Local law enforcement, corrections, and support personnel recognized for their achievements and performances

SUBMITTED BY CHELAN COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE

On Wednesday, April 19, members of the Chelan County Sheriff's Office, Wenatchee Police Department, Chelan County Regional Jail, Douglas County Sheriff's Office, East Wenatchee Police Department, and Washington State Patrol participated in the Law Enforcement Regional Awards Ceremony at Eastmont High School in East Wenatchee. Administrators from each of the organizations attended and presented their employees with awards based on their achievements and performances during 2022.

The Chelan County Sheriff's Office presented eleven employees, commissioned and noncommissioned, with awards such as the Award of Merit, Award of Meritorious Service, Support Staff of the Year and Deputy of the Year. Employees were recommended for awards by either their peers, subordinates, or supervisors based upon their actions that set them apart from others within the agency.

It truly was an honor for the Office to participate in the regional award ceremony and to have the opportunity to recognize and support all the outstanding employees we have. We are also very thankful for the other agencies who participated in and coordinated the event. It was an amazing opportunity for us to come together as a regional team and support each other. We look forward to continuing to participate in this event in the future. Below is a list of the awardees and a description of their actions which led to them receiving the award.

Awards of Merit

CPL Jeremy Mannin went above and beyond the call of duty for a supervisor in 2022, surpassing the expectations set before him. His demonstrated leadership qualities were ever apparent as he put other deputies first, recognized their efforts, and asked for nothing in return. CPL Mannin's high level of confidence and competence was displayed as he was able to foresee potential future issues and handle immediate high-risk situations through development and execution of quality solutions. His professionalism, leadership and work performance reflect great credit upon himself, and the Chelan County Sheriff's Office.

Elizabeth Hagen, in 18 months with CCSO, she has shown the desire to pitch in and become a valuable and hardworking team member of the Records Division. She demonstrates good judgement and has an amazing ability to relate both to those she works with and those she serves on a daily basis. Elizabeth is consistent, dependable, and displays a positive attitude, even on a bad day. She has implemented the positive quote of the day for the staff whiteboard so that everyone can start their day off in a positive light. Elizabeth has been an exceptional addition to the Records Division.

Sgt. Risdon, Cpl. Lake, Cpl Mathena, Deputy Norton, and Deputy Brunner: (22C12861) On November 25, 2022, Sgt. Risdon, Corporals Lake and Mathena and Deputies Norton and Brunner responded to a domestic disturbance call, in which a juvenile had barricaded himself with a rifle. At one point the juvenile aimed his rifle in the direction of the deputies, however they showed great restraint as they all continued to use their PTI principles of time, distance, shielding and de-escalation. Sgt. Risdon continued to engage the juvenile verbally until the juvenile gave up and was safely taken into custody. All involved demonstrated considerable self-control and composure which culminated in a safe conclusion for all parties involved.

Tyson Mcinnis is a helicopter pilot for the Chelan County Air Support Unit and has been an extremely reliable key asset when called upon for SAR missions. SAR missions are inherently dangerous and have unique challenges, often involving operating the helicopter in extreme weather conditions that include high winds, poor visibility, and extreme temperatures. Tyson has safely flown these missions with precision, poise, and excellent decision-making skills. Tyson's dedication to the team and flying abilities has been the direct result of lives saved on dozens of occasions.

Cy Bowthorpe - Deputy of the Year

Support Staff of the Year

Rachel Jones is an unsung hero within the Records Division, whose work ethic is a standard for others to follow. The pride she takes in being a part of the team shows in her attitude and work product. Her professionalism is equaled by her generosity and kindness. She continually elevates the moral throughout our office, uplifting and never has a discouraging word to say. She places herself above all others and truly exhibits the core values of the Chelan County Sheriff's Office.

Award of Meritorious Service

Sgt. Brian Lewis- in 2022 Sgt. Lewis was appointed Team Leader of the newly formed East Cascade SWAT team while still managing the CCSO detective's unit. He dedicated countless hours to lesson planning, instruction, and policy writing for the newly formed SWAT team. He also balanced the grace necessary to allow for growth, with the drive and passion for creating high performing units. He set high standards for both teams, held himself to an even higher standard, and pushed everyone to rise to the challenge.

Deputy Cyrus Bowthorpe stood out among his peers through his demonstrated dedication to duty and utilization of his tenacious investigative skills. He went above and beyond expectations for initial responder investigations seeing cases through, some of which extended out of the state, resulting in thousands of dollars being returned to victims, and multiple arrests being made. Deputy Bowthorpe regularly produced high quality work while sharing insights and experience with his teammates and training junior deputies which has played an instrumental role in the success of CCSO. His expertise and performance, especially when pertaining to complex investigations, brings credit upon himself and CCSO.

Legislature approves Regional Sports Complex bill

COMMUNITY VOICES
By BRAD HAWKINS

OLYMPIA - The state Senate gave final approval on Thursday, April 13 to Sen. Brad Hawkins' proposal, Senate Bill 5001, which would allow communities to form a second public facilities district, concurring with amendments made by the state House of Representatives.

Hawkins' legislation is aimed at supporting development of a regional sports complex in the greater Wenatchee area and authorizes local governments to join together to seek voter approval of regional facilities. The bill provides a legal framework for the financing and governance of a new public facilities district.

"I am beyond excited to get this bill to the governor's desk. To say that it had quite the journey is probably a massive understatement. Despite the strong bipartisan votes within the two chambers, it was one of the most challenging bills I've ever had to navigate through the process," said Hawkins.

Hawkins credited passage to the many local officials and organizations who supported the effort. "I am so grateful for the help of so many local leaders. Successfully navigating through the entire process was a huge effort, but our locals were with me every step of the way. It was awesome! I'd also like to thank my House seatmates, Rep. Goehner and Rep. Steele who assisted with the bill in the House," Hawkins said.

Senate Bill 5001 was supported by the City of Wenatchee, City of East Wenatchee, Chelan County, Douglas County, Chelan-Douglas Regional Port Authority, Chelan-Douglas Transportation Council, Link Transit, Our Valley, Our Future, Wenatchee Valley Chamber of Commerce, and Confluence Health.

In a showing of support for the bill, a previously sent letter of support said, "SB 5001 will provide our region with the organizational and financing mechanism to seek voter approval to form a second Public Facilities District for the specific purpose of constructing and operating a regional aquatic center-sports complex."

The supporters added, "As our region continues to thoughtfully consider the possibilities of joining forces to construct and operate a regional aquatic center-sports complex and to potentially seek voter-approval, we need certainty that a sufficient organizational and financial mechanism is available."

Working with local mayors, county commissioners, regional port, chamber, community leaders, and swimming groups, Hawkins hosted several meetings last fall on the proposal. From those conversations, stakeholders have expressed interest in potentially siting a project in the Wenatchi Landing area near East Wenatchee, 283 acres of regionally accessible land near the Odabashian Bridge.

Hawkins believes a regional sports complex in Wenatchi Landing will serve as a catalyst for development of significant economic activities in that area, including hotels, restaurants, and retail shopping.

Senate Bill 5001 was approved unanimously by the Senate on March 1 and April 12 by the House of Representatives by a vote of 91-6. It was approved by five different legislative committees, often with various changes along the way. The Senate concurred unanimously to the House amendments, which constitutes final Legislative approval. The bill now heads to Governor Insee for his consideration.

The Chelan-Douglas Regional Port Authority is currently administering a feasibility study to analyze the project and its economic benefits. The study group is comprised of numerous local officials and is chaired by East Wenatchee Mayor Jerrilea Crawford.

Brad Hawkins is our 12th District state senator representing North Central Washington in Olympia. Contact info: 360-786-7622 or brad.hawkins@leg.wa.gov.

Dangerous Women Rise

SUBMITTED BY RHONA BARON

Dangerous Women's encore production of Unsettled is slated for May 19-21 at Snowy Owl Theater in Leavenworth. Tickets are on sale now though Icicle Creek Center for the Arts, as three unique Leavenworth women prepare to bring the history of pioneer days in North Central Washington to life. Unsettled features multiple art forms and scenes created by the show's participants. Like the Dangerous Women brand, the women are diverse and thoughtful, each energized by her vision of how the world can be made whole.

"I'm very interested in the perspective possible in telling stories through the lens of women's history," said Lucy Quade, a three-year Leavenworth resident with a degree in theatrical design from Tulane in New Orleans. "I've sewn many a costume for parades, events and crazy parties," she recounted. Quade brings her sensibilities as a costumer to bear for the first time on the show's narrator, The Moon. She is creating a seasonally shifting garment, as craters as the face of the moon itself. "The process is free flowing and I love the uniqueness of how women's stories are presented," Quade said.

Quade is concurrently costuming Hannah Rice, who grew up in Leavenworth and will again, offer a powerful modern performance as The Moon's spirit in a scene called "The Edge of Winter."

The show's narrator, The Moon, is played for the first time by Mindy Wall, who grew up in the Wenatchee Valley and now teaches at Cascade High School. "I am drawn to the show's respectful treatment of women from different backgrounds and experiences," said Wall. Wall is enthusiastic about how Dangerous Women productions grow organically based on the talents and gifts of individual women. As an instructor in American Sign Language as well as choir, Wall is excited to blend her vocal skills with ASL as she narrates the Earth's seasons through rhyming spoken word.

"There is so much we all have yet to learn. I hope people will move toward better understanding because they have experienced Dangerous Women," said Wall.

Of Haida and Nooksack tribal

Cascadia Weaver- Marson

descent and raised with many traditional ways in a Shamanic religion, Cascadia Weaver-Marson grew up in Leavenworth. She appears in Unsettled with her sister and daughter. "Katrina is a very talented dancer and performer. My daughter has this opportunity to be a voice and representative for native people in our community and to learn from the P'Squosa/Wenatchi women about their heritage." Weaver-Marson's most cherished part of the production is the Stolen Children scene where the audience is confronted with the history of Indian Boarding Schools. "I feel incredibly grateful and fortunate that the leaders of Dangerous Women are dedicated to spotlighting important issues and history with such stunning local talent." Dangerous Women is a

Lucy Quade

Central Washington based collective dedicated to bringing women's history to life through the arts to tell universally compelling stories. All work is original and collaborative. Dangerous Women have presented three unique, themed shows to sold out audiences at Snowy Owl Theater. The group was founded by Mandi Wickline and Susan Butruille and is currently directed and produced by Rhona Baron. All three women have been Leavenworth residents.

Unsettled will be staged May 19, 20 and 21. This groundbreaking production features a cast of over 35 women including Latina and Indigenous performers. Tickets are $15 for students, $54 for couples, and $28 for a single. Tickets are available at www.icicle.org or by calling 509-548-6347.

Empower yourself with practical skills for creating and sustaining joy and wellness at our Ease into Spring Women's Retreat for cancer survivors May 12-14 at Sleeping Lady Mountain Resort. Most of us live braced mentally, emotionally, and physically against constant signals of stress in our day-to-day lives. It is essential to periodically retreat from the rigors of daily life to allow ourselves to rest, reset, and learn new skills that will support resilience and create a more peaceful, healthy, and joyful life. Neuroscience research suggests that feeling happy and joyful will create and strengthen neural pathways that support a positive outlook on life.

This three-day retreat at Leavenworth's Sleeping Lady Mountain Resort empowers women who have received a cancer diagnosis to embrace survivorship as a life practice by teaching practical skills for cultivating joy, health, and whole-person wellness in day-to-day life. Through journaling, creative expression, gentle movement, and educational talks, EASE Cancer Foundation's faculty will guide each participant in creating their own personalized, sustainable wellness plan.

Oysters Anyone?

BY JOHN KRUSE

Mark Yuasa, a spokesman for the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife and the former longtime outdoors columnist for the Seattle Times, chatted with me this week about oysters and why right now may be the best time to harvest them in Washington State.

According to Yuasa, who has harvested more than his share of oysters over the years, the reason why spring is a great time to harvest oysters is because the low tides switch back to daylight hours and you don't have to go out there with a flashlight or headlamp. Second, the oysters are in rich, prime condition in the cold-water temperatures found in places like Hood Canal this time of year. Once the waters warm up the oysters use a lot of energy resources to go into their spawning period and the quality of the meat simply isn't as good as it is right now. Finally, the beaches are less crowded this time of year than they are during the summer months, which makes for a more enjoyable outing.

REGULATIONS

You can gather up to 18 oysters a day. They have to measure at least 2 ½ inches long (measured across the longest distance of the shell) and yes, the oysters you eat on the beach do count as part of your daily limit. Each harvester has to have their own container for their own individual catch.

You can only harvest oysters by hand or with a manually operated, handheld prying tool such as an oyster knife.

Do not use hammers to break apart the oyster shell. Oyster seasons are not uniform from beach to beach. You can find this year's seasons at this link, <https://wdfw.wa.gov/places-to-go/shellfish-beaches>. You'll also want to check the Department of Health's Biotoxin Status web page to make sure shellfish are safe to eat at the beach you want to go to. That link can be found at <https://fortress.wa.gov/doh/biotoxin/biotoxin.html>.

Finally, the oysters you harvest must be shucked on the beach and the shells should be left on the same tideland and at the same tide height where they were taken.

WHY DO HAVE TO SHUCK THEM ON THE BEACH?

I asked Mark Yuasa about this oyster shucking rule. He explained there are several reasons for this rule. First, it prevents the spread of invasive species and diseases from one location to another. One such species is the Japanese oyster drill. It is a hitchhiker on shells and can be spread to other oyster beds easily if you take a shell carrying this species and discard it on another beach.

Another reason to leave the oyster shells on the beach in the area you found them in is because small juvenile oysters may well be growing on the oyster you just shucked and leaving the shell high and dry above the high tide line kills those juvenile oysters.

WHERE TO GO

If you are looking for places to go harvest oysters the place to start is Hood Canal. Twanoh State Park, north of Union, has beaches on both sides of the boat ramp and is open year around. Yuasa also recommends the Lilliwaup State Park Tidelands which are open all year not only for oysters, but for bay clams too. Eagle Creek north of Lilliwaup off of US Highway 101 is also open all year long. The beach here is accessed by a short, steep hike from the parking area. If you are looking for an easy to access beach for those with limited mobility, try the Triton Cove Tidelands, also located off of Highway 101. Yet another option is Potlach State Park, north of Shelton, which is open for oyster harvesting until May 31.

RECIPES

Asked how he likes to eat his oysters, Yuasa replied with a laugh, "I like to eat them freshly shucked with a hint of Tabasco sauce and a squeeze of lemon." Yuasa said he also likes them deep fried in Panko batter served with a side of tartar sauce.

As for me, the best oysters I ever ate were served off the grill by my best friend (at his own wedding no less). The grilled oysters also had a dash of Tabasco sauce and parmesan cheese.

Environmental Restoration Grants open for 2023

Ecology accepting grant applications for restoration projects now to May 4

SUBMITTED BY TY KELTNER

Dept. of Ecology Communications

OLYMPIA - Oil spills are a threat to human health, our environment, and economy. Washington has suffered many oil spills, large and small, that have had a lasting impact on our state. When oil is spilled, the responsible party is liable for the cleanup and may incur a penalty for spilling to state waters. When paid, the money is deposited into the John Bernhardt account, named for the manager of the Spills Prevention and Policy section in the Department of Ecology in 1994.

A spiller may also need to reimburse the public for the damages the spill caused to state natural resources such as water quality, fish and wildlife, habitat and cultural areas, beaches, and shellfish beds. The money from a Natural Resource Damage Assessment (NRDA) goes into the state RDA account.

When either account reaches $100,000 or more, the Department of Ecology solicits grants for those interested in environmental restoration work around the state.

Ecology is now opening the application period for the 2023 Restoration Grants. Local and tribal governments, state and federal agencies, and public benefit non-profit organizations are all eligible. Private entities and ineligible organizations can partner with another eligible group. Previously funded projects include salmon habitat restoration, livestock exclusion fencing, derelict crab pot removal, land acquisition, and stormwater improvement projects. These are reimbursable grants, meaning that applicants must spend their own funds and will be reimbursed afterward.

"Oil spills can cause a lot of harm to our aquatic environment, but these grants help fund projects that reverse many types of environmental damage. There is a variety of work that can be funded, and I encourage all who are eligible to apply," said Geoff Baran, NRDA lead and Grant Administrator with the Department of Ecology.

One example of a successfully funded proposal is the Milewa Creek Marine Shoreline Restoration project. The Washington State Department of Fish and Wildlife demolished and removed a 200-foot-long concrete structure from the estuarine area of Milewa Creek on McNeal Island. Removal of this structure improved intertidal function for juvenile salmon habitat in Puget Sound.

Another example is the Skagit Forks wetland reconnection project. This grant funded the planting of 10,000 native trees and shrubs in a newly restored riparian area, and rejoined an isolated wetland to the Skagit River and Britt Slough.

One key addition to this year's grant application is a metric on environmental justice. Environmental justice is a priority for the governor, this administration, and the Department of Ecology. If a project has a strong environmental justice component and can demonstrate consultation with historically overburdened groups, it will be factored into the score.

Interested in applying? The application period runs from April to May 4, 2023, at 5 p.m. Visit the Department of Ecology website for more information. Funding will be awarded approximately July 2023.

New Recycle Right campaign urges Washingtonians to not bag their recyclables

Plastic bags contaminate recycling system

SUBMITTED BY DAN WESTON

Dept. of Ecology Statewide Recycling Coordinator

OLYMPIA - Plastic bags are one of the largest sources of contamination in Washington's residential recycling stream. These bags can clog recycling machinery, contaminate other recyclable materials, and lead to more potentially recyclable material ending up in the landfill.

How big a problem is it? According to a Washington Department of Ecology survey, 20% of residents put their recyclables in plastic bags before placing them in a curbside recycling bin. A new statewide "Recycle Right" initiative led by Ecology provides education on how everyone can pitch in to improve our recycling system.

Plastic bags are not recyclable in Washington's curbside recycling programs. When people place recyclable items in a bag, it makes them impossible to sort. As a result, all bagged items are pulled from the sorting line and the contents are sent to the landfill because workers at recycling facilities cannot see what is inside. The bags that make it past the workers can get tangled in the sorting equipment - causing stoppages - or become mixed with other materials, reducing their value and recyclability.

"People in Washington value the environment, and they are enthusiastic about recycling - but bagging your recyclables does more harm than good," said Laura Watson, Ecology's director. "We know people want to 'Recycle Right,' so this new campaign will help them take simple steps to improve the system."

The Recycle Right campaign is designed to inform people about the challenges caused by bagging recyclables and improve their recycling behaviors.

So, why are people bagging their recyclables in the first place?

The ecology survey found that residents bag their recyclables for many reasons. Some are motivated by convenience and the ease of carrying recyclables to the bin, while others are concerned with cleanliness and odor control. Some people believe bagged recyclables are helpful for recycling haulers or that the bags themselves are recyclable.

"It is great that we all do our part to recycle, but it is important that we recycle right so our actions help more than they harm," said Dan Weston, Ecology's statewide recycling coordinator. "When you bag your recyclables before tossing them into the curbside bin, not only will your items not get recycled, but it also causes a strain on our facilities and disrupts the recycling process."

The campaign features online and social media advertising, billboards, radio spots, and public service announcements in English and Spanish. An online toolkit provides information and resources for partners to share through additional channels. Washington residents will see and hear Recycle Right ads throughout April.

DOH launches new opioid and drug overdose dashboard

Data aims to help communities reduce overdose deaths

SUBMITTED BY WSDOH

OLYMPIA - The Washington State Department of Health (DOH) recently launched an updated Opioid and Drug Overdose Data dashboard that includes county level data on hospitalizations and deaths due to overdose of opioids and other drugs. The new dashboard presents information in an easier-to-understand format, making data more accessible, and thus actionable, to the public.

Preliminary data on the dashboard have been updated through 2022, and cocaine has been added to the list of drugs reported. The data are updated quarterly from sources including death certificates and hospital discharge information and can be used to examine opioid morbidity and mortality due to drug overdose to help raise awareness of the opioid epidemic in Washington state.

"Drug overdose, particularly from opioids such as fentanyl, is a serious public health crisis in our country and in our state. Between 2007 and 2021, more than 17,500 Washington residents died from a drug overdose. Sixty-eight percent of those deaths involved an opioid, with the annual number nearly doubling since 2019," said Tao Sheng Kwan-Gett, MD, MPH. "It is our hope that community members and organizations across the state will use this data to understand who in their communities are most affected by opioids, and to advocate for treatment and services."

Like all publicly available DOH data, the dashboard suppresses small numbers to avoid sharing personal health information. Information on how to prevent and respond to drug overdoses can be found on the DOH website. The DOH website is your source for a healthy dose of information. Find us on Facebook and follow us on Twitter. Sign up for the DOH blog, Public Health Connection.

Three projects funded: Riverfront Park, Dryden Wastewater, Loop Trail

SUBMITTED BY RACHEL HANSEN

WENATCHEE - Chelan PUD set aside nearly $3 million from the utility's Public Power Benefit Program to advance three projects:

- Wenatchee Riverfront Park, $1.51 million: This project will build a new splash pad and pavilion as part of a three-phase masterplan at Riverfront Park. The PUD and City of Wenatchee have already allocated $4 million. The total cost of the first phase is an estimated $6-8 million. The final design will be finished this year, and construction is slated to begin in 2024.
- Dryden Wastewater

Treatment Plant, $670,000:

This project will replace the original treatment facility to meet modern water quality standards. The $5.67 million project will be funded with a combination of grant funding, a loan from the Department of Ecology and previous PPB funds. Construction is underway and is scheduled for completion in 2024.

- Apple Capital Loop Trail, $800,000: An extension of the Loop Trail to the Service Center at Olds Station will provide public access to a riverfront viewing area with cultural interpretive sites, including the Michael Horan House Historic Site. The project is scheduled for completion in 2025.

The Public Power Benefit Fund uses revenues from surplus energy sales to support community-minded projects. The Board of Commissioners plan to allocate $6 million annually for 2023 and 2024.

About $3 million was already designated for a half dozen projects in 2023, including expansion of Chelan PUD's broadband network and sport court improvements at Walla Walla Point Park.

In other news, commissioners: Heard a report about a schedule change in Customer Relations. The payment counter at the PUD's Wenatchee lobby and customer account support via phone will be temporarily unavailable on Wednesdays for staff training and system improvements, starting May 3. Customers have many options to pay monthly utility bills, including the new Powerpay kiosks at PUD offices in Wenatchee, Chelan and Leavenworth.

Division of Labor

Over the weekend a water leak sprang out in the closet where the water heater is housed over a round plastic water collection tray with three-inch-high sides setting over the beautiful oak hardwood flooring my late husband and Sonny put over all the floors in the house except the kitchen. The shut off valve into the water heater is a worn-out globe valve that has been over-tightened for years. The packing is so worn out no matter how I turned it, righty tighty or lefty loosie, the leak at the valve stem wouldn't quit dripping three cups of water a minute onto the beautiful hard wood floor.

I made a frantic call to the plumber my late husband trusted but I couldn't get through. It probably didn't help that it was after 5 p.m. I was panicking. All would be well if I could just shut the water into the house off. That didn't happen because the shut off valve in the well house is in the same shape as the one in the water heater closet. I decided to cut the flow of energy to the well so the well would cut the flow of water to the house. That didn't work because I hadn't counted on the pressure tank in the well house doing such a good job. The water just kept flowing. Not understanding the pressure tank system, all I could do was sop up the water as it overflowed onto the floor and call Sonny. He was too far away to help. Next, I called a member of our church's Honor Bound Men's Group and asked for help.

Sonny's friend Stan showed up with a pair of groove joint pliers. There was nothing for the pliers to do but Stan was able to show me how to stop the flow of water to the hot water tank by opening faucets upstream of the water heater until the pressure tank was depressurized enough not to push water into the hot water heater's closet.

The water quit flowing onto the floor. Relief. Stan could tell I was extremely stressed over my incompetence to handle the situation. He turned to me as he headed out the door and said, "It's OK not to know everything. None of us can do it all. That's why we get paid. We get paid so we can pay someone else who's good at what they do to do what we can't. We have to budget then do maintenance work before things get out of hand." Then he drove away.

About then the plumber got back to me. By 8:30 p.m. the valve was stabilized enough to be functional until it can be completely repaired during working hours along with the well house shut off valve.

By 9 p.m. I remembered I needed to eat. I opened a can of pork and beans and a jar of home canned pears. As I nibbled, I considered division of labor; how it leads to civilization; why meritocracy is the best 'ocracy'. Stan is right. Not one of us in a civilized society can do everything it takes to get through the day. None of us are the same. We all have different 'stuff' we're good at and the Good Lord knows there's enough 'stuff' needing done to keep each and every one of us busy.

I started to calm down and actually enjoy the taste of my home canned pears and the pork and beans. It was a pretty good dinner for someone stressed to be hungry.

Keeping Canned Foods Edible

The best place to store canned food is in cupboards on the ground floor or in a dry basement.

Canned food begins to lose food value (nutrition) after two years for pineapple and tomatoes (high acid) it's after eighteen months. It is still good food it just isn't as nutritional as it stays in the can or jar.

Sunlight and heat cause food to lose food value faster. Sunlight has more of an effect on glass than on tin cans. (I don't store any food stuffs in my attic during summer months.)

Moisture causes rust. If I see any rust on a canned food container, it gets discarded. Rust can be the entry point for anaerobic microbes like the infamous botulism (Clostridium botulinum) that produces a toxin that causes paralysis. Scientists say the toxin is destroyed by cooking at 250° for three minutes. (I prefer a rolling boil for five minutes because it's easier to remember and that's what Grandma did).

When opening a jar of home canned veggies, I always listen for the hiss that often accompanies the prying loose of the jar lid. That hiss is the sound of the outside air rushing into the vacuum left when the hot sterilized air cooled after the canning process. Without a good seal, there is no vacuum because the outside air will seep inside to make an air equilibrium between the inside and outside of the can or jar. Without the vacuum there is no hiss.

The best place to store canned food is in cupboards on the ground floor or in a dry basement. A dry root cellar is also nice, but root cellars are hard to come by these days.

Note: Many folks like to get the discount that comes with dented cans. I don't recommend it. Dents can hide tiny creases where the can is compromised that become entry points for anaerobic microbes that can be deadly. It is possible to use dented cans safely; there are many gleaners and church groups that do so. This is possible because the individuals get one on one training from careful elders and pay close attention to what they are taught.

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT FOR THE
EIGHTMILE DAM REBUILD AND RESTORATION PROJECT
CHELAN COUNTY, WASHINGTON

The Washington State Department of Ecology (Ecology) Office of Columbia River (OCR) is releasing a Draft Environmental Impact Statement (Draft EIS) on April 19, 2023, for the Eightmile Dam Rebuild and Restoration Project. Ecology OCR is the lead agency for this Draft EIS, prepared in accordance with the State Environmental Policy Act (SEPA). The project proponent is the Icicle and Peshastin Irrigation Districts (IPID).

Location:
Eightmile Dam is located in the Alpine Lakes Wilderness Area, approximately 10 miles southwest of Leavenworth, WA. The site is accessible via an approximately 3-mile pedestrian trail. The trailhead is located on Forest Service Road 7601 accessible via Icicle Road, within Township 24N, Range 16E WM, Section 33.

Description of Proposal:
The existing dam was constructed in the 1920s. The dam is owned and operated by IPID. The dam and outlet works have sustained damage over time; on occasion the spillway has overtopped, and the earthen embankment has eroded, limiting IPID's ability to refill the lake to the historical spillway elevation, and resulting in increased potential for additional erosion and failure.

Additionally, the Jack Creek Fire in 2017 burned trees and vegetation in the Eightmile Lake basin that led to unstable conditions and the potential for high run-off or flash flooding, adding to the risk of dam failure. In 2018, IPID worked with Ecology's Dam Safety Office (DSO) and Chelan County Emergency Management to temporarily repair the dam and address the immediate threat of dam failure. The repairs do not meet current dam safety requirements for high hazard dams. IPID proposes to rebuild and restore Eightmile Dam to meet the following objectives:

- Restore the capacity of Eightmile Lake to help meet IPID irrigation and water supply needs;
- Comply with DSO regulations for a High Hazard Dam;
- Provide additional water to enhance instream flow volumes in Icicle Creek and, to the extent possible, time dam outflows to meet fish utilization needs.

IPID has developed design alternatives for rebuilding the dam with technical review from the DSO. Alternatives would each have a low-level outlet pipe located entirely within the area delineated by IPID's Special Warranty Deed with the US Forest Service.

Ecology issued a determination of significance on December 18, 2020, and formally initiated the SEPA EIS scoping process. Comments from the scoping process were used to inform the Draft EIS. This Draft EIS evaluates a No Action Alternative and three (3) action alternatives, including:

- Narrow Spillway with Gates
- Wide Spillway without Gates
- Narrow Spillway without Gates

This Draft EIS was prepared in compliance with the State of Washington Environmental Policy Act (SEPA), Chapter 43.21C RCW, and the SEPA Rules (Chapter 197-11 WAC).

Additional information is available on the project website at <https://ecology.wa.gov/eightmile>.

For questions relating to the needs and operations of IPID, please email questions to: ipid@mwi.net
