Colville Confederated Tribes dedicate Wagner Ranch acquisition

WINTHROP – Members of the Colville Confederated Tribes (CCT), the Methow Conservancy, and guests gathered at the former Wagner Ranch on East Chewuch Road 5.3 miles north of Winthrop on June 24, to dedicate and celebrate the transfer of ownership of the property from the Conservancy to the CCT.

The signing ceremony that sealed the agreement actually took place last May 19, at Nespelem, when representatives of both parties met to make the deed transfer official.

"The Colville Tribes is pleased to receive these lands from the Methow Conservancy," said Chairman of the Colville Business Council (CBC) Andrew Joseph Jr. in a joint media release issued that day. "The land is already being used for cultural activities and to improve fish and wildlife habitats. We accept our responsibility as stewards of this land to preserve a fertile habitat and we appreciate this opportunity to right some of the historical damage done to the Methow."

Sam Naney, president of the Methow Conservancy's board of directors, said, "The Methow peoples' legacy of stewardship on these lands should inspire all of us to live humbly and with intention in this beautiful valley. While no single project can resolve the past injustices levied on them and their ancestors, we sincerely hope this small step provides meaningful opportunities for the Methow and the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation to practice their cultural traditions, to gather, and to regain their time-honored place here in the Methow."

Speaking about the unique nature of the land involved Conservancy Executive Director Sarah Brooks said: "It is simply an honor to be a part of returning this land. It is a special place for fish and wildlife and it just feels right to return the care of this stretch of the river to its original stewards. We appreciate the generosity of our donors who shared the vision that the return of this land matters."

The ceremony on the ranch grounds began with an opening prayer by Methow tribal elder Elaine Emerson followed by welcome remarks from Winthrop Mayor Sally Ranzau, CBC Chair Joseph, Jr., and Culture and Education Chair Karen Condon. Naney and Brooks spoke on behalf of the Conservancy.

A lunch and tour of the ranch amenities – pond, pasture, homes, and barn – were part of the afternoon activities before a final closing prayer and honor song concluded the event.

Significant as it is, the Wagner Ranch deal almost did not happen for the CCT. The original intended recipient was the Yakama Nation. A Portland, Oregon-based non-profit, Western Rivers Conservancy (WRC) purchased the Wagner Ranch for $3.3 million in 2018. WRC acquires land in the Western states for conservation and permanent protection by conveying it to groups in those areas best suited to meet those ends. frontage in the Wagner parcel. However, expected funding from the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) to complete the sale to the Yakama's fell through.

Enter the Methow Conservancy and its successful fundraising campaign to acquire the property for CCT. A media release from the Tribes said the land and water will be the focus of fish and wildlife habitat protection.

"The land lies in the heart of traditional Methow territory and the Methow are one of the tribes of the Confederated Colville Tribes," said the media release. "The land will be conserved under the guidance of Methow descendants through Colville Tribal ownership. The Tribes' Fish and Wildlife Anadromous Program will continue work in this watershed with this property serving as prime area for salmon recovery efforts."

The release added that "the Tribes will pursue habitat improvements and educational programming at the site that will benefit all inhabitants of the valley and surrounding region."

Okanogan-Brewster transmission line completed

OKANOGAN – Work on the Okanogan-Brewster transmission line damaged in the September 2020 wildfire and rebuilt using steel poles was scheduled to be fully completed on June 28. That update was among items discussed at the June 27 meeting of Okanogan County PUD commissioners.

The commissioners praised staff after receiving an unmodified opinion from Moss Adams independent auditors. Olga Darlington at Moss Adams said the audit, which focused on financial reporting and reviewed several departments, was “very clean.” Full audit reports are made available on the PUD website.

In other business, the board:

- Tabled discussions regarding Resolutions 1775 and 1776, concerning support of a feasibility study for Enloe Dam and approval of a strategic plan. Commissioner Jerry Asmussen was absent, and the remaining commissioners wanted more time to review the documents.
- Heard that May wholesale power sale revenue exceeded budget. April was also a higher retail power sales month. In total, the budget is $707,937 more revenue than anticipated so far this year.
- Heard a presentation from Washington PUD Association representatives about the upcoming legislative year.
- Abolished the petty cash drawer for the Twisp office since the office is now closed.
- Heard that a summer intern has begun at the PUD through a program with Energy Northwest.

Mary Joyce Wilson Steele, a life-long resident of Brewster, Washington, passed away on June 18, 2022 at the age of 91. She was born October 17, 1930 in Ocoma, South Dakota, to Whitney and Norma Bice. At the age of seven she moved to Washington state where she attended grade schools in Malott, Manson, Leavenworth, Winthrop and Bainbridge Island.

In 1945 she moved with her younger brother Don and parents Norma and Forrest Wilson to Brewster, Washington and graduated from Brewster High School in 1948. She was very proud that she and all four of her children were Brewster Bear graduates and she was a life-long supporter of Brewster school programs.

She continued living in Brewster where she married

Kyle Jenkins and had four children. She attended Kinman Business College in Wenatchee and studied accounting. In 1962 she married Jasper Walker and moved to Twisp, Washington in the Methow Valley. The family returned to Brewster in 1964. She married Ralph Steele in 1985 and lived in Brewster for the remainder of her life.

Joyce was a 60-year member of the American Legion Auxiliary, a member of the Okanogan/Douglas County Hospital Guild, a Cub Scout leader and an active senior citizen. She was a breast cancer survivor and an active participant in cancer walks. Well known for her candy making and cake decorating, she was called on often to provide her confections for celebrations throughout the community and around the area. Her passion for Christmas decorating was second to none and she loved nothing more than trying to win the annual Best Christmas Decorated House in Brewster. She loved music, dancing and spending time with her family and friends, summers at the Alta Lake cabin and her greatest joy was being a loving grandma.

In addition to being a wife, mother and homemaker, Joyce worked outside the home packing apples and waitressing before becoming a manager for Brewster Drug until health reasons forced her to retire.

Joyce is survived by her brother Don Wilson (Liz), Spokane, Washington, her children Terry Walker (Jacki) Medical Lake, Washington, Gary Walker (Patty) Carlton, Washington, Gloria Poulsen (Todd) Brewster, Washington. Four grandchildren Josh Walker, Jill Walker, Tia Townsend and Danielle Campbell (Chris), six great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews. Her family also included many step-grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren all who she loved as her own.

She was preceded in death by her parents Forrest and

The family would like to give special thanks to Marlen De Ochoa of Casa Mia in Brewster for the loving care and friendship she provided our mother over this past year.

In lieu of flowers a donation can be sent in her memory to The American Cancer Society.

Celebration of Life will be held at Barnes Chapel in Brewster on Saturday, July 16, 2022 at 1 p.m. A dinner will follow at the American Legion Hall in Brewster.

THE WASHINGTON OUTDOOR REPORT

Treasure hunting

BY JOHN KRUSE, THE WASHINGTON OUTDOOR REPORT

Looking for a fun hobby that will get you outside? Consider buying a metal detector and go hunt for buried treasure. Metal detectors have been around for decades but now entry level ones are lightweight, easy to use, and even give you some clues as to what you may be digging up when you hear a signal.

I recently got a Vanquish 340 metal detector from Minelab. Weighing less than three pounds, it is waterproof to 3.3 feet and has a multi-IQ sensor that detects metal through varied surfaces from the beach to a grassy park. Simply turn the detector on and slowly sweep just over the surface in front of you as you walk. When you do detect metal, you'll see a number ranging from -9 to 40. The lower numbers usually are iron based. On the other hand, a reading between 29 and 31 this usually indicates a quarter, though it can also indicate silver. A penny gives off a reading close to 10 and a reading around 20 could indicate jewelry. These metal detectors are made for beginners and available at Sportsman's Warehouse and Cabela's stores

There are rules when it comes to taking things home you find while using a metal detector. If you are on private property (your own or someone else's land with their permission) you and the landowner are allowed to take home anything you find. The rules change on public lands though.

Courtesy John Kruse

Faith Kruse hunting for coins and treasure at Lincoln Rock State Park.

On National Forest and Bureau of Land Management lands you are allowed to use a metal detector to look for coins but if you are looking for silver or gold, mining laws apply. If the area you find gold in has a mining claim on it, it belongs to the person with the claim. On the other hand, if there is no claim on the land, you can keep it.

Washington State Parks allow metal detectors in portions of 54 parks, but before you go you have to fill out an online form and have that form with you while you are in the park using your detector. You can find out more about metal detectors in Washington State Parks at <https://www.parks.wa.gov/127/Metal-detecting>.

Historical sites on public lands are generally off limits and if you find something of archeological significance you should leave it where you found it and notify the nearest state or federal employee associated with the land you are treasure hunting on.

As a new user I decided to reach out to Debbie Smikoski, an avid metal detecting enthusiast who is the Business Development Manager for Minelab. I asked her how popular this hobby is and she replied, "It's grown exponentially the last couple of years. People want to get out and do something and this is a safe thing to do with social distancing."

I also asked Smikoski about how a beginner can get the most out of their metal detector and treasure hunting experience. She said, "It's always helpful to join a local club. Not only can members tell you the rules about where you can and can't go, but they are very passionate about the sport and want to help you succeed."

Smikoski also urged beginning metal detector users to, "Just have fun. There are all sorts of treasures that can be found and you never know where they are going to be (to include silver coins). Don't give up on it and you should have a blast."

One place to go to find out about the various treasure hunting clubs in Washington State is the Metal Detectors Association of Washington. You can find them on Facebook or through their website at <https://sites.google.com/site/metaldetectwa/about-mdaw>.

Peter Flohr Memorial Salmon Derby

In other news, The North Central Washington Chapter of the Coastal Conservation Association is once again putting on the annual Peter Flohr Memorial Salmon Derby, also known as the Wenatchee Salmon Derby. The dates this year are July 15-16 and cash prizes will be given for the biggest salmon caught as well as to the boat with the heaviest amount of fish weighed in. Last year's big fish was a 21.68-pound Chinook salmon caught by Tim Davis. The boundaries for this popular tournament stretch from Rock Island Dam to Wells Dam. You can find out more information and buy a ticket to participate at www.wenatcheesalmonderby.com.

Sockeye fishing expands on much of the Columbia River as returns exceed expectations

Additional summer Chinook opportunity also scheduled

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE

OLYMPIA - With sockeye salmon returning to the Columbia River in numbers well above the preseason forecast, fishery managers announced Thursday, June 30 that sockeye fishing will open from the Astoria-Megler Bridge on the lower river to the Highway 395 Bridge at Pasco, and daily limits increase from there to Chief Joseph Dam near Bridgeport on the upper river.

The U.S. v. Oregon Technical Advisory Committee, which forecasts and monitors salmon and steelhead returns to the Columbia River, earlier this week upgraded the 2022 forecast for sockeye returning to the river to 426,000, more than double the preseason forecast of 198,000 fish. Through June 29, the preliminary total sockeye count at Bonneville Dam is 343,953 fish, the highest count to date in the last 10 years.

As a result, fishery managers determined that sockeye retention could open starting July 1 on many portions of the lower river, and limits could increase in other sections previously scheduled for sockeye retention. Sockeye fishing is also scheduled to open July 1 on the Okanogan and Similkameen rivers in Okanogan County.

Sockeye fishing on the Columbia River was updated for the following areas and dates; for more information on the rules for the specific section of river where you plan to fish visit WDFW's emergency rules page. See the 2022-23 Washington Sport Fishing Rules pamphlet for permanent regulations for each section of river.

Rock Island Dam to Wells Dam: July 1 through Oct. 15. Daily limit 6, including no more than 2 adult hatchery Chinook and no more than 4 sockeye. Release wild adult Chinook and coho.

From Wells Dam to Highway 173 Bridge at Brewster: July 16 through Sept. 30; Daily limit 6, including no more than 2 adult hatchery Chinook and no more than 4 sockeye. Release wild adult Chinook and coho.

From Hwy. 173 Bridge at Brewster to the rock jetty at the upstream shoreline of Foster Creek (Douglas County side): July 1 through Oct. 15; Daily limit 6, including no more than 2 adult hatchery Chinook and no more than 4 sockeye. Release wild adult Chinook and coho.

In addition to the Columbia River, sockeye retention is also scheduled to open on sections of two Eastern Washington rivers beginning July 1, with night closures and anti-snagging rules in effect:

Similkameen River, from the mouth to the Hwy. 97 bridge immediately upstream of the mouth: July 1 through Sept. 15; Daily limit 6, including no more than 2 adult hatchery Chinook and no more than 4 sockeye. Release wild adult Chinook and coho.

Okanogan River, from the mouth to the Hwy. 97 bridge immediately upstream of the mouth: July 1 through Oct. 15; Daily limit 6, including no more than 2 adult hatchery Chinook and no more than 4 sockeye. Release wild adult Chinook and coho.

Okanogan River, from the Hwy. 97 bridge immediately upstream of the mouth to the Hwy. 97 bridge at Oroville: July 1 through Sept. 15; Daily limit 6, including no more than 2 adult hatchery Chinook and no more than 4 sockeye. Release wild adult Chinook and coho.

In all areas listed above, the salmon minimum size is 12 inches.

The essential role of Vitamin C

Q: My husband takes 1000mg of Vitamin C when he feels a cold coming on. Does it really help?

Yes. Vitamin C does not prevent the common cold but can decrease the symptoms and shorten its duration.

Ascorbic acid or Vitamin C was identified as a vitamin in 1928. Although this discovery earned the Hungarian scientist Albert Szent-Gyoryi a Nobel Prize in 1937, its role as a critical nutrient was recognized much earlier.

Before 1800, it was common for sailors to develop mouth problems like spongy gums, loose teeth, and mouth sores. Any time a sea voyage extended beyond 6-8 weeks, the crew was a risk of developing a set of debilitating symptoms called scurvy. It took months to cross the oceans, and the longer the voyage, the more the seamen were affected, suffering severe bruising, joint pain, fatigue and depression.

In 1744, a ship commanded by Commodore George Anson of the British Royal Navy took four years to sail around the globe. He started out with 1955 men but returned with only 145. During that voyage, nearly all of his men died from scurvy.

Then, in 1747, Dr. James Lind, a British Royal Navy surgeon, designed and conducted one of medicine's first recorded clinical trials: an experiment on board his ship to assess whether any of several proposed remedies for scurvy actually worked.

The daily treatments selected by Dr. Lind were a quart of cider, two teaspoonfuls of vinegar, a half-pint of seawater, a paste containing a mixture of garlic, mustard seed, horseradish, balsam of Peru, and gum myrrh, a small amount of a sulfuric acid and alcohol remedy called the elixir of vitriol, and citrus fruit.

Within one week, the sailors assigned to eat two oranges and one lemon daily improved enough to help care for the others who did not improve. When he returned to England, Dr. Lind published his results.

However, providing a daily citrus dose over months at sea proved challenging. Cooking lime or lemon juice destroyed its effectiveness.

Then, in 1867, Lachlan Rose, a Scotsman, patented a method to preserve lime juice with sugar instead of alcohol. Rose's Lime Juice became the standard citrus ration in British merchant and military ships.

Vitamin C has several vital functions: it is a powerful antioxidant, is essential to wound healing, and supports the synthesis of crucial brain chemicals like dopamine, serotonin, and norepinephrine. It also helps us utilize iron and absorb iron from our food.

Vitamin C also is essential for our body to manufacture collagen. Collagen helps form a matrix that holds cells together. Collagen is what keeps your teeth in place, your bones cells together, and maintains the walls of your capillaries, the smallest blood vessels that deliver vital oxygen to every cell in your body.

The recommended daily allowance (RDA) for Vitamin C is 90mg for males and 75mg for females. Pregnant women should try to get 120mg daily of vitamin C during pregnancy. Cigarette smokers also need a higher daily amount, about 35mg more than their daily requirement.

In addition to citrus fruits like oranges, grapefruit, lemons, and limes, other excellent sources of Vitamin C are kiwi fruit, bell peppers, and strawberries. Green, leafy veggies like broccoli, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, and spinach are also rich in Vitamin C.

Vitamin C is a powerful antioxidant and supports your body in many ways. It helps decrease the levels of LDL, the bad cholesterol and lowers blood pressure in patients with hypertension. Vitamin C helps us absorb and utilize iron and is involved in making several essential brain neurochemicals, like dopamine, serotonin, and norepinephrine.

5 tips for taking Vitamin C:

1. Foods are better than pills. Our bodies are designed to extract and absorb Vitamin C more efficiently from foods like leafy greens and fruits rather than pills.

2. Keep it fresh. Vitamin C is easily lost during storage and destroyed during cooking. The fresher your produce, the more vitamin C it will contain.

3. Take action. You can reduce the severity and length of cold symptoms with 1000-2000mg of Vitamin C at the first sign of a cold and continue it daily until resolved.

4. Beware of kidney stones. Doses of vitamin C greater than 1000mg daily can increase your risk of a particular type of kidney stone. If you have a history of kidney stones, be careful.

5. Know your limit.

Pregnant women and breastfeeding moms should stay at or below 2 grams daily of Vitamin C. More than this could cause scurvy in their newborn baby.

Supreme Court Narrows EPA's Ability to Regulate Carbon Dioxide Emissions

MATTHEW VADUM

The Supreme Court ruled 6–3 on June 30 that the Clean Air Act doesn't give the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) widespread power to regulate carbon dioxide emissions that a popular theory says contribute to global warming.

Chief Justice John Roberts wrote the court's majority opinion in West Virginia v. EPA, court file 20-1530. Roberts was joined by the court's other five conservatives. The court's three liberal justices dissented.

While "capping carbon dioxide emissions at a level that will force a nationwide transition away from the use of coal to generate electricity may be a sensible 'solution to the crisis of the day,'" Roberts wrote, quoting a 1992 precedent, "it is not plausible that Congress gave EPA the authority to adopt on its own such a regulatory scheme in Section 111(d)" of the Clean Air Act.

"A decision of such magnitude and consequence rests with Congress itself, or an agency acting pursuant to a clear delegation from that representative body," he wrote.

West Virginia and 18 other states challenged the authority the Clean Air Act provides the EPA.

In 2016, the Supreme Court overturned the Obama-era Clean Power Plan (CPP), which expanded controls over the industry. Next, the deregulation-minded Trump administration reversed course, easing control on the industry with its Affordable Clean Energy Rule (ACE Rule).

On Jan. 19, 2021, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit struck down the ACE Rule, restoring some of the EPA's authority in American Lung Association v. EPA. The court held that the EPA, under Trump, had misconstrued section 7411(d) of the Clean Air Act.

In the new opinion, the Supreme Court reversed the D.C. Circuit decision and remanded the case "for further proceedings consistent with this opinion."

In Justice Elena Kagan's dissent, she criticized the court majority for a decision she said "strips" the EPA of the power Congress gave it to respond to "the most pressing environmental challenge of our time," citing Massachusetts v. EPA (2007).

Supreme Court Chief Justice John Roberts

ANDREW CABALLERO-REYNOLDS/AFP VIA GETTY IMAGES

The Miller coal power plant in Adamsville, Ala., on April 13, 2021.

"Climate change's causes and dangers are no longer subject to serious doubt. Modern science is 'unequivocal that human influence'—in particular, the emission of greenhouse gases like carbon dioxide—'has warmed the atmosphere, ocean and land.'"

"Whatever else this Court may know about, it does not have a clue about how to address climate change. And let's say the obvious:

The stakes here are high. Yet the Court today prevents congressionally authorized agency action to curb power plants' carbon dioxide emissions. The Court appoints itself—instead of Congress or the expert agency—the decision maker on climate policy. I cannot think of many things more frightening."

West Virginia Attorney General Patrick Morrisey, who previously told

The Epoch Times that the EPA is trying to transform itself from "an environmental regulator into a central energy planning authority," praised the Supreme Court.

"For many years, we've argued that EPA only had a narrow bit of authority to regulate carbon emissions," Morrisey, a Republican who brought the appeal, said at a press conference.

"I think that the court today amplified that point. And once again, they also made clear that when you have something this big, something with vast economic and political significance, then that represents an extraordinary question. And that means Congress needs to step in, as opposed to the unelected bureaucrats.

"We know that over the last year and a half, the Biden administration has tried to run roughshod over the American economy with respect to its energy agenda.

"We want to make sure that the Biden agenda is limited by basis of what Congress authorized these agencies [to do]," he said.

"Our founders envisioned" that "Congress and not the unelected bureaucrats" should make decisions "about the major issues of the day."

"They didn't want to just have these unelected bureaucrats reach out and try to seize power where it didn't exist," Morrisey said.

U.S. Sen. Bob Menendez (D-N.J.) criticized the ruling and the six conservative justices.

"As the devastating impacts of climate change are becoming evermore present, it is mind boggling and deeply alarming that the Supreme Court today has decided to hamstring the EPA's authority to regulate greenhouse gases. This ruling not only restricts the agency's ability to limit air pollution from the second-largest source of emissions in America, it also undermines the landmark Clean Air Act that gave it such authority," the senator said.

"Make no mistake, with this devastating ruling in West Virginia v. EPA, the conservative majority of the Court continues to take our country backward and more worrisome, it opens the door to far-reaching implications for how other federal agencies generally create regulations to implement existing legislation moving forward."

After 53 Die in Smuggling Tragedy, Texas Governor to Start Truck Checkpoints on Highways

CHARLOTTE CUTHBERTSON

EAGLE PASS, Texas—The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) will be setting up random highway checkpoints to inspect trucks following the deaths of 53 illegal immigrants who were being smuggled in the back of a tractor-trailer earlier this week.

"We've seen increased brazenness by cartels that feel empowered, because we do not have a federal government that's pushing back against those cartels and their illegal activity," Gov. Greg Abbott said at a June 29 press conference in Eagle Pass, one of the busiest regions for illegal border crossings in the country.

"And of course, the worst thing of all is the catastrophic death that we have witnessed."

DPS Director Steven McCraw said state troopers will assist civilian inspectors in setting up checkpoints along the main highways running from the Texas–Mexico border to San Antonio, Houston, and other major hubs.

Often, illegal aliens wade or are rafted across the Rio Grande into Texas and, while avoiding Border Patrol, are taken to stash houses to await vehicle transport further into the United States.

McCraw said he also plans to deploy DPS special agents to identify stash houses near the border, "which is very important to disrupting Mexican cartel operations."

The truck that was carrying the illegal immigrants who died in San Antonio passed through a Border Patrol highway checkpoint 30 miles north of Laredo on Interstate Highway 35, McCraw told The Epoch Times.

The checkpoint often has two truck lanes and three car lanes operating simultaneously.

Tom Homan, the former chief of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, told The Epoch Times that smugglers will turn off the freezer unit in refrigerated trucks to give the appearance that it's an empty trailer and that there's no need for a secondary inspection.

The refrigeration was turned off in the truck in San Antonio and there was no water inside, even as the mercury topped 100 degrees.

"The truck passed through a Border Patrol checkpoint, it was not inspected. It was not inspected because the Border Patrol does not have the resources to be able to inspect all of the trucks," Abbott said.

"Many of these deaths could be prevented if Biden simply fully funded the Border Patrol operation of the United States of America and implemented the policies that the Border Patrol needs in order to do their real job. And the real job is not the paper processing work that they've been assigned to do."

President Joe Biden called the deaths in San Antonio "horrifying and heartbreaking," and he vowed to crack down on the criminal smuggling organizations.

"Exploiting vulnerable individuals for profit is shameful," he added. White House press secretary Kar-ine Jean-Pierre told reporters on June 28, "The fact of the matter is the border is closed, which is in part why you see people trying to make this dangerous journey using smuggling networks."

Since Biden took office, the number of illegal crossings has hit multiple record highs. Border Patrol has apprehended more than 3.2 million illegal immigrants since January 2021, according to Customs and Border Protection data.

Four people have now been arrested in connection with the truck smuggling operation that resulted in the 53 deaths, according to the U.S. Department of Justice.

Homero Zamorano, the driver of the truck, was charged on June 29 with one count of alien smuggling resulting in death, and Christian Martinez, 28, was charged with one count of conspiracy to transport illegal aliens resulting in death.

If convicted, both Zamorano and Martinez face up to life in prison or potentially the death penalty.

Two Mexican nationals, Juan Francisco D'Luna-Bilbao and Juan Claudio D'Luna-Mendez, were arrested on June 27. The men have each been charged with three firearm-related offenses after exiting a San Antonio property listed as the registered address of the truck used in the smuggling operation. Both had overstayed their B-2 visas.

Wanted

Looking for Volunteers with Lake Chelan Waterfront Access
Lake Chelan Research Institute (LCRI) seeks eight to ten waterfront locations to establish long-term trends in nearshore water temperature. Changes in nearshore temperature are a key factor in growth of attached algae. We currently lack temperature trends in the nearshore environment of Lake Chelan and are initiating collection of that data so we can understand what role temperature may play regarding increased algae growth. Involvement of waterfront homeowners is crucial to the success of the work. Support for this study is provided by the Icicle Fund (see <https://iciclefund.org/> and <https://iciclefund.org/recent-awards/>) The institute's mission includes collecting water quality data regularly; understanding the processes that control, and assess trends in Lake Chelan's water quality, benefiting residents, tourism, and environmental science for years to come. If interested, please contact Phil Long at 509-531-2987 or phillong@nwi.net. More information is available at <https://lakechelanresearchinstitute.com> and KeepItBlueLakeChelan.org

The Contract
Unveiling the healing power of forgiveness

A novel by local writer William E. Forhan.

Nobel Prize winning author Gabriel Garcia Marquez was quoted as saying, "All human beings have three lives, public, private and secret."

In our modern world of the internet search engines and DNA testing, keeping our private and secret lives separate is increasingly difficult. Sometimes they can come crashing in on our public lives when we least expect it. Father Robert McCarthy is a middle-aged priest who is suddenly and unexpectedly confronted with his secret past. How he deals with the revelation of that past with his family, his congregation and the impacts of that secret life is inspirational. How McCarthy discloses the news of his college indiscretion requires him to take everyone involved on a journey of confession. That journey forces him to deal with issues of homosexuality, judgementalism, divorce and pride. His pastoring skills and the depth of support from his wife help him bring forgiveness and restoration to many broken relationships. The bonds of three families are ultimately restored through celebrations of life experiences including fishing, holiday gatherings, the discovery of unknown family connections and a wedding.

Bill's book is available online through Amazon.com, BarnesandNoble.com and Apple iBook. The paperback is $16.99 and the ebook is $8.99.
