

Link Transit Drivers Celebrated for Safety Record

SUBMITTED BY SALINA DANKO
Link Transit

Since first getting behind the wheel of a Link bus more than 30 years ago, veteran Link Transit coach operators Jose and Roberto Torres have each accumulated about 1 million miles on the road—equal to going to the moon and back a couple of times. Even more impressive, together the pair have more than 60 years of accident-free driving. In late 2022, Jose was the first Link Transit operator to reach the 30-year accident-free milestone. Roberto reached his 30-year mark just a few days ago, on May 14.

“These two gentlemen set the highest standard for Link operators,” said Link Transit General Manager Richard DeRock. “In addition to their incredible safety records, the Torres brothers provide welcoming, friendly faces to our guests. We are extremely fortunate and could not be prouder to have these two outstanding individuals representing us to the public every day.”

The secret to their success behind the wheel? Basic driver’s education—stay focused and drive defensively. “When I am driving, I am always expecting the unexpected,” Jose said. “I always follow at a safe distance and never hurry to get where I am going.”

“There is a lot going on our streets and roads, a lot more than there was

30 years ago,” Roberto said. “Paying attention to what other drivers are doing, being alert, and knowing where the trouble spots are is what keeps us safe.”

When the Torres brothers started driving for Link Transit more than 30 years ago, Link was new to the community. “That was a long time ago,” Roberto said. “It was fun in those early days getting people brand new to transit and seeing them excited about it. Most of us at Link were all new to transit too.”

“For over 30 years, Link has been providing an important service to our community, and we are proud to be a part of that,” Jose said.

The importance of having time with family and predictable schedules is what brought the Torres brothers to Link Transit in the early 1990s. Before that, Roberto and Jose were working as hotshot firefighters for the Entiat Ranger District. “We were traveling all around, even out of state, fighting fires. I wanted to be home with my family,” Jose said. The stability of the job is important to them and always has been. Raising families and being able to support them and spend time with them has always been a priority for both men. Both Jose and Roberto agree, “these have been really good jobs, and Link has always taken good care of their employees.”

“The Torres brothers bring

Two Brothers Combine For 60 Years of Perfect Driving priceless experience to the safety culture here at Link Transit,” said Safety Officer Shawn Larson. “The industry average for an at-fault vehicle accident is about $9,000, plus the intangible costs of investigation, bus down time, service disruption and the trust and confidence of our guests. Having two highly competent drivers like Roberto and Jose is a huge positive for all our coach operators to look up to, and a great benefit for Link Transit, and our guests.”

Cascade Golf Classic continues two decades of fun, philanthropy

By NEVONNE McDANIELS
Cascade Medical Foundation Administrator

LAKE WENATCHEE - Fun, festivities and philanthropy are all part of the Marson and Marson Cascade Golf Classic June 19 at Kahler Mountain Club.

Where else can a pipe cleaner help sink a shot or duffers get a do-over and help the team stay in the running for a spectacular prize? Those who don’t need an extra edge can test their skills to win everything from cash and wine to steaks or new golf clubs. Those feeling lucky can purchase raffle tickets for fun getaways and more. And, of course, there’s the mystery wine table, where every bottle purchased is a sure thing, but still a surprise. And it’s all for a worthy cause. Proceeds from this year’s event will help Cascade Medical Foundation develop a Cardiac Rehabilitation Center at the Leavenworth hospital. The equipment and training will offer Upper Valley cardiac patients with life-extending rehabilitation closer to home.

Now in its 20th year, the golf tourney is the Foundation’s largest annual fundraising event. It is made possible with generous support of local businesses, including naming sponsor Marson & Marson Lumber and host Kahler Mountain Club. Other long-time sponsors include Louws Truss and Dan’s Food Market. In all, more than 70 businesses and a host of volunteers chip in to help make the Cascade Golf Classic a success.

The event is designed to provide a solid six hours of entertainment for golfers of all levels, from those who aren’t sure what a handicap is to those well-versed in swinging and putting. “We will be awarding team awards for both low gross and low net scores, as well as exciting low cost prizes” Foundation Golf Co-Chair Rich Adamson said.

The day starts at 9:30 a.m. with pre-tournament putting and chipping contests, and a chance to warm up at the driving range, followed by the shotgun start at 11 a.m. on Kahler’s beautiful 18-hole course near Lake Wenatchee.

Participants will enjoy a bagged lunch during the round and a taco bar dinner — and awards ceremony — after play is complete.

Golfers (singles or teams) interested in registering can go to cascademedical.org to get the details or call 509-548-2523 for information. Entry is $125 per golfer. Don’t delay, sign up now as a limited number of playing spots are still available.

“This is an opportunity to play an outstanding golf course in a scenic surrounding, while enjoying the camaraderie a tournament of this type offers,” Adamson said. “Most importantly, golfer participation allows to us continue the great work of Cascade Medical Foundation, whose mission is ‘to enhance and financially support Cascade Medical’s ability to deliver quality healthcare to our community.’ Thanks in advance to all our golfers and sponsors for your support and for making this a tournament to remember!”

Adamson gives an extra shoutout to the sponsors.

“The success of this fundraiser depends on their support,” he said.

Major sponsors include Marson & Marson Lumber, Kahler Mountain Club, Cascade Medical providers, Senior Leaders & Commissioners, Louws Truss Inc., Pinemeadow Golf Products, Dan’s Food Market, Raymond James Financial, Webb Accountancy, Quest Diagnostics, Leavenworth Lions Club, Der Sportsman, Zarthan Lodge #148, and more than 50 Hole Sponsors and In-Kind Sponsors.

Cashmere City Council Meeting

By MATTHEW OCKINGA
Correspondent

Cashmere In a brief yet efficient meeting on May 22, the Cashmere City Council discussed the rate sheet for maintenance/laborers of the water filtration system behind the Cashmere Museum and Pioneer Village. “Behind the museum we have two water pods, and these are sand filters where the river water gets filtered before it gets taken into our water system,” said Cashmere Mayor Jim Fletcher. “Every couple of years we have to stop and clean the fine debris off the top of that sand filter which is a hand labor job with shovels.”

Currently, the sand filter basins at the water treatment are scheduled for a complete cleaning, which is a labor-intensive endeavor that requires at least ten workers. In 2022, the City of Cashmere underwent maintenance on the facility to remove air bubbles from the water.

The main goal of the cleaning is to carefully scrape off debris to refresh the filters to ensure clean drinking water for area residents. The Council mentioned that now is a good time to clean the filters as the river is currently experiencing low usage.

The estimated completion time for the project is one week for each basin.

Express Employment agreed to find workers to complete the project and a billed hourly rate of $27 per hour. Fletcher has previously signed the rate sheet green-lighting Express Employment to start recruiting. The Council ratified the mayor’s signing of the rate sheet.

The next item on the agenda was the Cashmere Food Bank’s request to amend its rental agreement with the City regarding River Street storage facility which houses the food bank. The current termination notice for the Food Bank, should the City decide to use the facility for another purpose, is six months. “The board was concerned that if the City ever changed its mind and we wanted to use the building back for something that the six-month lead time would not be enough for them to relocate because they had trouble in the past trying to find a location,” Fletcher said. While the food bank had requested 18 months notice, Fletcher countered with 12 months. A motion was made and seconded and passed unanimously. Steve Croci, Director of Operations for the City of Cashmere, updated the Council on the Sunset Highway Construction project which began this week. During construction, Evergreen Drive will be closed for about 30 days. There will be bypasses on Sunset Highway and Mill Road. Croci informed the Council that people will still have access to all the businesses near the construction area.

Outdoors Roundup

By JOHN KRUSE

Spring Chinook fishing improves

After a very slow start for the Columbia River spring Chinook salmon run things turned around in a big way. As of May 24, over 101,000 springers had crossed Bonneville Dam, which matches the ten-year long-term average. Because of this, fisheries managers have reopened Chinook salmon fishing on the lower Columbia River below Bonneville Dam to June 4 and it may be extended again after that. Boat anglers can fish from the mouth to Beacon Rock while bank anglers can fish right up to the deadline below Bonneville Dam.

The Icicle River near Leavenworth and portions of the Yakima River are also open for hatchery raised spring Chinook and large returns of fish are expected up both streams. The Icicle River is best fished from a drift or pontoon boat though bank anglers do have some access to the river below the Leavenworth National Fish Hatchery and at a marked pullout on East Leavenworth Road. Catch rates have been relatively low thus far due to high waters and spring runoff but the waters have been receding and there should be good fishing in the week ahead.

One angler who has had a lot of success fishing the Columbia River in recent days is Jarod Higginbotham with Yakima Bait Company. He has been catching springers using a 2.5-inch Spinfish plug with either Northwest Scent's Graybill's sand shrimp formula or Pro-Cure's bloody tuna scent. The hot plug color for Higginbotham, something called "Touchdown", a mixed pattern of chrome, chartreuse and blue.

Swakane Shooting Range closing for renovations

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife closed the Swakane Shooting Range on the Chelan Wildlife Area north of Wenatchee at dusk May 30. It will reopen in the Fall following a standard fire restriction summer closure.

While the range is closed WDFW will be upgrading the site to National Rifle Association range standards. A 25-yard pistol range will be added, completely separated from the rifle ranges. The pistol and rifle ranges will have amenities added including shed-style covers over the firing lines, shooting benches and tables, a kiosk and additional signage. There will also be an improved pistol range back stop and better drainage in the area.

Lake Roosevelt walleye fishing in on fire

Steve Morris, the owner of SJM Guide Service posted a photo this week of five anglers at Lake Roosevelt who all had limits of easter-sized walleye. According to Morris, "The fishing doesn't get any better than it is right now!". Morris has just a few openings available over the next few weeks. Go to www.sjmguideservice.com if you want to book a trip with him.

Time for morel mushroom rooms

Several of my friends have reported having good success hunting for morel mushrooms. If you are wondering where to find them, start off in forested areas that have been burned by wildfire in the last couple of years. These mushrooms are prized for their taste and can be fried, roasted, or sautéed. If you are looking for recipes here is a good place to start: www.allrecipes.com/gallery/best-morel-mushroom-recipes/.

Leave the babies be

With a late winter in much of the Northwest, now is the time you may run across young fawns, calves along with other animals or birds that appear to be abandoned. Ninety-nine percent of the time these animals are not orphaned, and the mother is foraging or hunting for food nearby. So don't make the mistake of removing the animal to save it.

Such an act occurred last week in Yellowstone National Park where a man decided to lift a bison calf out of a river so it could rejoin its herd. Unfortunately, the herd rejected the bison calf after human interference and park officials had to euthanize the animal.

Annual Washington wolf population report shows growth in wolf packs

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE

OLYMPIA - Washington's wolf population continued to grow in 2022 for the 14th consecutive year. The Washington Gray Wolf Conservation and Management 2022 Annual Report was released on April 7 by the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) and shows a 5% increase in wolf population growth from the previous count in 2021. WDFW also documented Washington's first pack to recolonize the south Cascades this winter. The growth we're observing in the North Cascades continues to be encouraging and having a pack become established in the South Cascades is a big step toward recovery of wolves in Washington," said WDFW Director Kelly Susewind. "The goal has been for wolves to spread into all three recovery zones, and we are pleased to see their progress in recolonizing their former range. "As of Dec. 31, 2022, WDFW and Tribes counted 216 wolves in 37 packs in Washington. Twenty-six of these packs were successful breeding pairs. These numbers compare with the previous year's count of 206 wolves in 33 packs and 19 breeding pairs. Eight new packs formed in 2022 including the Big Muddy pack in Klickitat County, the Napeequa and Maverick packs in Chelan County, the Chopaka and Chewuch packs in Okanogan County, the Wilmont pack on the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation (CTCR) in Ferry County, the Five Sisters pack in Stevens County, and the Mt. Spokane pack in Spokane County. Wolves are counted annually through activities like track, aerial, and camera surveys. As in past years, survey results represent minimum counts of wolves in the state due to the difficulty of accounting for every animal - especially lone wolves without a pack. Because this is a minimum count, the actual number of wolves in Washington is higher. Since the first WDFW survey in 2008, the state's wolf population has grown by an average of 23% per year.

Most wolf packs were not involved in documented livestock depredation in 2022. 81% were not involved in any known or probable livestock depredations, while 19% of known wolf packs were involved in at least one confirmed depredation. Only three packs were involved in two or more depredations. Fifteen cattle and two sheep were confirmed killed by wolves, and one was likely killed by wolves. Also, nine cattle were confirmed as injured and two were likely injured by wolves in 2022 by seven packs.

"Implementation of proactive, nonlethal deterrence efforts by livestock producers, community partners, range riders, and WDFW staff has minimized documented livestock depredation and removal of wolves, all while our wolf population continues to grow," said WDFW Wolf Policy Lead Julia Smith. Since 1980, gray wolves have been listed under state law as endangered throughout Washington. In January of 2021, wolves were federally delisted from federal Endangered Species Act protection and WDFW resumed statewide management of the species. On February 10, 2022, wolves were federally relisted in the western two-thirds of the state and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) once again has the lead role in the recovery of wolves in the North Cascades and the Southern Cascades and Northwest Coast recovery regions. Contributors to WDFW's annual wolf report include the US Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Park Service, the Spokane Tribe of Indians, Swinomish Tribe, Yakama Nation, and the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation. The Washington Gray Wolf Conservation and Management 2022 Annual Report is available on the Department's website at wdfw.wa.gov. A recording of the April 7 presentation of the report to the Fish and Wildlife Commission is available on the website. The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife works to preserve, protect, and perpetuate fish, wildlife and ecosystems while providing sustainable fish, wildlife, and recreational and commercial opportunities.

towards combating this poison from continuing to be pushed into our community. The way this Fentanyl is being marketed, distributed and mixed in with other drugs make no mistake the Cartels are targeting our youth and the next generation of our loved ones. I am excited to see what we can do with Federal Government support to fight against those that are bringing this into our homes and work diligently to hopefully solve this issue." - Sergeant Chris Foreman, Chelan County Sheriff's Office & President, Washington State Narcotics Investigators Association (WSNIA)
 "The proliferation of Fentanyl into our schools, homes and public spaces is a danger that strikes constant fear in the hearts of parents who worry about their children's safety. As a mother to young children, I share in the frustration over the lack of action to eliminate this deadly outbreak from crossing our borders and entering into our communities. I am passionately committed to finding new ways to educate all ages about the extreme risk of Fentanyl and to proactively craft legislation and policies that will prevent Fentanyl from plaguing our communities." - Amanda McKinney, District 1 Commissioner, Yakima County

Michelle's Kitchen Table Strategies

By Michelle Priddy

Beef Offal

We were sitting around the dinner table last week discussing different types of tacos, ground meat tacos (beef and chicken), fish tacos, cheese tacos, tongue tacos. And that's when the conversation turned to tongue. Growing up eating wild meat, tongue has always graced our table. Grandma, while not fond of the other offal pieces enjoys a tongue sandwich when it becomes available so eating tongue isn't an oddity at our table but not so for Aunt Cece. Her eyes held confusion as the words 'tongue tacos' registered in her mind.

Grandpa must have noticed (he has a long history of teasing his daughter-in-law) because he started to grin then began telling us about a gal, he knew who went to a restaurant and was told the special of the day was tongue. He said "When the waitress told her, she made a face, her nose wrinkled up, her tone got disgusted, 'I can't believe you're serving us something that comes out of a filthy cow's mouth. Yuck. Just bring me some boiled eggs.' So, the waitress did."

There was silence around the table for a moment then Grandma started to giggle, then I got the joke and we all started laughing.

Beef Tongue

(Grandma's favorite)

Soak tongue overnight in the fridge in salt water (½ cup salt in ½ gallon) in a pan large enough to accommodate the beef tongue. In the morning rinse the tongue. Put fresh water in the pan then put on the stove over medium heat, bring to a simmer, turn down the heat so the pot continues to simmer and won't boil over. Add herb and spice if so desired. Simmer until tender. Let cool so the meat can be handled, then peel the outside skin off the tongue (if the tongue cools too much it's hard to pull the skin off; not impossible but instead of just fingers, a knife would be in order). After tongue is peeled and dinner is ready to be served put tongue back in the boiling water long enough to reheat it then slice and serve as if it were steak or roast.

Liver & Onions

(My favorite)

Soak liver overnight in the fridge in salt water. At dinner time cut liver into thin (1/4 inch) slices set aside. Slice an onion or two into thin (1/8 inch) slices. Put the onions in a sauce pan over medium heat with a tablespoon of water or oil. (With water the onions must be stirred constantly until they begin to sweat or they can burn.) When the onions are limp and translucent, in a preheated skillet (mine is cast iron) fry the liver without oil. When the liver is almost done (a minute to two on each side) add a bit of oil or butter and the onions from the sauce pan. Let cook until the liver is your type of done then serve with a side of mustard.

Heart

(Kat's {our oldest's} favorite)

Soak heart overnight in the fridge in salt water. Before dinner time, prepare the heart by cutting it into 'steak' sized pieces so each piece will have approximately the same thickness throughout, removing any membrane connectors or parts too thin to let the 'steak' cook evenly. Salt, pepper and add any herb/spice desired then cook just like a steak. Serve with steak sauce and gusto.

Note: Organ meat (also known as Offal) is high in the B vitamins. When liver isn't available, I like to buy liverwurst and have a sandwich or two. I get a craving for liverwurst about every six months when I don't have access to whole liver, then I'm good for a month or two. B vitamins help the body create energy and good feelings plus get rid of toxins. Pills are great but I try to get my nutrition from food whenever I can.

About the author: In 2000 Michele Priddy left the workforce to become a stay-at-home mother and wife. Being a one-income family in today's society meant she had to learn to budget quickly. Food became a priority early because she wanted the children to have the best nutrition she could offer them even on a budget. She taught cooking classes at various churches in her community on "How to stretch the food dollar with simple ingredients". Michelle has put her kitchen strategies, stories and recipes in booklets, her church newsletter and in her hometown newspaper, The Goldendale Sentinel. We hope you will enjoy her strategies, stories, and recipes. Northwest Public Power Association honored a former PUD commissioner for her commitment and hard work during her 18-year tenure on the board

SUBMITTED BY RACHEL HANSEN

WENATCHEE, WA – Former Chelan PUD Commissioner Ann Congdon has been honored with the Life Member Award from the Northwest Public Power Association for her many contributions to public power. She completed her final term in 2022, after 18 years on the PUD’s Board of Commissioners. “Ann has embodied public power values and local control, supporting the idea that PUDs are created by the people to serve the people,” said Chelan PUD Board President Randy Smith. During Congdon’s tenure, she worked alongside staff to reduce the utility’s debt by hundreds of millions of dollars and position the PUD as one of the most financially stable utilities in the United States. She joined other PUD commissioners in adopting the vision of providing the best value for the most people for the longest time. Congdon reinforced the need for active community engagement, evidenced by her work on several PUD strategic plans, which promoted a highly inclusive community process that sought input from thousands of local customers. The plan guides critical decisions on utility infrastructure investments, safety, public power benefits, and economic development. A former math/science teacher and alternative high school director, Congdon has been active in public power and the community, serving on the board of Energy Northwest and supporting local organizations such as the Chelan-Douglas Land Trust.

She also has supported Lake Chelan water quality issues, including an effort to reduce milfoil and Asian clams in one of the deepest lakes in the country.

The PUD Commission and staff congratulate Ann Congdon for this significant honor and her many years of service to the public power community.

New basketball Coach Loftus hired in Cashmere School District

Cashmere High School hired a new varsity girls basketball coach this past week. With much recent success, there are various unknowns and questions wanting to be answered. An interview with the coach was conducted in order to learn more about him as a person and a basketball coach.

By JUSTIN PARDINI, REPORTER

and other than a couple of years in transition and a few years after my daughters were born, I have been involved at some level of coaching most of that time. My goal has always been to push players to reach their potential as individuals and as a team both in basketball and as people.

Tell us a bit about yourself. Where are you from originally?

Coach Loftus: I grew up outside of Philadelphia with two brothers and a sister. We were always competitive with each other in basketball and were always finding pickup games or battling in the driveway. Both my brothers and I went on to play college basketball. After college I moved around a bit, teaching through AmeriCorps on the Navajo Reservation in Arizona and then went back east to teach in Philadelphia. I wanted to get back out west and moved to Idaho to work at a wilderness program where I met my wife. We got married and moved to New Mexico for her graduate school and then back to the Northwest when our first daughter was born. After my second daughter was born, we settled in Cashmere and have been here for about 12 years. Regardless of where I was, I always ended up coaching basketball. I had the opportunity to coach from 8th grade girls through men’s NCAA basketball in that time.

What made you interested in coaching for Cashmere High School?

Coach Loftus: Before we had moved to town, I had started following the local high school teams and could see that there was a proud tradition of athletics in Cashmere. As a coach, this was a great opportunity to be a part of this community and atmosphere.

How long have you been coaching and what are your goals?

Coach Loftus: My first coaching position was 23 years ago on the Navajo Reservation

What do you feel is most important to teach the players during your time here?

Coach Loftus: I think it is important to teach players to do things the right way. That is taught on the basketball court but also translates to the players as they grow into individuals and members of the larger community. Doing things, the right way comes through hard work and a commitment to something greater than one’s self.

Why will you create a new team dynamic and bring success to the school?

Coach Loftus: This team and program has had a lot of success, and this is something that we plan to continue. Our team dynamic is influenced by many factors, but at the core of it will be trusting in each other as both coaches and players. I believe this trust is built through a commitment to each other to make everyone around us the best version of themselves on the court and off the court. When a team reaches a point where they know their coaches and teammates are working for each other, then we will achieve success.

It’s Kitten Season!

WVHS Shares Ways Community Can Support Local Kittens

SUBMITTED BY NEIL NEROUTSOS
WVHS

WENATCHEE - With warmer spring weather, it’s the time of year that the Wenatchee Valley Humane Society (WVHS) sees an influx of kittens in its shelters. It’s prime breeding season for un-fixed cats in our community. “The community can help in several ways, for example by observing and only intervening when necessary so mom and kittens remain together. The community can also help to foster or adopt orphaned kittens that require sheltering at the Wenatchee Valley Humane Society,” says WVHS Executive Director James Pumphrey. “People also can help by giving kitten supplies to support our community’s kittens.” Cat and kitten needs – such as dry and canned food, powdered milk and litter – are listed on the WVHS website at www.wenatcheehumane.org/wishlist. People also can make monetary donations online to support the local kitten population. Pumphrey reinforces that we all can help support kittens by donating toward Trap, Neuter, Vaccinate, Return. Spaying/neutering and vaccinating ensures that cats can no longer reproduce and are immune from critical diseases thus reducing overpopulation over a period of time. Kittens are best supported by our entire community. Wenatchee Valley Humane Society is here to help support the community in our shared efforts to help kittens thrive.

Found a Kitten?

Often our natural instinct is to take kittens into our homes when we see them in our neighborhood. However, it’s most likely that mom is away for an extended period – and she’s commonly hunting for food. It’s best to stay at least 35 feet away to allow time for mom to feel safe to return to the kittens. It is critical for the kittens’ welfare and survival to keep them with their mother. Kittens’ mothers provide care, and her milk provides vital nutrients needed to boost their immune systems during their first 4-6 weeks of life.

Only intervene if a kitten is sick or injured, and look for these signs:

Thin stomach, pale gums, diarrhea or vomiting, struggling to breathe, limping, or visibly injured. For more information go to: <https://www.wenatcheehumane.org/found-a-kitten> “We’re so appreciative of all the support from the public – not only during kitten season, but throughout the year,” says Pumphrey. “We’re committed to being proactive in our work and to guaranteeing the highest standards of humane care. 345 acres of critical habitat added to Wild Sky Wilderness

The Wilderness Land Trust removes 10th private inholding in the wilderness area

SUBMITTED BY MARGOSIA JADKOWSKI

The Wilderness Land Trust

Almost 60 years ago The Wilderness Act set forward the strongest set of protections for our public lands with a vision of maintaining our wildest places for future generations. But today, across the West, there are still over 180,000 acres of privately owned property within federally designated wilderness areas known as inholdings, ranging from a few acres to thousands of acres. Each one represents a hole in the fabric of wilderness protection—a threat to the wild character and ecological integrity of the lands surrounding them. Each one carries the possibility of development and resource extraction in the heart of some of the grandest landscapes in the American West.

On May 24, the Wilderness Land Trust transferred a 354-acre property straddling the Wild Sky and Henry M. Jackson Wilderness Areas to public ownership, adding it to the designated wilderness areas. The Trust has now successfully purchased and transferred five private inholding properties to public ownership in the Wild Sky Wilderness and has acquired another five which are pending transfer. Almost all of these properties lie within the Silver Creek drainage, which is riddled with privately owned properties and old mining claims. This one drainage contains almost all of the Wild Sky’s private inholdings, and one-third of the private inholdings left in Washington State, making it a high priority for our work in the North Cascades Ecosystem.

In addition to the ecological importance of its temperate rainforests, salmon spawning grounds, and alpine habitat, the Wild Sky Wilderness is only an hour or so away from Seattle’s 4 million residents. The Trust has also completed projects in the Glacier Peaks, Mount Baker, Stephen Mather, and Juniper Dunes Wilderness areas of Washington.

In the organization’s 31-year history, The Wilderness Land Trust has worked to keep the promise of wilderness by acquiring these private inholdings from willing landowners and transferring them to federal ownership to become designated wilderness. In this time, we have purchased and transferred 540 properties totaling over 55,500 acres from Arizona to Alaska. Along the way, we’ve completed 17 wilderness areas by removing their last remaining private inholdings. With each transfer, we come one step closer to completing the vision of the Wilderness Act. Each project we work on carries the story of a place that has inspired countless people and communities, a family that has chosen to give up what is theirs to protect its future, and a vibrant, and often breathtaking, landscape supporting rich biodiversity.

Kim Schrier votes against patients with rare diseases

SUBMITTED BY BEN PETERSEN
Western Press Secretary NRCC

On Wednesday, May 24 Kim Schrier voted to block a bill that would have let vulnerable

Americans who suffer from rare diseases have greater access to care that could save their lives. The bipartisan bill, H.R. 2666, aims to allow vulnerable patients with rare diseases to receive greater access to care without financial worry.

“Kim Schrier took her loyalty to extreme House Democrats to a new level, siding with more red tape over access to life-saving treatment for the most vulnerable. Schrier’s extremism knows no limits.” – NRCC Spokesperson Ben Petersen

The defaults referred to in Paragraph III must be cured by 6/19/2023 (11 days before the sale date), or by other date as permitted in the Note or Deed of Trust, to cause a discontinuance of the sale. The sale will be discontinued and terminated if at any time before 6/19/2023 (11 days before the sale), or by other date as permitted in the Note or Deed of Trust, the default as set forth in Paragraph III is cured and the Trustee's fees and costs are paid. Payment must be in cash or with cashiers or certified checks from a State or federally chartered bank. The sale may be terminated any time after the 6/19/2023 (11 days before the sale date) and before the sale, by the Borrower or Grantor or the holder of any recorded junior lien or encumbrance by paying the principal and interest, plus costs, fees and advances, if any, made pursuant to the terms of the obligation and/or Deed of Trust, and curing all other defaults. VI. A written Notice of Default was transmitted by the Beneficiary or Trustee to the Borrower(s) and Grantor(s) by both first class and certified mail, proof of which is in the possession of the Trustee; and the Borrower and Grantor were personally served, if applicable, with said written Notice of Default or the written Notice of Default was posted in a conspicuous place on the real property described in Paragraph I above, and the Trustee has possession of proof of such service or posting. The list of recipients of the Notice of Default is listed within the Notice of Foreclosure provided to the Borrower(s) and Grantor(s). These requirements were completed as of 1/20/2023. VII. The Trustee whose name and address are set forth below will provide in writing to anyone requesting it, a statement of all costs and fees due at any time prior to the sale. VIII. The effect of the sale will be to deprive the Grantor and all those who hold by, through or under the Grantor of all their interest in the above-described property. IX. Anyone having any objections to this sale on any grounds whatsoever will be afforded an opportunity to be heard as to those objections if they bring a lawsuit to restrain the sale pursuant to RCW 61.24.130. Failure to bring such a lawsuit may result in a waiver of any proper grounds for invalidating the Trustee's sale. X.
