Chelan covers $280,000 for No-See-Um

By Zach Johnson STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - It's official.

As of March 17, construction on the No-See-Um Roundabout is a greenlight.

"The Department of Transportation (DOT) accepted the bid today," Mayor Mike Cooney confirmed Friday afternoon. "We made up the shortfall, so the project should basically start (in) four to five weeks or sooner from now."

The $9 million project has been on the drawing board for almost a decade now, and already has a little more than $3 million in the ground, but after the discrepancy

The PUD was already doing some preliminary work around the No-See-Um Roundabout on Wednesday, two days before the official decision came from the DOT. The project is expected to finish around September this year.

February, there were questions as to which project the tation Council (CDTC) and money would go. However, announced the Chelan City

Goodbye Chelan Seaplane At least for now

Chelan Seaplanes has formally announced that they will not be operating the seaplane service on Lake Chelan in 2017.

By Zach Johnson STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - For the first time in 60 years, Chelan Seaplanes will not be operating in Lake Chelan. The formal decision came from owner Shane Carlson late in the afternoon on Tuesday, March 14, in a press release. "Regretfully, Chelan Seaplanes is formally announcing that we will not be operating seaplane service on Lake Chelan for the 2017 season. All of the support and kind words of encouragement were not enough to bring things together to operate service in 2017," Carlson wrote in the release. "We have tried our best and exhausted all options, including options that didn't require permitting such as temporary facility, including a floating concept. The City's Shoreline Master Plan does not allow for any temporary type of business concept which we were proposing to get us into operation for 2017. As well, many other permitting hurdles with other State and Federal Agencies would have to be completed in a very short period of time. The lawsuit filed by the Chelan Basin Conservancy (CBC) against the Fingers was another important part of our decision.'

However, Carlson did leave returning to Lake Chelan on the table. Of course, that would only happen if the situation was right.

"I assured Mator Cooney and Hollingsworth that I am committed to being here, I just can't afford to buy a piece of property and take a gamble on a two year lease," Carlson said in reference to a two year lease the Goodfellow brothers offered him. "I would entertain that, I mean they were offering it at a reasonable enough rate, but I could just barely afford it and it still wouldn't solve the long term problem.'

Aside from the Two Fingers location, there are limited locations Carlson believes he can successfully operate from.

"Nothing out there is suitable, that is where the city and the Port need to provide infrastructure for the air service to be there," Carlson stated. "The city didn't do anything accept

Public Hearing for Comp Plan

Chelan community rally around underground lines and waterfront park at Three Fingers

By Zach Johnson STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - If the views / opinions of residents in the Chelan Valley were not clear before, they certainly are now when it comes to protecting the view-corridor and public access to Lake Chelan.

The message residents gave at a Comprehensive Plan Public Hearing with the Planning Commission on Wednesday, March 15, was simple, keep power lines out of the view corridor and try to work on creating a public park on one of the Three "People come here for the views and recreation, and these people spend money in the local economy," Chelan resident Robin Vogel said. "Growth needs to pay for growth and up to my understanding, Crystal View, Legacy Ridge and The Lookout were not required to do mitigation for this new substation, and they have no lines in sight what so ever. Frankly I was a little ticked off they have no lines and my view is going to be completely decimated."

Vogel is also concerned about the safety and overall cost of wildfire repairs to overhead lines. "That needs to be taken into consideration," Vogel stated, Robin Vogel shared her concerns with the substation at the Council meeting and the following night at the Comp Plan public hearing.

Hospital Vote No Committee vs. Vote Yes: Showdown set for March 30

Mike Sherer (pictured above left) gave a hour and a half presentation on Sunday, March 19 at the North Shore Bible Church where he laid out his and the 'Vote No' committees reasons for not supporting the new hospital levy. To Sherer's calculations, the Hospital will cost a total of $107 million when you factor in the $7 million interest, $32 million in equipment replacement over 8 years and $6 million to cover the last 10 years of buildings depreciation. Some of his numbers have been called into question though. He will present his case at the March 30 public forum.

Megan Guffey, MD was one of the first to jump up to the microphone and corrected some of the information Sherer had given in his presentation. After Guffey set the record straight on a few issues, she announced that the LCCHC will be holding a public forum to allow both sides to get all of their information out there and let the public decide who is right. More information will come out when details around the event are more known, but it is scheduled to happen on March 30 at the Chelan High School PAC.

difference, the decision was pretty much made.

Although the situation is not ideal, Cooney is confident they can find places to cut some of the overall cost and happy the project is moving forward.

"We are working closely with the DOT on this project and contractor to see every little thing, - without jeopardizing safety or design or anything major - if there are cost savings," Mayor Cooney said. "Typically there could be. At least it got done, we stepped to the plate, bit the bullet and did it."

Although the project just got accepted, the Mayor is convinced the project will get done around the original finish date in September, "depending on how things flow."

kind words on and a pat on the back, nothing was done to help facilitate it."

In a response to the initial press release, Mayor Mike Cooney said, "I applaud Shane for working and turning over rocks, we met with him several times, we put on a public meeting and I personally reached out to property owners to see if it could fit, but the bottom line is that we understand the importance of the seaplane, that has to be clearly stated, it is an icon. It is just frustrating it is not happening. Our Planning Director, (Craig Gildroy) worked hard and we spent a fair amount of time as a city on the issue. It is frustrating it couldn't get done, but it is not from a lack of effort. The door is still open though if something can get done."

In the meantime, Carlson says he plans to fly the Seaplane over to their other business location in Friday Harbor.

"The plane will be repurposed and busy doing something else," Carlson affirmed. "I would certainly like and prefer to have it over in Chelan and I want to be there."

Mayor's Message

With the recent announcement of the departure of the Chelan Airways seaplane, for this upcoming season, I thought it might be helpful to clear the air and give some perspective.

When something like this happens, there is a tendency for us to find blame. On this issue, I am sure that we can affix blame on several people starting with me. But in doing so, we do not solve the problem. I want everyone that has a passion for the seaplane to know it was disheartening for all of us at City Hall as it was for the public. I wanted the service to continue without interruption as did the Council, staff, along with the public.

A few things that we did at the City were to have several meetings with the owner/ operator beginning last September. Our Planning Dept. followed our request to" turn over every possible rock" and push for a solution right up to what is considered legal usage. We held a public meeting to find solutions, not pass the blame. I personally called several commercial waterfront owners to get a short-term fix, to no avail.

I also want to make it clear that we had and hopefully will continue to have a good working relationship with Shane Carlson, the seaplane operator. He is a good man with a good business and the last thing I want is to have any business leave town, especially one that has such deep roots. I pledged that we will continue to work on a short-term and long-term solution for a seaplane option.

There is no one thing or person that created this departure. When something like this happens. I notice that we tend to look for fault, I tend to look for solutions. I ask that our community work towards "finding the good" and to come up with solutions.

Lastly, I want to share something that is at the core of my public service, I want to retain the historic feel of our great town, I am passionate about preserving our heritage and work every day to make it a better place... not a bigger place.

If you ever have any questions on what is going on within the City or have issues with real or perceived differences, please feel free to call me at City Hall at (509) 682-8018, leave a message if not in, or email me at mcooney@ cityofchelan.us.

Planning Commissioners Joe Collins and Tim Hollingsworth listening to testimony during the Public Hearing on March, 15.

"There were an estimated $2.6 million in repairs after the 2015 fires and that is just in Chelan and Manson. An estimated $2 million will be reimbursed by Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), but that is still taxpayer dollars. Health concerns have not been brought out and the lines crackle and hiss when they are wet. The process has just not been transparent (around the potential expense of going underground) and there is this constant claim that it is prohibitively expensive. We have this gem that is Lake Chelan and it's views, let's do the right thing."

When asked the question to elaborate on the costs of going underground, Chelan County PUD Commissioner Ann Congdon responded by stating that it was hard

"It depends on the condition of the soil, but it is at least 10 times as much as the cost is to go overground," Congdon said in confidence. "The maintenance is buried, so you have to factor those costs in as well."

However, it seems that Vogel's comments, along with some words from the Chelan City Council had an effect on the PUD's decision as they pushed their original date of decision back from the end the month.

'We heard all of the comments and what we are doing is going back and looking at other spots," Congdon confirmed on Friday. "The three locations are all more remote and quite a long way from the load center, so it earns more transmission and distribution lines. We're finding though that the increased height on poles and additional lines are more obtrusive for people in terms of view than having the actual substation close to them, so we are looking at sites closer to the load center."

With the North Shore already at around 80 percent capacity and a two year projected time to complete the substation, there is no time to waste.

"We are pushing hard and trying to get it going since it will take around two years to complete. We will shoot for June to have our decision made, but that is just a guess. We have a meeting on the 20th so it is possible that we make some kind of decision on Monday about which site to pursue. If not it will be in April."

• Park at Three Fingers Over the past week, the Friends of Lake Chelan have been gathering signatures from residents in the valley in hopes of having the Lakeside Bar portion of zone seven to be rezoned as public lands and facilities in order to construct a lake waterfront public park.

"From First Creek to Manson, there are only two public parks," Steve Kline began in his address. "Lakeside was established in 1925 and Don Morse Park in 1950. If you take the summer population which blooms to around 13,000 - with the addition of 18-22,000 tourists in the static summer months, the parks at Lakeside and Don Morse are at their maximum usage and overflowing into the surrounding neighborhoods."

Kline said that because the Growth Management Act (GMA) requires a 10-year projection for public facilities, and the City has already established an extreme need for a third waterfront park (PROS Plan) they should pursue purchasing a lot on the Three Fingers and turning it into a public park.

"The Three Fingers is the last and only large site where a lake access park could be built, and one of the tenants of the GMA is to ensure that public facilities and services be adequate to meet the 10-year projections," Kline Without an additional park, Kline stated the level of service to residents and guests would only decrease.

"We are strongly requesting that it be rezoned and, because of a lack of alternative sites, should be attained by any means including public domain (which according to Washington state law, eminent domain can be used under 'public necessity',' Kline concluded. "We are going to buy undeveloped dirt from a company that sells undeveloped dirt. By leaving it zoned as it is now, it would invite marinas and other developments, whether they are taken out or not, and cause further erosion of public access to the lake. I'm not hearing a lot of want to, but it is the best thing to happen to our city and the people that will come through. Otherwise you'll lock it up only for people that can afford to live in condos and marinas."

Mayor Cooney characterized the situation as a struggle between private property and the desire to do things like a park on the Three Fingers.

"There is a petition going around about wanting the Fingers to turn into a park, but so far someone still owns that property, and until that is changed, we aren't going to tell ownership what to do on their property," Mayor Cooney said. "We tried working with the Goodfellows on something that is good for the community, but he does not but into that. I'm hoping to get something done though, the fingers and the Butte are two important assets to the valley, so we are making sure we can do everything possible."

The Planning Commission will hold another Public Hearing on April 19 before having a joint workshop with the Chelan City Council on May 9 to finish the last tweaks. The deadline for the approved Comprehensive Plan is June 30.

New parking kiosks and a concession at golf course approved by council

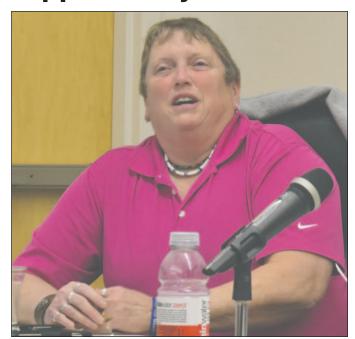

STAFF WRITER

CHELAN - The Chelan City Council meeting this past Tuesday, March 14 was brief, but there were a couple housekeeping items the council approved including new parking kiosks to help regulate parking for the Johnson Avenue parking lot and Lakeside Park and a concession at the Lake Chelan Golf Course.

The kiosk at Johnson will only be installed and utilized as an educational tool this summer until going into service in 2018.

"We will still be enforcing a 3-hour limit so nothing will change on that, it is just that next year it will still be a 3-hour limit with $1 an hour for parking," Parks Director Karen Sargeant said. "You can still use the park, I want to be clear on that, you don't have to pay to use the park, just park in the park. We're not out for revenue, it will just equalize parking with Lakeside and Don Morse Park."

Annual parking passes are available for purchase at the Chelan Parks office located at the entrance to the Lakeshore RV Park. The cost for City of Chelan residents is $10 and $25 for non-resident City of Chelan

Parks Director Karen Sargent chuckles as she gives a brief description of Cgs On the Course Grill proposal.

Golf course

A new food and beverage service is setting up shop at the Lake Chelan Golf Course as Leanne and Chuck Weathersby's proposal to have Cgs On the Course Grill proposal was approved by council.

"Leanne is just so excited to get everything started, she was asking me before the meeting what I wanted her to do and everything," Sargent said after the motion was approved. "(It) will be good to get someone going up there.'

The one year agreement runs from March 1, to Dec. 31, 2017.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Support hospital

I had the good fortune to move back to the Chelan area a few years ago and to reestablish my connection with the Behavioral Health Department and the Sanctuary. I guess that makes me a bit biased in my appreciation of the hospital bond initiative that will be back on the ballot this year. I can tell you, however, that I am not personally in need of a new hospital in order to see patients in my office. In the service I worked out of a Quonset hut in the Philippines, and that met my needs just fine. Actually, now that I reflect on it, my Quonset hut was twice the size of my current office.

Once I get out of my own office the situation changes. Our Sanctuary patients who come with their medical problems wind up having to share rooms for the better part of a month. If one snores, the other is awake. If one is talkative and social the other prefers quiet and relaxation. CPAP machines and oxygen machines make noise for the roommate. One person is messy, the other fastidious. They share bathrooms, whether someone has a bleeding problem, chronic hepatitis, or MRSA infections. During lectures and meetings the entire group of patients crowds together in small meeting rooms.

If I have to see someone on the medical floor, I will have to draw a thin curtain across the room in order to pretend that I have privacy to interview someone. We will likely not find another space to talk.

My colleagues who practice medicine and perform surgery have an even greater set of problems. They are the ones who deliver babies in such crowded conditions that furniture has to be moved if they need to get to a certain piece of equipment during the delivery. The equipment for anesthesiologists, surgeons and radiologists has changed dramatically in the past few decades, but the facility that houses this equipment has not, and space is squeezed. If you compare what your car engine looks like today to how it was in the 50s, this is how medical equipment has changed since the hospital was built.

Beyond these considerations is my sense of duty and community, to the people here now and those who will be here in the future. I hope my children will inherit my home some day. If they move here, I want them to be in a community that looks ahead and invests in its future. I don't want to stick them with this problem we have today, it will only get more expensive and necessary over time.

I encourage people to vote for funding a new hospital.

Open letter to Dan Newhouse

On Feb. 23 constituents of the 4th congressional district of Washington gathered at the Methow Valley Community Center in Twisp, WA to participate in democracy and make our voices heard by you, our elected representative. You were not present.

Had you or a member of your staff been able to attend, here are some questions I would have liked to ask.

1. Thank you for your recent support of the BRIDGE Act. You stated on your Facebook page that congress will come together to build "a reasonable and accessible immigration system going forward". What does that mean to you in terms of specific policy and the effect on the thousands of immigrants that live, work and support economies in your district?

2. On your website you state "I believe it is important that we preserve our beautiful national parks, forests, recreational areas. and wildlife for our children and grandchildren to enjoy." Your environmental voting record and the bills you have sponsored seem to contradict this statement. Will you clarify your actual position

3. In light of all of the credible suspicion of corruption, conflict of interest and potential tampering with an election by a hostile foreign government combined with the constant lies and erratic behavior coming from the most powerful office in our country Will you support an independent investigation into the Trump administration's ties with Russia and will you be a leader in your party who will be vocal and take bold action to maintain our democracy?

I have many more questions for you and I am certain I am not the only one. We deserve to hear from you and to be heard by you. You will be hearing from us daily. Let's make a town hall meeting happen.

Beware the hidden agenda

The monster lurking behind school funding: an income tax

On Friday Governor Inslee signed the bill extending the 28 percent levy lid until 2019. Without the extension local schools were expected to lose about $358 million in revenue across the state. The bill came with strong support from the legislature having passed 48 to 1 in the Senate and 87 to 10 in the House. Inslee signed the bill but also said passing the bill won't remove the legislature's motivation to put forth a plan to fund basic education as mandated by the Washington Supreme Court's McCleary Decision.

"It clears the way for legislators to focus on the larger task at hand — fully funding education this year," said

In view of the governor's comments, it seems an appropriate time to review the well written January opinion of Sen. Tim Sheldon, D-Potlatch:

In this great state of ours, where so many people have so many diverse interests, there is one thing we can count on to unite us all. Every few years, some dang fool puts an income tax on the ballot, and then the rest of us get together and stomp it to death.

The last time we did it, we also pounded a stake through its heart — 64 percent of us voted no, but that was seven years ago, and the horror never really goes away. The monster just won't stay dead. With the 2017 session of the Legislature underway, we already can hear it crashing through the underbrush in the direction of the state Capitol. This year, the income tax is dressed up as a schoolfunding issue. A darned good disguise, more cunning than ever, and I'm getting worried the good people of Washington won't see through it until

Advocates of a state income tax have finally realized they will never win if they put the question to the people in an honest way. So they have set up the phoniest debate since America was forced to choose between "tastes great" and "less filling." If you listen to the proponents, our big argument for 2017 is about levy equalization and modelschool formulas — magic words that have the effect of putting an entire state to sleep. But really it is the same old argument we've been having in Washington more than 80 years.

Our big debate isn't about education. It's about the income tax.

The story is a thousand times simpler than some people want you to think. Some interests in this state are obsessed with raising taxes. If only we had more money, we could spend it all on them. Over the years they have assembled quite a coalition. It includes the public-employee unions, the teachers' union, the social-service lobby and many others. For these groups the income tax is the Holy Grail, because it would raise gobs of money and it's the one big tax Washington doesn't have. Just one problem. The people keep getting in the way.

Way back in 1933, the state Supreme Court decided there had to be a public vote on a constitutional amendment before the state could impose a graduated income tax. Every time the issue has appeared on ballot since then, the people have had the good sense to say no. That's nine times so far. It doesn't matter how many blue-ribbon commissions and tax studies have tried to convince the public that higher taxes are good for them. The tax crowd has tried pretty much everything. One time they tried disguising the income tax as an old-age pension. Last time it was an income tax that was only supposed to hurt the rich. The people are just too smart for that.

So 10 years ago, the coalition tried a new approach – a lawsuit alleging the state doesn't spend enough money on basic education. Keep in mind, the specia were basically 1 that. The way ea had tugged and a bigger share budget over the last ou years, they had distorted the state's priorities and caused education's share to shrink. The state Supreme Court took their side, and its 2012 ruling in McCleary v. Washington forced some serious thinking at the statehouse.

Most people seemed to think the only way to raise billions and billions of dollars was a tax increase. But this was right about the time the fiscally-responsible Majority Coalition Caucus, of which I am a part, took over in the Senate. We knew better. Virtually every year, the state collects more tax money than the last, without a tax increase, thanks to growth in the state economy. We plowed more than two-thirds of that money into education. The biennial public-schools budget has increased $4.6 billion since 2013. Education now gets 47.3 percent of state spending, its biggest share in 30 years. We still have work to do, but we can finish the job by continuing to budget responsibly, maintaining healthy reserves against downturns, and enacting sensible reforms to the way we distribute money to school districts.

So what's the problem?

There really isn't one — I guess that's the problem. The state Supreme Court keeps hollering that we aren't doing our job, for reasons that are hard to understand. It keeps finding new things we ought to pay for, to make the price tag higher, and it wants us to do everything this year. The governor is proposing the biggest tax increase in state history, $8.7 billion when fully implemented, to pay for everything anyone has ever asked for, and calling it an emergency. Things must not > ed the way they sed to. rite proposal of ition is an income al gains. The idea is picity similar to the highearners income tax we all got together and killed seven years ago. It hits the same people, and it has the same big problem. The moment the economy takes a dive - something that happens every few — tax collections will plummet and the state will be backed into a corner, forced to raise hundreds of millions of dollars in a hurry. That's what happened across the country last time a recession hit, in states that tax capital gains income. In Washington, the easiest way out would become a general income tax that hits every taxpayer in the state.

That 1933 Supreme Court ruling requiring a public vote isn't much protection, either. The tax crowd is convinced the court will overturn the decision the next chance it gets, and the way the court has been playing politics lately, that seems a protection and the seems a If the Legislatinas

MANSON - The spring leadership development event season for the Chelan FFA has officially kicked off and they started with a bang. Sub District Creed Speaking Leadership Development Event is the kickoff event of the spring competition season. On Tuesday, March 14, the Manson Grange hosted event as they have for over 50 years. This year 21 fresh faced first year members nervously awaited their turn to recite the words that E.M. Tiffany penned 87 years ago.

Chelan had 7 young ladies in the competition. Macaela LaPorte, Bailey Hiemark, Molly Oswald, Caroline Kelly, Ella Tschetter, Dee Lysiak, and Ashlyn Sanderson have spent the last month or so developing their speaking style, building their speaking voice, and finding their passion for leadership events.

After the traditional potluck dinner, competitors drew their speaking order, and awaited their turn to recite the creed and answer a question about it. Twentyone competitors from the Cashmere, Chelan, Eastmont, Manson, and Chelan FFA chapters stood nervously in front of a crowd of parents, judges, and other members and delivered their best version of the FFA Creed. When all the members had gone and the judges had hashed over their scoresheets the results were announced. At stake were five berths to the District VII Leadership Development Event held in Chelan on Wednesday,

The first place winner was Haley Gilman of Eastmont, Ashlyn Sanderson of Chelan was second, Maritza Orozco of Cashmere was third, Delia Lysiak of Chelan fourth, and Ella Tschetter of Chelan

Chelan Soccer gets off to great start

By Zach Johnson Staff writer

The Goats have looked sharp in both of their games to start the season, despite a real lack of time practicing on the field with all the snow and moisture hitting the Chelan Valley over the past couple weeks.

In their opening match of the season the Goats beat Brewster by a final score of 4-2 on Tuesday, March 14. Leading the offensive charge for Chelan was Rafa Barajas, who drove two into the back of the net. Erik Cardenas and Ronnie Barajas each had a goal apiece respectively.

In a follow up match on Thursday, the Goats traveled up to Tonasket and beat them by a whopping 9-1.

Cardenas and the Barajas brothers each continued their stellar start to the season by adding three goals apiece to their season total. With the win, Chelan has outscored their opponents 13-3 in two games.

Chelan will now embark on a two week long road trip as their next home game won'y come until Saturday, April 8 against Warden.

The Goats next matchup is against Granger on Saturday,

March 25. Opening kickoff is at 11 a.m.

CHELAN - While the boys are away, the girls will play.

That's at least what happened for the Chelan baseball and softball teams this past weekend as both were expected to play their home opener before the Kittitas baseball team cancelled on Friday.

As a result, the boys were left to rake the field and get it ready for their game on Tuesday as the girls played in a double header against Kittitas and Lynden Christian.

The first game was an offensive explosion for the Goats as they charged out to a double digit lead by the end of the fourth inning. The early afternoon game was highlighted by a deep three-run home run from Katie Gleasman that sailed over the center field fence. Gleasman finished with 4-RBI's in the game.

Fresh off a second runner up in the Miss Lake Chelan Pageant last week, Taylor Sams was a force on the mound for the Goats. She thre five innings while surrendering only one run and four hits while striking out two. Overall the Goats had 11 hits in the game.

Unfortunately for Chelan, they lost the second game, although their bats continued to stay hot in a 16-17 back-and-forth game.

After falling behind early in the game, Chelan scored seven runs in the fourth inning to take the lead. Gleasman continued her stout offensive play as she hit her second home run of the day.

However, Lynden Christian came back in the sixth inning and scored seven runs of their own to retake the lead.

Despite the loss, Chelan finished with an astounding 20 team hits in the game, which is a good sign moving forward. At least the girls have already seemed to find their rhythm offensively.

The Goats will get back to the practice field this week before taking on Granger on the road next Saturday, March 25 in a double header. First pitch is at 11 a.m. in the first game and 1 p.m. in the second.

MANSON - Okanogan is a baseball powerhouse. They have been for some time, at least for Manson though, they won't have to play them this year as the Bulldogs moved up a division.

"We also added Waterville and Soap Lake, which made our league much more evenly competitive, so this season we are poised to be part of some really great baseball games," head coach Bill Thompson said.

Another plus is the added year of experience to a young pitching staff.

"This year our program made the most significant improvement in our pitching," coach Thompson said. "All of our returning pitchers gained valuable experience last year and now throw with more control and velocity."

The arms that will eat up the majority of innings for the Trojans this season is junior Zach Serafini, sophomores Avery Thompson and Jose Pascasio and the towering 6'5 senior Bo Charlton.

Their home field, SIngleton Park will also see some upgrades heading into the season as a home run fence will be installed in addition to a new scoreboard.

"Our community and fans cherish Singleton Park and know that it is a wonderfully rare venue for high school baseball," coach Thompson said about the park.

Although Manson has struggled in the past to field a team at times, they are confident they will improve throughout the summer and continually better their program moving forward.

"We are really looking forward to our first game of the season against Lake Roosevelt. It will be an interesting matchup to start out with especially since we have only been able to practice outside two times before the game," coach Thompson admitted. "We also look forward to our upcoming home games and maybe seeing a few Trojan home runs fly over our new outfield fence."

In their first two games, the Trojans lost by a combined score of 24-3. Manson will look to bounce back in a double header against Oroville on Saturday, March 25. First pitch in the first game is at 11 p.m. and 1 p.m. in the second game.

Manson soccer pumped for start of regular season

MANSON - Although the weather has been less than ideal, the Manson Trojan soccer team feels as if they are already in good form.

"Under the circumstances with all of the snow, we have had some really focused and intense practices leading up to the jamboree and our first game," head coach Jared Mumley said. "We started in the gym for the first two weeks and we're lucky enough to get a couple days down at Bebee Bridge Park, but we still have only been grass a handful of

In the Jamboree on Tuesday, March 14, Manson beat Bridgeport 2-0 and tied Chelan 0-0. The Trojans followed up their good showing with a 2-1 win in their first game of the season against Okanogan on Wednesday.

Coach Mumley expects his team to improve throughout the year, but is looking for senior forward Aurelio Gutierrez to make strides in his attacking play this season.

"Particularly with his width," coach Mumley said about Gutierrez. "He has already shown a spark this year. But Freddy Leyva and David Alejo are two senior leaders in the center midfield and center defense respectively who are looking to have big years also."

Alejo will have some challenges though as he looks to command a center line that has never played with each other before.

"We lost two defenders from last year and another defender has been moved up to midfield this year, so it is a whole new group this year. They have already shown they are up for the challenge though," coach Mumley stated with confidence.

If there is a specific game you should attend all season, Mumley says it is against Brewster.

"They will be the preseason favorites. It is great to play them because they are physical and make you earn anything," coach Mumley stated. "We play them early and then again late in the year."

The first match up between Manson and Brewster is there next game and will be played at Manson on Thursday, March 23. The final pairing between the two teams will come on Tuesday, April 18.

Trojans get ready for two home meets this season

Zach Johnson STAFF WRITER

MANSON - One thing Manson and Chelan have in common is the obvious popularity track is for a sport amongst the youth.

Similar to the high turnout for Chelan's track team, Manson has drawn some heavy interest from their students, leaving coaches in a little bit of a pickle.

"The coaches and athletes are cautiously optimistic about the upcoming season," head coach Kurt Toolson said. "We have the largest turnout of kids in recent memory, especially on the boys side. A lot can change during the season such as injuries or eligibility issues, but if we can keep kids competing and consistently improving as the season progresses it should be successful."

In dealing with the spotty weather in the early part of the season, Toolson has maintained a positive outlook.

"We all have a little bit of cabin fever, however, we are no worse off than any other team in our area so there is no excuses as far as losing any competitive advantage goes," Toolson stated.

Plus, with the additional numbers, Toolson expects his team to be able to compete in more events.

"We'll be able to fill out events we haven't been able to compete in previously," Toolson said. "In addition, we have more coaches on the staff which has been immeasurably helpful in breaking kids into events and getting more specific training done. I anticipate sprints, relays, high jump and throwing events to be our strongest. Fortunately we have kids willing to participate in the distance events and hurdles this year so we are excited to see how they improve with experience."

Will the additional numbers bring better results than last year?

"The boys side is particularly strong this year, as we return three kids who competes in the state meet last year," Toolson explained. "With several newcomers added to the boys team we should be pretty well rounded and competitive with most of the boys teams in our district."

"The girls side is smaller, but we have three girls back from our state relay teams last year and they are experienced and capable. There are a couple of injuries that need to be overcome on the girls team, but I anticipate them to be at full speed by the end of the season," Toolson stated.

As long as the team stays healthy and academically eligible, Toolson is confident they will do well.

The two meets that you should circle are on March 30 and May 2, as both are at Manson High School.

"We have two home meets this year, and it is exciting to be able to compete on our home track and have our fellow students and community members get a chance to see us perform," Toolson said.

"Certainly the end of the season championship meets are what we really point to as fast as meeting our ultimate goal. It's great to run fast, jump far and throw far anytime, but to do it at the end of the season so you can qualify for the state championship is the best reward."

The Trojans get their season kicked off on Thursday, March 30 when they host their first meet of the season. Cascade, Chelan, and Entiat will all compete with Manson in the meet.

MANSON - Youth can be good and bad to have as characteristic of your team.

The Manson girls softball team is hoping that they are on the good side of that conundrum as they have only eight returning players and nine girls who haven't played softball before this year.

"We have been spending a lot of time working on the fundamentals but I have already seen some improvement and growth from the nine girls who haven't played before," head coach Kendra Farnsworth said. "The team is working well as a whole with the veterans helping out and assisting the rookies.'

That assistance has been crucial as the girls have been limited in their time outside on the field.

"We have only been outside twice, and even then we were on a soccer field, so the first time the girls will see an actual dirt field is in our first double header at Lake Roosevelt," coach Farnsworth admitted. "There are only so many drills you can run in a gym so we are looking forward to the weather cooperating so we can get outside more on a permanent basis."

In their first two games on on a cold and windy Saturday

Saturday, the Trojans lost both by a combined score of 50-2. "All in all, today was definitely a learning experience for the girls," coach Farnsworth said in her game report. "The girls played hard and are looking forward to their next

Outside of their youth, the main struggle for the Trojans this season will surround their pitching. Given that they have no true aces, Manson will be forced to plug in pitchers throughout the season.

"Out of 17 girls, none of them have ever pitched before. so we are trying to train a handful of pitchers to pitch," coach Farnsworth stated. "Obviously pitching is a huge part of softball, but trying to train girls that have never done it before is a challenge. There are a couple of girls that are starting to look pretty good though so I'm sure that they will only improve as the season continues." Overall, Farnsworth is just excited for the season to start and to watch her Lady Trojans compete and get better as the season moves along. The Lady Trojans will head up to Oroville for their next two games on Saturday, March 25. First pitch in the first game is scheduled for 11 p.m. and 1 p.m. in the second

Oules gets scholarship from Dordt

CHELAN - Six softball players have added their names to the growing list of Fastpitch Northwest Scholarship winners.

The 2017 winners were seniors Jessica Oules, Chelan (Wash.) Madison Parker, Pendleton (Ore.), Courtney Williams, Granger (Wash.), Kylee Hill, Amity (Ore.), Jessica Smith, Rupert (Id.), and Landree Miethe, Warrenton (Ore.).

Oules, who plays for Chelan High School, is a three-time first-team all-Caribou Trail League selection. In 2016, she batted .577 with a .620 on base percentage. She played every inning for Chelan as a junior and was named team MVP.

Pic of the week

Nice Little Saturday

After watching the Chelan girls softball team go 1-1 in their first two games of the season, I made the drive along the Columbia River back home to Wenatchee. Right as I emerged from the tunnel I caught a glimpse of the glassy water below and could see the reflection of the mountain range surrounding it. Although the picture doesn't do the shot enough justice, it was a purely serene Saturday moment with almost no one outside to see it.
