Cashmere City Council Elections

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

The City of Cashmere is having their own city council election. With General Election day on Nov. 2, make sure to read up on your local candidates to vote accordingly.

CITY OF CASHMERE Council Member Position #1 Lacey Price

“The secret’s out, when it comes to Cashmere: it’s an amazing place to live and everybody’s figuring that out,” Lacey Price confessed, who is running for Cashmere City Council position #1. Lacey Price is currently the Managing Director for Stage Kids along with formerly serving on the Peshastin Community Council, the Upper Valley Parks and Rec Board, and a background in non-profit management. “Understanding how good governance works is to me a really important part of a well-functioning council,” Price said.

She is one of the few citizens regularly attending city council meetings and has remarked on their efficiency regarding the Cashmere city pool closure but hopes that it can be financially maintained.

Price states that the pool loses quite a bit of money. “There’s a lot of opportunity to ensure that that’s an asset that we don’t lose in the future,” Price states.

Other issues that she sees the council deal with include land use and transportation planning.

“Again, as we grow you just have to be really thoughtful about how that development happens and I think that’s going to be the trickiest part or the most challenging and interesting part,” Price said. “At least for the three years to come the next term of councilmembers is transportation and land use.”

Price believes that her municipal experience along with her strengths in listening, facilitating communication, and creative problem-solving make her a strong contender for Cashmere City Council.

“I think that’s how the world is supposed to work, I think that organizations and institutions do their best work when there’s good communication, even if you have to talk about hard things, you can do that in a civil way.”

Price hopes to direct Cashmere’s growth in a wise and sustainable manner and looks forward to Cashmere becoming more civically engaged in the near future.

John Perry

John Perry is a proud stay-at-home father of three. Aside from managing rental units and his involvement with Cashmere’s Tree Committee, Perry hopes to bring a fatherly perspective to the Cashmere City Council as he runs for position #1.

Perry notes his deep love and appreciation for Cashmere, the town that he grew up in and hopes to raise his children in.

“Just want to ensure that Cashmere remains a wonderful place for families,” Perry states. “Clean, quiet, safe and caring.”

His areas of interests are to make sure that the city continues to be productive.

“Looking at the city’s assets and seeing where we can improve efficiency or consolidate those assets, maybe surpassing some facilities that I think can improve efficiency for the city and provide some other opportunities for citizens.”

He is also excited for the possible development of Cashmere’s old lagoons and looks forward to the fruit that it bears in the future.

Perry states that the strengths he can provide for the board is loyalty, dependability, and a commitment to responsible leadership.

Moscoso runs for Cashmere School Director position #4

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

This week, we get to hear from Roger Perleberg’s opponent Les Moscoso. He works as a Leavenworth forest ranger in the Wenatchee River Ranger District and is running for the Cashmere School District Director position #4.

Moscoso’s motivation for running for school board is to be better engaged with the Cashmere community and to be further involved in his son’s education at Vale Elementary.

“I want to hear from folks, want to hear from the community, want to hear from the district,” Moscoso stated. “I would like to be a conduit for the community really.”

He hopes to bring a fresh perspective to the Cashmere school board and to consider things that may not have been brought up before and to learn something new.

“Being someone of the mind to find solutions instead of differences are important,” Moscoso said. “Trying to find where we can agree on things and moving forward as opposed to one way or the other way, or my way or the highway kind of attitude.”

He believes that his experience in the recreation program area for the forest service has equipped him with enough managerial experience and budget management to prepare him for the role. He notes how he has been previously given tight budgets and experience making tough decisions on what could get done based on the budget he was given.

He notes some of his volunteering experience throughout the years.

“Volunteerism is important to me and I’ve done it with various organizations such as Watch D.O.G.S. (Dads of Great Students), at Vale Elementary; Cashmere Youth Soccer League coach; SMART (Start Making A Reader Today) an Oregon program to assist elementary students with their reading skills and mentorship; Hospice of Bend providing in-home care and support to families; Veterinary Clinic Assistant providing support to both the veterinary doctor and technicians during patient visits and to the animals in the clinic.”

He supports the mask mandate within schools and will support whatever the state recommends the school board do regarding COVID-19 and agrees with the science behind masks usage.

“I just don’t think the risks outweigh not having a mask on,” Moscoso said.

He hopes to build on the strong foundation that Cashmere High School currently has and hopes to bring people in to work on common goals and interests.

AWB visits Liberty Orchard during Manufacturing Tour

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

With scents of fruit and sugar in the air, Cashmere Mayor Jim Fletcher and State Representative Mike Steele welcomed the Association of Washington Business (AWB) team at the Liberty Orchards factory.

As the AWB team meandered their way around the Liberty Orchards factory and rifles through the stacked Aplets and Cotlets boxes, they discover the hidden beauty of Cashmere that locals have known for years.

President and CEO of AWB, Kris Johnson notes his own pride for the Liberty Orchards operation and their longstanding mark on North Central Washington.

“Aplets and Cotlets are kind of a signature brand and product up in our state,” Johnson stated. “When I go to out-of-state conferences, they are often one of the things I’m taking with me.”

The purpose of AWB’s manufacturing tour has been to promote the growing potential within manufacturing jobs across Washington State. Johnson notes his own observations on Chelan County’s manufacturing sector.

Over 142 manufacturing companies are housed within Chelan County, employing less than 2,000 jobs with an average wage of $44.6k.

“That can buy a young person a really nice home in places like Wenatchee and Spokane and Tricities, it’s a great family wage.”

Their hope for North Central Washington is for more progressive infrastructure on the recently passed Washington BEST Manufacturing Act (which calls for doubling the number of manufacturing jobs over the next decade including firms owned by women and people of color) goes into effect.

“Think about the increased number of homes you have built, the number of schools you have to have ready, think about healthcare that needs to be in there, think about all of the different elements that make up a community that has to be ready to go through that process as you double,” Johnson proclaimed.

The second focus in AWB’s manufacturing tour is to promote STEM-focused careers and technical trades with students. Before they came to Liberty Orchards, they visited Wenatchee Valley College to connect more students with the manufacturing industry.

“For our state, but really important for the Wenatchee region, we are the most trade-driven state of the 50 states,” Johnson said. “So think about all the products we manufacture or produce, many of them are exported to other states or to other countries all across the globe.”

What truly grabbed the organization’s attention was the unexpected growth that rural areas have been receiving throughout the pandemic.

“If you look at the census data that just recently came out, the average state lost .2% population in rural areas. We grew it 8.5% in our rural areas,” Johnson beamed. “So we know that our rural areas play an important part of the workforce solution going forward.”

At the end of the tour, Johnson was seen talking to Mayor Jim Fletcher as the rest of his team were buying some goodies from the Aplets and Cotlets selection as they prepare for another stop in their tour.

The Cashmere High cross country team competed at the Liberty Bell Invitational on Saturday October 9. The race was a three mile course that circled the campus of the Liberty Bell schools in Winthrop. It was a two lap course but each lap was slightly different from the other. The course was grass fields and dirt trails. The weather was dry but temperatures were cool.

The meet was not a big invitational but the host school, a 2B size school, provided a lot of competition for the other teams.

Event Update from Chamber President

Since the beginning of the Covid-19 pandemic community organizations have been struggling to find ways to continue activities and events. One event that has been impacted greatly is the Cashmere Chamber of Commerce Annual Auction and Recognition Dinner. At this time, the Chamber would like to recognize our 2019 and 2020 honorees and share an update concerning the Auction and Recognition Dinner.

The Chamber Auction will be held on April 22, 2022 at the Chelan County Expo Center in Cashmere. We will be recognizing honorees from both 2019 and 2020 and hosting our annual Auction fundraiser. Covid has impacted many events and we are very excited to be able to get the Auction back on the calendar this upcoming spring. Each year, the Chamber recognizes those that have dedicated time and support to our community. This year, we've highlighted all 2020 nominees weekly in the Cashmere Valley Record for their efforts in supporting Cashmere. Nominations were open in January and collected in February, a review committee convened and made the final selection in early February. We're pleased to announce the nominee winners!

Loves Me Flowers Business of the Year

Karen Bray Citizen of the Year

In addition to our 2020 recipients we look forward to celebrating the 2019 recipients. In 2019, Milepost Brewing (Business of the Year) - Photo 1, the Wacoca Kiwanis Club (Organization of the Year) - Photo 2, and Florence Robinson (Citizen of the Year) - Photo 3, were announced as honorees for contributions above and beyond expectations.

Several businesses, organizations, and citizens were nominated but these recipients emerged as exceptional supporters. Thank you to all and congratulations for your invaluable contributions to our community. The Chamber will be recognizing these honorees again in 2022. Q: I'm starting radiation soon for breast cancer. How can I help keep the treatments from burning my skin?

During radiation treatments for cancer, nearly 8 out of 10 people will develop some form of skin irritation called "radiation dermatitis." Radiation often creates redness and warmth to the area, much like having a mild rash. Your skin may become more sensitive to touch and feel "tight." Continued radiation treatments can create dryness and itching and cause skin to peel, exposing raw red patches that may ooze clear fluid.

Skin damage from radiation is more likely if another skin surface rubs up against the skin being treated, like under your armpits or breasts.

People who are smokers, have diabetes, or had a previous surgical procedure in the treated area are much more likely to develop radiation dermatitis.

Post-radiation skin irritation tends to peak about a week after treatment. The higher the number of radiation sessions, the greater your risk of skin inflammation. To reduce your risk of developing radiation dermatitis, treat your skin with extra care. It's essential to avoid rubbing or scratching the area being radiated. Drinking plenty of water and applying moisturizing cream to the area faithfully can also help keep your skin from blistering or peeling.

It's okay to wash your radiated skin with soap. Washing gently with mild soap and water has been shown to cause less skin reaction than just rinsing with water. Most patients starting radiation treatment are advised to use a "mild, non-alkaline soap, preferably unscented."

Very little guidance exists on which soaps are best to use when undergoing radiation. There's no clear evidence that any specific soap is superior. Mild soaps like Dove®, Ivory®, or Neutrogena® are considered safe, while highly scented soaps such as Coast® and Irish Spring® should be avoided.

You can safely wear deodorant or antiperspirant during treatment unless the skin of your armpit develops a cut, scratch, or blister.

Applying a moisturizer after radiation sessions is one of the best ways to protect your skin from dryness, irritation, and skin breakdown.

Your skin consists of layers of flat cells that form a flexible, self-renewing barrier, protecting you from exposure to infection and toxins. Although your skin cells start out nice and plump, as they get closer to the surface, they gradually dry out, creating thin, overlapping layers that are water-resistant. As the top layer of flattened skin cells rubs or flakes off, it is replaced by the cells underneath.

Ceramide molecules support the barrier function of healthy skin. A lower level of ceramide is found in dry, damaged skin than in healthy skin. Applying ceramide-rich creams can help heal skin damage. Lotions and creams containing these vitaly important compounds can restore skin integrity faster than creams containing only traditional moisturizing agents.

CeraVe® Moisturizing Cream has 3 essential ceramides. Last year, I compared it to my previous favorite, Arbdoudn's Abundantly Herbal Calendula Cream, because I wanted to determine if the claims about ceramides were accurate. My skin absorbed CeraVe® quickly, it didn't feel greasy, and my skin felt smoother for hours.

Calendula is a natural source of soothing relief from skin irritation. Arbdoudn's Abundantly Herbal Calendula Cream® containing olive oil, calendula, and lavender also works well to protect your skin from radiation damage. Unlike CeraVe®, Arbdoudn's takes time to become completely absorbed. I always let it soak into my skin for about 5 minutes before putting on clothes, so the fabric doesn't stick to it.

You can also apply pure Aloe Vera juice directly to your skin for protection. After each radiation session, my stepmother, Joyce, applied Trader Joe's Aloe Vera Juice straight from the bottle, and didn't develop any burns.

Here Are 5 Tips to Help Protect Your Skin During Radiation Treatment:

- 1. Don't rub or scratch the treated area. Itching causes the urge to scratch, even when you sleep. Keeping your fingernails cut short and wearing cotton gloves or socks over your hands at night helps protect your skin.

- 2. Avoid hot water and strong soaps. Use lukewarm water and mild soaps when washing or bathing.
- 3. Be gentle. When bathing, avoid harsh scrubbing tools like exfoliating cloths, rough washcloths, or loofahs.
- 4. Keep yourself hydrated. Irritated skin loses water more quickly, making it feel dry and itchy. Drinking plenty of water helps keep your skin well hydrated.
- 5. Apply a soothing cream. Support the barrier function of your skin by protecting it after each radiation treatment. Moisturizing creams containing either ceramide (CeraVe®, Curel®) or calendula can help you avoid radiation dermatitis.

Obituaries are priced by the number of words and include one color photo and go online at no extra charge. Memorials are priced per column inch. Bryan Bremer shares his excitement for Pear Bowl Game

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

Cashmere go head to head to decide who is the strongest team. Cashmere Coach Bryan Bremer shares some of his

Get ready to rumble on October 15, as Cascade and thoughts on the upcoming Pear Bowl game.

"Every time we get to this point of year playing the Pear Bowl, I always feel so blessed to be part of it," Bremer remarked. "Just a rich tradition that our guys don't look past and that I don't look past, and are just excited about it."

In the past couple of games, Cashmere's Football team has been dominating the league with a 4-1 score (one loss stemming from Okanogan), beating La Salle, Goldendale, and Granite Falls.

"We don't necessarily worry about our opponent, we worry about ourselves about getting our team ready to play," Bremer explained in regards to Cashmere's training strategy.

He has also coined the acronym F.A.M.I.L.L.Y., which stands for "Forget About Me I Love You."

"I truly believe that a team that's together and a team that loves each other and a team that plays for one another and not the hatred of an opponent, or for a trophy, or for a League Championship, or it might be a team that plays together is more likely to be victorious in the end of it," Bremer explained.

Cashmere has a young football team this year, with most of last year's team containing seniors who have since graduated. Only two current players played in the Pear Bowl last spring, who are also Bremer's standout players. This includes Cole Scott, starting for the third year in a row playing both offense and defense, and Jack Croci, playing receiver and defensive back.

"[Cole] will stand out because he's one of the biggest guys on the field, [not] just in stature but also in play. He's a really good player for us," Bremer stated.

Bremer thinks that both teams are well coached and well disciplined and has respect for Cascade's coach Dominique Coffin and his team.

The proximity of both schools have amplified the excitement for this game, posing the two teams neck and neck, and stands split between Cascade and Cashmere fans.

"It's such a neat atmosphere and environment because it means so much to both schools and the communities and teams," Bremer states. "Whether it's home or away, and you're always having this kind of game scheduled in the back of your mind to make sure your team is prepared for this one."

The Pear Bowl game will be held in Peshastin at Cascade's District Athletic field at approximately 7 p.m.

Cascade Coach Dominique Coffin shares his thoughts on upcoming Pear Bowl Game

BY: MEGAN SOKOL

Get ready for the Pear Bowl Game on October 15, where long-time rivals Cascade and Cashmere go head to head to see who is the strongest team in the valley. Cascade Coach Dominique Coffin shares how he is preparing for the upcoming game.

"We're kind of taking everything week by week," Coach Coffin explained. "We've had a little bit of a slow start for us but we've gotten a lot better every single week, just a lot of self-reflection and figuring out what we need to do."

Coffin wants to keep a positive mindset for the team as they steadily redeem themselves from their 1-3 score this past season.

"It's been our main message for the kids all year, it comes down to us and really trying to focus on us and not necessarily on all the strengths of the other, but what our strengths are and how we can improve them," Coffin said.

Coach Coffin notes that their defensive line is their strongest asset this year. Coffin notes that some of his strongest offensive players are Braeden Parton, Kaston Dillon, Joseph Wall, and Kai Lewman, along with his strongest defensive player Jones

"Going to see a lot of excitement. It's always a hard-fought battle every single game and every year it's kinda different," Coach Coffin said. "Some years you're going to see a lot of defense, some years you see a lot of offense. I think this year it will probably be a good mix of both."

Coach Coffin explains the extreme jubilation that both Cashmere and Cascade communities get during Pear Bowl season.

"Every year the Pear Bowl is the big rivalry game. It's one of those things that our kids get really excited for, it's the cross-town rivals; there's a trophy on the line, it's bragging rights for a whole year."

Coach Coffin believes that the team's progress has led them the opportunity to battle against Cashmere and still leaves them opportunity to play in the playoffs.

"If we keep progressing like we've been, we're going to put ourselves in a good chance to win the game." He later states that it ultimately comes down to how the team can take care of themselves internally.

The Pear Bowl game will be held in Peshastin at the Cascade School District Athletic field at approximately 7 p.m.

Higher Gas Prices Cut Household Income by $120 Billion: Deutsche Bank

EMEL AKAN

Retail gasoline prices have risen by a dollar over the past 12 months as the economy began to reopen, increasing the demand for fuel. Higher gas prices are now crimping consumer budgets and putting a brake on household spending on non-energy items, according to analysts.

Prices at the pump have soared to $3.20 per gallon for regular gasoline as of Oct. 5, which is slightly more than a dollar higher than they were in October 2020.

“Historically, there is a tight relationship between changes in retail gas prices and consumer spending on energy goods and services,” Deutsche Bank analysts wrote in a recent report.

This relationship suggests that a 1 cent rise in gas prices increases spending on energy and thus reduces income for non-energy-related goods and services by $1.18 billion.

“Based on this relationship, the 101 cents increase in gas prices from one year ago would be expected to lead to a reduction in income that can be spent on non-energy items of approximately $120 billion—assuming that pump prices remain near current levels over the next several months,” the report reads.

Oil prices hit a seven-year high on Oct. 4, after the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and Russia (OPEC-plus) said it would stick to its original plan and increase output modestly. The group ignored the pressures coming from the Biden administration and other oil-consuming nations and opted against boosting oil production.

In a statement, OPEC-plus “reconfirmed” its previous production plan to return its output to pre-pandemic levels, which was to increase oil production by 400,000 barrels per day in November.

West Texas Intermediate, the U.S. oil benchmark, rose by 2.3 percent following the announcement, reaching a seven-year high. Brent, the international gauge, also rose by 2.5 percent, settling at the highest level in three years.

“At first glance, the $120 billion hit to disposable income does not appear particularly concerning given very healthy household balance sheets,” the report reads.

U.S. consumers have healthy balance sheets, as they sit on $2.4 trillion in excess savings accumulated since the beginning of the pandemic, thanks to generous government stimulus.

“However, it is important to remember that most of the excess savings are largely concentrated amongst higher-earning households who had cut back on services expenditures,” the report reads.

Lower-income households have lower excess savings and more exposure to energy price changes, as they spend a larger share of their income on fuel and utilities, the analysts said.

Consumer spending, which accounts for more than two-thirds of U.S. economic activity, dropped by 0.1 percent in July, according to the revised data from the Commerce Department on Oct. 1.

The weak consumer spending in July led banks to revise their near-term projections for U.S. economic growth. JPMorgan is the latest bank to lower its estimate for the third quarter. The bank’s analysts now forecast 4.0 percent annualized real gross domestic product growth for the third quarter, instead of 5.0 percent.

The continued rise in gas prices is adding to inflationary pressures in the United States. Strong recovery in global demand and slow growth in supplies have been pushing crude oil prices higher in recent months.

Worried about this trend, the Biden administration has called on OPEC-plus to raise their oil output to support global recovery from the pandemic.

“While OPEC-plus recently agreed to production increases, these increases will not fully offset previous production cuts that OPEC-plus imposed during the pandemic until well into 2022,” national security adviser Jake Sullivan said in an Aug. 11 statement. “At a critical moment in the global recovery, this is simply not enough.”

The White House reacted to the recent announcement by OPEC-plus that it wouldn’t change its course on production.

“We’re going to continue to use every tool at our disposal to ensure we can keep gas prices down for the American public,” White House press secretary Jen Psaki said during an Oct. 4 press briefing.

Measures taken by the Biden administration in response to rising gas prices include addressing the shortage of truck drivers that cause fuel delivery disruptions and monitoring the U.S. gasoline market to prevent illegal activities that drive up gas prices.

Oil industry experts have been criticizing the Biden administration’s climate policies, claiming that these policies are discouraging domestic producers.

“I think the Biden administration’s been a major factor in driving prices,” Phil Flynn, senior energy analyst at Price Future Group, told The Epoch Times. “There’s been kind of a dearth of investment in fossil fuels. So that’s going to leave us undersupplied as we go forward.”

Supreme Court Upholds Constitutional Ban on DC Voting Rights

MATTHEW VADUM

District of Columbia residents aren’t entitled to voting representation in the U.S. House of Representatives, the Supreme Court ruled, affirming a lower court decision.

The ruling came after the House approved legislation in April to make D.C. the 51st state; the bill stalled in the Senate. Democrats support the measure, arguing that all U.S. citizens should be represented in Congress, while Republicans oppose it because they believe the framers of the Constitution didn’t want D.C. to become a state, and because the new state’s two senators would almost certainly be Democrats in the Democratic Party stronghold.

The case is Castañon v. United States, court file 20-1279. The ruling, which summarily affirmed a lower court decision, came on Oct. 4. There were no oral arguments.

In the brief unsigned order, Justices Clarence Thomas and Neil Gorsuch indicated they would dismiss the appeal for lack of jurisdiction. They didn’t elaborate.

In the order, the high court referenced Adams v. Clinton, a decision it handed down in 2000. In that previous decision, the court held the District of Columbia wasn’t a state and therefore wasn’t entitled to representation in Congress under Article I, section 8 of the Constitution.

Referring to the nation’s capital that at the time the Constitution was ratified in 1788 had yet to be created, that provision gave Congress the power “To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of Particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States.”

Although President Joe Biden supports D.C. statehood, his administration urged the Supreme Court “that the appeal be dismissed or, in the alternative, that the district court’s order be affirmed.”

The petitioners, a group of Washington residents led by Angelica Castañon, previously argued in their complaint before the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia that the continuing denial of the right to vote, which “is fundamental under our Constitution,” “violates the constitutional guarantees of equal protection, due process, and the constitutional right of association.”

In March 2020, a three-judge panel of the District Court ruled against the residents.

“We recognize that District residents’ lack of the congressional franchise is viewed by many, even most, as deeply unjust, and we have given each aspect of Plaintiffs’ claims most serious consideration, but our ruling today is compelled by precedent and by the Constitution itself,” the opinion stated.

However, Washington residents aren’t completely shut out of self-governance. There is an elected District Council that takes care of day-to-day local government matters, subject to the possibility of a joint resolution of disapproval being passed by both houses of Congress, something that rarely happens. The 23rd Amendment to the Constitution, ratified in 1961, gave the District three votes in the electoral college in presidential elections.

Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton (D-D.C.), who is a nonvoting member of the House, said she was “disappointed” by the Supreme Court ruling.

But she said in a statement that “the ruling has no bearing on the constitutionality of D.C. statehood, which would give D.C. residents voting representation in the House and Senate and full control over their local affairs. In fact, the three-judge panel expressly referred to statehood as a remedy for D.C. residents.”

“In 2016, D.C. residents voted overwhelmingly for statehood, and the House has passed my D.C. statehood bill twice since June 2020. We have record support for D.C. statehood in the Senate, and we have never been closer to statehood.”

US Deaths From CCP Virus in 2021 Surpass 2020 Total: Data

JACK PHILLIPS

More Americans have died so far in 2021 with COVID-19, the illness caused by the CCP virus, than in all of 2020, according to figures released by Johns Hopkins University.

As of Oct. 6, the United States has seen 353,000 deaths this year, the university said. That surpasses the death toll of 352,000 in the 10 months following the first outbreaks of the disease in March 2020. About 44 million cases have been reported across the United States, according to the university, although that figure doesn’t account for individuals who contracted the virus but never tested for it.

But cases, deaths, and hospitalizations have trended lower in recent days, according to data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The seven-day average for cases on Oct. 5 was about 97,000, whereas the seven-day average on Sept. 28 was about 110,000, the CDC’s daily tracker reports.

The World Health Organization (WHO) said on Oct. 6 that all regions on Earth except Europe reported a decline in the number of new CCP virus cases. The number of reported cases stands at 234 million since the start of the pandemic, compared to about 4.8 million deaths, the WHO said.

And more than half of the world has yet to receive at least one dose of a COVID-19 vaccine, according to Our World in Data.

Despite cases trending downward, municipalities and large corporations have continued to issue or propose vaccine mandates.

The Los Angeles City Council on Oct. 6 voted to approve an ordinance that requires numerous businesses to force customers to show proof they’re vaccinated for COVID-19—described as one of the strictest mandates in the United States.

Now, individuals attempting to enter indoor restaurants, movie theaters, salons, shopping centers, gyms, sports arenas, museums, spas, indoor government facilities, malls, restaurants, and bars will have to present proof of vaccination. Individuals with a medical or religious exemption will have to show a negative COVID-19 test within 72 hours.

Unvaccinated people attempting to use city government services will be provided with “alternative arrangements for access to government services,” including online or outdoor services, or providing proof of a negative test to enter, according to the ordinance.

Elsewhere, vaccine passport systems have been implemented in New York City, New Orleans, San Francisco, and West Hollywood, whereas entire countries such as France, Israel, and several others have mandated them for different activities.

The Delta variant is now the dominant strain around the globe and has been reported in 187 out of 194 World Health Organization member countries, the organization said last week.
