New Executive Director of the Cashmere Chamber of Commerce

BY MATTHEW OCKINGA

Correspondent

CASHMERE - Each town's chamber of commerce exists to promote the commercial interests and general welfare of the local community.

For Rachel Lippert, the newly minted Executive Director of the Cashmere Chamber of Commerce, her new job is more than just business. It's personal. Lippert is Cashmere through and through, having been born and raised here. As she takes the reins of the Chamber, she feels a familial responsibility to her hometown.

"I take my job personally. This isn't just a community. This is family," Lippert said. "When you're surrounded by family you want to make sure that you're supporting them the best you can, so I take all this stuff very personally. I want to succeed and succeed for others."

A 2010 Cashmere High School graduate, Lippert recalls her own family volunteering with the Chamber as she was growing up. In one way or another, she was always involved with the community. After high school, she earned her Associate in Arts from Wenatchee Valley College and then began working for the Wenatchee School District. From 2013-2018 she coached volleyball and basketball before attending Guilford College in Greensboro, NC.

Last August, she took a job with The Wenatchee World. While there, she became quite involved with the Chamber including then-director Gina Imperato who suggested that Lippert join the Board of Directors. When Imperato left, Lippert applied for the job and started in October. One of the first events she helped with was Scare Crazy, a fall event which involves a proverbial scarecrow invasion in Cashmere.

Just two months into her new position, Lippert has faced the early challenges of acquainting herself with the computer systems of the Chamber and working with the digital platforms. She's also worked on grant applications and simply making sure the Chamber office is functioning properly. Other aspects of her job include working with businesses to ensure that the public is aware of promotions, sales, and other opportunities.

"Objectives are those steps toward creating your bigger goal," she said. "Some of those objectives are making sure that businesses feel seen, making sure that our businesses are represented in the way that they need to be represented."

Lippert described her job as a lot of work and a lot of grit. As she continues CASHMERE— Never judge a store front by its cover.

On the south end of downtown Cashmere sits a simple wooden building. From the outside, one may think it houses two or three stores. Yet around nine businesses happily coexist inside the quaint facility south of downtown. Those local companies will be combining to host the Holiday Market on Mission on three consecutive Saturdays. The markets will take place Dec. 3, Dec. 10, and Dec. 17 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The market will also be open Friday, Dec. 23 from 1-7 p.m.

Just a block down the street from Aplets and Cotlets, the Mission District Building at 207 S. Mission Ave. served as a pear-packing facility from the 1940's to the early 1990's. With its old beams, vaulted ceilings and reclaimed timber from local orchards, the building offers a homey aura for shoppers.

"There's so many people who live around Cashmere that are not aware of this building," said Claire East, owner of Cashmere Cellars which has been at the Mission District since 2012. "Everybody enjoys coming in and just looking around at the ceiling. The ambience is good. I've seen the building change in time. It's a good change. It's a good feel in here."

Other established Mission District businesses include Leony's Cellars, Color FX, and Cashmere Moon Co. Over the years, the remaining spaces have housed a variety of local businesses, mostly women owned. More recent tenants include J5 Coffee and Salt Creek Apothecary. Local artists Michelle Andurst and Mountain Heather Photography open their studios to shoppers. For Mission District, the name of the game is variety.

"We offer a wide range of delightful finds, from antiques and apothecary to coffee roasting, art, designer fashion resale and even floral arrangements," said Rachel Carey, who along with her cousin and best friend Jacqueline Leslie, has helped lead an effort to revitalize the Mission District Building. "Even more amazing is the enthusiasm and encouragement we are all finding in each other. This group of ladies is becoming family and friends, and that kind of support is invaluable."

Carey and Leslie head Fernweh, a boutique which offers a wide selection of vintage home décor and furniture in addition to high-end designer fashion resale. Leslie owns the store and Carey is the manager. In addition to running Fernweh, which has its grand re-opening party on Dec. 3, their larger goal is to bring awareness to the Mission District Building and the entrepreneurs and artists who call it their business home.

Leslie also views the boutique as an intimate opportunity to add a personal touch to someone's living space. Though some aspects of Fernweh will be online, she feels the in-person shopping experience is priceless.

"I want people to walk in and feel like they're home already," she said. "I want it to be part of a larger story and it's the story of a person's home. So, you want to see that face to face. You want to touch it. And I want people to come in here and touch and sort of breathe in the possibility of what they're creating for themselves."

Christmas in Cashmere

BY MATTHEW OCKINGA

Correspondent

CASHMERE — While some enjoy the holiday hustle and bustle of big city life, small towns seem to lend their charm to Christmas. With its quaint downtown and close-knit bond, Cashmere definitely stands out as a Christmas community. That yuletide cheer will be on display once again during Christmas in Cashmere held Saturday, Dec. 3 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"When I envision Christmas in Cashmere, I envision everybody bringing their camping chairs sitting around the fire just rejoicing in the holiday festivities and the community we have here," said Rachel Lippert, Executive Director of the Cashmere Chamber of Commerce. "That's one of my big goals is to make sure that this event is created in that light and in that insight."

Several groups and businesses from the community will contribute to this annual free family event. Included in that is the fourth annual Artisan Christmas hosted by Henry Building and Brick and Rafters at 120 Cottage Ave. Throughout the day there will be a Holiday Market on Mission Ave. Parents can also take the kids downtown for Christmas crafts and a chance to meet the Coca-Cola polar bear.

The man in red will also make an appearance. Santa will stop by Martin's Market IGA and will be available for pictures from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. An antique fire truck will take the big guy downtown at 1:30 p.m. Story time with Santa starts at 2 p.m.

Free apple cider and other treats will be available throughout the day as well as festive music. There will also be fire pits and opportunities to take family photos around Christmas-

Lippert said the variety of activities provides a proper showcase for Cashmere.

"I think that's important to us because it brings all of us together," Lippert said. "Cashmere...it's your favorite hometown. It's your ideal place for your family. It's very special. I've been to a few different places, and I haven't come across a town like Cashmere."

During the festivities, people are invited to participate in the Cashmere Chamber Food Drive and can donate non-perishable food items to the Chamber. All food donations will be delivered to the Cashmere Food Bank.

In July of 2000 he was selected to serve a one-year term on the newly formed Washington State Tourism Advisory Committee. He was the recipient of the 'Outstanding General Manager of the Year Award' from the Washington Lodging Association in 2005, as well as the 'All Star Governor Award' in 2003 from Best Western International. Karl accepted several Committee assignments in his role as a Best Western Governor that included the Chair of the Education and Training Advisory Committee, a few years back, and then Chairman of the Quality Assurance Advisory Committee (2015).

On July 1, 2019, Karl was appointed Assistant District Governor for Rotary District 5060, and now he is serving as the DG District Governor for the Rotary year 2022-2023.

Fellow Rotarians, thank you for the confidence you have placed in me for this important role. I am really looking forward to meeting many if not all of you in this exciting continuation of my Rotary Journey. PDG Marvin Monroe used to say, "Rotary is a journey not a Destination" and it is an honor to serve in this role and work closely with many of you.

This holiday season, donate financially or give blood to help those facing future crisis

SUBMITTED BY BETSY ROBERTSON

2022 has been a year of crisis for families in the Northwest Region and around the world, from devastating wildfires here at home, to global emergencies like the conflict in Ukraine, to the first-ever national American Red Cross blood crisis.

"Whether a crisis is felt by an entire community or a single person, it turns lives upside down, especially for the most vulnerable," said Alex Dieffenbach, CEO of the American Red Cross Northwest Region. "This holiday season, join us to provide help and hope for people in need during future emergencies by making a financial donation or by giving blood." You can help your neighbors in need this Giving Tuesday and throughout the holiday season. Visit redcross.org/northwest to make a financial donation, an appointment to give blood, or to register as a volunteer.

Responding to disasters of all sizes. This year's extreme disasters in the U.S. are clear examples of the increasing frequency and intensity of the climate crisis. So far in 2022, 15 billion-dollar disasters have upended lives across the country, more than twice the number of billion-dollar disasters that struck annually two decades ago.

For these and tens of thousands of other disasters in the Northwest Region and across the country, Red Cross volunteers have worked 24/7 to provide shelter, food and care. Dozens of Northwest Region volunteers recently raised their hands to help in Red Cross recovery efforts after Hurricane Ian struck Florida. In February 2022, Lacie Clark, a member of the Northwest Region Services to the Armed Forces team, left her family and Spokane, WA home, to support troops in Kuwait during the conflict in Ukraine.

Here in the Pacific Northwest, Red Cross volunteers have also provided relief and comfort after home fires, wildfires and widespread flooding, to help ensure no one faces a crisis of any size alone.

Helping families affected by global emergencies. Internationally, the conflict in Ukraine has forced millions of people to flee for their lives. With such vast needs, the American Red Cross has provided financial donations and international crisis responders to support the global Red Cross network's response on the ground, which spans more than a dozen neighboring countries to deliver food, shelter, medical care, emotional support and other critical aid for displaced families.

Meanwhile, the American Red Cross has also provided financial support to the ongoing hunger crisis in Africa. Overall, this year, as part of the world's largest humanitarian network, the American Red Cross provided humanitarian aid in more than 108 countries.

Providing support for personal emergencies. In the Northwest Region, Red Cross workers have helped people through personal emergencies too, whether it was opening a safe shelter during southwestern Washington flooding and the Bolt Creek Fire, supporting our community's military families on Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Fairchild Air Force Base, and Naval Station Everett, or responding to individual home fires across the state. So far in 2022, Red Cross disaster teams have responded to more than 1,000 disasters in the Northwest Region, providing more than 3,600 people with emergency assistance, comfort, and care.

Overcoming the first-ever Red Cross Blood Crisis. In January 2022, the Red Cross experienced its worst national blood shortage in over a decade due to ongoing collection challenges and varied hospital demand during the pandemic. Patients in need of lifesaving blood transfusions relied on an outpouring of support from hundreds of thousands of generous blood donors to overcome the crisis.

Beyond national headlines, the need for blood is constant. One in 7 patients entering a hospital will need a blood transfusion. As seasonal illness and the threat of winter weather ramp up this holiday season, make a donation appointment and be a lifeline for car accident victims, parents with complicated childbirths, individuals battling cancer and people with sickle cell disease.

Give thanks and give back. Now is the time to make and keep blood donation appointments. As a thank-you, all those that come to give Nov. 23-27 will get an exclusive Red Cross beanie, while supplies last. Thanks to our partners at Amazon, all donors who come to give blood Nov. 28-Dec. 15 will receive a $10 Gift card by email.*

Upcoming Chelan County blood donation opportunities. Now to December 15.

Cashmere: December 6, 12:30-5:30 p.m., Cashmere United Methodist Church, 213 S. Division Street, Cashmere, 98815.

Wenatchee: December 7, 11 a.m. - 4 p.m., Kings Orchard Church of Christ, 1610 Orchard Avenue, Wenatchee, WA 98801.

*Terms apply. Visit redblood.org/together.

to find her footing, she feels buoyed by the support and feedback she has received from the community. Whether it's someone she knows who stops by the office, which is usually the case, or a stranger, the bond she feels from the town she loves lends her motivation going forward.

"I love it when people stop by the office when we can talk," Lippert said. "I think the best part of my job is going and seeing everybody, going downtown, seeing the businesses, networking with different individuals, discovering new ideas and new goals from different business entities."

DOH strongly urges individuals get vaccinated to prevent spread of flu

Communities seeing rapid increase in flu activity across the U.S.

SUBMITTED BY DOH

OLYMPIA - The Washington State Department of Health (DOH) wants the public to know flu cases are rising quickly in Washington state and nationwide. Flu hospitalizations are at the highest rates seen in 10 years for this point in the year. In the last two weeks, DOH is reporting high cases of flu-like illnesses in Washington.

Flu illness can have serious health consequences, especially for people who are under five years old, age 65 or older, pregnant, immunocompromised, or have chronic health conditions.

In addition to the flu, other respiratory illnesses, such as COVID-19 and RSV, are combining to push our hospitals to emergency capacity. Help keep yourself and your community healthy by getting a flu vaccine and taking other measures to prevent illness.

"Our state's pediatric healthcare system is overloaded with extremely high numbers of children with respiratory infections," said Tao Sheng Kwan-Gett, MD, MPH, chief science officer for DOH. "Families urgently need to do everything they can to keep everyone healthy and avoid the need for healthcare, and flu vaccination is one of the most important prevention tools."

Following the proper prevention and hygiene practices can halt the spread of respiratory illnesses. Washington State Department of Health recommends:

- Get vaccinated. Vaccination is your best defense against flu and COVID-19.
- Wash your hands frequently with soap and water. Use hand sanitizer when soap is not available, and hands are not visibly soiled.
- Consider wearing a mask in crowded settings.
- If you are sneezing or coughing, wear a mask or use the crook of your arm or a tissue to avoid getting germs onto your hands or spreading virus in the air.

- Avoid close contact with sick individuals.
 - If you feel sick, stay home.
- The most common strain so far is influenza A (H3N2). This strain typically causes more severe disease. All available flu vaccines provide protection against H3N2.

DOH strongly recommends everyone aged 6 months and older get the flu vaccine as soon as possible. It takes two weeks for the flu vaccine to be effective making it a key time to get vaccinated before people get together for the December holidays. If you get the flu when you are vaccinated, it's typically milder and the vaccine can prevent serious complications including hospital care. The flu vaccine is available at most pharmacies, health care providers' offices, and clinics. State employees are eligible to receive SmartHealth points for receiving a flu vaccine. The flu vaccine can be received on the same day as the updated COVID-19 updated booster and other vaccines.

to have to explain," she said. "They just want to go and live their lives, and we hope that we're able to be a part of them doing that."

Sometimes when businesses share the same facility, it creates an atmosphere of rivalry and competition. That is not the case with the Mission District crew. They realize that a rising tide floats all boats and are happy for whoever gets the business, and it will take a combined effort to make sure everyone enjoys success.

"The nature of our work is going to take a lot more boots on the ground. With the support of everyone else in the building, more communally we can have that inertia to continue to build the momentum and get people to know about us," Leslie said. "Having that communal group also breeds more creativity as we create new ideas to find out ways that people might want to engage with us."

Carey mentioned that one of the biggest challenges for the Mission District group is simply advertising and making people aware of the opportunities available. With the holidays now upon North Central Washington, this dedicated group of business owners hopes to share with the public on the outside what the special building holds on the inside.

"We see the magic in the bones and just how we feel being here throughout the day, and I think that we are just excited to share that with folks," Leslie said, adding that the hope for the building is "to create an attractive space that people can come to and feel relaxed and have a variety of experiences while they're here. Come and hang out with their friends for a great cup of coffee or wine or have a fantastic shopping experience, just making it a place where people want to be."

Celebrate Christmas in the Mountains with the Leavenworth Village Voices

By DIANE PRIEBE

Leavenworth Village Voices

The Leavenworth Village Voices community choir can't wait to share the magic of the Christmas season with you this year. After a triumphant return to performing in 2021 after the COVID-19 pause, the Leavenworth Village Voices is welcoming in the 2022 Christmas season with several new members and a repertoire of traditional holiday songs, familiar favorites, and new arrangements. Accomplished choir director Mindy Wall has once again fine-tuned the choir of skilled performers who will be spreading the Christmas spirit to one and all. They will be accompanied this year by Kumchu Dickenson, a talented and expressive local pianist. Performances include a 2 p.m., Sunday matinee at Leavenworth's Snowy Owl Theater, Icicle Creek Center for the Arts on December 11. This concert will feature both the Leavenworth Village Voices and the Marlin Handbell Ringers, delighting fans of these two long-time Leavenworth musical traditions. A second concert with the Leavenworth Village Voices and guest artists will be featured at the Snowy Owl Theater at 7:30 p.m., on December 11, and a final concert at the Numerica Performing Arts Center (PAC) in Wenatchee at 7:00 p.m., Saturday, December 17. Visit www.leavenworthvillagevoices.org for details and to purchase tickets. Tickets will also be available at the door.

For over 40 years, the Leavenworth Village Voices has been sharing the joy of music with locals and visitors alike. Founded in 1982 with a mix of local church choirs and enthusiastic community members, the Leavenworth Village Voices started as a year-round choir, echoing Leavenworth's Bavarian theme through traditional music and German attire. After 40 years of musically enriching our community, today's full choir performs exclusively during the Christmas season. The Women's Ensemble formed from choir members who wished to perform year-round. Together, the choir is guaranteed to inspire and spread the joy of the season.

Music for this year's concerts include Christmas classics such as "Carol of the Bells," a modern take on an old French melody in "Sing We Now of Christmas," and a toe-tapping variation of "Deck the Halls," called "A Very Merry Fa-La-La." The choir is also delighted to be performing "Christmas Town," a new song composed by James Knight in honor of our very own Christmas Town of Leavenworth, Washington. The two evening concerts will end with the choir's tradition: a sing-along of Handel's magnificent "Hallelujah" chorus, an audience favorite. In addition to its choral pieces, LVV concerts will feature talented local artists, including Eric Link, the Bavarian Brass, Russian indie pop sensation BOSAYA, and Corban Welter. There is something for everyone, from kids from one to 92!

You may also hear the Leavenworth Village Voices perform in the Front Street gazebo during the final weekend of Leavenworth's Village of Lights in on Sunday, December 18 at 5 p.m. Small groups of choir members will also lead caroling in the streets in downtown Leavenworth during each of the Christmas Lighting Festival weekends. If you've never attended a Leavenworth Village Voices concert, don't miss out this year. Give yourself and your loved ones the gift of the Christmas spirit through music, while supporting this hard-working nonprofit organization in your community. The performances are guaranteed to inspire and send the audience out the doors spreading the peace, hope, and love of the season!

For more information about the Leavenworth Village Voices or how to contact them to sing at your special event, find them on Facebook or at www.leavenworthvillagevoices.org.

Outdoors Roundup

By JOHN KRUSE

TROUT FISHING

In recent years, the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife has urged anglers to celebrate "Black Friday" after Thanksgiving not in the stores, but out on the water catching some of the jumbo trout they plant this time of year around the state.

The vast majority of these fish are stocked in Western Washington but Central and Eastern Washington get some jumbo trout too. This year, 140 huge trout, weighing between five and ten pounds, were stocked in Yakima's Rotary Lake in mid-November. Nearby Myron Lake also received 125 similar size rainbows.

Heading further east several lakes got big fish planted in them on Halloween to include:

Jump Off Joe Lake in Stevens County with 350 brown trout averaging 2 pounds; Waitts Lake in Stevens County with 402 brown trout weighing 2 pound each; Deer Lake in Stevens County with 600 eastern brook trout weighing just over a pound each; and Sacheen Lake in Pend Oreille County with 215 eastern brook trout also averaging a pound each.

In addition to this Roses Lake near Manson was stocked with over 10,000 catchable size rainbows in early November. Are many of these fish still swimming around these lakes? With most outdoors enthusiasts focused on hunting there likely are and all of these waters would be worth fishing in the days ahead.

HOLIDAY GIFT IDEAS FOR THE ANGLER - UNIQUE NETS

Frabill has come out with an ingenious folding net that is perfect for anglers fishing out of kayaks or small boats. It's their Kwik Stow Folding Trout Net where the net section itself collapses together and the telescoping handle can go from its extended length of 40 inches down to 20". The net is 14 inches deep with tangle-free micro mesh that works well for releasing fish without harming them. When fully collapsed, the net is only 25" long. It is available in stores now with an MSRP of $37.99.

Frabill also won a "Best of Category" award at ICAST, the huge fishing trade show held each year in Florida where manufacturers roll out new products. The award was for their Witness Weigh Net. This unique net is made for catch and release anglers. It has a digital scale on the handle next to the hoop of the net. You can literally scoop your fish out of the water and weigh it and release it without ever handling it. If you do want to measure the fish simply take it out of the mesh net and use the 30" ruler on the handle of the net to do so. Frabill was hoping to roll this new net out this fall but so far, it's not available for sale and it may or may not make it under your Christmas tree this year. You can check for availability at www.frabill.com.

DUCK HUNTING ACCIDENT

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife

reports a 53-year-old male was seriously injured after being shot while duck hunting on November 20. The man was hunting with a friend in a small boat on Elochoman Slough in Southwest Washington's Wahkiakum County that morning. They were in the act of retrieving ducks from the water. The shooter's shotgun in the boat was propped up and fell over. As the shooter tried to retrieve the firearm, he fired the weapon, striking the victim.

The shooter immediately called 911 and took the victim to the Cathlamet Marina where emergency service personnel transported him to the hospital. The victim is currently in stable condition at Vancouver SW Medical Center recovering from his injuries.

The lessons learned here? Have the safety on your firearm on at all times unless you are ready to pull the trigger and shoot. Also, if you are done with your hunt and retrieving birds before you head home, unload your firearms. Finally, stow your firearms in places where they not only are pointed in a safe direction, but also secured so they don't fall like this one did, with the barrel pointing towards the victim. It's fortunate this accident didn't turn out worse.

Dave Kilhefner caught this nice trout on a snowy day

Who put the Epsom in Epsom Salt?

After two days of work digging a trench on our property, my husband Charlie's feet ached. He called out from our bathroom, "I'm going to soak my feet. Where is the Epsom Salt?"

Epsom Salt is another name for magnesium sulfate. In 1675, Dr. Nehemiah Grew obtained magnesium sulfate crystals from evaporating the mineral water of Epsom, England. The mineral water from the Seiditz Spring in Germany was nearly identical to the water from Epsom and also used as a source of magnesium. At first, Seiditz Salt and Epsom Salt were used interchangeably to refer to magnesium sulfate. Today, Epsom Salt is the only name that remains.

In Colonial America, magnesium sulfate was produced from rock veins near Baltimore and southern Pennsylvania. By the late 1880s, salt mines were replaced by evaporating seawater. After extracting sodium chloride (table salt) from seawater, the brine left over contains nearly pure magnesium sulfate, AKA Epsom Salt.

Often packaged in quart-sized milk cartons, Epsom Salt or magnesium sulfate is a white, odorless powder that tastes salty and bitter. It is widely used today, externally as a solution for soaking sore feet and muscles and internally to relieve constipation.

In the 1800s, ensuring your bowels moved frequently was considered essential to your health. Bowel movements were widely believed to remove toxins from the body, and the way to stay healthy was to prevent toxins from building up. That meant making sure you and your loved ones emptied their bowels regularly.

To support this belief, many patent medicines, called cathartics, contained compounds that stimulate bowel movements. The least intense of these were called laxatives. The next powerful cathartics were called "purgatives," and the most potent cathartic compounds were "drastics" "Epsom Salt is a salt-based laxative and can be either a laxative or a purgative, depending on the dose used."

Other magnesium products with stimulant action on your bowels include magnesium hydroxide and citrate. Magnesium hydroxide is less potent than magnesium sulfate, with its milky white color inspiring the name "milk of magnesia." Some milky white liquid antacids, like Maalox® and Mylanta®, contain magnesium hydroxide. Magnesium citrate is sold as a clear solution containing sodium bicarbonate and citric acid to make it carbonated. This liquid laxative is available in a glass bottle as "citrate of magnesia."

When you add magnesium sulfate (Epsom Salt) crystals to water and drink it, it pulls extra water into your intestines, making your stool more liquid. This watery stool moves more quickly through your intestine, colon, and rectum. The more concentrated the solution of magnesium sulfate, the more powerful its laxative effect.

Soaking in a saline solution like table salt or Epsom Salt can help shrink tissues by pulling fluid out of them. This can help decrease swelling and pain. Soaking in warm table salt or Epsom Salts also softens and shrinks the skin around embedded foreign bodies like splinters and insect stingers. This often makes them much easier to remove.

Like my husband, you can add Epsom Salts to foot soaks or bath water for a therapeutic bath to relieve aches. The magnesium in Epsom Salt can be absorbed through the skin, helping to alleviate muscle cramps.

Epsom salt is safe when used externally for soaking, but be careful about taking it by mouth, as the amount of magnesium absorbed into your body can be unpredictable.

One woman died from heart block after using an enema made from 3 tablespoons of Epsom Salts dissolved in warm water. Two children went into cardiac arrest, and one died after consuming several doses of a mega-mineral supplement containing a large amount of magnesium.

If you use Milk of Magnesia or magnesium citrate for constipation, DO NOT exceed the doses recommended on the label.

Here are 3 Key Facts About Epsom Salt:

- 1. Magnesium is absorbed through the skin. Soaking in warm water with magnesium salt has a calming effect on muscles. This can help relieve aching feet, restless legs, or nocturnal muscle cramps.
- 2. Salt soaks can prevent infection.

Soaking splinters in hot salt water (either Epsom Salt or table salt) for at least 20 minutes, 1-2 times daily, can discourage infection. Salt soaks help keep the top of the skin open. This makes the splinter easier to extract while preventing the development of an abscess.

3. Never exceed recommended doses.

Magnesium can be unpredictable when taken internally. Taking too much can depress the action of your heart.

Winter Reading Program begins December 1

SUBMITTED BY MICHELLE MCNIEL
Public Relations Specialist
NCW Libraries

NCW Libraries wants to crank up the reading thermometer through the cold winter months. The library district's annual all-ages Winter Reading Program kicks off December 1 with a goal of collectively reading 1,000 books across North Central Washington through the end of January.

The winter program is designed to motivate people to read by setting goals, logging their completed books or minutes read, and getting ideas from library staff and other library patrons.

"Our winter program is all about reading for fun and creating a culture of reading across our five-county library district," said Jessica Lynch, Teen Services Manager for NCW Libraries. "We want people to be excited about reading, share their love of books, and be inspired and encouraged by each other."

People can participate in the Winter Reading Program in two ways. 1: Set personal reading goals and track them on printed reading logs available from any of NCW Libraries' 30 branches in Chelan, Douglas, Grant, Okanogan and Ferry counties or the community bookmobiles. Logs that are completed and returned to the libraries will help meet reading goals set for each community. 2: Sign up online using the Beanstack app and help the library district reach its system-wide goal of reading 1,000 books.

Children who meet their goals can choose from a selection of rubber duckies available at libraries and on the bookmobiles. People of all ages who participate online will earn digital raffle tickets for prize drawings. NCW Libraries will offer reading suggestions through library displays and social media posts, and library patrons will be encouraged to make book recommendations and write book reviews. Register for the Winter Reading Program starting December 1 at a community library, bookmobile, or online.

The Contract
Unveiling the healing power of forgiveness
A novel by local writer William E. Forhan.

Nobel Prize winning author Gabriel Garcia Marquez was quoted as saying, "All human beings have three lives, public, private and secret." In our modern world of the Internet search engines and DNA testing, keeping our private and secret lives separate is increasingly difficult. Sometimes they can come crashing in on our public lives when we least expect it.

Father Robert McCarthy is a middle-aged priest who is suddenly and unexpectedly confronted with his secret past. How he deals with the revelation of that past with his family, his congregation and the impacts of that secret life is inspirational. How McCarthy discloses the news of his college indiscretion requires him to take everyone involved on a journey of confession. That journey forces him to deal with issues of homosexuality, judgementalism, divorce and pride.

His pastoring skills and the depth of support from his wife help him bring forgiveness and restoration to many broken relationships.

The bonds of three families are ultimately restored through celebrations of life experiences including fishing, holiday gatherings, the discovery of unknown family connections and a wedding.

Bill's Book is available online through Amazon.com, BarnesandNoble.com and Apple iBook. The paperback is $16.99 and the ebook is $8.99. What to know about health Insurance after turning 65

SUBMITTED BY MEGAN CAMPBELL, RAFFETTO HERMAN STRATEGIC COMMUNICATIONS

Medicare health insurance plans are now open for enrollment for the 1.4 million Medicare beneficiaries in Washington. Deciding what type of Medicare plan is best for you can be a confusing task when not informed of all the important coverage details. Learn more about the different Medicare options available for folks 65 and over in these guidelines.

Different types of Medicare plans

Original Medicare

What does it cover? Original Medicare (OM) is available to most individuals over the age of 65, and those who are under 65 with certain disabilities. It does not include supplemental benefits like dental coverage or gym membership.

This plan is offered in three parts:

Part A, or hospital insurance, covers various kinds of inpatient medical care

Part B, or medical insurance, covers medically necessary and preventive medical care.

Part D insurance covers prescription drugs.

The three parts must be bought individually and are billed separately. OM does not have an out-of-pocket maximum, which means there is no limit to how much an individual could pay in medical expenses.

Who should get it?

People who are comfortable with an out-of-pocket maximum and want to shop for individual areas of health coverage such as dental, vision, and medication.

Medicare Advantage

What does it cover? Medicare Advantage (MA) performs similarly to the Original Medicare plan; however, it has enhanced benefits, a single-member card, monthly premium, and an out-of-pocket maximum to ensure a yearly cap. Unlike the OM plan, MA is not divided into separate pieces.

This plan covers parts A and B of the Original Medicare plan in addition to:

- Prescription drug coverage
- Vision care
- Preventive and comprehensive dental coverage
- Enhanced benefits like fitness resources, meals delivered after hospital stays, rides to medical appointments, and more

Who should get it? MA is available to anyone who qualifies for Original Medicare. Depending on income and health status, MA plans can be more cost-effective while covering a larger array of services.

Supplemental Plans, aka Medigap

What does it cover? Medigap is an optional supplement to OM. Individuals who have Medicare parts A and B can purchase this plan. Medigap covers instances that OM doesn't, such as medical coverage outside of the United States.

Who should get it? Those who have OM and want assistance paying for health care costs that it does not cover.

Zero Cost Plans

What does it cover? This is a type of MA plan that has a monthly premium of $0. The coverage depends on the type of plan that the individual has. At Community Health Plan of Washington, the zero-cost plans of 2022 are Dual Plan, No Rx Plan, and Plan 1.

Who should get it? For an individual who does not get sick often, but still wants some type of coverage this could be a plan for you.
