs for minimal yards gained and allowing no points on the board.

Trojans held the Mustangs at zero for the entirety of the game, ending the brutal beat down with a score of Trojans 42 and Mustangs 0.

Trojans host Soap Lake Eagles

Take a loss in four of seven sets

By ERIN ROSSELL, STAFF WRITER

MANSON – Manson Trojans hosted the Soap Lake Eagles Tuesday, Sept. 19. Manson lost in four sets of the non-league match with Varsity set scores of 17-25, 15-25, 25-22 and 10-25 and Junior Varsity set scores of 25-21, 18-25 and 26-24.

Both Varsity and JV played aggressively in their sets against the Eagles. Both defended their courts well and showed determination in their offense. Celina Mendoza led the Trojans with 10 kills, as well as serving 7/7 with two aces. Kassie Macias led the team in serves with 13/13 and two aces with Alyssa La Mar coming in third with 6/6 serves. On the JV team, Marylein Bernardo lead in serves with 12/12 and four aces, with Ali Adame coming in second with 3/3 and two aces.

"We will continue to iron a few things out. These girls are determined and disciplined and I believe when it all clicks together, we will start winning some games," said Coach Thompson in her Coach's Report.

Entiat Tigers Football

An interview with Head Coach Brian Bailey

By ERIN ROSSELL, STAFF WRITER

Overall record last year: 6-4 overall, 3-2 league

Returning Players: The Tigers have 15 returning players for the season, with three key returners: QB Colby Crutcher, TB/Defensive LB Case Crutcher, and Receiver/Safety Tre Deimuse.

Aging of team: Two seniors on the team, with a majority of the players being sophomores.

Coaching Staff: Head Coach Brian Bailey with Defensive Coordinator Trevor Davis, Assistant Coach Dennis Bailey, and former students and teammates Kirston Tran, and Truong Tran assisting.

Past and Present: "Last year we had five ninth graders starting on offensive and five ninth graders starting on defense, we're just a lot older, a more mature team this year," said Bailey, "we've got (more) experience." Bailey spoke of the hard work that the team has put in together and how it's showing in their defense most of all. "Their work ethic on the off season has just been awesome. They're the type of team that has just not had a bad day," he explained, "from spring ball through now, so we're really pleased about that." Defensively, Bailey said the team has progressed in great amounts compared to last year, "last year we had some struggles in that area, part of that was inexperience and part of that was physical maturity," he said, "we've always scored points but we've struggled to keep other people from scoring points. So, we're really happy with how the defense is looking and that's an area where we're continuing to improve and have shown improvement."

Most anticipated game? Almira-Coulee-Heartline (ACH) and Odessa are the most anticipated, "with Odessa being in the state finals last year and ACH is always a power ... the kids feel like we can compete with those two teams," said Bailey.

Millennials' music: Not your grandpa's Sciatica

My grandson was plugged into his "device" last weekend and from the sight of his gyrations looked like he was being victimized by a Cuban sonic attack. I said Luke (not named after the Bible God forbid, but Star Wars), can I listen?

"Sure Papa Dré (nickname for André, my middle name).

I popped the ear buds in and immediately felt an electric pain shoot right down through my lower back and into my pelvic area and ripped them out of my ears as quickly as I could.

What is this madness?

Luke said it was the latest metal rock band from Europe called Sciatica.

I said Luke, the vibes these cats are layin' down gave me a pain in the Netherlands.

Luke loved geography and knew right away I was talking about NATO.

I said Luke, NATO is in Belgium.

"I love their waffles," he snapped back, ever smart as a whip and nearly as painful.

Knowing how his grandparents loved to talk about politics Luke saw the opening and jumped into the rabbit hole with both feet.

"What do you think about U2 and their international aid efforts?" he asked.

Well, once those Rooskies shot Gary down, that was way before you were born, we tried to give him aid as quickly as we could, I answered, still in disbelief he even knew about spy planes from the 1960s.

"Papa Dré, I'm talking about that Irish rock band. The one with Bono as the lead singer."

I thought Sonny Bono died in a skiing accident years ago? Was he Irish?, I asked Luke.

"U2 -- 'In the Name of Love,' that's a big hit of theirs," he told me, trying to be courteous of my memory, hearing and cognitive issues.

APPLES TO APPLES
Gary Bégin

Well I guess Sonny loved his whiskey and maybe that's what caused the accident. I still think booze is safer than smoking pot Luke. Hey you don't smoke that stuff do you?

Just then Luke started singing.

"Doobie doobie doo, what were the chances. We were strangers in the night, exchanging glances ...."

Fantastic Luke, I'm so happy you remember 'Ol Blue Eyes' - yea Sinatra was the big pop star of his day. Now aren't his songs better than Sciatica? Too bad about his mob connections. With that the conversation suddenly ended.

"Gotta go gramps, there's a big flash mob going on at the police station. Luke walked away quickly, still humming once again, "Doobie doobie doo ..."

I'm so proud of my grandson being civic minded - he's even going to help the cops quell a mob. Probably a bunch of stoned Communists.

Speaking of music and Star Wars, there's a great concert coming to the Tacoma Dome soon. It's a mix of country music and sci-fi. The lead act is Darth Brooks.

I didn't even know Mel had a son in showbiz. Maybe Darth will sing some tunes from Blazing Saddles, but would Millennials recognize the subtlety of film noir lyrics?

I do know one thing for sure, they know the pain of Sciatica.
