In celebration of Founders' Days and the Cashmere Museum and Pioneer Village's 60 year anniversary, the museum, and the Cashmere Public Library partnered for a set of readings "Founders' Days Alive!" An Evening of History" on June 27.

The first set of readings were held at the museum at 1 p.m., followed by a 6:30 p.m. performance at the library where several artifacts were also on display for community members to view.

The readings were comprised from articles, letters and journal entries from the museum's archives, and performed by Cashmere High School students Faith Acton and Faith Kruse, and museum board secretary JoAnne Prusa.

Acton read a brief history of the Cashmere Museum, beginning with Willis Carey's dream, and a group of volunteers and organizers coming together to create the Cashmere Museum and Pioneer Village. After Acton finished her reading, the presentation was moved to inside the lobby due to thunder and rain.

Kruse read different accounts from the town, including a letter from a commanding officer to the father of a fallen soldier from Cashmere, the transition of steam operations to Cashmere, and an account of a woman's recollection of working in the town.

Prusa read letters written Olive Ward Joy, who enlisted in the Women's Army Corps and detailed her experiences in the army. She also recited letters from her husband, Alvin "Happy" Ward, and her nephew Dick Ward, who was enlisted in the army.

Kruse said she liked having the opportunity to look recite different pieces of the town's history and viewpoints in front of an audience.

"It's also a great way to give back to the community," Kruse added.

Like Kruse, Acton enjoyed learning aspects of Cashmere's history in preparation for her reading.

"It's also great seeing people come out and bringing their kids to learn about the town's history," she said.

Cashmere Council receives 9/11 Memorial construction update

For the second phase of the 9/11 Memorial construction project, crews will remove the Gallery Tree bronze plaque.

By AL STOVER

Sports Reporter

During their June 24 meeting, the Cashmere City Council received information regarding the second phase of the 9/11 Memorial construction project.

The schedule includes a breakdown of the various tasks crews will complete during the project's construction.

Work such as removing the sidewalk and excavating new areas for the monument footings will take six hours. The task that will require the most time is constructing the three monument footings and bases, which will take 12 hours.

The estimated time for the entire project is 77.5 hours. Crews will also attempt to combine more than one task in a work day if they have the available resources.

Mayor Jim Fletcher noted the construction schedule was drafted into a calendar format. The main objective of having a construction schedule for the project is to ensure construction will not interfere with scheduled events at the Riverside Center.

In the only action item of the meeting, the council approved Ordinance No. 1277, which repeals section 13.15.155, "Special System Development Charge."

The Special System Development Charge ordinance, adopted in 2007, imposed a $330 system development charge for new connections to the sewer line. The fee only applied to the sewer line on Kimber Road.

City staff felt the $330 fee became unnecessary since connection costs are already included. Repealing the ordinance will also lower the cost of future connections to the Kimber Road sewer line.

Fletcher also brought a draft of a proposed long-term monthly rental agreement between the city and Cashmere School District for the River Street Property.

Cashmere library patrons got to experience a taste of Greek Mythology courtesy of The Book-It Repertory Theatre's live performance of the Odyssey: an Exploration of Myth, Magic and Monsters on June 24.

Book-It Repertory Theatre is a Seattle-based non-profit organization formed 29 years ago. According to their website, the organization adapts literature for performance art for all ages, and tours throughout the Northwest. The organization's performance of the Odyssey was adapted and directed by Annie DeMartino.

Composed by the poet Homer, "The Odyssey" is a tale detailing the adventures of Odysseus, the king of Ithaca, after the Trojan War. Odysseus and his crew have to overcome obstacles, battle monsters and navigate through the seas on his way home. While Odysseus and his men are engaged in epic challenges, his wife Penelope faces her own battle in the form of suitors who have invaded her home and seek her hand in marriage while her husband is away.

Jordi Montes, one of the performing artists with Book-It, noted the Greeks performed the Odyssey and other tales using masks in order to tell the audience which characters were on stage, and to amplify their voices.

Author captures his hometown in print - 'Images of America: Cashmere'

KALIE DRAGO

Record Reporter

Home is where the heart is, especially when home is in the heart of Washington like Cashmere. Even after people have outgrown their roots and land elsewhere, hometowns typically hold a significant value to individuals. Lance Brender, former Cashmere resident, not only values his hometown that is in the heart of Washington, but used his former stomping grounds as the muse for his book, 'Images of America: Cashmere'.

"I really love my hometown. I don't live there anymore, but I wanted to tell its story," said Brender.

The idea to capture Cashmere's history in print struck him several years ago when he was thumbing through books in A Book For All Seasons in Leavenworth. Brender was in the local book collection area when he realized while there were books documenting Wenatchee and Leavenworth history, Cashmere's past wasn't stocked on the shelf. With the idea planted in his mind, a few years after his day at the book store Brender decided to jot down Cashmere's chronicles.

"I wanted to preserve something of the town and give something back to it," said Brender. With the premise of capturing the beaten path of Cashmere's history guiding him, Brender used the tools at his disposal along with his own individual ties to the community to help him pen in black and white Cashmere's colorful history. He relied on Cashmere Museum, Wenatchee Valley Museum and various locals, such as Linda Ingraham, to get a three dimensional synopsis of Cashmere's background.

"To turn the facts and the incomprehensible, complex thing called life and condense it to 268 pages and telling a story was by far the most challenging aspect of writing the book," said Brender.

Brender interviewed Fred Harvey, Cashmere Museum curator, and Joseph Brouillette, lifelong Cashmere resident, to get a wide scope of point of view and knowledge on the Pioneer Village. He produced old photos he found at the Cashmere Museum, then recorded Harvey and Brouillette discussing what memories the photos stirred up from the past.

Bribery being used to win 2020 presidency

Every Democrat presidential candidate has vowed to seek reparations for the descendants of American slaves, which may cost, let's guess, $1 billion dollars. This "solemn pledge," this litmus test for all Democrat candidates, is an outright attempt at bribing the African-American population, which usually votes for a Democrat anyway, to vote in even greater numbers as now there is money to be had adding motivation.

Money in a voter's pocket has always been the magic platform wand used to militate the base of both political parties.

As if that wasn't bad enough as an example of overt moral corruptness, how about the attempt on television last week to promise every illegal alien the same rights as actual American citizens?

Shameful for any politician to make these pledges, but even worse is the completely over the top national audience display of pandering to the entire Hispanic community.

Each candidate kept upping to ante on how incredibly nice they would be to all Latinos if only they became president.

They might as well have been screaming the benefits in a Spanish rap song, "Yo soy es mas beneficoso todos familia, Yo soy, yo soy!" meaning I am the most beneficial to families, I am, I am!

The promises kept coming as each wanna-be president shouted bigger and better benefits if only they were chosen by this majority-minority voter's block.

Democrats are shameless in their begging, but the worst part is, the benefits promised to illegal immigrants will cost far more than a mere one-time "reparations" payment to our recently co-opted minority - Blacks.

One billion dollars will look like chicken feed once the bill is tallied for all the promises of free education, free housing, free food, free health care and free rights as if to say, "you crossed the border illegally, but don't worry about it."

The Democrats never met an expenditure they didn't like, but these promises will bankrupt our nation into Third World status.

"We'll just raise the taxes on "rich people" is the common mantra coming from the Left. Let's just guess at the potential cost of this kissing butt from the Left: $1 trillion is my guess. That's because this isn't a one-time payment, but a never ending so-called entitlement.

Entitlements are the "gifts" that keep on giving, like an STD. Why is that even close to being fair? Why should successful people be penalized in our Capitalist society? Self-made persons of all colors, faiths and genders ought to be outraged that the answer to showing compassion to one group means taking advantage of another group.

Nothing can be more anti-American than these communist ideas being embraced by the Left.

"Rich" people already have proven their own wealth to our societal fabric by working hard, investing wisely, being opportunistic and in a word, exercising entrepreneurial spirit.

They create companies, jobs and optimism even if their wealth is taxed many times along the way before some of it lands in their bank accounts.

The American dream still lives in the middle class, millions of whom will one day also become "rich" after decades of toil.

Republicans should label Democrat presidential hopefuls with this broad brush: "Soy un perdedor, I'm a loser baby, so why don't you kill me?" (as sung by musician Beck in his monster hit "Loser.")

Now the Lefties will accuse me of promoting violence on these hapless politicians. Not the case. I don't wish anyone physical harm, but neither do I wish most of the country financial harm if one of these Bozos gets elected.

Home away from home for pups in the area

By KALIE DRAGO
Record Reporter

All About That Dog - the name of the business should be read to the same tune of All About That Bass by singer Meghan Trainor - is the home away from home for some four legged friends. Owner, Colleen Charbonneau, and her assistant manager, Brisco, an Irish Wolfhound, (who is a gentle giant with a sweet demeanor) run a dog daycare out of Charbonneau's home for owners that want to leave their dog in homier accommodations.

"It's like going to grandma's house," said Charbonneau. "My favorite part of what I do is when they drop them (like her regular visitor, Connie) off and the dog is so excited to see me and they're running toward me. They trust you and there's familiarity."

Charbonneau has a natural disposition to giving dogs tender, love and care even before she started her temporary dog hotel business 15 years ago and is a self proclaimed dog lover and homebody - which she says plays an important role in the care she provides for the dogs.

"I love dogs, I've been around dogs my whole life. I'm also a homebody, I like to be home," said Charbonneau.

The dogs left in her care can count on a presence since Charbonneau stays close to home and can avoid that homesick and abandoned feeling that can stir when owners dart off for a seven day cruise or a quick weekend getaway. She also says once she gets the okay from owners, she loves to tote the dogs with her on errands.

"Sometimes people don't go on vacation because they can't trust anyone with their dogs," said Charbonneau.

Instead of the sometimes cold and uninviting large scale dog boarding facilities, Charbonneau prides herself on making sure that her dog care business is as comfortable as a temporary home can be. She has plenty of dog beds, patience and her assistant Brisco to aid as a playmate with the four legged visitors. She walks them, treats them with apples and bananas and above all, keeps a close eye on the dogs.

"I think it's a really good atmosphere for dogs," said Charbonneau. "I would want a home atmosphere, not concrete floors."

Dogs under her care aren't shuffled into kennels and released for a brief 15 minute interval every few hours and don't get cramped on a cold, concrete floor.

"The quality and care I give for dogs is unbelievable," said Charbonneau.

Currently, she is caring for a blind and deaf dog, another lovable but unable to hear dog and her own, Brisco - with plenty room for more. With her many years of experience, affinity for furry friends and her volunteer work at Okanogan Dog Rescue - Charbonneau has built up quite the ability to care for dogs all sizes and age. She will care for dogs up to 30 days and says age is no obstacle, as long as the dogs are all socialized. Charbonneau is also open to just day visits from those who work that long 9-5 shift and worry about leaving their dog behind all day.

For any inquiries, Charbonneau can be reached at 423-6338 or AllaboutthatDog@gmail.com

Jerry's Auto Supply 'linking up' with NAPA

By GARY BEGIN

In a blockbuster business decision, Jerry's Auto Supply has bought a NAPA outlet in Brewster and absorbed the inventories of the Wenatchee, Leavenworth and Okanogan NAPA stores, effective August 1.

Together with NAPA, owned by Genuine Parts Company, Jerry's will become the dominant player in the North Central Washington auto parts supply industry, easily eclipsing other local and national brands.

The NAPA store located at 422 S. Wenatchee Avenue will be closing at the end of July and no employees are scheduled to lose their jobs, according to NAPA sources.

According to a news release issued June 24, the 56-year-old Jerry's Auto Supply announced it is teaming up with the NAPA Auto Parts organization, a move it says will propel the family-owned company into the future.

In all, Jerry's will operate eight NAPA-affiliated stores in seven markets as well as an Integrated Business Solution (IBS) fleet supply at the Chelan County PUD. The company will have about 90 employees and will be marketed as Jerry's Auto Supply "powered by" NAPA. Jerry's will remain family owned and operated.

"Our ownership is not changing. Our people are not changing," said Ron Berschauer, CEO of Jerry's. He schauer, CEO of Jerry's. He is very pleased to be partnering with a company committed to the same things we've always worked hard to provide: quality parts, rapid availability, and the best people in the industry. It's a natural fit."

'The Odyssey'

While stories from Greek Mythology were written hundreds of years ago, Montes said their influence can be felt today in popular stories like DC Comics' Wonder Woman, Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" and "Star Wars."

During the performance, artists Mark Fox, Devyn

Grendell and Claire Marx used masks, dialogue, dance and choreography to portray several characters and act out notable scenes from the Odyssey like Odysseus' conflict with the cyclops Polyphemus and his encounter with the goddess Cerci.

The three artists were not the only performers on stage as Montes had the audience play the roles of sheep in Polyphemus' cave, and a waterfall on wolves on the island of Aeaia.

After the play was finished, the artists took questions from the audience. One question was why the group used one large wooden prop to act as a throne, ship and cave entrance. Grendell explained that performers will bring numerous props with them on tour and sometimes have to break down the larger items to fit in their vehicles.

As for their choreography within a small space, Marx said the artists will arrive to their destination and have a "fight or dance call," before the show.

"Every space we perform in is different," Marx added.

"Sometimes it's wide, sometimes it's short. When we arrive, we'll measure the space we're performing in and adapt our movement to that."

Book-It will continue to tour "The Odyssey" until August. Montes said the organization began rehearsal for the production in January and had 56 shows before the summer tour.

"Sometimes we'll have one show in a day, other times it will be five," Fox added.

More than one audience member said they were impressed with how the group told a complicated story like The Odyssey in a way that was easily understandable, especially in a small space.

"We're all blessed to do this job and encourage reading, but also bring theater to everyone," Montes said.

While "The Odyssey" is a fictional tale, there are elements of the story based in truth. Katherine DeFazio, a library volunteer who was one of the soldiers transformed into a pig by Cerci, said she traveled the same path as Odysseus and his crew by way of boat.

"There's real adventure out there," she said, encouraging the audience to seek their own journey.

According to the draft, the city will charge the district $500 a month. The school district will use the building to store materials and equipment. Fletcher said the city had attempted to lease the property to Jaegers Towing, but could not because it is zoned for public use. The agreement also states that the renter will accept the property and building as is without any improvements required on the city's part.

The city will play all utilities connected to the property and the building, except electricity, which the renter will pay for. Fletcher noted that electricity is the only utility installed at the property.

Fletcher said he will return to the council with a lease agreement once the city hears back from the Cashmere school board, which is in the middle of discussing their budget for the 2019-2020 school year.

The council had a discussion on drought relief planning.

Director of Operations Steve Croci explained the Washington State Department of Ecology declared the Wenatchee River Basin as a drought impacted watershed.

Croci explained that staff could start promoting water conservation, and the city has an ordinance outlining the steps of what mayor can do in case of an emergency. He added that the city is nowhere near declaring a water emergency at this time.

"We just want to make sure people are aware that this is something we are considering," he added.

Croci said the city can apply for grants to help with its drought relief efforts. One potential project would be to rehabilitate Well No. 10 at the airport. He explained the well is not performing well and the motor is not producing much water and staff has shut off the well.

One option for the city is to apply for a $100,000 grant with a 50 percent matching fee to rehabilitate the well, which would consist of crews removing and rebuilding the well's pump and motor, and cleaning it. They could also install a variable frequency drive and that would adjust the rate the well is pumping water.

"It also helps with stream flows," Croci said. "If we're taking it out of the well, it's little less impactful... otherwise we're getting the water out of the river. We're not only benefitting the citizens with a more reliable water source but we're benefitting the creek as well."

Croci added that the project is straight forward and would not take much time to finish.

Another option for the city is to drill a new well adjacent of Well 10. Staff estimated the cost would be for $70,000 to construct a new well and bring it online.

In progress reports, Fletcher said the city received its $180,000 for Safe Routes for Schools grant. The grant funds will pay for four new crosswalk signs on Pioneer Street, including an advanced flashing sign.

Croci also informed the council the draft of the county's multi-jurisdiction Hazard Mitigation Plan is online and encouraged them to review the document and post their comments. He noted the plan lists the potential hazards for Cashmere and the rest of Chelan County, along with preventative measures.

Elementary nutrition program might be swallowed up

By KALIE DRAGO
 Record Reporter

Grant funded program, Food Sense, sponsors nutritionists, like Jackie Reed from Chelan and Douglas Counties extension, to visit schools and teach little ones about the food pyramid, the importance of swapping a chocolate bar for an apple and even aid the picky eaters. The Food Sense program and Reed presents these elements to Vale Elementary students.

"It's a grant funded program. I go to different schools and teach kids nutrition. It's usually grades 1-4," said Reed.

For example, Reed visits first and second grade armed with a book, healthy snacks and a plan to bring some movement in the classroom.

"It's called 'Read for Health'. I come in the classroom and we read a story with a subject related to nutrition, one of the lessons was picky eaters or the farmer's market or how to have a fit body. Then we do some type of physical movement. I serve them a healthy snack and they get the recipe and can take it home to share with their family. So they may be getting food they've never been exposed to," explained Reed.

For third and fourth grade, she also has a series of practices she does for that age group. This crew masters the food groups, the importance of breakfast, how to select whole grain and again provides a snack related to that snack. The fourth graders in particular get a hands on course where they measure how much sugar is in typical drinks the kids consume.

However, these visits to Cashmere School District's youngest members may be expiring soon.

"In order for a program to go to a school, there percentage needs to be 50% or more for their free and reduced lunch," said Reed.

Since the nutrition informative program requires 50% of the students to be enrolled for free and reduced lunch, Vale Elementary might lose out on Reed's teaching seminars. Currently, Vale Elementary has fallen below that 50%. Reed encourages those families who are qualified for free and reduced lunch to enroll in order to preserve the Food Sense program and continue educating little ones on healthy consumption.

"When parents do sign up in the fall that if they qualify, they should just go for it," said Reed.

Pull That Plow!

“... the Lord disciplines (trains) those he loves, as a father the son he delights in.” Prov. 13:12

Are you in a tough spot? Challenges seem overwhelming? Weary? Sad? Discouraged? This meditation may be for you.

If you saw the movie “WARHORSE,” you may remember the scene where, in order to keep the racehorse, the boy has to teach it to pull the plow—such a hard thing to carry a heavy, boring burden in the heat and dirt when it was designed to run like the wind. But later, when the racehorse was captured, the enemy colonel tells a soldier to make another stallion pull a cart. When that stallion rears and fights the bridle, the colonel shoots it and then orders the soldier to make the racehorse pull the cart or he will shoot it too—can’t waste food on a horse that won’t contribute. When the soldier approaches, obviously anticipating angry hoofs and a weaving, snorting head, the horse not only stands still but HE LOWERS HIS HEAD for the bit and bridle, and when he is hooked up to the cart, he pulls it easily. The soldier sums up a significant message in the movie: “Whoever taught you to pull the plow just saved your life.”

Segments of our life are “learning to pull the plow”—hot, boring, dirty. The Bible’s biographies are full of examples: Abraham “plowed” for 30 years waiting for promised Isaac—took matters in his own hands and produced Ishmael—but God kept His promise and called him “friend”—and he is the “Father of our Faith.” Noah spent 100 years building an ark in a never-rained world and he was daily persecuted—but he saved his family (and subsequently you and me!), Moses spent 40 years herding sheep in a desert before all his education and management skills learned in the palace came into play in delivering 6 million Children of Israel from Egyptian bondage—and he wrote the first 5 books of the Bible—still blessing you and me, David cared for sheep—so marginalized that when Prophet Samuel came to visit, the family didn’t even invite him to the dinner—during that time he wrote many of the Psalms that still bless you and me and he later became Israel’s greatest king! Are you waiting on a promise, being persecuted, wasting your talent/skills in an unappreciative environment, ignored or skipped over for honor or promotion? You may be “learning to pull the plow.” Even Jesus “endured the cross—for the joy ahead of Him”—that’s you and me!

Contentment is not a gift; it is “learned.” I challenge you to learn your “plowing” lessons so well that you will “lower your head” when you see the bit and bridle—chances are, it will “save your life.” Before honor comes humility. Prov. 15:33

This levy ‘Yes’ vote could save your life

BY GARY BÉGIN

The Wenatchee Business Journal had an exclusive interview with RiverCom Executive Director Misty Viebrock at the end of June. Viebrock explains why the upcoming August ballot measure is so important to the multi-jurisdictional agency.

WBJ: What is your viewpoint of the role RiverCom has played and continues to play in the Chelan/Douglas communities it serves?

Misty Viebrock: RiverCom is the essential link to public safety. We are the core and heartbeat to the public safety system. When you call 911 for an emergency, we answer and obtain critical information about the scene and dispatch the appropriate responders as quickly and as efficiently as we can. We remain on the line to provide any additional support or guidance needed as well as to obtain any critical scene updates to relay to the responders. Situations tend to evolve rapidly as responders are enroute. We have a critical role to keep the responders apprised of any changes which may alter their response to the incident.

In the last 4-5 years we have drastically reduced our call processing times for fire and medical emergencies. Through technology and enhancements, we dropped the call processing times from an average of 1.5 to 2 minutes down to 30-60 seconds on most fire and medical calls. This is the time between answering your call and notifying responders.

Let’s talk about life saves. Can you think of anything more important than being a part of saving someone’s life? Last year, our witnessed cardiac survival rates in Chelan and Douglas Counties was 57%, while the national average was 33%. The Telecommunicators at RiverCom start telephonic CPR right away as soon as it’s known the patient is not awake and not breathing normally, they coach and guide the caller and count out loud with them to keep the caller compressing at the right rhythm. CPR is exhausting work, especially when done correctly, we do a lot of encouraging and praising to keep the compressor going until help arrives and takes over. These life save percentages make me extremely proud!

We are always looking at ways to improve our service to the public and to our user agencies. Technology proves to be a critical piece in doing so and does not come cheap.

I have operational changes that I want to make at RiverCom that I know will vastly improve our service to the public and our user agencies, but these changes all hinge on the renewal of the one-tenth of one percent. One of these changes involve having dedicated call-takers. Currently we have no dedicated call takers. Every Telecommunicator who answers the phone is also responsible to dispatch for one of our user agencies. This becomes problematic when they answer a 911 call and are trying to obtain critical information and/or provide Telephonic CPR instructions and then have an officer, deputy, firefighter or EMS responder talk to them on the radio. Our population growth since the inception of RiverCom in 2004 has significantly increased which has increased our call volume. Our user agencies have increased their staffing which has increased the activity on the radio. The ability to manage both disciplines of call taking and dispatching simultaneously is increasingly difficult on the Telecommunicators and the service to the caller and our user agencies is not where I want it to be. The public deserves 100% of our attention when they are calling for help, they aren’t expecting that they are going to have to share their Telecommunicator with radio traffic. Our law enforcement, firefighters and EMS responders do not want to be told to “Standby” because we are on a 911 emergency telephone call. These are times that both our citizens and our responders deserve 100% of our attention.

I look at the service we are providing and constantly evaluate it ... our RiverCom 911 center must be good enough for my family and this is what the Director should say. At any given day, it could be my family or friends needing help.

WBJ: Why is this levy request so important?

Viebrock: This is NOT a new tax, and we are not asking for an increase. We have been paying this tax for the last ten years, we are asking for it to continue.

RiverCom is asking for renewal of the one-tenth of one percent sales and use tax allowed under RCW 82.14.420.

The tax rate equals: $0.01 for every $10 selling price/value; $1.0 for every $100 selling price/value; $1 for every $1,000 selling price/value.

The tax is collected from all persons, residents and visitors, who pay sales and use tax in Chelan and Douglas counties. This method of tax collection allows for the cost to fund emergency communications to be shared by all who use such services in RiverCom’s service area. RiverCom utilizes this tax revenue to supplement funding for critical emergency communications in Chelan and Douglas counties and to bridge restrictions placed on other revenue sources. The revenue received through the one-tenth of one percent sales and use tax provides a source of permanent, stable, and sustainable revenue for emergency communications systems and facilities in Chelan and Douglas counties.

RiverCom needs to keep up with the growth of our communities as well as the ever-changing technology.

For the past 10 years we have used the one-tenth of one percent money collected, for improvements to our radio infrastructure. Several of our radio sites have gone through a complete overhaul. The new shelters are made with material to be more resistant to wildfire and the towers are grounded to reduce opportunity for a lightning strike to damage the equipment. These sites have also been built to include back-up power via battery banks, propane generators and even solar power at some sites. A portion of this revenue has also gone back to our user agencies, again solely for improvements to radio interoperability. We are not finished with our radio infrastructure, we still have a ways to go yet to overhaul more existing sites, build new sites and expand the radio system to fix the areas that we have limited to no coverage with our responders. The 911 system is much more complex than the phone system we use to answer your call, we must also be able to dispatch and communicate with our user agencies and those physically responding to your call. The radio system, while it has received significant improvements, still has some shortcomings and locations where we cannot communicate with our responders. This is unacceptable. When we dispatch them to emergencies, we need to be able to communicate with them through the entire incident as they often time evolve, and additional resources or back-up may be needed. This is a safety issue for our public as much as it is for our user agencies and responders.

WBJ: What will the money be used for?

Viebrock: Future revenue will be utilized according to a Funding Agreement approved by the RiverCom Administrative Board. The Board is made-up of representatives from Chelan County, Douglas County, City of Wenatchee, and City of East Wenatchee as well as other law enforcement, fire, and EMS representatives. The Board will maintain the right to set an Annual Budget for the tax revenue. All tax revenue will be maintained in a designated account.

The tax revenue will be used in accordance with RCW 82.14.420.

- Ongoing and scheduled replacement, repair, maintenance, and service of emergency communications systems, technology, equipment, and facilities
- Installation and implementation of mandated technologies and new technologies
- Capital Improvement Projects
- Provide a long-term stable critical infrastructure communication sites and facilities
- Continue to build-out and develop new and existing systems and technologies to improve emergency communications

Bulldogs soccer hosts skills development and scrimmage nights

By AL STOVER

Cashmere High School JV soccer coach Domingo Gonzalez and several others fired balls into the goal as some kids trickle to the Bulldogs soccer pitch on Tuesday night.

Gonzalez approaches one of the kids and says, "It's great to see you here, are you playing tonight?"

The Cashmere soccer team is hosting skill development and scrimmage nights every Tuesday and Thursday night from 7:30-9 p.m. through July.

The scrimmages are free and open to soccer players, grades 5-8. The only requirements for athletes are cleats, shin guards, water and a willingness to learn and have fun.

Although the 7:30 p.m. start time is later than most sports practices, Gonzalez noted the evening scrimmages help accommodate the schedules of Cashmere kids who are participating in other sports during the summer.

He added that the scrimmages are more relaxed compared to the intense practices during the middle school and high school spring sports.

Seventh-graders Gustavo Herrera, J.J. Herrera, Paxton Lopez and Nate Hodges are among the middle school players who are attending the scrimmages.

While the scrimmages are mainly held for 5-8 graders, members of the Cashmere High School boys soccer team also participate, like incoming seniors Neo Valle and Eberardo Aguilar.

"The great part about the summer is you're able to see the high school kids in a different light" Gonzalez said. "They have less pressure and don't have to worry about things like homework and school."

The scrimmage begins with athletes practicing shots at the goal and footwork. The team jumps into running, dribbling and juggling drills.

Players are broken into a group of six for passing drills. In one of the drills, five players stay to the outside and pass the ball to each other while the athlete in the middle attempts to steal it. After drills, players are divided into two teams for a friendly scrimmage.

The scrimmage nights are also helping players prepare for a potential tournament later in the summer. Gonzalez said coaches are registering players for a tournament at some point in late July or August.

The CHS Bulldogs are coming off an impressive 2019 season that ended on May 14 after a loss to Connell in the first round of the 1A Boys Soccer State Championships. Prior to state, the Bulldogs recorded a second-place finish in the Caribou Trail League, then captured the District 6 championship.

Gonzalez, who finished his first year as the team's JV coach, along with Head Coach Juan Valley and volunteer coach Manuel Flores are meeting and discussing potential strategies and plans for the 2020 season.

"We're looking at our strengths from this past season and putting all of that together as we move forward," Gonzalez said.

Cashmere swimming continues season in Ephrata

Despite gloomy weather canceling their practice a day earlier, the Cashmere swim team traveled to Ephrata on June 27 for their first road meet of the season.

Bulldog swimmers in both divisions captured first-place finishes in several races.

The Cashmere girls had the run of the 8 and Under girls 100-yard individual medley (IM) event. Brooklyn Biber won the race while Elle Jacobson took second.

The Bulldogs also dominated the 8 and Under girls 25-yard butterfly event with Peyton Irelan winning the event.

VanWinkle took home her first win with the 8 and Under girls 25-yard breaststroke while Harper Kerns took second.

Biber won the 8 and Under girls 25-yard backstroke. Abby Swanson won the 8 and Under girls 25-yard backstroke and Kerns took second.

Teagan Kerns took the top spot in the 9-10 girls 25-yard backstroke while Adele Esmond finished second.

Teagan Kerns also captured first in the 9-10 girls 100-yard IM and Macie Smart placed second. Smart and Ellie VanWinkle clinched the top two spots in the 9-10 girls 50-yard breaststroke.

Alia Kovacevich and Audrey Adams recorded a 1-2 finish in the 11-12 girls 50-yard backstroke, and the 100-yard IM.

Kovacevich and Lila Boushay were 1-2 in the 11-12 girls 50-yard freestyle. Boushay won the 11-12 girls 50-yard breaststroke while Carissa Lundberg finished second.

Anderson won the 11-12 girls 100-yard freestyle and Lundberg took second.

Elle Seidensticker and Kate Jacobson took first and second, respectively, in both the 13-14 girls 50-yard backstroke, and 50-yard butterfly events.

Faith Larson and Finna Jo Gillikin recorded a 1-2 finish in the 13-14 girls 50-yard breaststroke.

Larson once again led the Bulldogs to a 1-3 finish, this time in the 13-14 girls 50-yard freestyle.

Kate Jacobson and Neve Mitrakul were first and second in the 13-14 girls 100 yard IM.

Larson captured a win in the 13-14 girls 100-yard freestyle.

Brianna Hughes-Roberts won the 15-18 girls 50-yard breaststroke and 50-yard freestyle events.

Elle Jacobson was second in the 8 and Under girls 50-yard freestyle as was Esmond in the 9-10 girls 100-yard freestyle.

Smart finished second in the 9-10 girls 25-yard butterfly while Kiley Adams took second in the 15-18 girls 100-yard freestyle.

How to help Senior Skin Heal

Caroline, 89 years old, fell on her left side on the steps to her home while returning from church two weeks ago. The emergency department nurses put Steri-Strips® across it and told her to “keep it clean”. Yesterday she showed me a deep red 4-inch long open area on her left forearm oozing clear fluid, and asked me, “Why isn’t it healing?”

“What have you been using on it?”

“I clean it with peroxide twice a day, and put a bandage over it at night to protect my sheets. Why it isn’t healing? Is it because I’m older, or on a blood thinner?”

“No, not necessarily.” “But I’m keeping it nice and clean. Isn’t that what hydrogen peroxide is supposed to do?”

“Cleaning your skin using hydrogen peroxide works fine unless it’s scraped, cut or skinned off. After that, using hydrogen peroxide to clean your wound creates a problem. Hydrogen peroxide interferes with bacterial growth along with any other new tissue trying to grow. Every time you clean a wound with peroxide you’re poisoning your all new cells trying to heal it. That’s why it’s not healing.”

“Should I use rubbing alcohol, instead?”

“No, because using rubbing alcohol on cuts or open wounds isn’t any better than using hydrogen peroxide. Rubbing alcohol doesn’t clean wounds any better than plain or soapy water, but it sure can cause problems. There are two types of rubbing alcohol you can buy in the store, ethyl alcohol and isopropyl alcohol. Both of them can clean intact skin, but if you use them to clean open cuts or wounds not only do they burn like fire, they actually damage your skin and tissue cells, interfering with and slowing down your healing process.”

Our skin becomes more fragile as we age, with seniors finding that, when they scrape their arm or shin on something, instead of creating an abrasion, the top layer of their skin peels back.

If your cut or scrape is deep or bleeding profusely, you should seek immediate medical attention. Otherwise, you can usually treat a simple skin tear successfully by using pressure to stop the bleeding, cleaning it using plain water, and applying a moist, transparent dressing.

To aid wound healing, a little moisture is a good thing. For skin that rips easily, a thin transparent dressing like Tegaderm® often works amazingly well. Cleaning well at the time of the injury, then using a transparent dressing over the injured area can actually save that “peeled back” layer of skin and speed the healing process.

Tegaderm® and other special dressings are available in most pharmacies and in all medical supply stores.

7 Steps to Speed Up Healing Skin Tears:

1. Clean by flushing with plain or soapy water.

Avoid using harsh chemicals like hydrogen peroxide or rubbing alcohol to wounds; they don’t clean or disinfect any better than plain water or soapy water, and can instead damage the exposed tissue.

2. Apply direct pressure with gauze or towel to control bleeding.

Apply pressure with gauze or a towel over for least a minute. Resist the temptation to peek because this lets up on the pressure, allowing it to continue to bleed. Direct pressure jumpstarts your clotting factors to stop bleeding more quickly, but applying cold packs and elevating the arm or leg can also help.

3. Lay any ripped skin layer back down, matching the edges as best you can. This prevents creating an open wound, which takes 3 to 4 times as long to heal. If the skin flap is still attached, laying the skin back down where it ripped from will often heal beautifully, without scarring.

4. Cover with a transparent dressing like Tegaderm®.

This type of dressing keeps the skin flap in place, protects it from dirt and bacteria, and keeps it moist, promoting healing.

5. Wear the transparent dressing for at least 2 to 3 days before changing it.

Unless you see lots of blood or fluid pooling underneath, don’t remove the transparent dressing for several days. Slowly peel off the old dressing, pat the area gently with clean gauze or towel if needed to blot away excess fluid or blood.

6. Add loosely wrapped gauze if needed to protect from being bumped.

TERI MILLER RECIPE

June is National Tea Month, and it’s time to celebrate the preferred drink of Summer, iced tea. As a southerner I drink tea every day with iced tea being my favorite. My preferred way is sweet tea, which has way to much sugar in it to be good for you. I also enjoy a good hot cup of tea on chilly days. In the South iced tea is served at lunch and dinner and drank throughout the day. The best iced tea starts with a good tea and cold water, let the tea steep but never boil. Personally I am not a fruit tea fan or any tea that is not fresh brewed, so call me a tea snob. So as the lazy days of Summer have began sit back relax and enjoy tea your way.

SOUTHERN SWEET TEA
• 5-8 family size tea bags or 12 regular tea bags
• 1 quart boiling water
• 3 quarts cold water
• 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1. Sprinkle the baking soda into a pitcher. Add tea bags to the pitcher/baking soda. Pour boiling water over the tea bags. Cover and steep for 15 minutes.
2. Remove the tea bags, add the sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Refrigerate until cold and ready to drink.
