Chelan County Sheriff, deputies host National Night Out

Children gather around to visit, eat and play with the Chelan County Sheriffs, and deputies at the park during the yearly event.

CASHMERE – The blare of sirens. The flashing of red and white lights. The uniform.

These symbols of law enforcement cause various reactions among the public. Often, people live in a headline world concerning the police. Reactions and stereotypes can dominate. Yet while no entity is beyond reproach, officers local and nationwide want to remind the people they serve that everyone is on the same side.

scale effort to build relationships between law enforcement and citizens. The movement was founded in August of 1984 by a police officer in the western suburbs of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Locally, the COVID-19 pandemic has canceled the gathering but it's back on this year and other communities in the area hosted the events. National Night Out activities include demonstrations, cookouts, youth events and more, all aimed to break down the wall between the two parties.

"There used to be old-school beat

Chelan County while the rest live in Douglas County. He feels this is an important factor in serving the area.

'That's what's great about being in a community like this that's small, is you've got people that live in these areas, and they're recognized pretty easily," Hunter said.

Adam Musgrove is the Chief of Patrol for Chelan County Sheriff's Office. He acknowledged that across the U.S., anti-police sentiment and public hostility has grown especially in recent years . Yet largely in North Central Washington, he and his Ballard Ambulance who Musgrove described as our "first responder family."

The event had a relaxed feel to it, especially toward the end as officers played a game of catch with the kids. Local sponsors donated many items to be raffled off for the children.

In previous years, the local National Night Out for Chelan County was held primarily in Wenatchee. This summer. Cashmere hosted the event to give a smaller town the chance to mingle with law enforcement. Musgrove floated the possibility of other more intimate communities like Leavenworth or Chelan as potential locations in the coming years. Wherever the National Night Out goes, he hopes that people understand that the police exist for them. "It's our opportunity to relate to the community and just show them that there's more to us than just showing up to bad scenes and what not," Musgrove said. "My favorite part of my job is meeting the community. It's the part of the job that we don't get to see a lot of on their good days, so we get to get out here and communicate on a good day where everybody's happy and smiling, that's probably the best part of our job."

Community Foundation of NCW awards $402,000 in grants to NCW Nonprofits

SUBMITTED BY JENNIFER DOLGE

The Community Foundation of NCW has awarded $402,000 in Regional Impact Grants (RIG) to nonprofits addressing community needs and enhancing the quality of life in Chelan, Douglas, and Okanogan counties

 $The RIG provided \, core operating \, and \,$ project-specific support on a quarterly basis (from July 2021 to June 2022) for nonprofits through two funding levels ($4,000 or $10,000) depending on the size of the organization and the scope of their project or request. There were 55 grants awarded to organizations improving NCW communities through vital health and human services, affordable housing, environmental stewardship, youth and elder support, and enriching arts and cultural experiences.

Throughout the year, the Foundation received more grant requests than funding available - but, through the Partners in Giving fund, $40,000 in additional grants were able to be awarded.

"Our Partners in Giving provide unrestricted gifts to the Foundation that allow the Board of Trustees additional resources to support grants, scholarships or leverage timesensitive opportunities" said Beth Stipe, the Foundation's executive director. "Those flexible dollars allow us to make a greater impact in our region, and we are incredibly grateful for those donors that entrust us to make good use of their generous gifts."

This year, the RIG is returning to an annual cycle opening August 1 and due September 15th. While the application process remains unchanged, the maximum funding request will be based on an organization's budget size in effort to award a balanced number of grants with the funding available.

"We're continually working to improve our grantmaking program to make the greatest impact in the

"We're trying to get out there so hopefully people can see us in hopefully a non-threatening environment," said Nigel Hunter, Sheriff's Deputy for Chelan County. "In our view it makes us do the job better because we actually really want to see a positive outcome as opposed to just being mercenaries hired to come in and serve a public that may or may not connect with them.'

Hunter was one of several law enforcement members present for a local celebration of National Night Out, on August 2 at Cashmere Riverside Park. Held across all 50 states, U.S. territories military bases worldwide on the first Tuesday of August, National Night Out is a large-cops walking around seeing people and that's kind of gone by the wayside," Hunter said. "Especially in this area with vehicles and being so rural and spread out, so this is a good opportunity for us to be present, get all the toys out, let everybody see where the taxpayer dollars are going, what we utilize them for, engage with people and just give them an update on stuff."

At the Riverside Park event, barbecue smoke wafted through the crowd as country music blared on a sunny summer's evening while participants enjoyed shaved ice.

Many officers connected with people whom they've known for years. Hunter estimated that about 80 percent of his department lives in officers have a different experience.

"We feel very supported by our community out here," he said. "And I know that not everybody feels that around, so we're very lucky to live in the community that we do and it's our opportunity to give back and kind of show you what it's like to work in our profession."

Besides real-life police officers to talk to, the public had a chance to see many of the vehicles of the trade. Included among those was a bulky SWAT Team MRAP (mine-resistant ambush protection) vehicle that kids found particularly fascinating. Other sights included a K-9-unit, fire truck and patrol cars from Cashmere, a helicopter and a Zodiac boat. Also at Riverside Park were members from

Lactose Intolerant

Q: My stomach gets upset after I eat meals, sometimes with cramping and diarrhea. When I stopped drinking milk and eating dairy products, I got better. I've drank milk all my life without any problems. What's going on?

Dairy products like milk, ice cream, yogurt, and cheese contain lactose or milk sugar. To digest lactose, we need the help of a particular enzyme called lactase. Without the help of lactase in your small intestine, milk sugar will create gas. This triggers abdominal pain, flatulence, and diarrhea.

When we are very young, our bodies make plenty of lactase. The ability to produce lactase starts decreasing after the age of 5. With less and less lactase enzyme available, at some point, you can lose the ability to digest lactose. This results in stomach distress and diarrhea whenever you eat dairy products.

Not everyone loses the ability to make lactase as they mature. In genetic populations with domesticated cows and other milk-producing animals, adults who regularly consume milk products generate enough lactase to digest the lactose they get in their diet.

Interestingly, it's estimated that only 7 to 20% of Caucasian adults are lactase deficient. In comparison, nearly 90% of adults in Native American and some Asian populations have lactase deficiency. Within other genetic groups, lactase deficiency is estimated to affect 65 to 75% of African American adults and 50% of adult Hispanics.

If you suspect you are lactose intolerant, what can you do?

Many people with a lactase deficiency can tolerate foods containing lactose as long as they avoid getting too much at a time. For best results, reduce the serving size of dairy products and space them out throughout the day.

Foods with the highest lactose concentrations include milk, ice cream, flavored commercial yogurts, and cottage cheese. A one-cup serving of cow milk contains between 9-14 grams of lactose. Goat milk has a similar amount of lactose, about 11-12 grams. A one-half cup serving of cottage cheese contains less than half of the lactose in a cup of milk. Other cheeses contain much less lactose, with barely 1 gram per serving.

Live-culture yogurt without additives is well tolerated by most lactose deficient people because it naturally contains lactase. In contrast, many commercial low-fat yogurts contain more lactose per serving than a glass of milk.

Lactose is also used in the pharmaceutical and supplement industry as an inert powder to add volume to medicines and supplements. Many supplement capsules contain about 400 mg of lactose, the amount found in 2 teaspoonfuls of milk. Most lactose intolerant people can tolerate up to 12 grams of lactose if it's distributed throughout the day, so the amount of lactose within a capsule is unlikely to cause problems.

Commercial lactase enzyme supplements from bacteria or yeast can help you digest dairy products. One popular lactase supplement is Lact-Aid[®]. It is available as tablets to be taken at meals, drops you can add to milk, and milk with lactase. Most groceries offer lactase-supplemented milk as non-fat, skim, 2%, and whole milk. In addition to the extra lactase enzyme, Lact-Aid® milk has less than onethird of the lactose of standard milk.

have Suppose you decreased your lactose intake and are taking an enzyme replacement but don't notice an improvement in your intestinal distress. This suggests that your issue might not be lactose deficiency after all.

At least two studies have reported finding normal lactase levels in people experiencing severe intestinal upset after drinking milk. Instead of lactase deficiency, you could have trouble digesting other types of carbohydrates like fructose or sorbitol. Another possibility is developing a sensitivity to the protein found in milk. Switching to goat milk or cheeses could help if you react to cow-sourced milk.

Here are 5 Tips on Dealing with Intolerance to Dairy Products:

1. Choose dairy with less lactose.

Minimize your intake of cow or goat milk. Except for cottage cheese, most cheeses have far less lactose than milk or commercial yogurts.

2. Spread your lactose intake over the day.

Avoid more than one serving of dairy at a time. 3 Try a lactase supplement.

Lact-Aid® is available as drops or tablets. You can take supplemental lactase at any meal containing dairy products or add the drops directly to your milk.

Drink lactase-4. supplemented milk.

Warning: don't confuse acidophilus milk with lactase-supplemented milk. Acidophilus milk has no added lactase and contains the same amount of lactose as standard milk.

5. Try a dairy substitute. Plant-based lactose-free milk-like product options include soy, almond, hazelnut, coconut, and other nuts.

Do you see God?

WITH

"The heavens declare the glory of God and the sky above proclaim his handiwork." (Psalm 19:1).

Recently, images from the James Webb telescope have been retrieved, which are extraordinary. Pictures of magnificent star clusters, brilliant spiral galaxies, and scenes from the outer reaches of known space are so surreal that they make us all pause and wonder about the cosmos above us. When I saw the images, I couldn't help but think that it must be hard to be an Atheist. With all of creation testifying about the existence of God, and now, with pictures from the James Webb telescope, to desperately cling to Atheism seems to be an incredible leap of faith beyond reason. As C.H. Spurgeon once said, "Atheism is a strange thing. Even the devils never fell into that vice, for the devils believe and tremble."

Yet, Atheism claims to be backed by science. There is not enough evidence to prove that God exists. The Atheist asserts that the Bible, ancient and full of miraculous stories, is a book written by people who didn't have Darwin to explain the theory of evolution, nor did they have the modern discoveries of microbiology. Therefore, the Bible cannot be trusted, and Christians who hold to a biblical view of Creationism reject the scientific evidence before them. However, it is the exact opposite. The Atheist is a rejector of proof, not the Christian. If we were to read further in Psalm 19, we would read this, "Day after day they

[the heavens and sky] pour forth speech; night after night they display knowledge." (Psalm 19:2). Here, creation is thundering about reality all around and there, the Atheist has their fingers in their eyes and their eyes closed, saying over A WALK and over, "I am not listening!' PASTOR The lack of evidence JOHN is not the Atheist's problem. The problem is the will. The Atheist will not acknowledge the evidence and submit to it as fact. Why would a belief system that prides itself on its pursuit of knowledge and evidence reject the copious amount of it in front of them? The answer is they are in love with their sin. Romans 1:18-19 says, "... by their unrighteousness suppress the truth. For what can be known about God is plain to them because God has shown them.'

In the verse quoted above, this concept of suppression is active, volitional, and requires an incredible amount of effort. Think of a beach ball floating in a pool. To keep that inflated ball underwater, you must hold it down. The deeper it goes into the water, the more exertion you need to keep it submerged. Furthermore, the ball is constantly moving, attempting to surface, so you must be actively pressing against it at all times. The knowledge of God is the same way, it is popping up everywhere, and because people are in their sin, they intentionally suppress that knowledge lest they have to deal with the reality. However, the more they suppress, the more the knowledge of God surfaces and the more frustrated they become. This may be anecdotal, but I have never met an Atheist full of joy or peace; instead, they are full of cynicism and have a caustic personality.

For an Atheist to acknowledge God's existence, they have to recognize everything that comes with it. With God comes the knowledge of man, sin, and redemption. Moreover, to acknowledge God is also to recognize that there is an authority over us and that all of us will be held accountable. Since God exists and He is the Creator, all of us will have to answer to Him regardless of whether we believe in Him or not.

The images from the James Webb telescope are but another example of the reality of God. Only God can paint such vivid displays of colors, lights, nebulas, and swirling galaxies. Only God could reveal Himself in such a powerful way to the naked eye.

God is real, and all one needs to do is to open their eyes and see Him.

Deer at the Zumwalt Prairie Preserve

Wallowa County Fun

By John Kruse

Bordering Washington and Idaho, Northeast Oregon's Wallowa County offers all sorts of outdoors fun. I visited there this week and had a fulfilling day and a half of outdoor recreation. I started off visiting with Brad Snook at the Sports

After dinner in town, I drove some 30 miles to the Zumwalt Prairie Preserve. Managed by the Nature Conservancy, this 33,000-acre property is known for the native prairie grasses as well as wildlife that live here. In addition to deer and elk, there are also coyotes, badgers and other animals along with a wide variety of bird species. I enjoyed a serene hike amongst the prairie grass, not hearing any man-made sound at all, just crickets and a gentle breeze blowing through the bunchgrass. As for the wildlife, they didn't come out until sunset but when they did, I got to see deer and a small group of elk to include a spike bull that was only a hundred yards away. After a restful night's sleep, I went on a pleasant hike at the State Heritage Site just south of town. The trail meandered through a meadow and around a scenic pond with the Wallowa Mountains serving as a backdrop. After eating fresh fruit and a flank steak breakfast burrito at the Kokanee Inn it was off to the Wallowa Lake Tramway to meet with the General Manager and co-owner, Mike Lockhart. The two of us entered an enclosed gondola car and traveled close to two miles over 15 minutes, gaining 3700 feet in elevation until we reached the top of 8200-foottall Mount Howard. We took a seat at The Summit Grill, which Mike says is the highest elevation café in the Northwest next to the tramway. It's an open-air restaurant styled after European cafés in the Alps and the offerings off the menu are surprisingly affordable. The two of us chatted about the many upgrades made to the Tramway in recent years and how popular this tramway is, with some 30,000 visitors a year. The reason for the popularity, besides the unique way to get to the summit, becomes obvious upon your arrival. On a clear day you can see well into the three states of Oregon, Idaho, and Washington, enjoying views of Wallowa Lake below and the magnificent Wallowa Mountains and Eagle Cap Wilderness to the south and west. A well maintained 2.5-mile-long trail system with interpretive signage looping around the summit allows you to enjoy the views from different viewpoints. It's definitely a bucket list experience! You can find out more details about the tramway at www. wallowalaketramway.com. As for where to stay, I would highly recommend the Kokanee Inn. Located on Main Street in Joseph, the wellappointed inn has eight rooms and lots of sitting and dining areas both indoors and outside. The breakfasts are amazing. the beds are comfortable, and the amenities include the free use of a cruiser bike for guests to cycle around town or down to the lake. The owners have lots of knowledge about where to bicycle and hike and will help you find the perfect outing. In addition to this great bed & breakfast, there are a number of other lodging and camping options in the area to include the very popular Wallowa Lake State Park. Find out more details at www. wallowacountychamber.com and www.kokaneeinn.com.

Corral in Joseph to get a fishing report for Wallowa Lake, a beautiful body of water that sits in a glacial moraine.

Snook reported the trout fishing was going well. Rainbow trout are stocked on a regular basis and anglers were catching a good number of 12 to 13-inch trout along with the occasional 17 to 19-inch fish. Wallowa Lake is also a well-known kokanee salmon fishery. In fact, the world record kokanee, a 9.67pound land-locked salmon, was caught here in 2010. Not long after that the population of large kokanee crashed, replaced by a huge number of small fish. Over time though, the kokanee have been getting bigger and Snook reported that a seven-pound salmon had been caught earlier this year. Snook cautioned August is generally a tough month to fish for kokanee but the fact that there are a few giants swimming in the water bodes well for another potential record fish in the future.

I also spoke with Rob Lamb at the Joseph Fly Shoppe. He confirmed Snook's reports about the trout fishing at Wallowa Lake and said dry fly anglers were having some magnificent days, catching and releasing up to 30 trout per outing, at the south end of the lake where the Wallowa River flows in.

Accident Report

SUBMITTED BY SHERIFF DEPT.

Sheriff Burnett reports that on July 30, a 60-year-old Walla Walla, WA. man drowned in the Wenatchee River. A group of approximately 6 friends and family were floating the Wenatchee River near Dryden, WA. As the group approached the rapids known as "Rock and Roll", the man was flipped from his tube and began struggling to get to shore. The group encountered a second set of rapids and most of the party was separated by this time. One of the relatives located the man floating face down in the water. He was dragged to shore and out of the water. A commercial raft was floating by and helped load the man onto the raft and ferried him to EMS on the opposite shore. After approximately an hour of CPR, he was pronounced dead. The group was not wearing life jackets and were not familiar with the river. All bodies of water in Chelan County and around the state are flowing at a higher level than usual due to the late summer heat. Recreationalist should be aware that the waters are colder and more swift than usual. Please remember to wear a life jacket, scout the entire section of river vou plan to float for hazards, and know where to take out.
