

Who is running for Governor?

By BILL FORHAN
Publisher

With a little over 3 weeks before the primary election. It is unclear who is running. The deadline for filing was May 15. The Secretary of State's office lists 37 candidates have filed although one has apparently dropped out as it has been lined out on the list.

Most media are reporting that Jay Inslee is the only Democrat(ic) candidate running, but SOS lists 5 who listed Democrat(ic) Party as their preference. We are attempting to contact the other four Democrat(ic) candidates but one has no contact information other than a snail mail address. Here is what we have been able to discover through an Internet search:

Dr. Cairo D Almeida is President of Government Employees Local 1121. According to his website Dr. Almeida's vision is, "Help the homeless get their basic needs met and provide the veterans and foster parents with more psychological support so they can exist and function within a society that does not understand how it feels to be different. Use the Affordable House Care Act (AHCA) to give the people an opportunity to recreate the middle class. Develop ways to improve the current infrastructure and put an end to the use of fossil fuel era. Support the use of new technology to create more jobs that takes into account women, LGBTQ, WOMXN, LatinX, people of color and other minorities. This vast and diverse society will help us achieve the green dream state for others to emulate. Eliminate all for profit jails and detention centers. Free bus pass to student that go to school at least part-time. Expand the light rail to every county and city that has 10,000 people or more. Put an end to the use of fossil fuel.

Omari Tahir Garrett is a long time Seattle Activist. He ran for Seattle City Council in 2015. He spent 21 months in prison for punching Seattle Mayor Paul Shell in the face with a megaphone in 2001. Among Garret's causes over the years is he calls for returning all land taken from the native peoples by colonialists. He says the American gun culture must be eliminated and he says without justice there can be no peace.

Don L. Rivers has never held public office. His statement from his campaign website says, "I am here for you, the people. Never have I waited on an elected seat to be a voice for the people. Regardless of cultural beliefs or political point of views. I have worked with Republicans, Democrats and Independents on local and Federal Levels. I will be taking with me to Olympia, the 3 L's; Listen, Learn and Lead. Having the understanding that we have to work together and preserve our democracy. It has been an honor for me to serve across this world from Africa to Gaza Strip and beyond, as an Ambassador For Peace and Social Justice. I have over 40 years of experience working effectively across the aisle with elected officials. We Washingtonians have to recognize the world is watching us, we have set examples by embracing new beginnings. I will make sure that the voters in Eastern Washington know that their next Governor is working for them. It has always been necessary and compulsory for me to help the voiceless. Supplementary to giving a voice to all the people, my motivation to run for Governor is to break down practiced tribalism, while prioritizing the voice of the people in every county and in every city here at home. We will work on resolving severe issues, reminding us, to find value in a effective Government. After all, the most significant words of the United States Constitution is. "We The People".

Gene Hart has not held political office. He is a civil service employee and veteran from Bremerton. In his statement published in the Kitsap County voters pamphlet his statement is as follows: "Many activists and a state-sponsored working group are working on healthcare reform, here in Washington, our home. Coming to The People's desk for signature first, as Washington State Governor, I would most likely sign that reform, given my sense of it, as the next step for healthcare as an unalienable right.

We need our Robust Economy, rural and urban, to pay for our programs. Before, it was only good, fair reduced taxes for The Great Majority, followed by education, our state's Paramount Duty, as mandated by our Washington State Constitution and Target Zero transportation deaths and transportation major injuries before this decade's end. Our pandemical tsunami has changed the lay of the land.

Now We all require that rural and urban Robust Economy and good, fair revenue, yes Fair Taxes, family wage jobs, thriving independent, employee-owned businesses et cetera. In my mind, it really is Full Mobilization, All Hands, Non-Profits, Profits and Government needed, urged, coached and inspired. As Governor, Washington our home, I will establish a Kitchen Cabinet concept in Office of the Governor to educate and move our People, our economy our society, Onward. We already have top quality, volunteers waiting in the wings.

This is our home. We want, We deserve more. Putting People First, Keeping People First. It short, I want the good, better and best angels of our nature, fully mobilized, not the ugly, worst and flawed earth angels of our nature. My apology for long-winded polemic, but you did press the on button and it worked.

The only limits to our realizations of tomorrows will be our doubts of todays. Let us move forward with strong and active faith. Adapted from FDR's last undelivered Warm Springs address. For more info, access Realistically, none of these candidates stand a chance of defeating two term Governor, Jay Inslee, in the August 14 primary. But if you are a Democrat or even a Republican who cannot stomach voting for Inslee or President Trump these are some options you could select.

There are sixteen candidates who declared to be Independents, minority party candidates or stated they had no party preference. They also don't stand a chance of getting elected and will most likely be eliminated in the August 4 primary.

We will cover the 15 Republicans in the race next week and the other 16 candidates the week before the primary.

Projekt Bayern announces cancellation of Oktoberfest

It is with great sadness that we announce the cancelation of the 2020 Leavenworth Oktoberfest due to the current COVID-19 restrictions. It goes without saying that this has been a trying year for all of us, but please know Projekt Bayern was doing everything humanly possible to keep the festival from canceling. Our biggest concern was over our Liquor permits being denied by the City and State. We held on hoping Chelan County would move through the Phases set forth by the State of Washington, but with little movement we decided to cancel the event to protect our patrons from losing their deposits for hotels and travel agendas. The safety of our guests and employees was also a huge factor.

Our beautiful Bavarian city is breathtaking during the fall months with the brilliant colors of red, vibrant orange and golden yellow all backdropped by the Cascade Range. So, if you can keep your vacation plans, we guarantee you the hardworking Leavenworth business owners will welcome you with open arms for an utterly amazing visit.

We want to thank all our Oktoberfest Employees, Entertainment, Vendors and Loyal Patrons for your years of loyalty and hope that you will return next year for our 25th Anniversary of the Leavenworth Oktoberfest! We will have more details regarding the 25th Anniversary soon, but we plan to throw an Oktoberfest Celebration that will be unforgettable! The dates for the 2021 Leavenworth Oktoberfest are October 1-2, 8-9, &15-16. Please visit our website at www.LeavenworthOktoberfest.com for any further information.

CDHD Stresses Importance Of Masking-Up

SUBMITTED BY VERONICA FARIAS

Positive cases increase 37% since partial reopening on June 10, 2020

EAST WENATCHEE – "Masking up is the next best thing to a vaccine right now," urges Chelan-Douglas Health Officer Dr. Malcolm Butler. "The Governor's decision to require everyone to wear a face mask in public, especially when social distancing of 6 feet isn't possible, was the right call," Butler added. Chelan-Douglas Counties are seeing a significant up-tick in new COVID-19 positive cases.

In an effort to identify the prevalence of mask-wearing in Chelan and Douglas county retail outlets, CDHD began spot checks to do physical counts of mask-wearing for both retail business employees and customers. The first week of data-gathering revealed:

The data was collected at nine retail stores in Wenatchee and six stores in East Wenatchee. The surveys were done prior to the Governor's June 26 masking requirement. CDHD will continue to survey businesses throughout the two counties to determine the amount of compliance there is with the masking effort and to pinpoint ways to increase education and outreach efforts about the need for masking when in public.

"It's the air you share," Dr. Butler added. "We have got to get a handle on the spread of COVID-19 – not only to be able to move fully into Phase 2 of the State's Safe Start reopening plan, but also to protect our community." The Health District is partnering with local elected officials, Chambers of Commerce, law enforcement, the ecumenical community and other organizations to get information out to all sectors of Chelan-Douglas counties and to encourage public masking.

"We have heard concerns expressed that wearing a mask could prevent someone from getting adequate oxygen when they breathe," states Dr. Butler.

"The evidence simply isn't there. A proper fitting mask that covers both the nose and mouth may seem a bit foreign at first, but it does not block an individual's ability to breathe during normal activities." Washington State Department of Health recognizes that there are a few cases where masking may not be recommended, but they are very limited. For more complete information, please visit this link.

As we go into the Fourth of July holiday weekend when the temptation for group gatherings and a relaxation of COVID-19 safe practices may occur, Dr. Butler reminds us all: Be a protector – not an infector. For more information, visit www.cdhd.wa.gov/covid-19 and follow us on Facebook & Twitter.

There is hope for the constitution!

In a rare unanimous Supreme Court decision the justices ruled presidential electors can be required to cast ballots for the candidate who wins their state's popular vote. The decision eliminates any Electoral College uncertainty as the U.S. heads toward a contentious election in November.

The court, in an opinion by Justice Elena Kagan, said that states stand on firm constitutional and historical ground in requiring that presidential electors must stick with the state's voter-chosen candidate. In recent years a divided American electorate have often argued that the electoral college was an outdated system for electing a President prompting many left leaning voters to push for their electors to vote their conscience. This would make those electors "super voters" in the minds of other voters. Our Founding Fathers realized that electing a national President on the popular vote would put small states at a disadvantage. Allowing large states to dictate the election of a President. In recent elections it is clear that without the control in place by the electoral college system, New York and California would decide who the President would be. The issue came to a head most recently in the election of Donald Trump over Hillary Clinton. Trump won the vote in the electoral college while Clinton had a small majority in the national popular vote. This was greatly disturbing to Clinton supporters who called on electors appointed by their state to break rank and vote for Clinton over Trump. A few actually did just that. With a court that is divided on most decisions 5-4. The justices came together to support the design as laid out in our Constitution by the Founding Fathers.

Goehner: ‘We need to listen to the people’

SUBMITTED BY REP. KEITH GOEHNER

We need to listen to the people

This session, we have seen a number of bills that go against what the people of Washington are telling us. Below are some examples of the majority party not listening to our citizens.

Comprehensive sex education bill

(Senate Bill 5395): I have received thousands of emails against the comprehensive sex education legislation and very few supporting it. More than 600 people attended the public hearing in the House Education Committee to testify against it. Republicans debated the bill for more than six hours in the House.

Just last week, there were hundreds of people at the Capitol to protest the bill and request the governor veto the measure. Despite the public outcry, it is expected that the governor will sign the bill into law and all students will have to take an approved sex education class starting in the 2022-23 school year.

Office of equity

(House Bill 1783): This creates the Washington State Office of Equity. Everyone needs to be treated equitably, but this simply creates more state agency bureaucracy. It is difficult to determine why it is different than the many other commissions we already have in place in our state to ensure equality and equity issues. This flies in the face of voters who rejected Referendum 88, including a majority in our district.

Low-carbon fuel standard

(House Bill 1110): This passed the House, but did not make it out of the Senate. This would have increased the costs of gas, diesel, goods and services, while having very little benefit for air quality. Washingtonians have made it clear how they feel about a carbon tax and a carbon fee, by voting against it twice already (I-732 and I-1631) in the last five years.

More taxes on business

Last year, Democrats passed massive new and increased taxes. The first bill passed this session was a business and occupation (B&O) tax increase, Senate Bill 6492, fast-tracked through the legislative process in 10 days. This legislation was to clean up the “free college” legislation passed at the end of the 2019 legislative session. This new law taxes an estimated 4,000 new businesses (14,000 total now, that employ 886,000 people) to bring in additional tax collections, since the bill they passed last year doesn't bring in enough to cover everyone that applied. Professions that would be impacted include health care providers, construction, and other industries that will just pass along the cost to consumers.

Penalties reduced for intentionally infecting others with HIV

House Democrats passed House Bill 1551 this session that would reduce the punishment for those who intentionally infect another with the HIV virus. It would reduce the crime of intentional transmission of HIV from the felony crime of assault in the first degree down to a misdemeanor or gross misdemeanor. This is very concerning. If someone intends to cause bodily harm with a disease like HIV, they should be punished accordingly, not get by with a slap on the wrist.

I am also concerned with the parental rights aspect of this legislation. The bill would allow a minor as young as 14 years of age to receive treatment to avoid HIV infection without a parent or guardian's consent. Parents should be involved in a minor's health care decisions, especially something like HIV.

Coronavirus

As you are aware, the coronavirus (COVID-19) is rapidly spreading through Washington state and the country. Here are some links that may be helpful: DOH website: doh.wa.gov/Emergencies/Coronavirus, DOH: How can I be prepared?, Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction: School closure information, Chelan Douglas Health District: cdhd.wa.gov, Grant County Health District: granthealth.org and the Okanogan County Public Health: okanogancounty.org/ocph/.

One of the last pieces of legislation uses $175 million from the rainy day fund for state and local agencies to fight the disease, as well as $25 million for a new COVID-19 unemployment account. It will allow employers who have employees receiving unemployment insurance benefits because of the virus outbreak to have those charges be reimbursed by the state. With the uncertainty surrounding the virus and the shutdown of our small businesses, we want to be mindful of the devastating impact this could have on them.

The legislation also allows the state Board of Education to grant emergency waivers to high school students who won't be able to meet certain graduation requirements if their schools are closed for an extended time. If you have questions, you can call the Washington State Department of Health (DOH) at 1-800-525-0127 and press #.

Operating budget

I voted against the supplemental operating budget. It addresses some important issues such as behavioral health, homelessness and early learning. However, it spends too much, doesn't save enough, and is unsustainable, especially given the uncertainty and impact the coronavirus may have on our economy and communities. It spends most of the tax revenue windfall coming into the state I mentioned in my last email update. We are not equipped to handle an impending economic downturn.

With this budget, spending has increased about 73% since 2013. The increase is not fiscally responsible. From the last biennium alone, spending has increased 20%. The budget passed on a party-line vote with all Democrats voting “yea” and Republicans voting “no.”

Transportation budget

Unlike the supplemental operating budget, the supplemental transportation budget was bipartisan. We did face some challenges due to the shortfall caused by I-976, but both parties and chambers worked together to prioritize special needs transportation, ensure projects were taken off hold that had been paused by the governor, and make a minimal impact to preservation and maintenance.

Republicans have asked that the will of the voters be honored by implementing $30 car tabs into law. While we were not able to get it through the legislative process, the court has upheld the initiative. We will still need to wait and see how the Department of Licensing and Department of Revenue move forward on this issue.

I would add, that we will be faced with some tough decisions ahead as we need to work on finding additional revenue for future transportation infrastructure needs.

Capital budget

The supplemental capital budget is an important piece of our legislative process in advocating for projects that will benefit the communities in our district. It contains bricks and mortar type projects for our K-12 schools, colleges, local governments and community projects where funding may be difficult to come by. It also focuses on stewardship projects protecting our farmlands, waterways and environment.

This year's budget addresses priority areas such as mental health and early learning. We were also able to secure funding for projects in the 12th District including:

- The Parkside Place Project in Wenatchee;
- Anderson road infrastructure in Chelan;
- Bridgeport irrigation in Brewster;
- Renewable hydrogen production pilot in East Wenatchee; and
- Wenatchee Valley Museum and Cultural Center in Wenatchee.

Clean energy legislation dies in Senate

We pride ourselves on clean energy in North Central Washington. With that, I am disappointed my House Bill 2825 that would provide a tax incentive for those who use oil-free hydroelectric turbines did not make it through the legislative process.

It looked like we had reached an agreement in the last few days and it passed the House 93-4, only to die in the Senate. Our utility districts could have benefited from this oil-free technology as we continue to advance our clean energy hydropower system in North Central Washington.

Stay in touch

While the legislative session is over, please remember I am your state representative year-round. I am available to answer your questions, listen to your ideas and help you navigate problems with state government. My district office phone number is 509-664-1274.

Republicans introduce plan for restarting economy

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON STATE GOP

OLYMPIA - Republicans in the state Senate and House of Representatives shared the first plan for safely restarting Washington's economy while state government's response to the COVID-19 emergency continues.

“Employers across our state are looking to government for a strategy that starts to take the brake off the economy. Republicans have come through with a safe and reasonable approach for beginning the recovery,” said Senate Republican Leader Mark Schoessler.

“We believe many sectors of our economy can operate safely, and employers have every incentive to take the precautions needed to guard the health of their workers and their customers. We trust that if they have an opportunity to open their doors, they'll make it work.”

“Our state needs a comprehensive plan to restart its economy in ways that continue to emphasize the health of Washingtonians. No one has produced a plan until now,” said House Republican Leader J.T. Wilcox.

Republicans have been working over the last months to come up with solutions. Employers and workers need reassurance in these uncertain times. They need to know there's a plan for them to come back, according to the GOP news release.

The Republican legislators' Safe Economic Restart Plan recommends three tiers of actions, starting with steps that may be authorized immediately by Governor Jay Inslee. They include:

- Convene a Restart Task Force comprising legislative leaders, relevant executive-branch directors and representatives of the business and organized-labor communities. This group will chart a course toward allowing all Washington businesses to reopen, on a phased or limited basis as necessary, with COVID-19 protections for workers and customers in place.
- Allow operations to resume in economic sectors that fit one or more of these criteria: low-risk; personal health; environmental protection; aid to people who are elderly, physically challenged, or both; alternate quarantine locations; assisting businesses with tax-related requirements; and property protection. Examples are auto dealers, solo landscape services, car washes, remodeling companies and contractors, residential construction, hairdressers and barbers, flower shops, RV parks, dentists, installers of home and commercial security systems, and accountants and tax preparers.

- Fully disclose the “metrics” that must be met before the governor's March 23 stay-at-home proclamation, which closed more than 230,000 businesses abruptly, can be lifted or amended. Knowing the standards will allow the people of Washington to act accordingly.
- Deliver on the massive testing capabilities promised by state health officials ahead of the business-closure order. Direct the appropriate state agencies to acquire antibody tests and work with employers to screen workers. Workers found to have the antibodies resulting from the COVID-19 infection will be immediately eligible for employment.

- Interface with the governor's Business Recovery Legislative Task Force and be prepared to support recommendations that are achievable, measurable and complementary.
- A moratorium on all state-agency rule-making not related to the current crisis. Rules are important, but at a time when many businesses are simply trying to survive, the making of new rules seems less than essential. Relief from rule-making goes hand-in-hand with relief from taxes.
- Exempt small businesses from paying sales and business-and-occupation

(B&O) taxes for one year.

- Offer state-government assistance to the many small businesses in Washington that do not qualify for federal emergency-assistance programs.

“We are looking forward to working with the governor and majority party to produce the best possible results for both our public health and our economic crisis,” said Wilcox, R-Yelm.

“Republicans work for all of Washington, and we recognize how a strong economy makes for strong families and strong communities. Our state's economy was particularly strong before things caved in, and we believe it can get there again – and sooner if the governor and Legislature will support these very reasonable ideas,” said Schoessler, R-Ritzville.

Thank you Cashmere

Cashmere Food Bank wants to say a big "Thank You" to our community – for your donations of both food and money during this difficult season affecting us all. It is such an amazing display of your ongoing care and generosity. You have always stepped up for us through the years, and we could not have delivered during the COVID-19 crisis without you. Our heartfelt gratitude goes out to the whole valley, having received donations from Leavenworth, Peshastin, Cashmere, Monitor and Wenatchee. So, on behalf of the Cashmere Food Bank, thank you for helping us ease hunger for vulnerable people in this troubled time!

Tearing Down History

Centuries-old statues and monuments are toppling around us and yet people are still not satisfied. Therefore, BLM Activist Shaun King is now calling on people to tear down Christian iconography because, according to him, they are symbols of "white supremacy" which promote racism and oppression.

As a nation, we should find the call to destroy Christian iconography and artwork disturbing. It is not because these objects have power in and of themselves. We, Christians, are not pagan in that we believe inanimate objects of stone or oil painted on canvas are living but rather we consider them symbolic of a historical Christian faith that has been passed down for generations. The destruction of these symbols is another evidence that the nation, in throes of rebellion, is seeking to remove any evidence of religious conscience and conviction that gave rise to America's birth.

Already we have seen churches vandalized and burnt down, stained glass destroyed and crosses removed from their edifices. In the debris, a new way in our country is being paved along with a new religion. From the smoke and ashes, this new religion has its own iconography, doctrine, creed of "Black Lives Matter" and catechizes it's followers in the way of "No justice. No peace." This religion seeks to destroy all of its competitors and demands total and utter compliance. Domination is the game and to achieve it the method is massive upheaval and destruction of all things old. Antiquity, tradition, and history are diseases. Modernity, progressivism, and social justice are the cure.

Although this is new for America, the method of destroying historical objects of significance, especially Christian ones, is a time-tested and effective way of moving a society towards change. It is violent as it is expedient and looking back in history, this is precisely what happened in Communist Russia, China, and Fascist Germany. Each nation experienced a fundamental transformation that came by way of obliteration of history. Books were burned, statues of emperors and historical figures destroyed, and churches were leveled. Any hints of a period before the "movement" were erased so that a new history--a history according to them--could be written.

Getting back to the tearing down of Christian iconography in our present day, what makes BLM activists like Shaun King so eager to remove them is not because of some crusade against systemic racism but what these symbols actually depict: the Christian faith. Regardless of what color artisans portray Jesus and let me be frank, most depictions of Jesus aren't historically accurate to begin with, the fact remains, Christ is king and all will bow before him. Christianity exists in the world to proclaim "Jesus is Lord" and call people to repent and believe the gospel. It is because of that message and the consistent pointing to objective truth, that makes the world full of Shaun Kings, so angry and rage against anything and everything that would embody that world view.

According to the Bible, nations rage at the authority of God (Psalm 2:1) and say "With our tongue we will prevail, our lips are with us; who is master over us?" (Psalm 12:4). That rage has fomented into what we are witnessing today, yet "He who sits in the heavens laughs." (Psalm 2:4). BLM and their ilk can shake their fist, protest, and even use the force of rhetoric and violence to tear down all things sacred. But ultimately it will be done in vain. The cross will always stand and its representation of the justice and mercy of God meeting in the death of Christ will continue to prevail in minds and hearts. In their want of destruction, they will end up destroying themselves but the Church will continue to build and the Kingdom of God will continue to advance.

Shaun King and all those who agree with him have issued out a threat of which we should take seriously. However, God has issued his own warning.

"Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and you perish in the way, for his wrath is quickly kindled." (Psalm 2:12).

These are not empty words and must be heeded by all. Tear down a cross, burn down a building, shatter a glass window all you want, but that will never erase the reality that all must call upon Christ as Lord. To those who do, "Blessed are those who take refuge in him." (Psalm 2:12) and I pray for Shaun and his followers that they will.

How sweet do you like your iced tea?

“How sweet it is!” is a quote from the late comedian Jackie Gleason.

How sweet do you like your iced tea? Drinking tea over ice during the heat of the summer months is refreshing. Most places serve iced tea unsweetened and poured over a tall glass with a straw. You can drink it as is, or add the amount and type of sweetener you prefer. In the South, they serve “Sweet Tea”, a version of iced tea that is sweetened while hot and before adding cold water and ice.

I used to make “Sun Tea” by placing tea bags in cold water and setting them out in the sun to steep. This practice has been called risky because the water gets warm but not hot, definitely below 100 degrees. That’s warm enough to encourage yeast and bacteria to multiply, like letting homemade bread rise to allow the yeast to multiply. When you pour boiling water over tea, most bacteria don’t survive.

You can also brew tea with cold water, in the refrigerator overnight. This method helps bring out the more subtle flavors of green teas and white teas.

When it comes to sweeteners, you have quite a few choices: liquid or powdered, natural or artificial, plain sugar or sugar alternative. Liquid sweeteners like honey, agave, molasses or simple syrups like those used to flavor lattes and other coffee drinks can also be used in teas. Powdered sweeteners include cane sugar, coconut sugar and various sugar substitutes.

When reaching for a packet of sweetener for your glass of iced tea, which color do you grab? White, pink, blue, yellow, or green? White packets contain cane or beet sugar, while colored packets contain non-caloric sweeteners. Pink packets have the sweetener saccharine,

Salmon opportunities and public lands cash

Sockeye Salmon
Sockeye fishing opened on the Columbia River from the Highway 395 Bridge in Pasco to the Highway 17 Bridge in Bridgeport on July 1 and with a two fish limit angler interest is high.

Some 200,000 sockeye had passed over Bonneville Dam as of July 1. This is indeed a good run compared to last year’s paltry returns but still about 8 percent below the 10-year average. Although the season is open now for Upper Columbia River anglers the best fishing won’t happen for another week or two. As of July 1, only 22,580 sockeye had made it over Priest Rapids Dam.

The initial hot spot for this fishery will be just below Wanapum Dam south of Vantage though some anglers are already having good success above Rocky Reach Dam near Wenatchee. As the month progresses the hot spots will be just below Wells Dam south of Pateros, and in the Brewster Pool below the mouth of the Okanogan River. If you don’t have a boat there are some opportunities to catch a fish from shore just above Rocky Reach Dam. However, trolling for sockeye is the best way to go.

Traditionally, trolling a bare red hook behind a flasher is what most people use to get bites from sockeye salmon. In recent years though, offerings like a Mack’s Lure Cha Cha Sockeye Squidder with a small squid body below a mylar spinner in hot pink, red or orange have become go to offerings for many anglers known as Sweet’N Low®, yellow packets contain sucralose or Splenda®, and blue packets have aspartame or NutraSweet®.

Green packets contain stevia, one of the newest calorie-free sweeteners. Stevia comes from a plant native to South America in the chrysanthemum family and related to ragweed. Originally approved as a dietary supplement to improve blood pressure and diabetes control, stevia was approved for use as a food additive in 2008 and is marketed as the sweetener Truvia®. Stevia is also sold blended with other non-caloric sweeteners.

Sugar substitutes have been used for decades as food additives and are considered safe. You’d think that switching from using sugar to a non-caloric sweetener would help you lose weight and control your blood sugar, but that has not been consistently the case.

Non-caloric sugar substitutes help reduce cavities, but in certain people they can trigger increased blood sugar, just like regular sugar. One study showed that after meals including a food or drink sweetened with non-caloric sweeteners, the blood sugar of participants rose higher than expected and dropped back to normal levels much more slowly, a pattern called glucose intolerance associated with an increased risk of becoming diabetic.

Xylitol is a low-calorie sweetener extracted from natural sources such as corn. Because of its protective effect on tooth enamel, xylitol is added to sugarless gum and mints and is marketed as a sugar substitute for baking. Xylitol may be a dentist’s friend but it’s a dog owner’s nightmare.

Xylitol is deadly to dogs, causing very low blood sugar, liver damage, and liver failure. Xylitol triggers a dog’s pancreas to pump out insulin. Without sugar to balance that extra insulin, their blood sugar drops so low they have seizures. There is no safe dose; even a small amount of xylitol can kill a dog.

Iced tea sometimes tastes bitter. During brewing, agitating the leaves of tea releases tannins into the water, turning it bitter. Luckily, there are several ways to avoid the astringent “pucker” of tannins in your iced tea.

Three ways to make a mel-low glass of ice tea:

1. Don’t dunk.
Avoid agitating your tea bag or tea ball when brewing hot or iced tea. Dunking your tea bag up and down in your cup encourages tannins to leach into the brew, making it bitter.

2. Choose a special blend.
Teas and teabags formulated especially for making iced tea are available from companies like Luzianne® and Lipton®.

3. Add a pinch of baking soda.
I was amazed at how this took the “bite” out of my ice tea! Decrease the bitterness of your ice tea by adding a pinch of baking SODA (not baking powder) to your tea bags right BEFORE you add any boiling water. This also helps your ice tea brew up clear instead of cloudy.

Bob Loomis and I caught these sockeye fishing the Columbia River near Brewster a few seasons back.

to include Bob Loomis with Mack’s Lure who helped design them. Loomis also recommends baiting the hook with a small amount of coon shrimp. The photo accompanying this article is proof that this works.

It’s still too early to know if Lake Wenatchee will be open for sockeye fishing this year. Biologists like to see at least 27,000 sockeye heading to the lake before they open a season and it will be hard to get an idea as to how many fish are making the turn from the Columbia into the Wenatchee River until the middle of July.

Meanwhile, sockeye fishing remains closed below the Hwy395 bridge in Pasco to protect endangered Snake River sockeye salmon. As of July 1, only 88 sockeye had crossed Ice Harbor Dam on the Snake River east of Pasco.

Shad
It’s been another strong run and for the second year in a row we are on pace to have over six million shad go over the fish ladder at Bonneville Dam again. For the next week or so a great place to fish for these sporty fish is on both the Washington and Oregon shores below John Day Dam where there is plenty of room to spread out. Brewster Salmon Derby Cancelled
Even though summer

Chinook salmon fishing is opening on much of the Columbia River this month, the popular Brewster Salmon Derby has been cancelled. It wasn’t a lack of salmon that did this event in though. Posting on Facebook, organizers said, “Covid-19 state and county mandated rules make it virtually impossible for us to safely hold a derby this year.”

More money to counties from federal lands

The U.S. Department of the Interior announced this week that counties in Washington State will receive 24.1 million dollars from this year’s Payment in Lieu of Taxes (PILT) program. These funds are allocated every year to individual counties, compensating them for the tax-exempt federal lands that lie within their boundaries. These lands include national forests, fish and wildlife refuges, national parks and Bureau of Land Management land.

This year counties are seeing a million dollar increase in the funds they are receiving across Washington State. The approximate funds received by each county in our region are:

Chelan County - $3,244,000 ($150,000 more than last year)
Douglas County - $164,600 ($20,000 more than 2019)
