One design and portsmouth classes will vie for cheap awards while sailing on the clean, clear water of Lake Chelan. Stay in the City RV Park, local hotels or camp free at Rusty's Nut Farm

Morgen Owings Elementary opens new playground

"This playground was possible because our community cares." – Camisha Hughbanks

BY ERIN ROSSELL, STAFF WRITER

CHELAN – Morgen Owings Elementary (MOE) kicked off their first day of school on August 29 with a ribbon cutting ceremony, opening the new playground equipment for the students. After a year of planning, fundraising, and preparing the play area has been opened for MOE students to enjoy.

Camisha (Hughbanks), former PTA president at MOE, presented the idea to principal Heidi Busk and the Lake Chelan School Board last year.

"One year ago, almost to the day," said Busk, "Camisha, came ... and said, 'I think we need a new playground at MOE'. And a year later, we have that playground. She is an amazing, motivated, driven person who made this happen."

Hughbanks stepped forward and was presented with an appreciative bouquet from Busk.

"So many people were so important and so instrumental in making this happen ... Adam Rynd with Coldwell Banker, helped me develop a fundraising goal, helped me develop a fundraising vision, and he generously kicked off the very first significant big donation to get this playground going ... this playground was possible because our community cares," said Hughbanks

Many other contributors made the playground equipment possible for the elementary school.

"Columbia Valley Community Health, North Cascades National Bank, Chelan Fruit, Lake Chelan Lions Club, Walmart ... and many many more," said Hughbanks.

PATEROS – Three miles north of Pateros on Watson Road, a new opportunity for military veterans is rising from the ashes of the 2014 Carlton Complex wildfire. Called appropriately, Project Phoenix, the project is a 1,600-acre agricultural site on Tatley Farms where vets are invited to learn a variety of skills, share work, undergo healing, earn some money, build friendships and put their own ideas and projects into motion.

Project Phoenix is the creation of David Overcash of Woodinville, owner of Tatley Farms and founder of Golden Acts, an organization focused on making the world a better place, one golden act at a time.

Wenatchee resident John Taminjin is managing the dayto-day property operations while efforts are underway to find an experienced orchardist to mentor that part of the enterprise.

"I had just ended a position with the Chelan County Housing Authority and was looking for something else," Taminjin said.

Tony Sandoval, the Chelan County Veterans Service Officer, told Taminjin that Project Phoenix was looking for a manager, so Taminjin assumed the position last May.

Overcash was inspired to start a project farm for vets after a life-changing mission to Guatemala with Medical Teams International where he worked to improve the lives of the indigenous Mayan people.

One of the first projects on the burned-over acreage north of Pateros was planting two 20-acre

Open house, concert Sept. 16 for Ridgeview Place, a home for special needs adults

SUBMITTED BY AL LORENZ, RID-GEVIEW PLACE

CHELAN - Join us for this introduction to the community, learn about the plans and meet the folks involved so far at Ridgeview on Sept. 16, 2-4 p.m., at 1101 Jessie Street in Chelan.

Ridgeview Place is a just completed private residence that was built by Al and Denise Lorenz to be shared by their son, Turner, and three other resident owners with developmental disabilities in Chelan. However, the structure itself is just the beginning of the story; the meaning and purpose come from the people, the relationships, and the involvement of the community.

While we're celebrating completion of the buildings, work continues on building a joyful environment that is nurturing, fun, and productive for its residents. As we go forward, we are building the systems to make each day go smoothly, hiring staff, and creating exceptional employment for the residents. Imagine individuals with developmental disabilities actually achieving financial security and having a "family" of close friends. I think of it as life without limits.

Similar homes exist in Washington. Examples include The Dwelling Place, Cornerstone and Tierra, all in Leavenworth, that have spread the "fantastically joyful" attitudes of their residents into the community through volunteering and work. Their joy is contagious and an asset for everybody.

We are currently seeking some new best friends who also want to create the happiest home on earth for their special family members. There are opportunities for caregivers and volunteers as well.

We will have some experts to chat with who have succeeded building homes in other communities. Ridgeview and the accompanying vocational program will be on display. There will also be a house concert of local musicians during the open house. http://ridgeviewchelan.com/

Draft Strategic Plan Public Meetings

Sen. Brad Hawkins plans first annual 'listening tour'

email Brad:

office at (360) 786-7622

SUBMITTED BY ERIC CAMPBELL. OFFICE OF SEN. BRAD HAWKINS

EAST WENATCHEE... Sen. Brad Hawkins recently announced he will visit several 12th District communities this fall to hear directly from constituents. The first of what Hawkins expects to become an annual "listening tour" is set for Thursday, Oct. 5 through the morning of Saturday, Oct.

"I greatly value being able to hear directly from the people I serve – individual constituents, employers, local governments and community groups.

This is an awesome legislative district, but our location can make it challenging for people to get to the Capitol when I'm there. Even then, my office receives many requests for meetings, and it's difficult to make everything line up. "I thought this would be To arrange an appointment a creative way to go out and connect with people where they are, so I can listen to their thoughts and concerns." Hawkins said.

Hawkins will meet by appointment at public locations in Chelan, Douglas, Grant, and Okanogan counties. On Oct. 5 he'll start at Leavenworth City Hall, then stop at Wenatchee's Confluence Technology Center and the Douglas

County Public Services Building in East Wenatchee, make a visit to Pybus

Public Market, and wrap up that evening at the Port of Quincy. The tour's second day opens at the Lake Chelan School District board room, with visits to the Sweet River Bakery in Pateros and Alta Lake State Park on the way to late-afternoon appointments in Winthrop.

Hawkins asks that people

email him at brad.hawkins@ leg.wa.gov or phone his legislative office at (360) 786-7622 to arrange appointments.

"Organizations that have met with me in the past will notice the timing is earlier, but my hope is that they along with any new groups will take this opportunity to meet up at one of our tour stops," he said.

"Touching base in October is good because the Senate committees meet in November to prepare for the 2018 session, and it also lets everyone steer clear of the crazy schedules common around the holidays.'

Hawkins said there will be two meeting opportunities in the Wenatchee area where no appointments are needed. One is the Oct. 5 stop at Pybus Public Market; the second will be a community hike up Saddle Rock. Hawkins and others who want to join him for the hike will depart from the Saddle Rock Gateway starting at 9 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 7.

"I think this will be a great way to end the tour, enjoying some of our famous outdoor recreation at an iconic Wenatchee Valley location that now offers better community access thanks, in part, to a state grant. I'll enjoy the opportunity to catch up with folks at the gateway, at the top, or along the way."

Hawkins intends to choose different locations throughout the 12th District's four counties in future years. "Over time, I think we'll cover a lot of ground and connect with a lot of people."

Hawkins will be joined by his legislative assistant, Jack Grimm, and other staff.

come entrepreneurs in agriculture and want to try different things," said Taminjin. "You fit in however you can fit in."

Vets have already been showing interest in Project Phoenix. One is soon to arrive with a greenhouse operation that just needs the growing space and living quarters to move forward with his dream.

"Our number one priority is human safety and we want to avoid accidents and injuries as much as possible. Stump holes, unstable soils, flooding potential, washed out roads, and falling trees and branches are all things that forest users need to be aware of," Castle said. "Any time you enter the forest, you should be aware of your environment and changing weather conditions. The environment in and adjacent to recently burned areas is highly susceptible to rainstorms and wind events." In addition to fire closures, campfire bans are in effect Forest-wide. Forest visitors are prohibited from maintaining, attending or using a fire or campfire along with the use of charcoal briquette barbecues, Tiki torches and other devices that use solid fuel. Recreationists can use pressurized liquid gas stoves as an alternative; go to http://bit.ly/2xvnIdA for a list of approved and non-approved campfire options. Most of the forest remains in an Industrial Fire Precautionary Level III in which all firewood cutting is prohibited. Contact local national forest offices for woodcutting information.

Powerline to Slide Ridge being rebuilt

SUBMITTED BY KIMBERLEE CRAIG, CHELAN COUNTY PUD

CHELAN - A contractor for Chelan County PUD is working to rebuild the overhead power line and restore service to communications sites on Slide Ridge, 22 miles up lake from Chelan. Wildfire destroyed the south shore power line in 2015. Rebuilding the 1-mile distribution line will restore power to important communications equipment on the ridge.

Whitefish Energy, of Whitefish Mont. is building the new power line on the same route. A work crew will hand-dig holes for the steel power poles, working downhill on the steep slope from the ridge to the lake. A helicopter will transport the workers onto the ridge and will be used to install the new poles and wire, said Project Manager John Goodwill.

The new line will restore power to communications growth to the south. Additionally, dozers are working to construct fire line on adjacent ridges of the fire. With continued hot, dry conditions the fire may continue to actively spread in steep and rugged terrain. A Type 2 Incident Management Team has been ordered and will arrive today.

Closures: Due to public safety concerns the area around the fire is closed to entry including the Summer Blossom and Safety Harbor Trailheads and the South Navarre, Safety Harbor and Deer Point Campgrounds.

Smoke is anticipated to drift down Lake Chelan and over the Waterville Plateau and will be highly visible from the com-and area closures in place across the National Forest. While thousands of roads and trails remain open, others have been closed for public safety.

"Hunting is a very important use of the Forest. As folks get out into the woods, it's imperative to know what areas are closed due to wildfires and have campfire bans," said Forest Deputy Fire Staff Officer Matt Castle. "Safety is important to all of us."

Due to wildfire activity in many areas of the Forest, public access to some roads, trails, and general forest recreation areas is restricted. Before heading out, hunters should check on forest closures, campfire bans, and current wildfire status at www.fs.usda.gov/okawen or from local national forest offices. The work includes having fire protection on the job site as a precaution. Drivers are asked to use caution on South Lakeshore, Shady Pass and Slide Ridge roads and to be on the lookout for trucks and heavy equipment headed to the job site.

The work is expected to be done in about four weeks at an estimated cost of $534,000. Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and state funds are covering a part of the project cost.

Fredric Iver Schmidt

Fredric Iver Schmidt, born March 24, 1954 died at his home in Mansfield on August 25, 2017 following a sudden illness.

He graduated from Bridgeport High School in 1972. Fred later attended Washington State University and Seattle Central Community College. While Fredric had lived in Mansfield for almost 40 years at the time of his death, Bridgeport was his home town.

He supported the schools and all sports programs in both communities. He rarely missed Bridgeport Daze and as it would be for anyone who was an avid collector of all things an apt description of Fred.

At age 14 Fredric got his agricultural driver's license and started working with his father on the family farms in Mansfield and Leahy. He was employed for five years at Western Farm Service in Mansfield. Later he became a teamster and drove for Mumma Trucking first from their Brewster office and then from the Chelan office.

He spent a number of years at Hanford transportin workers and had various other short term driving positions before his health required him to discontinue trucking. At the time of his passing, he had been employed for a number of years by Jason and JoAnn Tanneberg once again working on a farm.

A lot change during the almost 50 years that Fredric was a farmer- he was always happy to be on the tractor or up in the combine making his way around a field, the only thing better than farming was telling stories about farming. Fred was a member of the Lake Woods Golf Course and played there for many years. He rode snowmobiles, downhill skied, water skied, enjoyed fishing and boating and followed several professional sports teams especially the Seahawks.

Fred survived kidney cancer in 2007 and thereafter he was a regular participant in the Relay for Life events in Okanogan. From the time he was a small boy, Fred had a good and giving heart. He was always the first to volunteer to help anyone he knew no matter how small or large the task. He was a gifted storyteller (like his father) and seemed to have an encyclopedic knowledge of all things related to families in Bridgeport or Mansfield (like his mother.) He was a loyal friend to many and will be remembered for his hearty laugh and big smile.

Fredric is survived by his sister, Kathleen E. Schmidt, Portland, Oregon and his beloved niece, Emily E. Schmidt, Portland, Oregon as well as his aunt, Ann Bolander of Richland.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

How many does it take?

DEAR EDITOR.

Thanks for Erin Rossell's very accurate reporting in your front page lead story last week regarding Chelan's Comprehensive Plan meeting on August 22. That was the largest public planning turnout that we've ever seen in Chelan...by far. Mayor Cooney was quoted as saying, "We will listen and we will hear." But will you take action? By now the mayor and the city council have to know that the City of Chelan wants a park and public access.

In 1957 the Chelan citizens and the City of Chelan decided to throw a party in mid-May called the Apple Cup Hydroplane Races. About 100,000 people showed up for the weekend ... then went home. By 1960 the disturbance was so great that the races were cancelled. Now, 60 years later, this many people, or more, show up ... but not just for the weekend. They stay all summer from May into September and local efforts are afoot for even more tourists for the remaining months of the year.

The city's Comp Plan Fact Sheet reports that about 25,000 people are here in Chelan for the summer. Manson and the North Shore has at least as many people there. The South Shore, according to the Washinton State Parks, reports over 300,000 over the summer. But, the highest estimate is from our Chamber of Commerce, reporting over 2 million; all of these use Chelan services in some fashion.

Now the proposed Comp Plan is adding thousands of acres to the city or to the city's Urban Growth Area AND increasing the residential density potential all across town. Developers are pleased to be in the city where the rest of us will provide the infrastructure they need. Sure, they have hookup fees, but when the sewer plant, for example, is insufficient, it will be all of us that pays for a new plant since the developers have no impact fees associated with their development. Consider, too, that the city government is responsible for providing a total of 27 different public services to its citizens and guests, including parks. Chelan, a recreation mecca, has the lowest per capita ratio of park area in all of North Central Washington.

Chelan is a lake front community. People come here or remain here because of the lake. If the lake were not here then we'd be just like the Entiat Valley or the Methow Valley; nice places, indeed, but nothing like the Chelan Valley. And yet, all of this proposed development comes without even one inch of new lake front public access proposed in the comp plan.

Hundreds of people have signed petitions and provided testimony over this need for a new lake front park. Even the city's own Parks, Recreation, and Open Space (PROS) Plan recognizes the dire need for additional space and points to the only undeveloped water front space left: The 3 Fingers. Yet the city with all of their rhetoric about listening to the citizens won't even investigate the possibility of acquiring the property. A request was made on behalf of the community to the mayor and to the city council at the hearing for an appraisal on the 3 Fingers which would further the process to the demanded additional lake access that the community wants. If you, mayor and council members, are truly listening, and are responsive, then we would expect a motion at the next city council meeting, September 12th, to start the process.

This city government apdevelopers than providing essential public services for our citizens and our guests. How bad does it have to get before the city administration can see their short-sightedness? Was the applause support for lake access and a park from 250 residents not enough? Do we need 500 or a 1,000? Or does it take the last piece of open shoreline to be developed before the administration sees their irreversible mistake?

I like to speak from firsthand personal experience when I can and in this case I can. I was an editor for a weekly rag in Beaumont, Texas about 18 years ago and then I was hired to be a "cops and courts" and "government" reporter for the Pt. Arthur News in Pt. Arthur, Texas.

I can verify without a doubt that both towns are flat as a pancake and it wouldn't take much to cause a flood.

Southeast Texas is basically a coastal piedmont as is much of its Eastern neighbors in the Bayous of Louisiana. Chambers County Texas, celebrates itself as the Alligator Capital of Texas and throws a party to remind folks of that fact every year. The city of Galveston is basically just a big island and Galveston County is nothing more than a couple more islands added in. Thelieve, part of the Bolivar Peninsula to the north makes up the rest of it. Folks in North Central Washington are surrounded by beautiful mountains and well behaved rivers and a lake or two here and there, but way down South water has a mind of its own. Car ferries are everywhere, bridges abound and many of the Interstates cross bodies of water masquerading as nothing more than causeways built precariously close to the water even on a nice day. If you are ever down that way, take I-10 from Houston to New Orleans and you'll see exactly what I mean. Back around the turn of the last century, Galveston barely survived a hurricane
