Cashmere City Council considers increasing property tax

By KIRK BECKENDORF
Reporter

A public hearing about the 2021 City of Cashmere budget, and a possible rate increase, was held at the Oct. 26 Cashmere City Council meeting. A 2nd Public Hearing will be held on Nov. 9. The Council will hold its last hearing on Nov. 23 to adopt the final 2021 budget. Copies of the preliminary budget will be available by Nov. 2 and will be posted on www.cityofcashmere.org and at the Cashmere City Hall between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Call City Hall (509-782-3513) before the Friday of each meeting for information on connecting remotely to the public hearing, if in-person participation is not permitted by law. Written comments can be mailed or emailed to Kay Jones, City Clerk-Treasurer at Kay@cityofcashmere.org or 101 Woodring St., Cashmere, WA 98815.

Prior to the Oct. 26 hearing, Mayor Jim Fletcher gave an introductory explanation about a possible 1% increase in property taxes to help balance Cashmere's 2021 budget. Only one community member, Bill Donald, addressed the City Council at the hearing. Donald said he actually does not mind paying taxes if he can see where they are going and that the city has a plan for those funds. Council member Chris Carlson said that the council would like to receive more input from the public.

Fletcher said that the city's original plan for the 2021 budget is to not increase property taxes, however the city is allowed to increase the tax rate by 1% of the current year tax revenue. Considering the shortfall of funds the mayor said the Council should consider if the rate should be increased. According to Fletcher a 1% increase in property taxes would generate approximately $6400 in revenue for the city. He explained that due to the new county assessments the taxable value of properties in Cashmere has increased 2.67% or just over $9 million dollars. A 1% increase would result in the 2021 property tax levy of $188.10 for every $100,000 in home value, compared to $186.50 without the increase.

Fletcher explained that any revenue from a rate increase would go into the General Fund. He said the city's estimated 2021 General Fund expenses exceed the estimated revenue. However, due to an unexpected increase in taxes on new construction, the city is proposing to use that $30,000 to balance the general fund. This is a short term solution, but in the long term other solutions of controlling costs and seeking new revenue are necessary. Fletcher explained that Law and Justice Expenses account for about 50% of the General Fund of expenses and the Sheriff's Department typically increases their charges by 4% each year. In the past the Sheriff's costs has gotten so expensive that the city has had to cut back on hours of law enforcement.

Carlson and council member Derrick Pratt said that they were not in favor of a rate increase. They said a rate increase was not justified due to the small amount of revenue generated by a 1% increase, the fact that taxes will go up anyway, the increase in tax revenue from new construction and the financial impacts of COVID. Council members Dave Erickson and Daniel Scott said that wanted to get a better look at what the General Fund expenses will be before making a decision about a rate increase.

In other portions of the budget, Fletcher said that the Public Works and the Water and Wastewater Funds are in good shape. Other than the work on Sunset Highway, no new construction is planned. Debt service for the waste treatment facility is the biggest burden for the Water and Wastewater Fund. A scheduled rate increase of 4% for water and 2% for sewer is set to take effect in 2021. Considering the impacts of COVID and other increases, most of the Council said they would prefer to not increase rates but to push these off until the following year. However, Scott said, considering the expenses and the possibility of refinancing the debt, he would prefer to not change the rate schedule. Fletcher said he would draft a resolution to amend the rate schedule and present it to the Council for their vote at the next meeting.

Fletcher and the Council have been pursuing the possible extension of sewer lines up Sunset Highway and Goodwin St. Fletcher said the design cost would be $163,600, and construction cost over $1.3 million. As a result, he is now recommending not doing the extension. He said it would require the city to go into debt to finance the expansion and that there is not a ready set of customers in the area.

The Council unanimously approved a state of emergency due to a sewer line break on Division Street. On Oct. 20 raw sewage was detected leaking from the line and onto the intersection of Chase and Division St. The declaration of a state of emergency allowed the city to waive the competitive bidding process so the line could be more rapidly repaired. Allied Plumbing and Pumps was contracted to repair the line for $74,630.

In an ongoing discussion about the jail fees being charged by the Sheriff's office, Fletcher said he has talked with other cities, the county and County Commissioner, Kevin Overbay, and is seeking to have a joint meeting with those groups. Wenatchee has started arbitration with the county but he would prefer to have customer/client discussions with the commissioners.

In other business, the Council unanimously approved the Prosecution Services Agreement with Chelan County to pay fees for public defenders.

NCW School Districts Receive $106,633 from Community Foundation

SUBMITTED BY JENNIFER DOLGE

The Community Foundation of North Central Washington has disbursed $106,633 to all school districts in Chelan, Douglas, and Okanogan counties from donations made to the Back to Basics school fundraising campaign in September. The funds will directly help students and families who are struggling from the effects of the pandemic.

"Earlier this spring when schools shut down, we heard a few stories about students having a hard time staying engaged in remote learning because they were having to care for their younger siblings, or their parents lost jobs and were struggling to put food on the table" said Beth Stipe, the foundation's executive director. "We knew we had to do something about it, and help provide some basic needs so they could focus on their education as much as possible."

The Board of Trustees approved $55,000 to kick-start the campaign. Each district received a portion of these funds based on their district's population and number of low-income students. Donations from the public were directed to the districts of their choice.

School district family advocates, teachers, and counselors who work closely with students will identify and distribute the funds. This process is already in place in schools; the funds will simply provide greater opportunities to help students.

"When we reached out to the family advocates and counselors, they were so grateful for the added support" said Jennifer Dolge, director of donor services and communications. "They see first-hand the challenges many students and their families face, especially during this year of with the pandemic and wildfire. Now they will be able to give them even greater support."

Funds will be used for food, clothing, school supplies, health and personal hygiene needs, and sanitation items.

While the campaign is complete, donations can always be made to school districts or PTAs to support students who really need our help this year.

For more information, visit www.cfnw.org or call 509-663-7716.

The Community Foundation of North Central Washington's mission is to grow, protect, and connect charitable gifts in support of strong communities throughout Chelan, Douglas, and Okanogan counties. Established in 1986, the Community Foundation manages $85 million in assets through 500+ individual funds and has awarded over $35 million in grants and scholarships.

What will your legacy be?

Every year arts organizations throughout North Central Washington get a financial boost thanks to Fred Johnson. Every year aspiring agriculture students receive scholarships thanks to Jane Lovejoy. Every year nonprofits throughout the Methow Valley will receive grants thanks to Ken Westman. Lives will be changed, communities will grow stronger, and dreams will be realized thanks to these donors. What is most remarkable is that Fred, Jane, and Ken are no longer here with us but established these legacy gifts through their wills.

victim to this virus? People are also asking themselves what really matters to them in life, what values do they hold dear and how will these values be carried forth beyond their lifetimes.

At the Community Foundation of North Central Washington, all this questioning has resulted in a surge of donors who are deciding what their legacies will be in this community. Just as Fred, Jane, and Ken did, people are considering what causes they care about most, what types of youth might need a leg-up to achieve their future goals, or what communities they want to see prosper.

Luckily, it is our specialty at CFNCW to help people with these exact questions and to develop customized plans that will meet their needs. While many of you may know the grant-making, fundraising and scholarship work that we do throughout Chelan, Douglas and Okanogan Counties, the reality is that none of this work would be possible without the core of what we do: stewarding permanently endowed charitable funds established by donors either during their lifetimes or through their estate plans. Over the past 34 years, we have worked with countless donors on their charitable goals. Some folks want to make sure that their church or a specific charity continues to receive funding from them beyond their lifetime. Some donors care deeply about the environment and want to see all groups doing good work in that field receive support. Other donors care about a specific community and want to see future generations succeed there. Some may want some combination of all of the above. Some donors want to be anonymous and some would like their family name to be remembered.

What is most important to realize is that one does not need to be a millionaire to leave a legacy. CFNCW has worked with all variety of donors, from schoolteachers to physical therapists and orchardists to physicians. We are happy to sit down with you and help you decide what you want for the generations that follow you. It does not take a huge fortune to leave a legacy, only a huge heart.

Cherokee Nation (Eastern Band)

Did you know that archaeologists think the first people to live in North America were the Paleo-Indians? At the end of the last Ice Age (around 12,000 years ago) these people moved from Asia into North America on a land bridge that existed then. It is believed that they lived in small family groups and moved constantly to hunt animals like the mastodon (an elephant-like animal that is now extinct) and to gather foods like berries and nuts. Arrowheads for spears and other tools mark places where they lived.

In the Archaic period (8,000 to 1,000 BCE), families had homes with wooden poles covered with hides, which could be moved. In the spring they would move to the river valleys to fish and collect shellfish. In the fall they would move to the forest to hunt deer or turkey and gather nuts and berries. Archaeologists have studied tools, soapstone bowls, burial grounds and pottery to understand these people's ways.

In a more recent period, Woodland Indians, people are thought to have had villages as well as seasonal camps. Corn, a key part of the Indian diet, was introduced. The first evidence for the bow and arrow were found. It is believed that people were trading: salt, beads, shells, fish, pottery and animal skins.

During the next period, Mississippian Indians, settlements became more permanent. Squash, corn and beans, known as the Three Sisters, were important and foods from hunting and gathering were now added to the foods harvested from gardens. Beautiful jewelry and pottery were created too.

After 1650, when Europeans arrived, there were years of both peace and fighting. In 1836, the U.S. Senate accepted a treaty signed by a small group of Cherokee to sell their land and the Cherokee were forced to leave the east to be resettled in Oklahoma. They were expected to walk 1,000 miles to get there! On this hard walk, now called the "Trail of Tears," an estimated 4,000-8,000 people died. Some Cherokee refused to move and hid in the mountains. Many of their descendants now live on Qualla Boundary, a preserve.

Semper Reformanda

I have never before been more convinced about our need for Reformation as I am today. With an absence of hearing from the Word of God, a reluctance to engage the culture with a robust Christian worldview, and the gospel obscured and buried underneath entertainment and man-centeredness, the church in many respects has lost not only its Confession but its power.

Think for a moment of the malady that made the Protestant Reformation of the 16th century necessary. The errors of Roman Catholicism caused a massive drift away from the source, the Bible, and placed in front of the gospel obstacles and barriers through the misuse of the sacraments to the point that John Calvin, a pillar of the Reformation, said that it turned into a form of "ugly and unbearable tyranny." People would go to church, stand and listen to the priest speak to them in a language they couldn't understand (Latin), and read from a book that they couldn't read for themselves. Christianity had been reduced to an empty tradition and unable to spark the fire of true and living faith.

Of course, that changed in 1517 from the hammer of Martin Luther nailing his 95 Theses to the door of Wittenburg church which sparked the fire of renewal of Christianity that spread across the European continent. For the first time in a long time, people were actively engaged in their faith. They were able to read the Bible for themselves, listen to sermons preached in their own language and come to understand that salvation is by grace alone (Sola Gratia) through faith alone (Sola Fide) in Christ alone (Sola Christus) according to the Scriptures alone (Sola Scriptura) and all for the glory of God alone (Soli Deo Gloria). The Reformation's impact on history cannot be overstated. If it never occurred, who knows what Christianity would have looked like today or even if we, as a nation, would exist.

The point of the Reformation was that the church needed to get back to the source: The Bible. In fact, the cry of the 16th century was the Latin phrase Ad Fontes, which means "back to the source" and it is only when the church goes back to the source of our faith, the Word of God, then it can right the errors of the present. As stated earlier, the errors of the present are in clear display. Ligonier in its survey of the "State of the Theology" conducted every two years, discovered that a third of all Evangelicals believe that Jesus was merely a good teacher and not God. Furthermore, 42% of Evangelicals adhere to a form of religious pluralism. In other words, God accepts the worship of other religions. This notion clearly contradicts the plethora of verses that say otherwise, most notably John 14:6 where Jesus says, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

Not only do we have problems in our theology but in our ecclesiology (what we understand and believe about the Church). As I have written about before, this "crisis" has revealed that we don't really understand what takes place when we gather together to worship God. We have reinforced the idea that you can "do church" in isolation and in the comfort of your own living room. I have even heard churches encouraging people to partake of the Lord's Supper and even do baptisms all within the confines of their own home and away from the gathered saints of God. How one manages to baptize themselves, I am still trying to figure that one out.

For the sake of Christ, the Church in America, your church, my church has to go back to the Bible as the all-sufficient rule of faith and obedience. Otherwise, we will remain listless, powerless, and unnecessary to the community that we are placed in. What will stem the tide of godless pagan worldviews that our nation is inundated with, will not be clever campaigns or slick video production, but an open Bible and its words proclaimed with clarity and authority.

I pray that we would stand as Luther did when the whole weight of the Roman Catholic Church was bearing down on him and say, "My conscience is captive to the Word of God. Here I stand. I can do no other. God Help me. Amen."

May we Semper Reformanda, always be reforming, always going back to the Scriptures.

A WALK WITH PASTOR JOHN SMITH

Chaplaincy: Answering The Call

The King will reply, "Truly I tell you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for me." Matthew 25:40

A pair of gloves and a shovel. A cup of cold water. A listening ear. All are snapshots of the ministry of chaplaincy; the call to lift burdens and absorb grief and trauma.

A foundational value of our Christ Center church family is touching lives through service. A major expression of that is our chaplaincy program. What began when a few staff members attended a training week in the Seattle area has continued to grow, until today trained team leaders provide management for Disaster Relief, Community Care, and Congregational Care, and trained chaplains volunteer when there is a need, covering everything from suicide support to sifting through the rubble of a burned home.

Our first priority is "Ministry of Presence." Looking in the eyes of hopelessness with the love of Jesus lifts burdens, reduces panic, brings comfort, and provides hope. Just being there. Listening. Offering to pray. Without personal or team agenda. Without pay. Invisible. Simply to serve. And not only to serve the victims of tragedy, but business leaders, city government officials, and those on professional management teams who attempt to minimize panic, determine solutions to difficult challenges, and find themselves overwhelmed, exhausted, and sometimes far from home.

Our second priority is to "assist" or "cooperate" with the other agencies involved in a crisis or disaster. While those in professional positions are trained to look for "product" from volunteers, we see from a spiritual perspective. Our goal is not to presume to be in charge, but rather to come alongside by providing support and manpower for those who are trained to assess situations and execute workable solutions, or to step up and lead if that is needed and/or requested.

Both of these priorities rest on the foundation of community involvement when life is routine. We live with integrity, with compassion, and with care. We coach soccer, belong to Rotary, serve with the food bank; the list goes on. And we come from all walks of life, from the college student to the 86-year-old widow. Being involved in the community, building good relationships with our fellow citizens, goes a long way in opening doors when there is a crisis. We each are committed to one constant passion: to be obedient and faithful to serve others as the hands and feet of Jesus.

This passion has taken us as far from home as Louisiana and Oklahoma for flood and hurricane recovery and as close to home as Pateros, Chelan and Broadview/Wenatchee for wildfire recovery, to Steven's Pass for avalanche tragedy support, and our local schools for death by suicide and kids-at-risk mentoring. And while we each do our part, taking the chaplaincy training course and then making ourselves available, ultimately we rely on the Holy Spirit to set up divine appointments, guide our activities, and help us show respect for the property and the pain of those who are suffering.

Chaplaincy, a sacred calling, breaks down barriers, opens hearts, and demonstrates God's love in tangible ways.

My name is Joyce Williams. I serve as Pastor of Congregational Care and staff representative for the Chaplaincy ministry at Christ Center in Cashmere, Washington. As a contributing author, my emphasis is what is termed "the ministry of presence." Looking in the eyes of hopelessness with the love of Jesus lifts burdens. It reduces panic. It brings comfort, and it provides hope. Just being there. Listening. Offering to pray. Without a personal agenda. Without expecting payment. Invisible. Simply to serve. That is the heart of chaplaincy. To facilitate this ministry, Christ Center has developed a written plan of action which includes a local, functioning program that responds to congregational and community needs as well as providing manpower for world-wide disaster relief. In addition, because preparation is critical, we also offer an annual certified training event that equips those who sense a call to chaplaincy, broadening their opportunities and insuring that the sacred calling of chaplaincy is as effective as possible. But chaplaincy is only one part of the bigger missions picture. If you are looking for new possibilities and practical strategies to broaden your scope of ministry, you will find both in this book.

THE WASHINGTON OUTDOORS REPORT

Night Time Razor Clam Dig

Razor Clamming On Hold In Washington

By JOHN KRUSE

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife has announced razor clam digs in Washington are closed through November 12 and it's possible the closure could extend to December.

The reasons are twofold. One of them has to do with domoic acid. It's a toxin found in shellfish and at high levels can cause serious illness if you eat them. Razor clams near Long Beach (one of four razor clam digging beaches) were found to have domoic acid levels that made them unsafe for human consumption. Larry Phillips, the WDFW Coastal Region Manager said, "these toxins have a tendency to hang on – it's not inconceivable that we'll have to wait until December before we're clamming again." So far, razor clams have tested as safe to eat at Washington's three other beaches (Twin Harbors, Copalis and Moclips).

So why are all of the beaches closed to clamming through November 12? According to the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife, it's all about Covid-19 and preventing the spread of it to both clam diggers and the rural communities they visit along the Southwestern Washington Coast.

WDFW opened up razor clamming early this year, starting in September, to increase opportunities for those interested in participating in this activity. It turns out there has been a lot of interest. Jason Wettstein, a WDFW spokesperson, said there have been several days since the September opening that have brought up to 10,000 clam diggers a day visiting the open beaches. Asked whether they are complying with social distance guidelines Wettstein replied, "Some are...and some aren't".

The importance of social distancing and wearing masks while visiting ocean beach towns has been a consistent message sent by tourism bureaus and chambers of commerce up and down the coast. These rural communities do not have a robust health infrastructure like large population centers do and there is a real fear the health care providers in these rural settings could be overwhelmed if a Covid-19 outbreak occurs.

Asked about whether increased visitation has caused any outbreaks, Wettstein replied there have been increases in the number of Covid-19 cases in these counties but he stated the healthcare authorities in the affected communities would be the ones to ask about this. Checking the Pacific County Health Department website Covid-19 cases have nearly doubled since the beginning of September from 60 on September 2 to 118 on October 27. However, only eight individuals have been hospitalized for Covid-19 in Pacific County and none have been admitted to hospitals since the middle of August. It is worth noting Covid-19 cases have been rising statewide since September 1 at a similar rate to what Pacific County is reporting so it is unclear what (if any) effect clam digging visitors to Pacific and Grays Harbor Counties are having when it comes to Covid 19 increases.

In spite of this, WDFW officials, after a series of meetings with county health officials along with mayors and county commissioners in this area, all agreed it would be best to close all of the beaches to razor clam digs for now. This prevents large crowds from congregating on the remaining open beaches. This closure is a significant economic hit to these communities. With summer beach goers gone, razor clam digs are a healthy shot in the arm to the hotels, restaurants, stores and shops in these coastal communities.

The next scheduled clam dig is supposed to occur from November 13 and 19. Clams will be tested for toxins a few days before that happens. As for reopening during this continuing season of Covid-19? That will be another joint decision that will come out of meetings between WDFW and local community stakeholders.

In the meantime, you can go clamming along the Northern Oregon Coast but not for razor clams. Unsafe domoic acid levels have been found here too, prompting a closure. However, there are excellent bay clamming opportunities available at Nehalem, Netarts and Tillamook Bay. Just be sure to socially distance and wear a mask when around others!

Should you get the new shingles vaccine?

This week, I've given two senior ladies their second shot of Shingrix®, the "new" shingles vaccine. Next week, I have a 92-year-old man scheduled to get his first one. He has already had shingles and wants to avoid the misery of another episode.

For most seniors, insurance covers at least part of the cost of the newer shingles vaccine, Shingrix®. One lady paid only $36 for each dose of the Shingrix® vaccine, and insurance covers the entire cost for both injections for my other two patients.

This wasn't the case with Zostavax®, the previous shingles vaccine. While most available vaccines are at least 90% effective in most people, Zostavax® was only about 50% effective in preventing shingles in older adults. Most insurance companies refused to cover it. If you wanted Zostavax®, it cost about $240 for the one injection.

What causes shingles? Shingles is caused by the same virus that causes chickenpox, called herpes zoster. Shingles is not really a "new" infection. Instead, it's a reactivation of the herpes zoster virus. After you've recovered from having chickenpox, the herpes zoster virus isn't completely killed off. Instead, it sticks around, held in a suspended state inside your nerve cells by your immune system. If your immune system weakens, it may become unable to prevent the virus from multiplying again inside your nerve cells. This creates a different type of infection: itchy blisters on your skin accompanied by burning, tingling, and pain.

What is post-herpetic neuralgia? Shingles happens when the chickenpox virus invades your nerves, causing burning, tingling, and often excruciating nerve pain, called "neuralgia." After recovering, some people will experience periodic "flares" of shingles from time to time. The painful tingling and burning from these episodes can last for months, even years.

Unfortunately, most of our pain medicines do not relieve neuralgia very well, making post-herpetic neuralgia a painful and lingering reminder of a shingles infection.

Why does this newer vaccine, Shingrix®, work better?

A compound called an adjuvant has been added to Shingrix® to help the vaccine boost your immunity to the herpes zoster virus. Adjuvants work to increase a vaccine's effectiveness by triggering a more robust reaction to it than your body otherwise would have, which boosts your immunity to it. The better your immune system responds to the vaccine, the better protection you get from both shingles and its unfortunate result, post-herpetic neuralgia.

Who should get this new shingles vaccine?

Anyone 60 years old and older should consider getting the new shingles vaccine. That's because older adults are much more likely to have a severe shingles infection or painful complications like post-herpetic neuralgia.

What's different about this new shingles vaccine?

The new vaccine, Shingrix®, is over 95% effective in preventing shingles when compared to Zostavax®, which is only about 50% effective. Instead of only one shot, Shingrix® is a course of two injections spaced 2 to 6 months apart. Each contains an adjuvant, which is a compound added to boost your immune response to the vaccine.

Where can I get the Shingrix® vaccine?

Your local pharmacy is your best bet. Shingrix® is billed through private insurance or through Medicare supplemental insurance under Part D, which covers medications. Most pharmacies have Shingrix® available and have staff that can administer the vaccine to you as well.

How much does Shingrix® cost?

That depends on your insurance. Without insurance coverage, expect to pay just over $300 for the entire series of two injections.

Here are 5 Things To Know About Shingrix® Vaccine:

1. It's more effective than Zostavax®.

Shingrix® is over 95% effective in preventing shingles. The older vaccine, Zostavax®, was only about 50% effective for the prevention of shingles.

2. You will need 2 shots.

For best protection against shingles, you'll need 2 shots of Shingrix® spaced 2 to 6 months apart. Don't forget to schedule your second vaccination.

3. If you have already had shingles, Shingrix® can help.

Shingrix® helps reduce or prevent painful episodes of post-herpetic neuralgia, whether or not you have already had shingles.

4. It doesn't matter if you have already had Zostavax®.

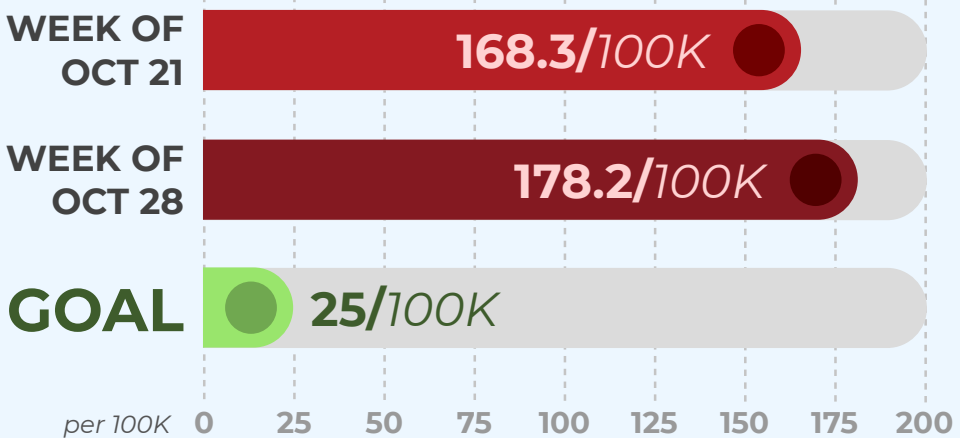

You can get vaccinated with Shingrix® even if you already have received Zostavax®.

5. It's less expensive.

Even though they wouldn't pay for the older vaccine Zostavax®, insurance companies are much more willing to pay for Shingrix®. For example, two of my patients this week have their insurance covering the entire cost. My other patient is only paying $72 for the complete series of two shots.
