Cashmere School Board Election

FILE PHOTO.

By: ERIN MULLINS
Reporter

Three candidates are running for two open positions on the Cashmere School Board. Incumbent Roger Perleberg and Les Moscoso are running for District 4. District 4 starts at the intersection of NFDR and Mission Creek Rd. and extends all the way to Brender Canyon Rd. Paul Nelson is running unopposed for District 5. District 5 is an at-large position which represents the entire Cashmere area.

Perleberg is the long-standing incumbent with the school board. He has been a District #4 school board member since 1997. Perleberg said that the first time that he was a school board member was in 1985 but that he moved so he had to get reelected in a new district.

Perleberg is a former teacher, a veteran, former welder, and a Cashmere High School graduate. He taught in various high schools throughout the state before coming to Cashmere and operating a welding business for 27 years. His kids graduated from Cashmere High School.

One of the main priorities for Perleberg is to, "maintain the quality education that we provide for our students, and keep the community involved."

He is worried about politics and how it is affecting kids at the federal and local level. He wants kids to understand without being indoctrinated on one agenda or issue. He doesn't think that the curriculum in Cashmere is biased, but sees what is happening in current events.

"I believe in 100% transparency. And if it's not, we'll find out why," he said.

Perleberg is also against preferential treatment. He thinks that Cashmere is fair, but there are incidents that happen and if it is ever brought to his attention that people have been treated differently, he will work to make it right.

Perleberg said that he brings a ton of experience and integrity and feels that the community has gotten from him and given him the support. He says that he is running for the position not to be against his opponent, but simply to run for the position.

"I'm not a champion, I'm not a politician. I'm just a person that's doing some community service," he said.

Perleberg has put in thousands of hours helping out the schools however he can, but he finds it fulfilling. When it comes to education, he believes in a quality education but not an extravagant one. He thinks that people should get to the root of the problem and make it right.

A new candidate is in the arena against Perleberg. Moscoso works for the Wenatchee Ranger District in Leavenworth as the District Recreation Program Manager. He moved to Cashmere three years ago in part because he heard that Cashmere has such a great school district.

Moscoso has a son in fourth grade at Vale Elementary and volunteered for the school pre-coronavirus. He has never run for school board but decided to run for the board because of his experience volunteering for the school.

Moscoso wants to be able to help the school during his kid's career at Cashmere. He has been attending school board meetings since last year. He has a lot of volunteer experience in the various places he has lived, from coaching soccer to volunteering at hospice reading programs.

Cashmere Schools are ranked well in the state, he said, and he wants to build on what's already in place and make it better. He is not sure yet what policies need to be put in place, but if he sees something he will voice his concerns.

At a recent school board meeting, an equity gap analysis was presented, Moscoso said, and that the board

Link Transit Completes Installation of 300 kW Wireless Inductive Bus Chargers

SUBMITTED BY ERIC WEST

LINK Transit

12 Years of Work on Battery Electric Buses Paying Off

Nearly 12 years after receiving its first Federal grant for the purchase of electric buses, Link Transit has completed the installation of three new Momentum Dynamics 300 kW in-ground inductive chargers to support their current fleet of 10 BYD K9S 35' battery electric coaches and our in-process 11 vehicle expansion. The addition of these wireless chargers to the Link Transit service will allow Link Transit to extend the range of its battery electric buses from their current 190-mile range to over 300 miles per day. (An existing 200 kW unit that has been in operation since March 2018 will be upgraded to the new technology this August). Prior to the use of wireless inductive charging, buses were slow charged overnight and able to operate only a partial day of service.

Link Transit operates 10 battery electric buses in daily service on the routes running in the Wenatchee and East Wenatchee area. These buses run 200+ miles each day, so having the ability to re-energize the batteries, while in service, throughout the day for 5 to 7 minutes at a time, keeps the batteries at optimal charge levels, and provides range over 300 miles. Two additional 30" BYD coaches will be added to the fleet later this summer, and three more in late 2022. This will allow all of Link's urban service to be operated by battery electric buses, as well as for some limited longer distance routes.

"We are beyond pleased with how this technology has been functioning for us", said Richard DeRock, Link's General Manager. "Reliability in varying weather and temperature conditions has been excellent, and we are confident that we can operate these vehicles with the consistency necessary to deliver a great service to the residents of our communities." Additionally, here in the Wenatchee area, due to our abundant carbon free hydro power, we have the additional benefit of delivering emission and carbon free transit that is less costly than operating current diesel-powered transit buses. DeRock added "This has been a long time coming, but we are finally there, thanks to the hard work of our staff, the support of our Board and the cooperation of our vendors in pushing this technology forward and finding solutions to problems."

An event to celebrate the culmination of Link's battery electric bus project and our Green Transportation Grant bus and car charger project will be held on Thursday, August 19 at Columbia Station, Link's transit center, in Wenatchee, Washington.

Link Transit has been working on operating battery electric buses for nearly 12 years, beginning with the award of a $2.93 million TIGGER grant in 2009 that funded the purchase of 5 - 22' trolley style buses and 2 high powered robotic chargers from eBUS in Downey, CA. These vehicles operated with a variety of battery chemistries and other changes to technology from 2010 until 2017 when excessive failures and the unavailability of critical components

The Washington Outdoors Report

A Tiger Trout For The Record Books

By JOHN KRUSE

Records aren't always broken in front of a roaring crowd in a stadium. Sometimes, they are broken casting the simplest of offerings off a dock on a summer morning. That's exactly what happened on June 26th at Loon Lake in Stevens County, Washington.

Loon Lake is a large body of water, covering some 1086 acres. Located 26 miles north of Spokane, it's known for giving up a previous state record lake trout in the 1960's and for being a very good place to catch quality size kokanee salmon. Warmwater species such as perch, bass and sunfish are also found here and in recent years, tiger trout have been stocked as well. Tiger trout are a relatively new fish to Washington State, a sterile hybrid that's a cross between a female eastern brook trout and a male German brown trout. The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) has been stocking them in select lakes around the state for 20 years.

With easy access off of U.S. Highway 395 and a couple of well-established resorts, Loon Lake is a popular place to fish for Spokane area residents to include Caylun Peterson, who hails from the Lilac City and has been fishing here on a regular basis every summer since he was a child.

On the early morning of June 26th Caylun was staying at his parent's lake cabin with his family when his daughter woke him up and asked to go fishing. The two went out to the dock and Caylun cast a big nightcrawler on a hook with no weight on the line and let it slowly sink to the bottom. About 15 minutes after Caylun did he got a bite and set the hook. At first the trout swam towards him but then it turned and started to run and Peterson knew he had a very big fish on the line. In fact, Caylun started getting worried he was going to run out of line on his reel and yelled for his wife to get the Sea-Doo ready so they could follow the fish. Before that became necessary though the fish tired and stopped its lone line-taking run. Eventually, Peterson was able to reel the fish in.

When Peterson first got the big tiger trout in hand his first instinct was to release it, thinking if it grew another year and he could catch it again, he might have a record on his hands. However, the fish was bleeding badly and about that time his mother and a neighbor came outside. Seeing the huge tiger trout Peterson had caught, they both told him they

Michigan Attorney General, Police to Probe People Who Made Election Fraud Claims

ZACHARY STIEBER

Michigan's attorney general, with assistance from police officers, will investigate people who claimed election fraud happened during the 2020 contest.

[Nessel] is now using the power of the police state and her to actively investigate opposing counsel.

Matthew DePerno, attorney

A spokeswoman for Michigan Attorney General Dana Nessel told The Epoch Times in an email on Friday that the Democrat will probe people who allegedly made false claims, with help from Michigan State Police.

The spokeswoman said Nessel decided to launch the probes on a request from Republicans in the Michigan Senate.

A Republican-controlled Senate panel last month issued a report saying it "found no evidence of widespread or systematic fraud in Michigan's prosecution of the 2020 election."

Detroit election workers count absentee ballots for the 2020 general election, at TCF Center in Detroit on Nov. 4, 2020.

A portion of the Michigan Senate Oversight Committee report focused on Antrim County, where the county clerk falsely reported on the morning after Election Night that Democrat Joe Biden had beat former President Donald Trump by thousands of votes. The senators said their review backed the position of Michigan Secretary of State Jocelyn Benson and Antrim County officials, which is that the false reporting was due to human error and was ultimately rectified.

The committee recommended that Nessel "consider investigating those who have been utilizing misleading and false information about Antrim County to raise money or publicity for their own ends."

"The Committee finds those promoting Antrim County as the prime evidence of a nationwide conspiracy to steal the election place all other statements and actions they make in a position of zero credibility," it said.

Benson said her office looked forward to partnering with Nessel "on this critical investigation into the real fraud that took place in 2020: efforts to deceive Michigan citizens about their vote with misleading, false statements about the accuracy & integrity of our elections."

Attorney Matthew DePerno and his client, William Bailey, have raised money for a case brought against the county that alleged Dominion Voting Systems machines used in the county "were shown to miscount votes" cast for Trump, counting them for Biden. The case was dismissed in mid-May.

Dominion has denied the allegations, including details in a forensic report from a firm hired by DePerno that alleged Dominion's machines and software were "purposefully designed with inherent errors to create systemic fraud and influence election results."

"There were no software 'glitches' that 'switched' votes in Antrim County or anywhere else," Dominion responded at the time. "The errors identified in Antrim County were isolated human errors not involving Dominion."

DePerno told The Epoch Times in an email on Friday: "Dana Nessel is a lawless Marxist. She is trying to stop our investigation into election fraud. She is also opposing counsel in the case Bailey v Antrim County and Jocelyn Benson. She is now using the power of the police state and her to actively investigate opposing counsel. This is unethical, unconstitutional, and criminal (see MCL 750.505). Dana Nessel must resign immediately for her unethical conduct."

Patrick Colbeck, a former state senator, an aerospace engineer, and a poll challenger, sits down for an interview in Detroit on Nov. 27, 2020.

Patrick Colbeck, a former Michigan senator, has a website where he hosts content he says back his election fraud claims. Users must pay a monthly fee to see some of the content.

Colbeck recently started a petition to censure McBroom and the other Republican senators who signed onto the report and denounced what he described as legislators' "attempt to marginalize those exposing election fraud."

In a lengthy post on his site, Colbeck said the panel's report "consistently repeats the flawed assertion that the integrity of the election can be demonstrated simply by running ballots through the tabulator." "The Committee appears to be operating under an extremely unique definition of 'election fraud' that dismissed any evidence of fraud if it did not add up to the 154,188 votes promoted as the margin of victory for Joe Biden. This failure of reasoning dismisses the cumulative effect of breaches in the chain of custody and violations of existing statute," he said.

More Chicago Police Officers Working Outside Jobs on Leave of Absence

CARA DING

CHICAGO—More and more young Chicago police officers are taking leave of absence to seek or work outside jobs, and most didn't return when their leave ended, according to records obtained by The Epoch Times through a Freedom of Information Act request.

In 2019, 23 officers took leave of absence for outside employment. In 2020, the number doubled to 49.

In January 2021 alone, six officers took leave of absence for outside employment, triple the number for the same periods in both 2019 and 2020.

The records obtained show data from January 2019 to January 2021.

About 70 percent of officers on leave for outside employment between January 2019 and June 2020 either quit or retired a year after their initial leave took effect, after which they could no longer extend the leave.

Three out of five officers on leave for outside employment

Catanzaro said more young officers were leaving because of terrible working hours, a lack of respect for police, and legislation that punishes officers for simply doing their jobs, while being soft on criminals.

are in their 20s and 30s.

In a previous interview with The Epoch Times, John Catanzaro, president of Chicago's largest police union, said more young officers were leaving because of terrible working hours, a lack of respect for police, and legislation that punishes officers for simply doing their jobs, while being soft on criminals.

In January 2021, Illinois lawmakers passed a sweeping criminal justice reform bill that will allow anonymous complaints against police officers, open the door to civil penalties for officers for pattern and practice violations, and prohibit officers from arresting offenders for Class B and C misdemeanors.

Catanzaro said Chicago's police force is shrinking from both ends: old officers are retiring and young officers are quitting.

For those in the middle, who have already invested a substantial amount into their pension plans, it would be much tougher to leave even if they want to, he said.

About 650 police officers quit or retired in 2020, compared to about 600 in 2019.

As of April 20, 2021, 330 Chicago police officers have quit or retired this year. Meanwhile, only 105 new officers were hired during the same time.

Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 7, Chicago's largest police union, represents roughly 18,000 active and retired police officers. The Chicago Police Department is the second-largest metro police department in the country, with approximately 12,000 sworn officers.

Church Awarded $220,000 by Washington DC After Filing Lawsuit Over CCP Virus Religious Restrictions

KATABELLA ROBERTS

A Washington, D.C., church has been awarded $220,000 after it filed a federal lawsuit challenging the district's restrictions on gatherings at places of worship during the CCP virus pandemic.

Leaders of Capitol Hill Baptist Church (CHBC) have appealed to D.C. officials since Mayor Muriel Bowser's restrictions were issued on March 11, 2020, which banned all indoor and outdoor church meetings of 100 or more, even if participants wear masks and social distance.

But in October last year, Senior Pastor Mark Dever and CHBC's elders won a preliminary injunction against Bowser's restrictions, allowing the congregation to resume worship services outdoors with proper precautions such as wearing masks and maintaining social distance.

In a settlement between the two parties signed on July 8, 2021, Mayor Muriel Bowser and her administration agreed to pay $220,000 to church lawyers at WilmerHale and the First Liberty Institute, a Plano, Texas-based law firm that specializes in First Amendment religious freedom litigation.

As per the settlement, the district "agrees that it will not enforce any current or future COVID-19 restrictions to prohibit CHBC from gathering as one congregation" in the district.

The district further agrees that, should it impose new restrictions on religious gatherings in the name of mitigating COVID-19 or variant thereof, they will not be more restrictive than on "comparable secular activities, as defined by the Supreme Court," the settlement states. The district also agreed to pay the church's legal fees.

Hiram Sasser, executive general counsel, First Liberty Institute

Senior Pastor Mark Dever is a nationally known evangelical leader and the founder of the 9Marks organization, which provides ministry and administrative resources for churches across the nation, and has been at CHBC since 1994.

The 850-member congregation has held worship services every Sunday since 1878, except for three weeks during the 1918 Spanish flu epidemic.

"All Capitol Hill Baptist Church ever asked is for equal treatment under the law so they could meet together safely as a church," said Hiram Sasser, executive general counsel for First Liberty Institute.

"The church is relieved and grateful that this ordeal is behind them. Government officials need to know that illegal restrictions on First Amendment rights are intolerable and costly," he said, according to the Washington Times.

Lockdowns, which began in March 2020 in the United States, forced religious services, including those of Roman Catholic, Orthodox Jewish, and Pentecostal congregations, to come to a halt throughout the COVID-19 pandemic.

However, the forced closures became a sticking point when some jurisdictions imposed more severe restrictions on houses of worship than were placed on secular activities.

The Supreme Court struck down several prohibitions on religious gatherings during the crisis, and multiple states eventually began easing the restrictions and allowing houses of worship to open for in-person services, albeit with virus-related modifications in place.

Arizona Lawmaker Advises People to Put up 'No Trespassing' Signs to Deter Door-to-Door Vaccine Checks

ALLAN STEIN

At age 61, Daniel J. Miller of Parks, Arizona, says there's no way he's ever going to take the COVID-19 shot—even if the government comes knocking at his door.

It isn't just a matter of his religious beliefs and faith in his own natural immune system that emboldens him, it's a matter of personal choice and medical privacy, Miller says.

So when the Biden administration announced earlier this week that it's considering sending people door to door to persuade the unvaccinated, Miller's reaction was, "He's got to be out of his mind."

"[President Joe Biden] is way out of bounds," Miller said. "There's no reason for him to say take the shot just because he thinks you should. It's your body, not his."

Earlier this week, Biden lobbied for higher numbers of Americans to get vaccinated even if it means going "community by community, neighborhood by neighborhood, and oft-times door to door, literally knocking on doors."

Arizona Attorney General Mark Brnovich was quick to respond. In a July 6 letter to the Biden administration, Brnovich said he was "greatly alarmed" by remarks indicating the possible use of medical records to obtain contact information on Americans who haven't been vaccinated.

"If this is the case, this is a severe breach of privacy, and I will not tolerate such intrusions within Arizona," Brnovich wrote.

Arizona state Sen. Kelly Townsend, a Republican, advised Arizona residents to put up "no trespassing" signs to ward off government compliance checkers.

"I have spoken to local law enforcement, and if you don't want the Federal government on your property asking about vaccines, they advise you to post a no trespassing sign in a visible location. This is a prerequisite to [being] able to charge someone for being there against your will," Townsend wrote on Twitter on July 7.

Arizona GOP Chairwoman Dr. Kelli Ward suggested a more personal touch with signs for vaccine compliance checkers to stay away.

"Who thinks we will see a surge in 'No Trespassing' signs?" Ward wrote in a Twitter post. "And could/should

If someone comes to my door asking if I've been vaccinated, I'm going to shut the door on them. It's a violation of privacy.

State Rep. John Fillmore

they be individualized to specifically prohibit people from harassing you about vaccinations? And why doesn't #HIPAA &/or the #4A already prevent this [government] harassment? Isn't our health info private?"

At present, approximately 157.9 million Americans, or 47.9 percent of the total population, have been fully vaccinated against COVID-19. That percentage is well below Biden's July 4 national goal of 70 percent.

In Arizona, 43.6 percent have been fully vaccinated against the CCP (Chinese Communist Party) virus, which causes COVID-19, with nearly 5 million vaccine doses having been administered.

Since the pandemic began in March 2020, the total number of COVID-19 deaths in Arizona has surpassed 18,000 residents, according to the Arizona Department of Health Services.

The Delta variant of the virus now makes up more than half of all COVID-19 cases in the United States. As of June 23, the nation surpassed 600,000 total deaths from COVID-19, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

The CDC noted that it's closely monitoring what it calls "variants of concern," such as the Delta variant.

"These variants have mutations in the virus genome that alter the characteristics or cause the virus to act differently in ways that are significant to public health," and may cause more severe disease, spread more easily between humans, require different treatments, or change the effectiveness of current vaccines.

As state and federal health officials continue to push for more people to get vaccinated, "vaccine hesitancy" has stymied those efforts.

Arizona state Rep. John Fillmore, a Republican, described any attempts by the government to harass people to get vaccinated as "ludicrous."

"It's scary—and it's a harbinger of things to come from this administration," said Fillmore, who hasn't been vaccinated against COVID-19.

"If someone comes to my door asking if I've been vaccinated, I'm going to shut the door on them," Fillmore said. "It's a violation of privacy. Are they going to mark us? Put a big white star out in front [of our homes]? Come back in the middle of the night and take us away? What it does to me is it instills fear that down the road they're going to mandate something."

Miller, like Fillmore, also fears government overreach and more coercive measures to force vaccine acceptance.

"Way more forceful measures," Miller said. "They're not going to give me the shot."

Louann Crandall, 57, of Phoenix, said she refuses to take the shot based on her personal religious beliefs.

"I'd tell them to get out of here. They're invading my privacy. I'm not getting [the shot]," Crandall said. "I didn't get a shot when I had the Hong Kong flu. My son and his fiancée got [the COVID-19 vaccine] and they got really sick. You're going to have to tie me down and give it to me. I'm not going to take it voluntarily."

Biden Says US Will End War in Afghanistan by End of August

JACK PHILLIPS

President Joe Biden says the United States will complete the war in Afghanistan by Aug. 31, and the military will continue to provide funding, equipment, and humanitarian aid to the war-torn country.

"Afghan leaders have to come together to drive toward a future that the Afghan people want and deserve," Biden said during a July 8 news conference in Washington.

The statement from the president comes as the Taliban terrorist group has made significant advances in recent weeks following the United States' decision to withdraw. Biden announced the full withdrawal from Afghanistan in April, essentially ending the longest war the United States has fought.

The Pentagon stated that more than 90 percent of the withdrawal process has been completed so far. But at the same time, the Taliban for the past several weeks has made major battlefield advances and has captured U.S. military vehicles that were being used by the beleaguered Afghan army.

During his speech, Biden said that more than 300,000 members of Afghanistan's military have been trained by U.S. forces over the past 20 years and that they have "all the tools and training equipment of any modern military."

President Joe Biden arrives at an event in the South Court Auditorium of the White House on June 2, 2021.

It is the right and the responsibility of Afghan people alone to decide their future and how they want to run their country.

President Joe Biden

"We did not go to Afghanistan to nation-build," the president said. "It is the right and the responsibility of Afghan people alone to decide their future and how they want to run their country."

Biden was asked by a reporter whether he believes the Taliban will fully take over Afghanistan. In response, Biden said he doesn't believe that will happen because Afghanistan's military is equipped against "against something like 75,000 Taliban," and "it is not inevitable" the group will take over.

The president said relocation flights for Afghan translators and contractors who worked alongside the U.S. military will be provided in the near future. As for where they will go, the administration has "identified facilities outside of the U.S. and in third countries," Biden said.

The Taliban's leadership over the country was toppled in 2001 after the U.S. invasion after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. The group was accused of harboring terror mastermind Osama bin Laden, who was killed during a raid about 10 years later in neighboring Pakistan.

"The United States did what it went to do in Afghanistan," Biden said, referring to the killing of bin Laden.

Meanwhile, Afghan forces on July 8 took back control of a western provincial capital earlier. Some fighting continued on the fringes of Qala-e-Naw, the capital of Badghis Province, which borders the Central Asian country of Turkmenistan, officials told Reuters.

"The city is fully [back] under our control, and we are conducting operations against the Taliban on the outskirts of the city," Defence Ministry spokesman Fawad Aman said.

Taliban advances have been especially dramatic in northern provinces where they had long been kept at bay. Stop-start peace talks between the government and insurgents remain inconclusive.

Separately, UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson confirmed on July 8 that most British troops have left the country, arguing that the threat posed by al-Qaeda has been substantially diminished.

"We must be realistic about our ability alone to influence the course of events. It will take combined efforts of many nations, including Afghanistan's neighbors, to help the Afghan people to build their future," Johnson said during a news conference. "But the threat that brought us to Afghanistan in the first place has been greatly diminished by the valour and by the sacrifice of the armed forces of Britain and many other countries."

School Board elections sign of voter discontent

Throughout our North Central Washington Region school board elections are nearly all contested races. This is not unique, but it is unique for our region.

Across the country there appears to be growing dissatisfaction with our educational system.

In Loudon County Virginia over 300 people showed up to a school board meeting; 259 of those signed up to speak, but after 51 criticized the Board, the School Superintendent ended the public comment period and declared the meeting an unlawful assembly. Sheriff's Deputies were called in and people were arrested. The school board then moved into executive session.

It is not the only place in the country where citizens are becoming concerned about their local schools. Across the country previously quiet, sleepy school board meetings are being overwhelmed by parents concerned about programs on sex education, race, and gender identity.

Citizens are launching recall initiatives against School Board members who are not responsive to their concerns.

Perhaps, Morgan Ortagus of Outnumbered said it best, "School Boards and Teachers need to understand they do not raise children. Parents raise Children."

Chief among the issues firing up debate is a program called, "Critical Race Theory." A program that teaches young students that white people are oppressors and people of color are victims. In other words, your skin color, not the content of your character, establishes your position on the scale of racial tolerance.

Another program that is drawing the ire of parents across the country is sex education programs that teach children as young as six about sexuality including self-pleasure and gender identity issues.

The problem is that many of these programs are being driven by national politics that are not necessarily consistent with local community standards.

The other problem with education policy is the influence of teachers' unions. In California families are increasingly upset with the efforts of the teachers' unions to keep the schools closed down while demanding higher pay and benefits and political policies that have little to do with their representation of teachers.

Examples include,

- Helping students deal with the trauma they've faced from the pandemic by hiring 1,800 new psychologists, counselors, psychiatric social workers and others;
- Hiring more teachers to reduce class sizes;
- Free child care for teachers.

Washington state is also increasing regulation of school curriculum. All of this would be fine if our students were excelling, but our students rank 30th in the world for math skills and 19th in science.

So, parents are losing faith in the ability of our public schools to provide our children with a relevant education.

An increasing number of parents are beginning to question how we can get true competition for public schools. The answer is simple – vouchers. Give parents the power to decide where the money the government collects for educating our children goes. In other words, if schools are paying $6,000 per student for education. The parents get a voucher for $6,000 to give to the school of their choice including private or parochial schools. It is not a new idea but one that is opposed by teachers' unions, public school administrators and elected representatives.

BILL FORHAN

They argue that it is a violation of the separation of church and state guaranteed by the US Constitution. That is a false argument. First, the separation clause is meant to protect churches not the government. More importantly, giving the voucher to parents gives them the economic power to influence curriculum.

It is time to reduce the power of teachers' unions and school administrators and put the power back into the hands of parents.

Reviewing Washington's redistricting process

The 12th District and Washington's 48 other legislative districts have had specific boundaries since 2012. The borders for these districts, as well as Washington's 10 federal congressional districts, will change in 2022 after the state's redistricting process is completed near the end of this year. Since redistricting only occurs every decade, I thought it would be helpful to review the process.

How Washington's redistricting works

Each state has its own process for redistricting. In Washington, an independent and bipartisan Redistricting Commission is established every 10 years to redraw legislative and congressional district maps for the next decade. The redistricting process occurs after the completion of the national census, which is taken every 10 years, most recently in 2020. Congressional district lines have been drawn by the Redistricting Commission since 1983 and legislative district boundaries since 1991. This commission comprises five members. Four are appointed by the leaders of each of the four legislative caucuses. The four appointed commissioners then appoint a fifth, nonvoting, chairperson. Enactment of new redistricting maps for Washington requires bipartisan approval. If at least three of the four Redistricting Commission members cannot agree on a map that is fair to all, responsibility for drawing the lines is turned over to the Washington Supreme Court. Our state's bipartisan redistricting system requires cooperation. It isn't surprising that Washington's redistricting process is admired by other states seeking to move away from an approach in which one party controls the final result.

Voters created the Redistricting Commission

For many years, the Washington State Legislature was in charge of redistricting, but many had grown angry and frustrated with how partisan and time-consuming this approach had become. By the 1980s, Washingtonians sought change. In 1983,

COMMUNITY VOICES
By BRAD HAWKINS

Washington voters passed an amendment to our state constitution that created our state's independent Redistricting Commission. Over the past decade, several other states have revamped their redistricting process to reduce the chance of partisan politics and "gerrymandering," a term describing districts with bizarrely drawn boundaries. I'm encouraged to know other states have followed our state's lead in creating independent commissions to draw up legislative and congressional district maps, with just minimal political manipulation involved.

2021 Redistricting Commission members

Members of the Redistricting Commission must meet certain criteria to be eligible to serve. Each appointee must be a registered voter, cannot have been a registered lobbyist within one year prior to appointment, and cannot have been an elected official or elected local or state party officer within two years of appointment. Additionally, once appointed, commissioners may not campaign for office, participate or contribute to a political campaign, or campaign or hold a seat in the Legislature or Congress for two years after the new plan is enacted. Earlier this year, the four legislative caucuses announced their appointees to serve on the Redistricting Commission. The Commission will be rebalancing the state legislative and federal congressional districts to ensure each district represents approximately the same population.

Redistricting's impact on eastern Washington

For the 12th Legislative District that I proudly represent (Chelan and Douglas counties and portions of Grant and Okanogan counties), the boundary will most certainly be different than the existing boundary. Throughout the history of our state and certainly throughout the Redistricting Commission's history, that has been the case for all districts. The question is, how different will the new boundaries be? It is very possible that portions of the existing legislative districts in eastern Washington will include portions of western Washington because of greater population growth on the west side of the Cascades. For legislative districts beginning in 2022, the ideal district will contain approximately 156,249 people. Based on the 2020 Census, the 12th District is close to that count now with over 151,000 reported. Many eastern Washington districts, however, are well under the ideal population count and, therefore, will likely expand geographically to pick up population. This will likely impact the 12th District as well.

History of 12th District borders

In the early 1930s, the 12th District was moved from southeastern Washington to its present location in North Central Washington. All of Chelan County has been within the 12th District since then. In 1965, the 12th District included all of Chelan and Douglas counties. By 1972, the western half of Okanogan County, including Winthrop and Brewster, was added to the 12th District, as was the northern part of Grant County. The northern portion of Kittitas County was part of the 12th for 30 years until the present boundaries were redrawn in 2012 – a shift that also picked up more of the southeastern portion of Okanogan County and part of Grant County.

Regardless of any shifting boundaries for the next 10 years, my hope is that Chelan and Douglas counties remain together given the unique nature and long history of shared cooperation between our two counties and their agencies. The federal congressional districts near us, the 8th District (Rep. Kim Schrier) and the 4th District (Rep. Dan Newhouse), are likely to see boundary adjustments as well. Thank you for the opportunity and privilege to serve as your 12th District state senator.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Response to Bill Cowles

"Socialism is a siren song for the gullible and misinformed young. History has proven this over & over many times. It is ironic that socialism is gaining popularity in America now and all people need to do is look at history to realize why we should avoid it. We all need to understand history's failures so that we don't repeat them."

The above is a quote from the letter of July 7, 2021 by Bill Cowles. Hi Bill, I haven't shaken your hand since all this Covid mess began and we stopped bumping into each other at shops in town and in Wenatchee. Hope you are doing well.

But, Bill, your well written paragraph confuses me. Please correct me if I'm wrong in saying you are a retired CA police officer? I am reasonably certain I am remembering that correctly. And if I am, Bill, then I will remind you that you are, in point of fact benefitting monthly from your Socialist organization's retirement checks.

Sorry, Bill, but America is full of healthy, well run Socialist organizations. All 50 of the states own and operate a State Police department, and in point of fact, all police and fire departments throughout the land are socialist entities. Like it or not, Bill, that's true. Publicly owned and operated entities even such as our own Cascade Medical Center are socialist entities owned by the taxpayers who support them, not by individuals or corporations.

While we're at this minor point of socialism, I also remember you were once a member of the US Navy. Sorry to have to be the friend to inform you, Bill, but the US military, all branches, amount to our own Federal Communism.

In case you are missing my point here, Bill, our lives are made better by our socialist organizations and of course protected by our enormous communistic military organizations.

What these organizations do for the nation's population is protect us all from being used and abused by the monsters which existed in Europe under the former ruling royalty. Would you rather the Chelan County Sheriff's department belonged to a royal? Ah we could have our own Sheriff of Nottingham and therefore our own Chelan County Robbing Hoods to steal from the rich and dole out to the you and me chaps.

And while I'm at it, Bill, I'll remind you that the USA's Communistic organization TVA was an idea founded by a GOP senator from the Great State of Nebraska...Google and look for facts. You do know what the TVA is, don't you?

Finally, Bill, as a friend, please do yourself a favor and stop this nonsense about liberals and conservatives. We are all merely citizens of a great country. And on occasion, even the folks we don't see eye to eye with have thoughts and ideas that benefit all. And always remember, Socialism and Communism, like Capitalism, are simply economic systems, not Government systems.

Electric Buses

forced them to be removed from service.

In 2016, Link Transit, using a $2.5 million Federal TIGGER Grant ordered 5 BYD (Build Your Dreams) 35' transit coaches with delivery taking place in early 2017. These vehicles failed to meet our minimum specifications when the ambient temperatures exceeded 95 degrees F or were below 32 degrees F. BYD stepped forward and agreed to replace these buses with 5 new vehicles that incorporated a newly designed, active battery temperature management system. Link Transit then ordered, utilizing an FTA $3.2 million No/Lo grant, five more of these advanced designed coaches and the first in the world, wireless, 200 kW vehicle charger. These ten advanced design buses which were put into service in December of 2019 are the buses that Link Transit operates today.

In 2019, Link Transit was awarded a State of Washington, Green Transportation Grant for $1,409,000 for the purchase of 3 wireless 300 kW Bus chargers, 7 plug-in 85 kW overnight bus chargers, 19 Level 2 personal car chargers for public use in Link Transit Park and Rides and other electrical infrastructure to support vehicle electrification. The recent installation of this equipment marks a milestone in Link's efforts to electrify public transportation in Chelan and Douglas Counties.

Link Transit is the PTBA for Chelan and Douglas Counties, located in central Washington State. Serving a population of about 115,000 in 13 cities and towns as well as unincorporated areas of the counties, Link Transit provides just over 1 million trips per year on fixed route and paratransit services. For more information about Link Transit, visit www.linktransit.com.

The Gospel for Miss Nevada USA

Apparently, anything a female can do a male can do better. Case in point: the newly crowned Miss Nevada USA is a biological male and will compete in the upcoming Miss USA pageant this fall. This one of many examples within our society today, of men earning titles and smashing records within women's competitions and athletics. However, it is very strange to me, that there was so much push back and outright condemnation for a thing such as "toxic masculinity" from Feminists and another SJWs, yet when a biological male wears lipstick and eyeliner crushes a female's skull in MMA or steals a championship in girl's track and field, it is met with cheers and applause.

A WALK WITH PASTOR JOHN SMITH

As hard as it is to swallow in our world today, males and females are different. Physiologically males have denser muscle mass, their blood has a higher hemoglobin level, and to put it simply, an average man is always going to be stronger than the average woman in physical strength. Put them in competition together, and it is basic biology that a man is going to outperform a woman every time.

It just goes to show you that we live in a mad world. Of course, we do. When society throws off any restraint, rejects God and His Law, and says in their heart, "With our tongue, we will prevail, our lips are with us; who is master over us?" (Psalm 12:4), what do we expect but confusion and chaos?

Allowing biological men in women's sports is unfair, cruel, and undermines the whole cause of "diversity". To be diverse, you have to accept the differences and when we see incidents like the ones mentioned, we are saying that men and women are the same and imposing that view on something biologically untenable. Biologically speaking, a man will never become a woman and vice-versa and for the cause of diversity, we should be accept that.

Now some might consider me insensitive, unloving, or unfair for even broaching this subject. After all, shouldn't everyone be able to participate in any sport or competition they want? What gives me the right to define gender and restrict people's free choice to identify themselves? The issue has nothing to do with my opinion on transgender individuals in female sports, but everything to do with a basic tenet of humanity and that is, "God created them male and female." (Genesis 1:27).

Yet, with the apparent rise of transgenderism in our society today, how is the Church or the individual Christian going to respond? It is one thing to outright oppose it, condemn that behavior, and back it up with scientific evidence. However, it is another thing entirely to yes, on one hand, say that it is sinful and call for its repentance but also do it with a heart that is full of compassion. It is important to remember that Miss Nevada, and others like him, who struggle with questions regarding identity are people first and foremost. They are individuals with stories, backgrounds, and family histories that often include pain and suffering. As Christians, we are to regard no one according to the flesh (2 Cor. 5:16)—what see on the surface—but see past their sinful behavior, speak to the real core of the issue, and demonstrate mercy (Jude 22). The transgender's real problem is not whether or not society accepts them or their rights as individuals are infringed upon, rather it is that they are lost and confused in their sin and forsaking wholeness found only in Christ.

The transgender doesn't need society to crown them with a tiara or place a medal around their neck. They need the Church to lovingly and clearly give them the gospel that can redeem, heal, and liberate from the radical effect of sin and give peace with God and life everlasting.

Although, as Christians, we cannot celebrate or affirm lifestyle choices that are in direct contradiction to God's standard, we can, however, be very explicit in our affirmation that Christ saves sinners and that no sin is too great for such a great Savior as Jesus.

Obituary & Memorial Policies

NCW Media, Inc.: Leavenworth Echo, Cashmere Valley Record, Lake Chelan Mirror, Quad City Herald

An Obituary is a way for family member(s) to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the community of the passing of the loved one. Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data.

Memorials are another way to let the community know about the life and memories of the person who has passed. A Memorial is different from an Obituary. An Obituary is usually current, while a Memorial can be written later.

Obituaries and Memorials need to be typed and emailed as a Word Document. They can be placed in one or more papers - all publish weekly on Wednesday.

Obituaries are priced by the number of words and include one color photo and go online at no extra charge. Memorials are priced per column inch. Please call for cost. *Payment is due at the time of placement. *Exception: Chapels, funeral homes who have an account, can be billed. There is no charge for a Death Notice - information is limited.

Deadline is 4 p.m. on Friday - some exceptions may apply.

is working towards ways to improve that. He can tell that something needs to be done to address these inequalities.

"I'm thinking that my new perspective, new person on the board, would be able to help with that. I've worked with issues similar to this in my professional career," he said.

Moscoco emphasized that it is important to be looking forward instead of being reactive. Issues that the school board faces need to be addressed early. A plan should be put in place so issues can be addressed ahead of time before it's too late.

Working for the Forest Service as a program manager provides relevant experience to working at the school board, said Moscoso. As a program manager, he only gets a certain amount of money each year for his program. Sometimes, the money isn't enough so he is looking for ways to partner with other programs or apply for grants.

As a manager of the Forest Service, Moscoso has represented the people who work for him and has to be a voice for the folks at the bottom end.

Antihistamines

Q: My nose runs, and my eyes itch every summer from my allergies. I used to take Allegra®, but it doesn't seem to work anymore. What other antihistamine should I try?

Antihistamines are designed to prevent and relieve allergy symptoms by keeping a compound called histamine locked up in special cells called mast cells. Histamine is responsible for triggering allergic reactions, a chain of events resulting in a stuffy nose, sneezing, sinus pressure, itching, and hives.

When you contact something you're allergic to, called an allergen, your body reacts. Allergens like pollen, grass, mold, or pet dander cause mast cells to open up, letting histamine escape to wreak its havoc of an allergic reaction.

Antihistamines block this reaction best if taken at least 1 hour before you are exposed to any allergens.

Which antihistamine should you use?

That depends on which one relieves your symptoms the best while causing the least amount of side effects. There are 2 main types of antihistamine medicines to choose from: sedating ones and non-sedating ones. Sedating antihistamines are older drugs that often cause drowsiness. Newer antihistamines seldom cause drowsiness but may not be as effective at drying up a runny nose.

Some antihistamines will give you more relief from your allergy symptoms than others. It's not unusual to try more than one antihistamine before finding one that relieves your allergy symptoms while causing the least amount of drowsiness.

Older antihistamines will cause at least some drowsiness in most people. If you need to avoid feeling tired, start with a newer antihistamine, like loratadine or fexofenadine.

One of the best antihistamines to try first is loratadine, also known as Claritin® and Alavert®. It's taken once daily and rarely causes drowsiness. If loratadine doesn't relieve your allergy symptoms, another choice is Allegra® (fexofenadine), available in two versions: twice a day or once-a-day pills.

If either of those doesn't help you, I would suggest Zyrtec® (cetirizine) or its close relative, Xyzal® (levocetirizine). These are more likely to cause you drowsiness when compared to Claritin® or Allegra® but are better at drying up a runny nose or watery eyes. They cause drowsiness in only 1 out of every 10 people and are very similar in their effectiveness.

If Claritin®, Allegra®, Zyrtec® or Xyzal® don't provide enough relief, try an older, more sedating antihistamine. The most powerful is Benadryl® (diphenhydramine). Benadryl® relieves most allergic symptoms but at the same time causes drowsiness in most people. In fact, diphenhydramine is the main ingredient in the popular sleeping pills Tylenol PM® and Sominex II.

Benadryl® (diphenhydramine) needs to be taken 3 to 4 times a day for best results. Some people get more relief by taking one Benadryl® at bedtime while using another antihistamine during the day.

There are older antihistamines available, including chlorpheniramine, brompheniramine, and triprolidine. Triprolidine causes less drowsiness than chlorpheniramine and brompheniramine. It is also very effective at drying up runny nose symptoms.

Years ago, as a hospital pharmacist, we would send antihistamines to surgery if a surgeon developed a runny nose and needed to "stop the drip" before performing surgery. The surgeon's favorite was always Actifed®, a combination containing triprolidine and the decongestant pseudoephedrine. It's still my personal favorite,

Ask...

Dr. Louise

too. I love how it relieves my runny nose, watery eyes, and nasal congestion without causing drowsiness.

The main drawback to triprolidine is finding it. Triprolidine is only available as the combination Actifed®, which also contains the original version of Sudafed®, pseudoephedrine, which is restricted. I buy generic Actifed® from my pharmacy and sign for it.

Here are 5 Tips on Choosing an Antihistamine:

1. Take them ahead of time, if possible.

Take antihistamines at least an hour before exposure to allergens. You'll get better results than if you wait until your nose stuffs up and your eyes start itching.

2. Try newer, less sedating ones first.

Non-sedating antihistamines like loratadine (Claritin®), fexofenadine (Allegra®) or cetirizine (Zyrtec®) have fewer side effects.

3. If your first choice doesn't help, try a different one.

It's not unusual to get good results with one antihistamine, yet very little relief from another. If one antihistamine stops working, try a different one.

4. Choose between just an antihistamine or a combination product.

You can choose an antihistamine alone or combined with other medicines, like a decongestant. I recommend you avoid Sudafed PE® sold on the shelf, which contains phenylephrine. It's not nearly as effective as the original formula of Sudafed®, which contains pseudoephedrine.

5. Triprolidine/pseudoephedrine (Actifed®) relieves both runny and stuffy nose symptoms at the same time.

Chelan PUD prepares long-term power contracts for a new energy market

SUBMITTED BY RACHEL HANSEN
Chelan PUD

WENATCHEE – Chelan PUD took another step towards implementing its long-term energy marketing strategy. Staff shared with commissioners Tuesday a starting point to replace long-term, cost-based contracts due to expire over the next 10 years. Chelan PUD produces more than enough power to meet local demand for electricity. Surplus energy produced by Rocky Reach and Rock Island dams are sold in wholesale power markets using cost-based and market-based contracts. The PUD uses that revenue to keep local rates low and enhance the quality of life for customer-owners with services like parks and super-fast internet.

Chelan PUD will have energy available for sale after long-term contracts with Alcoa and Puget Sound Energy expire in 2028 and 2031, respectively. Under the long-term marketing strategy, the PUD plans to offer some cost-based products that would produce more revenue than existing contracts while also offering purchasers capacity and carbon-free energy at a price below other renewables.

Driven by a regulatory pull toward more carbon-free energy sources, demand for renewable energy is rising, which has increased prices. Hydropower is a cornerstone among renewables because it economically produces energy around-the-clock without sun, wind, or air emissions.

A team of staff presented plans for an updated template for long-term energy contracts, which will serve as a starting point for negotiations with potential buyers.

The new contract template also includes the best features of past agreements, including:

- It provides buyers a "slice," which is a percentage of energy produced from the dams. The PUD and purchasers would share the output of Rock Island and Rocky Reach aligning interests to maximize the value of Chelan PUD hydropower.
- Buyers would agree to cover a slice of costs related to producing and delivering energy, to help mitigate risks such as low river flows, and equipment outages. The contract retains PUD control of all capital, operations and maintenance expenditures related to its dams and transmission lines.

The PUD is engaging potential purchasers in discussions about the contract template.

"I'm very encouraged by what you presented, the direction we're going, and the deep thought process of maximizing value and protecting PUD from risk in the future," said Commissioner Garry Arseneault.

In other news, commissioners:

- Heard a construction update for the PUD Service Center at Olds Station
- Received a progress report on the implementation of safety recommendations at the PUD's hydro projects
- Approved a guaranteed maximum price amendment with GE Renewables to rehabilitate the first unit at Rock Island Powerhouse II

Chelan PUD Names Two Senior Leaders – Shawn Smith & Rosario Nystrom

SUBMITTED BY RACHEL HANSEN
Chelan PUD

WENATCHEE, WA – Chelan County PUD has named two new leaders to its senior team: Shawn Smith as Managing Director, Energy Resources and Rosario Nystrom as Managing Director, Human Resources.

Smith comes to Chelan PUD with more than 20 years of experience with public and investor-owned utilities and start-up companies. Most recently, he held senior energy positions with the City of Anaheim, Calif., and Southern California Edison. He holds a Bachelor of Arts in Economics from University of California, Los Angeles, and a certificate in project management.

Nystrom has more than 15 years of experience in human resources and administrative management, most recently with the Chelan County and the Orondo School District in North Central Washington. She holds a Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration from Central Washington University and a Master of Business Administration from Western Governors University, Washington. She also is certified by the Society for Human Resources Management and in Diversity, Equity and Inclusion.

Outdoors Report

thought the current tiger trout record was around 18 pounds and he may have beaten that record.

It turns out they were right. The previous Washington record tiger trout was caught in 2015 out of Bonaparte Lake by Kelly Flaherty from Priest River, Idaho. That trout weighed 18.49 pounds. Peterson's trout, weighed on a certified scale in Deer Park, beat the previous record by exactly six pounds with a weight of 24.49 pounds.

Not only did Peterson's trout break the Washington State record, but it looks to be an unofficial world record fish as well. The current world record tiger trout, weighing 20 pounds and 13 ounces, was caught by Pete Friedland out of Lake Michigan back in 1978.

Caylun took his trout to the WDFW Eastern Regional Office where it was examined by a fisheries biologist and other staff members on Monday the 28th. Peterson's trout is now officially the Washington State record tiger trout. He will have to fill out paperwork for the International Game Fish Association (IGFA) and submit it for his fish to be certified as the new world record tiger trout.

As for fishing advice? Caylun said he has caught big tiger trout before out of Loon Lake, weighing up to 12 pounds, prior to this catch of a lifetime. Peterson says in his experience.

"They tend to bite first thing in the morning and right before sunset". Peterson is also a big believer in his method of using bait with no weight which slowly sinks to the bottom. As for what he was using besides that? Nothing fancy. Just an older Shakespeare Ugly Stik fishing rod and Okuma spinning reel.

It's the sort of story that makes you believe you too might just reel in a record the next time you are casting a line off the dock, out of the boat or from shore at your local lake. After all, if a regular guy who loves to fish like Caylun Peterson can catch a record, maybe anglers like you and I can too.

State Reopening & Masking Guidance

SUBMITTED BY VERONICA FARIAS

Chelan-Douglas Health District

East Wenatchee, WA

– As of June 30, all industry sectors (except for large indoor events with more than 10,000 participants) may return to usual capacity and operations. This does not include masking, which will continue under current guidance.

Current guidance on masking from the Secretary of Health states that every person in Washington State must wear a face covering over their nose and mouth when they are in a place where people from outside their household are present.

Exemptions to the face covering requirement include:

- when fully vaccinated against COVID-19, except in health care settings, correctional facilities, homeless shelters, K-12 schools or other youth settings where masks must continue to be worn;

- when outdoors;
- when engaged in indoor or outdoor training or sports; and
- when anyone in a group is deaf or hard of hearing and not wearing a face covering is essential for communication.

For a full list of exemptions to the face covering requirement, please refer to Order 20-03-3: https://www.doh.wa.gov/Portals/1/Documents/1600/coronavirus/Secretary_of_Health_Order_20-03_Statewide_Face_Coverings.pdf.

Current guidance on masking in businesses remains unchanged:

- Fully vaccinated employees do not have to wear a mask, unless their employer requires it;
- Before ending masking, employers must confirm workers are fully vaccinated;
- Regardless of vaccination status, masks are still required in health care settings, correctional facilities, homeless shelters, schools, child care centers or day camps; and

- Unvaccinated individuals are still required to wear face coverings in all public spaces.

Further information about masking in the workplace can be found at: <https://www.lni.wa.gov/forms-publications/F414-179-000.pdf>.

"The main thing we would like to share is that we are cautiously optimistic that things are moving in the right direction. We want to stress that people continue to get vaccinated when and where they can as we have the Delta Variant that is highly contagious and affecting younger people at a higher rate than the original wild type strain of COVID19," Luke Davies, CDHD Administrator, says.

Each year, the Cashmere Chamber of Commerce hosts the Annual Auction and Recognition Dinner where recipients are honored. The community has the opportunity to nominate those (Business, Citizen, and Organization) making a difference to Cashmere. This year, we would like to highlight all our nominees for their efforts in supporting the Cashmere community. Check back each week to learn more about each nominee and the announcement of the 2020 honoree recipients.

Business OF THE YEAR
Nominee:
Cashmere Valley Record

Nominated for: Actively involved in the Cashmere community; in current years, or consistently over a number of years, should have demonstrated excellence in their field which would, in turn, contribute to the overall economic health of the community.

What Others Shared: The Record has been serving the Cashmere community for over 100 years. Its current ownership for the past 20 years of Bill and Carol Forhan are deeply committed to our community and cover as many events as possible. They are active in many areas and keep the community well informed of valuable information and happenings in the schools, sports programs, city council meetings, new businesses coming in, obituaries, and of course political issues. Carol is also a Deacon at St. James Episcopal Church while Bill serves on the Cashmere Chamber Board, both volunteering many hours in that capacity.

What do you love most about the Cashmere Community?
We love the Cashmere community that stands together for all events that happen in this All American town. All the supporters of the school events, sports, plays, fundraisers. Active organizations like, Cashmere Cares to help the children in need. Rotary, Cashmere Food bank services. Kiwanis, local churches helping one another provide food, clothing and basic needs to anyone who is in need, especially this past year with the Covid-19. This town stood up to help others support local youth activities including sports, school plays, art projects and FFA. Annually we sponsor the Pear Bowl awarding the winning team a traveling trophy in recognition of the valley's championship each year. The Record is no longer just a weekly newspaper as it has modernized and positioned itself to be able to keep the community informed of important local breaking news that cannot wait a week. Our modern website is capable of providing information not just in print but also we can provide video reports.

We support supporting local, can you share more about your products or services?

The Cashmere Valley Record has worked to keep the community informed since 1907. We have been the owners of the Cashmere paper for over 20 years. Our mission is to support the local organizations and events that work to sustain the community, such as Cashmere Rotary, Cashmere Cares, the Pioneer Village and Museum, Apple Days, The 911 Memorial, and Founders' Days. We are participating members of a local church and longtime members of the Chamber. We Share your best memory from 2020.

COVID made 2020 a tough year. During the pandemic the Record reached out to businesses, churches, schools and health officials to get vital information out to the community. We used our new video capabilities to provide quick links to Dr. Malcolm Butler's weekly health advisory. The Record also encouraged the schools to participate in events that were still vital to the students like the Chelan County Fair and FFA virtual plant auction and livestock sales.

Grower Spotlight

WALLA WALLA RIVER SWEET ONIONS
Walla Walla sweet onions are round, with an elongated neck and dry, paper-thin skin. Onions grown in the Walla Walla Valley have half the sulfur of an ordinary yellow onion, which makes them taste so sweet!
