OCPH shares latest COVID-19 vaccination guidelines

OKANOGAN - Okanogan County Public Health (OCPH) reports that more than 4,100 doses of vaccine have been administered in Okanogan County as of Friday, Jan 29. Following is the latest update concerning vaccination eligibility from the OCPH website: okanogancountycovid19.org.

Tier 1 of vaccine distribution. Phase 1B1 includes anyone over the age of 65 and anyone over 50 who lives in a multigenerational household.

Those in Phase 1A1/1A2 are still eligible to receive the vaccine.

Phase 1A1/1A2 includes:

- High-risk workers in health care settings and high-risk first responders.
- Residents and staff of nursing homes and assisted living facilities.
- · Anyone working in a healthcare setting – such as on a hospital campus in any capacity.

Phase 1B Tier 1 includes: All people 65 years or older.

All people 50 years or older living in multigenerational households.

50 years old and living in a multigenerational household means:

- You are 50 years of age or older and you have a member of an older generation living with you.
- You are 50 years of age or older and vou take care of grandchildren who live with you.
- You are 50 years of age or

- multigenerational household older and live with someone works outside of the home. The following example does not meet the criteria for vaccination in Phase 1B1: If you are 50 years of age or older and are the parent of a child who is still in grade school The county is in Phase 1B and no members of a younger generation work outside the home, you do NOT meet the 'multigenerational household' definition for Phase 1B1 and should await your appropriate phase to receive the vaccine. If you are eligible to receive

of a younger generation who the vaccine in Phase 1B1, please sign up for an appointment with one of the following healthcare organizations:

WAMS volunteers build storage sheds for wildfire victims

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

OKANOGAN - The Okanogan County Fairgrounds was a hub of activity for nearly two weeks last month where a crew of volunteers managed to construct 30 10-foot x 12-foot wooden storage sheds for victims of last September's Cole Spring wildfire.

AN NCW MEDIA PUBLICATION.

A near-dozen volunteers from the Western Anabaptist Mission Services (WAMS) in St. Ignatius, Montana, arrived at the fairgrounds on Jan. 18, and over the next 10 days built and roofed 30 enclosed sheds from donated materials. Marson & Marson Lumber and Lake Chelan Building Supply in Chelan provided the lumber for the sheds and the 300 sheets of metal roofing coordinated by Lake Chelan Building Supply from Metal Sales Manufacturing in Spokane.

The Okanogan County Long Term Recovery Group that formed in 2014 to help victims of the Carlton Complex wildfire and the following year's Okanogan Complex wildfire has been busy coordinating and organizing projects like the WAMS visit and sourcing donations including the lumber and metal supplies that made the sheds possible.

The Mission service, whose vision is to "reach out to people in need and be the hands for Jesus in today's world," has helped communities in Washington, Idaho, and Montana, Idaho rebuild from wildfires over the past several years, including the 2014 Carlton Complex Fire in Okanogan County.

TAL Holdings LLC, of Vancouver, Wash., a chain of retail building material centers in Oregon and Washington, purchased the Marson & Marson Lumber stores in Chelan. Wenatchee, Leavenworth, and Cle Elum.in 2017, and the Lake Chelan Building Supply stores in Manson and Chelan in 2020.

Even the most efficient operation encounters its share of bumps in the road. And roads turned out to be one of those issues. The first six sheds that went out for delivery were loaded three to a trailer for their destinations. The combination of load weight, January weather, and winter road conditions made permits a requirement for road use. The delays convinced the delivery crew to resume deliveries in February when road conditions may be more suitable for their needs.

Hull, Blackburn announce retirements from Pateros School

By MIKE MALTAIS

STAFF WRITER

PATEROS-K-12 school principal Mike Hull and vocational teacher Lyle Blackburn are among five Pateros school personnel who announced their retirement or resignation at the January Zoom meeting of the school board on Jan. 25. The school is also losing first grade teacher Kerry Harvey and two assistant sports coaches, Shane Kelly as assistant football coach and Katarina Evans as assistant softball coach.

Hull reported that he met with Pateros seniors to discuss what this year's graduation might look like. Last year seniors accepted their diplomas as part of a drive-by parade that followed several city streets and ended with a stop in from of the school building where diplomas were received. Options discussed for this year's class included a parade and ceremony on the football field. A Senior Trip is not likely to happen this year.

Hull also discussed this year's open practice sports schedule. Boys' and girls' basketball and volleyball are going to have three weeks of practice time with anticipation for fall sports starting Feb. 16. Practices will allow five players at each basket.

School Superintendent Greg Goodnight has been working with Brewster to schedule some basketball scrimmages in the event that the WIAA postpones Football is scheduled to start

Feb. 16 and other fall sports will follow on Feb. 22. The athletes are required to participate in at least five practices before their first game. There will be five-tosix games total on the schedule.

Pateros athletic director Marcus Stennes is working on a schedule for middle school athletics.

USFS rescinds Washington Pass snowmobile, snow bike closure

WINTHROP - The temporary closure of several areas near Washington Pass to snowmobilers and snow bike users for safety issues has been rescinded effective last Thursday, Jan. 28, by the USFS Forest Supervisor, a USFS media release advised.

The temporary closure was done in response to unusually high levels of use seen over the past year during the pandemic and anticipated increase in use continuing through the winter. Forest Service employees have been keeping an eye on recreation use in the area throughout the winter season. Overall use in the area this winter has been much higher than a typical year, but employees have not seen the level of increase in mixed use that was expected at the time the closure decision was made. The Forest Supervisor has rescinded the closure order, effective immediately. The District is working with partners to continue to improve education to new users. Forest employees will continue to monitor the area and evaluate the risks so appropriate action can be taken if the situation changes.

Several organizations reached out to the USFS in response to the closure to discuss ways that everyone can work together and find solutions for long term management. There is a long history of user groups working together to resolve conflicts in the Methow Valley and USFS will be working with those groups to discuss goals and to find solutions for long term management of the area that help avoidance of future closures. The renewed commitment from local user groups and support from state and regional groups will be instrumental to future success and Forest personnel are excited about the potential for finding user-driven, proactive approaches to management of the area.

Zoom Roundtable will discuss small business updates

OMAK – A Small Business Roundtable Discussion Zoom meeting will be held at 9 a.m., Thursday, Feb. 4, for those who want to hear more about the latest changes and updates on the guidance from Gov. Inslee's office, the new regional approach and what it all means for business. Participants are encouraged to share their thoughts and how COVID-19 and its restrictions have affected their businesses.

Roundtable participants will include Lauri Jones and Patrick Dunne from the Okanogan County Health Department, Roni Holder-Diefenbach from the Economic Alliance, Lew Blakeney from the Washington Small Business Development Center, and Kristi O'Neill from WorkSource Okanogan/ESD.

The Roundtable speakers will help answer questions regarding public health requirements and understanding the new guidelines. They will also share new business resources including Small Business Association funding, upcoming grant opportunities, employee assistance, and more.

Contact Roni at rholderdiefenbach@economic-alliance. com with any questions.

to make the metal delivery. Anders said long-time OCL-TRG volunteer Barry Hansen made an emergency trip to Spokane on Jan. 26-27 to pick up the roofing metal that allowed the WAMS crew to finish on schedule.

'We are committed' to lower standards, participation awards

Here we go again, the lowering of qualifications in order to prove a company or government entity has a "diverse" staff. I have quoted verbatim an advertisement for a job position from a Washington state corporation located on the "liberal westside" to illustrate my point (including the company's italicized words)):

"We are committed in order to prove diversity and creating an inclusive staff. We encourage members of traditionally underrepresented communities to apply. If your profile doesn't match this job description exactly, you may still be a candidate for this position."

Ask yourself why any company would be willing to lower its position qualifications in order to show a façade of diversity? It must be to get government funding or public affection (positive PR).

I have a story from the year 2008 when I was a recruiting officer for the 2010 U.S. Census Bureau in Colorado.

My immediate supervisor came into my classroom and told me that "this comes from the top" and that I must hire a Black or Hispanic to be a foreman on one of the teams we were creating.

I said it was no problem be-

cause I already had chosen a highly qualified Hispanic lady to be a foreman. There were no Blacks in the class.

When a qualified candidate is available, there is no reason for them not to be hired. The fact that I was told to hire a minority was funny. The Census Bureau did not want to be seen as racist by not having minorities on staff.

The top boss of this Colorado Springs Census District was a Black lady and that never bothered me. We worked together just fine.

Here we are in 2021 and the issue is still rearing its ugly

I am not the most educated person, nor the most experienced in anything, but at least I can form basic sentences and occasionally use "milliondollar words" to help illustrate my points.

I am ashamed to say that many of today's high school graduates and -- yes --- college graduates with degrees in journalism, are woefully in need of writing mentors, yet they leave college and demand top wages.

I blame the schools, both high school and college, for allowing the criteria of this skillset be lowered to this extent. Of course, students can also try harder by adding outside studies to their list of "how to rise above the rest." Outside studies does not include more time on FaceBook, Twitter or You Tube.

Depending on learning required curriculum isn't good enough. I urge students and parents to reach out and get educated in real life subjects such as getting internships with companies during the summer months or evenings.

Perhaps I am just acting like an oldster when I state that 9th Graders in the 1930s through the 1970s were far more qualified to write coherent sentences, than many of todays high schoolers and college graduates.

This leads me to believe that the public school system, on both levels, is settling for second best. I would imagine many of the younger teachers of today were able to slip through the system as well. Therefore, this continuous degradation of written skills will continue ad infinitum.

I won't bother to mention science, math and American history studies. Why do we settle for this? It is simple: It is far easier to give out "participation trophies" then to say, "you need to do better in order to win a prize.'

Our nation has consequently suffered intellectually for this forced "diversity" surge. Black folks and Hispanic folks and indeed, anyone, can write, comprehend, read and do anything else that "us privileged White" people can.

It is a disservice and an embarrassment to let anyone slide by lowering the necessary qualifications in order to please the people who distribute the tax money.

It hurts all Americans and especially those who are getting hired, promoted or certified without the proper credentials.

This disease of sub-par performance can be altered a bit by flowing more money to private education institutions, including schools operated by religious organizations. Tax credits for this expense are a good thing.

'Spokane Teachers', Coulee Dam Credit Unions to merge

SUBMITTED BY SPOKANE TEACHERS CREDIT UNION

BREWSTER - Two Washington credit unions have agreed to merge, subject to approval by state and federal regulatory agencies.

If approved, the merger of Spokane-based Spokane Teachers Credit Union (STCU) and Coulee Dam-based Coulee Dam Federal Credit Union (CD-FCU) would be completed later this year. Their two memberelected boards voted unanimously to pursue the merger plan, which maintains current

"This is an exciting time for our credit union and members," said Colleen Manley,

CEO of CDFCU. "STCU provides a full suite of products and services that will be available to our members."

She added, "Most importantly, our membership will continue to see familiar faces when they visit their favorite branch. In the communities we serve, CDFCU employees are their neighbors and friends."

CDFCU originally served U.S. Bureau of Reclamation employees at Grand Coulee Dam. Some of its 14,000 members can trace their membership to the credit union's founding in 1941. Today, it has five branches, in Coulee Dam, Brewster, Republic, Creston and Omak, Wash.

Both credit unions are financially sound. Yet, it is increasingly difficult for small and medium-sized credit unions like CDFCU to provide the technology and financial products needed to ensure continued success.

As one of the nation's top-100 credit unions, STCU has the resources to meet those challenges. At the same time, the merger would provide a convenient branch experience for nearly 3,000 existing STCU members who live in Okanogan, Douglas, Ferry and Lincoln counties.

Both credit unions are deeply involved in their communities, including serving leadership positions in chambers of commerce and other community organizations, support for a host of non-profits, and promoting employee volun-

Dave Tikker

As I sit here in my home in Spokane, hoping for a timely return to school and activities, it's hard to maintain a positive attitude about where we have been and where we are going as a state. Businesses such as restaurants and gyms have been shut down, most schools are in virtual learning mode, and the extracurricular programs attached to the schools are on hold.

The WIAA has been working incredibly hard trying to paint a positive picture of season revisions that are supposed to take place, starting in February. The real problem with that scenario, though, is WIAA isn't a part of the state decision making process and it should be. The WIAA has access to all the latest research, data, and studies done by the NFHS (National Federation of State High School Associations) and other educational entities. Apparently, the data shared in our country has convinced forty-five states that it is relatively safe to participate in high school sports. Why not Washington?

For those of us here in Eastern Washington, it is extremely frustrating to watch our neighbors in Idaho safely manage being in school and participating in fall and winter sports

According to the NFHS there are only six states in the country that have yet to play high school sports this year and Washington is one of them, to the dismay of thousands of student-athletes, their parents, and families. A high school senior in Eastern Washington must feel incredibly frustrated and forgotten about when they see in the paper North Idaho All-League teams from fall sports. How do student-athletes and their families come to grips with opportunities lost when other states are participating?

Of the fifty states - fifty-one if the District of Columbia is included - forty-five states are allowing their student-athletes to compete. Those six states that are not, Hawaii, New Mexico, District of Columbia, California, Oregon, and Washington, are either smarter or stuck in a controlling bureaucracy that doesn't allow for input by the student activity professionals, NFHS, WIAA and member schools. All our lives educators have operated under the guise of best practices and current educational data. According to the University of Wisconsin School Of Medicine study led by Dr. Andrew Watson, researchers surveyed 207 schools that started fall sports in September, representing more than 30,000 athletes, more than 16,000 practices, and more than 4,000 games. The survey found 271 athletes contracted the virus but only one case was attributed to participation in sports. Dr. Watson's team released another study that found 70 percent of athlete's surveyed reported moderate to severe depression and physical activity levels were 50 percent lower than before the pandemic.

In the states that are participating in activities, the governors have left it up to the local schools and communities to manage their COVID numbers and make local decisions about being in school and participating in sports. There are guidelines that come from the state and the districts allow competition, based on meeting those criteria. The State of Washington could be one of those states, but sadly we are not. Why are we so different? The real suffering is coming from thousands of our student athletes who just want to be with their teammates and experience the joy of competition.

I have spoken to athletic leaders throughout our country as to the many levels of frustration they are experiencing, navigating the pandemic waters. Yet, navigating it they are and the kids are receiving the benefits from those programs in forty-five states.

What are we missing in Washington? Are we following the science and the data that is relevant to our student-athletes' needs? Are we the smart ones? Have those forty-five states suffered from making those participatory decisions for their student athletes? Data would suggest a clear road map for a safe return to sports and yet our state seems to be stuck on hold.

Out state leaders have identified four metrics for opening up our state. The positivity test metric is really the most frustrating and detrimental to getting kids back. People are only testing if they have symptoms and the majority of those most likely have COVID. You would have to ramp up testing for healthy individuals to get that metric to line up. In other words, that most likely will keep schools from moving forward. Let's apply some common sense to our decision making process and look at the data from successful state implementations across our country with participation.

There is a difference between knowledge and wisdom. As the old saying goes, "Knowledge is knowing that a tomato is a fruit; wisdom is not putting it into your fruit salad."

Get the kids back in school and participating in activities. I don't claim to represent all athletic directors, parents, and student-athletes with this opinion though I believe I represent their frustration.

Red Cross urges blood donation to maintain supply amid pandemic

NCW — The American Red Cross typically has a tough time keeping the blood supply strong during the winter months when inclement weather and seasonal illnesses can impact donors. This year the pandemic adds in another challenge in keeping the blood supply strong. The Red Cross is urging healthy individuals to make an appointment to give blood or platelets.

It's so important, especially as we navigate this pandemic, to make sure there is blood available, Blood is such a meaningful gift to give.

One heartwarming gesture deserves another

As a thank-you for helping ensure a stable blood supply, those who come to give this February will receive a $5 Amazon.com Gift Card via email, courtesy of Amazon. (Restrictions apply. Additional information and details are available at RedCrossBlood. org/Together.)

Make your appointment to give blood, platelets or plasma with the Red Cross by downloading the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCross-Blood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

Important COVID-19 information for donors

The Red Cross is testing blood, platelet and plasma donations for COVID-19 antibodies. The test may indicate if the donor's immune system has produced antibodies to this coronavirus, regardless of whether an individual developed COVID-19 symptoms. Red Cross antibody tests will be helpful to identify individuals who have COVID-19 antibodies and may now help current coronavirus patients in need of convalescent plasma transfusions. Convalescent plasma is a type of blood donation collected from COVID-19 survivors that have antibodies that may help patients who are actively fighting the virus. Plasma from whole blood donations that test positive for COVID-19 antibodies may be used to help

COVID-19 patients. COVID-19 antibody test results will be available within one to two weeks in the Red Cross Blood Donor App or donor portal at RedCrossBlood. org. A positive antibody test result does not confirm infection or immunity. The Red Cross is not testing donors to diagnose illness, referred to as a diagnostic test. To protect the health and safety of Red Cross staff and donors, it is important that individuals who do not feel well or believe they may be ill with COVID-19 postpone donation.

Each Red Cross blood drive and donation center follows the highest standards of safety and infection control, and additional precautions – including temperature checks, social distancing and face coverings for donors and staff – have been implemented to help protect the health of all those in attendance. Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arriving at the drive and are required to wear a face covering or mask while at the drive, in alignment with Centers for Disease Control and Prevention public guidance.

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCross-Blood.org, call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enable the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

A better time than ever to Give 10

By Denise Sorom, Community Foundation of North Central

NCW - Several years ago, we started a campaign at the Community Foundation called "Give 10." The idea was simple: if every person in Chelan, Douglas, and Okanogan counties left 10% of their will or estate to charitable causes - no matter how small or large - we would have an additional $18 million each year to directly support charitable causes in our region. That's nearly quadruple the amount the foundation disburses now and results in four times the grant funding we now give to public schools, libraries, museums, parks, law enforcement, health services, and other nonprofit agencies in our region.

When we started this campaign, the world felt a bit more stable and predictable. This past year – between the pandemic, the wildfires, and the loss of jobs – we have been focusing our energies on meeting urgent needs in our community. It is no surprise that this community has responded with incredible generosity to help us meet those urgent needs.

With 2020 behind us now, we know those urgent needs persist, but it is time once again to think about the long-term. With such uncertainty on the horizon, the future of our quality of life in this region feels tenuous. What can we do? How

We can Give 10. We can decide to leave 10% of our estate to charitable causes. If giving 10% feels like a lot, think about it from the opposite point of view: Does leaving 90% of your estate to your loved ones feel like enough to cover their needs? For many, it does. If it does for you too, we ask you to consider that premaining 10%.

that remaining 10%:What causes in this community are most important to you?What has shaped and gave

Obituary & Memorial Policies

NCW Media, Inc.: Leavenworth Echo, Cashmere Valley Record, Lake Chelan Mirror, Quad City Herald

An Obituary is a way for family member(s) to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the community of the passing of the loved one. Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data.

Memorials are another way to let the community know about the life and memories of the person who has passed. A Memorial is different from an Obituary. An Obituary is usually current, while a Memorial can be written later.

Obituaries and Memorials need to be typed and emailed as a Word Document. They can be placed in one or more papers - all publish weekly on Wednesday.

Obituaries are priced by the number of words and include one color photo and go online at no extra charge. Memorials are priced per column inch. Please call for cost. *Payment is due at the time of placement. *Exception: Chapels, funeral homes who have an account, can be billed. There is no charge for a Death Notice - information is limited.

Deadline is 4 p.m. on Friday - some exceptions may apply.

Rep. Schrier named to Health, Energy, and Oversight Subcommittees

SUBMITTED BY OFFICE OF CONGRESSWOMAN KIM SCHRIER,

ISSAQUAH – Congresswoman Kim Schrier, M.D. (WA-08) has announced that she has been named to serve on the Health, Energy, and Oversight Subcommittees of the Energy and Commerce Committee. Rep. Schrier recently announced her selection to the powerful House committee.

"I came to Congress to lower the cost of prescription drugs, expand access to health care for all children and families, and to improve vaccine confidence and coverage," said Rep. Schrier, "I am honored to be on the Subcommittee on Health and I look forward to putting my two decades of health care experience to work addressing this unprecedented public health crisis and advancing legislation to improve the health and wellbeing of my constituents."

The Health Subcommittee holds hearings and passes legislation related to public health, mental health, Medicare and Medicaid, biomedical research, and health insurance. Additionally, it oversees the Department of Health and Human Services, including the Food and Drug Administration, the National Institutes of Health, and the Centers for Disease Control and Preven-

Schrier continued, "Given Washington State's commitment to a carbon neutral future, and with an estimated 70% of Washington's power coming from hydroelectric sources, I am excited to have the opportunity to invest in clean energy solutions that create jobs and reduce costs."

The Subcommittee on Energy has jurisdiction over fossil fuels and renewable energies, including hydropower, as well as oversight over the Department of Energy.

Finally, the House Committee on Energy and Commerce's Subcommittee on Oversight is responsible for conducting investigations and providing oversight of all agencies under the Committee's jurisdiction.

"The Federal government should work for the people it serves. We can always do better to ensure that our government is an effective partner in growth and opportunity. As a member of the Subcommittee on Oversight, I will work to continue ensuring the federal COVID-19 response, including vaccine distribution, is fair and equitable, and ensure we are responsible stewards of taxpayer dollars" said Rep. Schrier.

• Heard the bid opening results for bid document 20-29-D, supply and deliver 230-115 kV 225 MVA autotransformer to Lincoln Rock Switchyard. The bids will be evaluated prior to a recommendation for contract award.

• Established hearings for a power delivery rate. To allow for future load growth within Douglas County, the District is working on a process to procure, schedule, and deliver power resources through the District's transmission system and electric distribution system. The hearings are scheduled at 1:30pm on February 22 and March 8, 2021.

• Authorized a professional service agreement with RH2 engineering for general civil engineering services. This agreement will not exceed $250,000 and will expire December 21, 2023.

• Approved a call for bids under bid document 21-04-D, hydrogen and switchyard site grading. Necessary to grade the site, cut in and establish roads, build a berm and construct a retaining wall.

 Authorized a call for bids under bid document 21-07-D, install communications microducting in Douglas County.
 Necessary to allow more customers access to communication services.

• Rejected bids under bid document 20-12-W, rebuild the limtorque fish ladder collection chamber entrance gate operators at the Wells Hydroelectric Project. There were no responsive bids.

• Approved execution of a Compressed Air Medical Directors Agreement with Dr. Charles J. Waszkewitz. The District is required to appoint one or more licensed physicians trained in the physical requirements and the medical aspects of compressed air work and the treatment of decompression illness.

• Authorized Note No. 8 loan from the Electric Distribution System Capital Project Revolving Loan Fund to the Wells Hydroelectric Project for construction capital.

• Approved purchase of real property from McDougall and Sons, Inc. Necessary for the Lincoln Rock Switchyard and hydrogen production facility.

• Heard a report on the Douglas County Community Network. The network currently has 6,255 end users.

The next meeting of the Commission is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. February 8, at the District's East Wenatchee Office. The District Office is closed to the public in response to the COVID-19 guidance from Governor Inslee. To comply with the Open Public Meetings act, a conference phone line number will be provided at the top of the Draft Agenda posted on our website under Latest News the Friday before the meeting.

Education committee approves Hawkins' school calendar bill

Bill addresses "learning loss" by exploring alternative school calendars

SUBMITTED BY OFFICE OF SENATOR BRAD HAWKINS

OLYMPIA - Following a challenging school year for students, parents, and schools, and anticipating significant learning loss across Washington state, the Senate Early Learning and K-12 Education Committee has taken a step forward to address "learning loss" throughout the state.

The committee on Jan. 27 approved 12th District state Sen. Brad Hawkins' bipartisan legislation, Senate Bill 5147, aimed at addressing learning loss by exploring alternatives to current school calendars that leave students with nearly three months each year with no school instruction.

Hawkins, the ranking Republican member on the Early Learning and K-12 Education Committee, is sponsoring the bill to explore alternative school calendars. His lead cosponsor is 41st District Sen. Lisa Wellman, who chairs the committee and works closely with Hawkins on education policy. Other prominent Senate co-sponsors include Majority Leader Andy Billig, Ways and Means Committee Vice Chair David Frockt, Democratic Caucus Chair Bob Hasegawa, and Republican Caucus Chair Ann Rivers.

As passed by the committee, the bill would create opportunities for up to 30 school districts (15 from western Washington and 15 from eastern Washington) to voluntarily participate in year-round school. The bill includes a financial incentive in the school funding formula for districts seeking to spread their existing state-funded 180 days over a full calendar year. The bill would require instructional days in at least 11 months of the school year and breaks of no longer than four weeks.

The Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction would select applicant districts based on the bill's criteria to implement the program beginning in the 2022-23 school year and concluding after the 2025-26 school year and then report back to the Legislature regarding its findings. If this program works well, the Legislature could consider expansion to all schools in future years.

Hawkins, who served for 10 years on the Eastmont School Board and North Central Educational Service District Board before being elected to the Legislature, says now is the time for the state to encourage willing school districts to reform their school calendars.

"Now is the time – as we'll pull out of this pandemic – to think big about reforming the system and to get serious about addressing student learning loss," said Hawkins. "Long summer breaks, requiring significant reteaching in the fall, are the last thing our kids need in the years ahead. I hope for a program that encourages lawmakers and districts to consider transformational reforms to meet students' academic needs. They deserve that," says Hawkins.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Chris Reykdal has listed reforms to the school calendar as one of his agency's 10 "strategic changes." In a Jan. 8, 2021, letter to Gov. Jay Inslee and members of the Legislature, Reykdal cited "Substantially shrink summer learning loss in the long term, and learning loss due to the pandemic in the short term, by balancing the school calendar" as a policy step for increasing learning for students in an effort "to become the highest performing public education system in the nation."

Reykdal appreciates the bipartisan effort and positive dialogue around SB 5147, saying, "I am grateful for Senator Hawkins' deep dive into this critical work. We have known for a very long time that our agrarian school calendars contribute to summer learning loss and a lack of supports for students who need us the most. By rebalancing calendars, we can improve student achievement and student supports, and we can sustain the teaching profession for our educators who are cramming 1,700+ work hours into a compressed calendar."

The Senate Early Learning and K-12 Education Committee has referred the bill to the Senate Ways and Means Committee for further consideration.

Newhouse nominates 18 Central Washington students to U.S. Military Academies

SUBMITTED BY OFFICE OF REP. DAN NEWHOUSE

WASHINGTON, D.C. – On Jan. 28, Rep. Dan Newhouse (R-WA) announced that he has nominated 18 students across Central Washington to attend U.S. military service academies including the U.S. Military Academy, U.S. Naval Academy, and U.S. Air Force Academy. The congressional nominations follow an application process and interview with Rep. Newhouse's military service academy advisory board. The honor of attending a service academy comes with the obligation and commitment to serve in the military for a minimum of five years upon graduation. The final determination for admittance will be made by the respective academies.

"The promising students I have nominated to serve our nation at U.S. military academies this year are among the most accomplished and inspiring young people Central Washington has to offer," said Rep. Newhouse. "They

Newhouse appointed to Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee

Appointment is crucial for Central Washington farmers, agriculture community

SUBMITTED BY OFFICE OF REP. DAN NEWHOUSE

WASHINGTON, D.C. – On. Jan. 28, Rep. Dan Newhouse (R-WA) announced that he has been newly appointed to the powerful House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, and Food and Drug Administration. He will also continue to serve on the Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development and Related Agencies as well as the Subcommittee on the Legislative Branch.

"I am honored to continue to serve on this powerful committee and on subcommittees with vital jurisdictions for Central Washington's priorities," said Rep. Newhouse. "It has been a priority of mine to serve on the Agriculture Subcommittee, and I am determined to ensure the funding priorities of our agricultural communities are met – from agriculture research and rural broadband expansion to strengthening our food supply chain. After the pandemic placed profound impacts on our nation's farmers and producers, I am ready to get to work to ensure the men and women who provide food for our country and the world can successfully recover from this past year's devastating crisis."

Rep. Newhouse continued, "I will continue to work on the Energy and Water Subcommittee to support strong funding levels for the Hanford cleanup as well as appropriations for the Pacific Northwest National Laboratory and the world-class clean energy development happening right here at home. On the Legislative Branch Subcommittee, I will continue to promote civility and bipartisanship in Congress and to ensure the People's House works as efficiently as possible for all Americans. We have a lot of work ahead of us, and I look forward to serving under our Republican Leader, Kay Granger, to steward responsible federal spending on behalf of taxpayers. "I am glad to welcome Rep.

Newhouse back to our team on the House Appropriations Committee," said Ranking Member of the House Appropriations Committee Kay Granger (R-TX). "As a farmer, small businessman, and Chairman of the Congressional Western Caucus. Dan brings an important and unique perspective to advance the priorities of rural America. Washington's 4th District is blessed to have such a fierce champion representing Central Washington's farmers and agriculture industry in our nation's capital. I look forward to working with him to exercise Congress' power of the purse, promote responsible spending, and advance conservative values throughout the 117th Congress.'

THE WASHINGTON OUTDOOR REPORT

A winter getaway to Ocean Shores

By John Kruse, The Washington Outdoor Report

Looking for somewhere to go this winter? If you are an outdoors enthusiast, the beach isn't a bad call and one place in particular worth a visit is Ocean Shores. Covering 12.4 square miles on the Point Brown peninsula there is of course the beach and the ocean that attracts visitors. Right now, overnight accommodation rates are very low. My daughter and I booked oceanfront rooms at the Shilo Inn for only $99 a night, and other hotels are offering similar deals. While many businesses are closed right now a number of restaurants do offer dining options from take out to dine-in (on covered patios or in the case of the Quinault Beach Resort, inside).

During the winter months Ocean Shores usually sees good numbers of clam diggers on designated digging days in pursuit of razor clams. Unfortunately, domoic acid. a marine toxin, was found in high levels in the clams in October and later, in Dungeness crabs, forcing closures of both seasons. Those toxin levels are beginning to subside but they are still above the threshold where these species can be consumed again.

With any luck clamming and crabbing along the Southwest Washington coast will open again this spring. Even if it does though, the annual Ocean Shores Razor Clam Festival, traditionally taking place the third weekend of March, won't take place in 2021. The popular festival featuring tasty razor clam chowder recipes, a variety of vendors and fun activities, has been cancelled due to COVID-19 pandemic concerns.

So, what's an outdoors enthusiast to do besides walking, driving or riding a bike along the beach? Fishing is one option. Surf perch weighing up to two pounds can be caught right off the beach and while I didn't have any luck on this trip, I've seen a number of surf perch anglers here over the years that have.

Hiking and wildlife watching are great options too. A healthy number of bald eagles spend the winter around Ocean Shores along with shorebirds to include the western snowy plover. In the ocean, sea lions, seals and even passing gray whales can be seen while hiking around Damon Point at the southern end of Ocean Shores that juts out into Grays Harbor or from the north jetty which defines the border between Grays Harbor and the Pacific Ocean. Another place to see wildlife, particularly waterfowl, is the Oyhut Wildlife Area. This state managed property is also open for waterfowl hunting from mid-October through January.

Other opportunities for outdoor recreation are found inland. Duck Lake and it's connecting canals offer 23 miles of water to explore. There are several lakes offering places to launch small watercraft and this is a great area for paddling enthusiasts using canoes, kayaks and SUPs. Another unique way to explore Duck Lake is in an electric powered boat. You can rent a covered Duffy boat from the Ocean Shores Boat House.

You may want to bring a fishing rod too. Largemouth bass, rainbow trout and perch are all found in Duck Lake. Fishing from a boat will lead to the best fishing but there are shore based fishing options at Chinook City Park, Bill Ellis Park and the South End Grand Canal Park.

Looking for a few hidden gems? Hike the Weatherwax Trail. It's a flat, 1.2-mile path skirting Duck Lake. You can also visit Perkins Pond, where a short trail circles the pond offering views of waterfowl and wildlife. Last but not least, keep your eyes open for deer. Black-tailed deer are prolific around Ocean Shores. Other animals you may see include coyotes and raccoons. Don't feed the animals though, there is plenty for them to eat here without your "help".

Football fans and advertisers look forward to the Super Bowl, held every year in early February. The Raymond James Stadium in Tampa, Florida, hosts Super Bowl LV this weekend. The National Football League champion Tampa Bay Buccaneers meet the Kansas City Chiefs, the American Football Conference champs. It's the first time a Super Bowl will be held at the home stadium of one of the teams competing in it. Between now and the big game, there will be many new commercials featuring cars, trucks, insurance, and beer, along with advertisements for prescription and non-prescription medicines.

One set of rules governs direct to consumer (DTC) advertising of prescription medicines. There are different rules for how non-prescription or OTC (over-the-counter) medicines can be promoted. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) controls the advertising rules for prescription medicines. The Federal Trade Commission is responsible for the advertising of non-prescription or over the counter (OTC) drugs.

Inside the FDA, the Office of Prescription Drug Promotion (OPDP) is responsible television mention the risks of for regulating prescription the medicine they are promot- medicines' marketing. OPDP's mission is to protect public health by assuring that information used to promote prescription drugs is truthful, balanced, and accurately communicated to doctors, pharmacists and consumers. In contrast, the advertising of OTC medicines regulated by the Federal Trade Commission and is much less strict.

The side effects of medicines are not always mentioned during their advertisements because the FDA created 3 different drug marketing categories that manufacturers of prescription medication can use. Only one of those advertising categories requires the manufacturer to list the risks associated with taking their medicine.

reminder ads. Help-seeking drug ads mention a particular condition, such as depression, arthritis, or overactive bladder, then direct the consumer to ask their doctor for more information about it. No medicines are mentioned in this type of advertisement. If you look closely, you'll usually see the drug name or logo of the drug manufacturer sponsoring it somewhere on the screen or the page.

Product claim ads state the type of condition the medicine has been approved to treat, its brand and generic name, and give some benefits and risks associated with taking it.

Product claim ads will often use cartoons, celebrity spokespeople, or actors to play satisfied patients. At the end of the advertisement is a list of risks of taking that medicine, including death. The balance between benefits and risks is essential; in this marketing category, the advertisement MUST mention potentially severe risks if they also present the benefits of taking that medicine to their audience.

The third type of prescription medicine advertisement for DTC marketing is a reminder ad. Reminder ads are concise, mentioning only the medicine's brand name, leaving out what it treats or any of its benefits. Reminder ads connect us with previous advertising by echoing the visual marketing elements seen in the product claim ads for the product, like showing two people watching a sunset sitting in bathtubs placed sideby-side.

DTC advertising is controversial. Those who support marketing medicines directly to consumers state that it's helpful because it encourages people to talk to their physician about a health concern they may have. DTC advertising can also help remove the stigma of a particular disease or condition, such as depression or erectile dysfunction.

Opponents of DTC advertising are concerned that it promotes increased use or overuse of drugs for conditions that have non-drug treatments or less expensive treatments available. They also fear that not enough attention is paid to new medicines' risks, like serious side effects. Marketers want their product presented in the best possible light, and false or misleading claims can slip in.

In contrast, the FTC advertising rules do not require that a manufacturer mention any side effects when marketing a non-prescription medication to the public. There is continuing concern about this lack of balance, especially when a prescription medicine gets approval to move from prescription-only access to OTC, such as omeprazole (Prilosec®) or naproxen (Aleve®). Just because a drug no longer requires a prescription doesn't mean the risks of having side effects from it magically disappear.

The only type of marketing that insists a manufacturer mention the risks of taking a particular medicine is a product promotion advertisement of a prescription-only medicine. Manufacturers are not required to include their medication's side effects in any reminder ads, help-seeking ads, or OTC medicine advertisements.

5 tips to protect seniors from financial scams right now

tion among seniors is not only linked to numerous negative health consequences like depression and cardiovascular disease, but it's also a primary contributing factor in financial exploitation and scams. Estimated to affect one in 10 older adults and cost billions annually, the threat of elder financial fraud is pervasive, and especially so right now.

With seniors more isolated than ever due to the pandemic and stimulus checks being sent to millions of Americans nationwide, experts suggest that seniors and their families be extra vigilant.

"Scammers look for key time periods where money and private financial information are in motion. Not only is IRS fraud one of the most common and successful types of scams that exists, as a general rule, additional money equates to additional fraud," says Ron Long, head of Aging Client Services at Wells Fargo.

"Scammers are banking on the fact that many seniors are apart from families and friends due to COVID-19. When someone is alone, physically or socially, they often miss out on the added benefit of a second pair of eves and ears." Compounding the risks associated with isolation is the number of seniors who feel their chances of falling victim to a financial scam is unlikely. According to a recent Wells Fargo study conducted by The Harris Poll, 69 percent of all seniors age 60 and above believe they're not likely to be susceptible to a financial scam, despite nearly all seniors (97 percent) acknowledging that older people are very or somewhat susceptible to becoming a victim. When asked about their peers, the poll found that 47 percent of all seniors knew someone who had already fallen victim to a scam. "The results indicate what most of us want -- the ability to age relatively unaffected from the realities associated with aging," says Dr. Marti DeLiema, a gerontologist and consultant for Wells Fargo's Aging Client Services. "The problem is that when someone doesn't feel they're at risk, they're unlikely to take precaution."

With seniors more isolated than ever due to the pandemic and stimulus checks being sent to millions of Americans nationwide, experts suggest that seniors and their families be extra vigilant.

To better protect seniors from elder financial fraud and abuse, consider these tips from Wells Fargo:

1. Don't wait for a crisis. Seniors should speak with trustworthy family members about financial plans, as well as consult them when something doesn't feel right.

2. Stay up-to-date. Seniors and families should draft and periodically update legal documents such as wills, healthcare directives and powers of attornev.

3. Automate. Seniors should consider signing up for direct deposit, automatic bill pay and large transaction alerts.

4. Prioritize security. Seniors should keep checks and credit cards locked away, and update passwords when information is compromised. They should also carefully review credit reports, account statements and bills for unusual activity or charges.

5. Be aware. Families can help seniors stay aware of the latest and most common scams, as well as help them identify potential red flags, including:

· Alleged emergency situations involving family members, often grandchildren, requiring immediate payment.

 Lottery winnings requiring upfront cash payment for taxes and other fees.

· Phone calls from alleged government agencies, such as Social Security, threatening arrest or penalties.

For more information on fraud prevention, visit wellsfargo.com.

"Aging resiliently requires planning ahead and not shying away from difficult conversations," says Long. "We have to talk with our older loved ones about the risks, the warning signs and prevention -- and we have to keep talking."

Grow quick, easy and nutritious microgreens

By Melinda Myers

Add fresh flavor to your meals year-round with microgreens. These easy-to-grow greens need minimal space and no special equipment for a flavorful and nutritious harvest in little more than a

Use microgreens on salads, soups, pizzas, omelets, in stir fries or as a snack. These tiny seedlings are packed with more nutrition than their mature counterparts.

Add a bit of spice to soups and sandwiches with radish and mustard microgreens. Try red cabbage, chard, beets and amaranth for some added color. Sunflower's somewhat nutty flavor makes it perfect for snacking. Let some of your pea microgreens grow a bit taller to use in stir fries.

Fill a shallow container with a two-inch layer of moist potting or seed starting mix. Sprinkle seeds over the soil surface and lightly cover with potting or seed starting mix. Water gently to ensure good seed-to-soil contact.

Continue to water often enough to keep the soil slightly moist. Reduce your workload and keep the planting mix consistently moist by covering freshly planted containers with plastic. Once the greens break through the soil, remove the cover and move the container to a sunny location or under artificial lights.

Increase the fun and success with a microgreen growing kit like the Organic Herb and Microgreens Grow Kit from Gardener's Supply (www. gardeners.com). This set up is the perfect size for your countertop or other small space. The full spectrum light is adjustable so you can raise or lower it as needed whether growing short microgreens or taller herbs.

Or skip the growing mix and mess with a Jute Microgreens Starter Kit. Set the jute mat in the shallow tray, add seeds, and water. Then compost the jute mat after harvesting your greens.

Follow the planting directions on the seed packet. You typically need two to three tablespoons of seeds for an 11" x 21" tray. Buy enough seeds to make additional plantings every week or two to ensure a constant supply. Microgreens like most vegetables taste best and are most nutritious when eaten fresh. And these tasty bundles do not last long in storage.

The microgreens are ready to harvest once the plant forms the first set of true leaves. These are the leaves that resemble those of the mature plant. This takes anywhere from 7 to 14 days, depending on the room temperature and type of microgreens you are growing.

66. Latin dance three-step move, once

Use scissors to clip the greens off at ground level. If you prefer to use the whole seedling, roots and all, you will need to wash off any of the seed starting mix clinging to the roots.

Once you harvest all the greens, it is time to replant. Save money and be kind to the environment by composting the used planting mix and reusing containers. Convert shallow fast-food containers into planting trays. Disinfect these or other planting trays before using them for subsequent plantings. Just soak the containers in a 10% bleach and water solution for ten minutes. Then rinse in clear water before planting.

Gardening doesn't get much easier than this. You will enjoy the fresh flavor all winter long as you wait for the outdoor growing season to begin.

Resolve to learn to play an instrument in the new year

(STATEPOINT) - Have you been wanting to learn to play an instrument for a long time? Let the New Year be your motivation to finally take the plunge. Here are some top tips for getting started and for sticking · Schedule practice sessions: Learning to play an instrument requires a time commitment, so actually schedule a daily practice session -- at least 30 minutes -- in your planner or calendar. Whether it's first thing in the morning or just before bed, identify a time of day when you are best able to turn off distractions and focus on the task at hand.

• Check out online resources: While in-person lessons may not be available at the current moment, you might try taking a remote class or working with an online music teacher. Free tutorials are also available online, and have the added benefit of being paused or replayed again and again.

· Stay motivated: When learning a new skill, fast progress can be one of the greatest motivators. Thankfully, some of the latest tools make picking up the basics easier then ever. For example, with the Casiotone Keyboards from Casio, which feature a built-in learning system, you can go from being a novice to an intermediate player in a matter of weeks. By connecting the instrument to the free Chordana Play app, you can learn to play your favorite songs from downloaded MIDI files. Some of the keyboard models in this series even feature light-up keys, helping new musicians quickly get the hang of proper finger placements and chords.

• Set new goals: Set concrete goals and dates by which you'd like to achieve them. This could be mastering a particular song or performing a live stream concert for your friends over social media. Always having a new goal to reach toward can keep things fresh, helping you stick with your New Year's resolution.

· Be compassionate with yourself: Learning to play an instrument is not easy, and some practice sessions will go more smoothly than others. Have patience with your own progress and try not to compare yourself to others, especially those who have been playing a lot longer than you! Building your music skills is not only fun, it's good for your mental and physical wellness, making it the perfect New Year's resolution. Be sure to get started with the right mindset and tools.
