Cashmere Cub Scouts Pack 1 hauls in record for food bank

Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts alike are committed to serving their communities, constantly striving to lend an extra hand for the prosperity of our area.

The “Scouting for Food Campaign” is one way Scouts give back to the community. On November 3, Cub Scouts of Cashmere’s Pack 1, canvassed the town.

Dressed in their Class A Scout uniforms, the young scouts went door to door soliciting members of the community to support the campaign. Residents were given a flyer which instructed them to leave their donations in a bag by their doorstep the following Saturday when the Scouts retrieved them.

Family, friends and neighbors alike participated. Members and volunteers checked expiration dates, recorded weights of each item and boxed everything for transportation.

Total pounds of food acquired in 2015; 550 lbs, 2016; 729 lbs, 2017; 608 lbs. All impressive numbers, but in 2018 the community of Cashmere donated a whopping 1065.79 pounds of food! Far surpassing their goal. Scouts and volunteers were amazed at the gratitude shown community wide.

The Scout Law states: “A Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.”

“As the Cubmaster for Pack 1, it is my goal to ensure the scouts recognize what elements of the Scout Law are fulfilled while engaging in varied ventures. This campaign proved to be “helpful” to our community who might be less fortunate than them. All the while exercising friendliness and courtesy while knocking on doors and speaking with residents. Although some boys were anxious leading up to asking strangers for donations, it helped them build confidence and integrity,” said Candi Bray.

Food Bank, graciously accepted the donations, which helped fill Thanksgiving care boxes. They were distributed to the community on Saturday, Nov. 17th. “On behalf of the scouts of Pack 1, Thank you to everyone who contributed and helped. These Cubs are learning how to make a difference, and it’s the community’s support and decency that makes it possible,” Bray said.

Cashmere 3-day ‘Survivor’ camp as real as it gets

From left are Chase Lak, Michelle Shubert Claussen, Pastor Steve Haney and son Eli Haney all from Christ Center Cashmere. The quartet met at the 59er Diner in Cashmere Thursday, Nov. 29 with the Cashmere Valley Record. They were some of the main players involved in the three-day Christian-influenced “survival camp” held last August on the shores (and in the water) of the Wenatchee River

BY GARY BÉGIN

CASHMERE – Picture a group of high school students suddenly without their precious cell phones, computers, televisions, cars or any modern trappings. It is an almost impossible vision, but it really happened on the banks and in the water of the Wenatchee River last August as a group of 18 teens from Cashmere, Chelan, Leavenworth and Wenatchee entered a three-day realistically engineered “Survivor Camp” sponsored by the Christ Center Church here.

To make sure things were as close to the real television show “Survivor” as possible, Pastor Steve Haney enlisted the help of one of his congregants, 30-year-old Michelle Schubert Claussen, who actually appeared on the nationally aired hit show in early 2016 (Survivor 33) in the “Millennials versus Gen. X” episode, which took place in Fiji.

To mimic the real deal, Haney, a trained EMT, also had the help of nine other adults to guide the experiment along, complete with a film crew and another certified EMT, Jonathan Claussen, husband of Michelle.

The film crew broke down the three days of challenges into 10 episodes and has been airing them at The Underground youth outreach center here every Sunday evening at 6 p.m. since the camp finished.

Haney reports the films are well received, which has also increased attendance at the youth outreach by a significant amount. “We’ve gone from an average of 20-25 kids to 25-60 attendees.”

“The kids love it. There’s a lot of laughing and clapping, oohs and aahs,” Haney said. The ratio of boys to girls was six boys to four girls.

The culmination of all those challenges led to the final three contestants gathering for a live final decision on Sunday, Dec. 2.

Survivor contestants Elani Scott, Zoe McDevitt and Evan Pheasant were the last three out of the initial 18. To make the cut in only three days, the three tribes in the Cashmere game had to vote someone “off the island” every few hours in tribal councils. Eventually it came down to only six players formed into one tribe and the infighting inherent therein.

The students were given incentives to play and to win during the ordeal at many different stages.

Sleeping bags, not tents, were the accommodations next to the Wenatchee River with the three tribes given territories to stay within. Often the action went on 24/7 as did the filming.

A great variety of physical, mental and by extension, spiritual, obstacles caused the brave teens to exude everything from blood, sweat and tears to vomiting.

A “gross food” eating contest may have been responsible for some of that with interesting, yet diabolical mixtures such as chipotle tofu and capers pickled with anchovies.

During the three-day challenge there were “slide puzzles” and a blind-folded rope maze and a building project where contestants could only use their feet. Another game involved a maze placed on a table where contestants had to manipulate a golf ball through the maze by picking up the table and guiding it.

Still another challenge was a game called “idol sparring” in which players would have to attack other players, while still having to balance their “idols.”

The tribes were named after the Biblical characters Issachar, Rizzpah and Abishai. Issachar, founder of his namesake tribe in the Book of Exodus, Rizzpah, concubine of King Saul and Abishai, nephew of King David.

Even if voted off the island, there was a way for players to get back into the game, just as in the TV show. The outcast was given a chance at returning via specific tasks done well on Redemption Island.

“Jesus offered salvation for free,” Haney said, so at one point in the affair players could choose, sight unseen, from a bag of rocks, all black, but if they chose the only white rock in the bag they were automatically let back into the game.

“The internet has changed the way today’s youth has fun. Years ago watching someone play Hackysack was considered entertaining and now it’s Youtube,” said Claussen.

The entire experience was filled with “subterfuge and deception” according to Haney. Even food, at times, was not a given, but had to be earned or discovered.

“It was super fun,” said Eli Haney, Steve’s son, a 17-year-old Cashmere sophomore.

“There were a lot of moving parts,” said Chase Lak, who helped film the trial by fire. At one point the contestants had to swim across the river and retrieve a bag in which they could put whatever food items they found into it once they swam back.

Haney guesstimates the entire endeavor cost about $2,000 in church and volunteer funding, but was not planning on making this an annual affair. The winners get cash and prizes as rewards, including an award for “fan favorite.” Some of the winning monies are placed into a special fund for the student they can use later.

Because of the great success had at this year’s event, despite the smoky summer, plans are in the works for “Survivor Big Sky” to take place possibly in the early summer of 2019 in Montana near Glacier National Park.

How did most of the teen players respond to the trials and tribulations?

“We knew going in not to forfeit personal relationships. This was just a game,” Eli said.

“It was all for the glory of God,” concluded the elder Haney.

All students are welcomed to apply and attend the next survivor event, but parental waivers are required. For more information, call Pastor Haney, 509-679-2478 or go the website: christcentercashmere.com. To see the videos of the event, go to vimeo.com/christcenter.

Evan Pheasant was the winner.

The Tyranny of the law

One of the most sacred principles of the American justice system is that an individual is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty.

The concept is embedded in our Constitution and the Bill of Rights – the first ten Amendments to the Constitution that protect our individual freedoms from abuse by the government. In fact, it has long been said that the Constitution would never have been ratified if it hadn't included those protections.

Unfortunately, today those protections are under assault and regardless of your political persuasion this is a serious challenge to our individual freedoms.

Let's examine the immediate case of tax protestor Tim Eyman.

Mr. Eyman has been utilizing the initiative process to challenge tax law for nearly 20 years. His efforts are not always successful but he has been able to get a number of initiatives on the ballot that resulted in saving taxpayers over $40 billion.

His success has infuriated legislators and liberal west side politicians for two decades.

But now Attorney General

BILL FORHAN
PUBLISHER

Bob Ferguson is suing Eyman for violation of Washington state campaign finance law. AG Ferguson is seeking a $2.1 million fine be levied against Eyman and a lifetime ban against Eyman being involved in any future political activity.

Read that again – Ferguson wants a lifetime ban on Eyman for any future political activity.

In other words, the Attorney General of the State of Washington wants to strip Eyman of his constitutionally protected rights as guaranteed to him under the Bill of Rights.

The very first Amendment not only guarantees freedom of the press but it promises that the government shall make no law restricting "...the rights of citizens to peaceably assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Putting it a little more directly, our liberal minded Attorney General wants to violate Eyman's civil rights to petition the government for a redress of his grievances.

If you think I am overstating the case, consider that in a court hearing in October of 2017 Ferguson's attorneys attempted to argue that Eyman's request to dismiss the suit based on his constitutional protections should be denied and Mr. Eyman's attorney should be sanctioned (fined) by the court for even raising them as a defense.

The court ruled against the state and opened the door to the Ferguson having to be deposed himself for prosecutorial bias against Eyman. Score one for Eyman and the American system of justice.

Unfortunately, the case isn't over. AG Ferguson has now begun to put pressure on Eyman by deposing his wife, who is not involved in Eyman's political activism.

The result is that Eyman announced as of last Thursday that six years of persecution by the state's Attorney General has resulted in the end of his 25 year marriage and the need to file bankruptcy.

In the words of Tim Eyman, "the process has become the punishment."

Unfortunately, Eyman's case is no longer an isolated incident in American politics.

Consider what we have witnessed over the last two years following the election of President Trump.

The FBI and "Special Prosecutor" Robert Mueller have wasted a small fortune and destroyed the lives of numerous individuals in an effort to find evidence that Trump stole the election with the help of Vladimir Putin.

While some of those convicted by Mueller's investigation have questionable backgrounds at least one of them threw in the towel and fell on his sword to protect his family. General Flynn pleaded guilty to lying.

This is not the American way. It is a travesty of justice that the government is now using legal extortion and intimidation to beat citizens into submission. It is a tactic that many trial lawyers have utilized for decades to extract damage awards from American Industry driving up the cost of health care. But now our own government is turning it against citizens.

Attorney General Robert Ferguson is running for governor. He has filed over as dozen lawsuits including lawsuits to protect the "rights" of illegal immigrants but he apparently is unconcerned about the rights of American citizens. He is not only unfit to be the attorney general he is unfit to be governor.

What he has done to Tim Eyman and his family is disgraceful.

What he has done to the American system of justice should be of concern to all Washingtonians regardless of their political persuasion.

Maybe Trump is right to ignore misdeeds of others

Let's put aside any negative thoughts about our President Donald Trump for the sake of this argument and try to remember the days when some on the political left and the political right argued against America trying to be the policeman of the world.

That is, the United States attempted to be the moral compass and overall arbiter of all that was good or bad on the planet from a political, socio-economic and even spiritual point of view.

We, the Americans, always claimed to know what was best on behalf of everyone else. Africa, Asia, Europe, South America - virtually everyone.

That attitude, often bordering on righteous indignation, caused eruptions of "non-peace" all over the world, including the Cold War, Vietnam War, Korean War, World Wars One and Two and every little skirmish in between. Supposedly World War Two was entered into because of Pearl Harbor, but

APPLES TO APPLES
GARY BÉGIN
MANAGING

in fact it was inevitable that we would have helped Great Britain even if Pearl Harbor had never happened.

Our holier than thou demeanor led to tariffs and embargoes on certain countries while we were simultaneously giving massive financial and commodities aid to others.

Now many Americans, some on the left and some on the right, are arguing that President Trump should play this righteous indignation card on Saudi Arabia for killing a journalist in its Turkish consulate and also against Russia for taking the Crimea years ago and for recently seizing Ukrainian ships that were allegedly in Russian waters.

Russian agents also, allegedly, kill other former Russian agents that went over to the other side in a kind of vendetta against those deemed treasonous in their behavior to the Motherland. I'm speaking about the father/daughter duo attacked in England with a poisonous liquid proven to be made in Russia.

Here is my dilemma, are Americans for or against America as a political entity, actually being the policeman of the world or are we better off keeping a hands-off policy?

What is it, my fellow citizens, are we for or against telling other nation states on the world stage how to behave?

Either we push the idea of democracy and free trade and free speech and freedom of religion or we back off and allow other cultures to express their own brand of cultural imperialism over their own people. Other cultures and countries have their own ideas of what is right and wrong and their own ideas of how to govern and with whom to pick fights with. Shouldn't we just leave them alone to do what they want to do?

I know I am being overly simplistic about all of this international jousting, but it does come down to that simple question. Do we or don't we allow other nations to do what they feel is right?

If you say yes, then we should immediately withdraw from Iraq and Afghanistan and many other areas where we are intervening.

That would include Europe and Asia. Get our troops back home and close our eyes to whatever is going on out there for better or worse. Just leave them alone and allow others to rise or fall based only on their own actions. It would be exactly like a worldwide exercise in existentialism, a philosophical approach to life and living emphasizing the existence of the individual person as a free and responsible agent determining their own lives and development through acts of their own will.

Something to think about. For more information about the philosophy of existentialism, read atheist/Communist philosopher Frenchman Jean Paul Sartre's "Nausea" and the Danish Christian philosopher Søren Kierkegaard's "Diary of a Seducer." Just two books, but there are many more by them if so desired.

These two men inflict pain on all who read their works, but it is a good kind of pain. The kind that makes one think first, before perpetrating the act that will define their future.

Am I arguing for isolationism? Not necessarily, but maybe President Trump is right to leave countries alone to their own actions against their own people and neighbors? Let the people of the world make their own beds to lie in - for are they not free to do just that without our interference?

Managing Editor Gary Bégin can be reached at gary@ncwmedia.net. His opinions are not necessarily those of NCW Media.

Will the trade war end soon?

On the first day of 2019, our trade war with China is set to get much bigger. The 10% tariffs we already impose on $200 million in Chinese imports will climb to 25%. If that happens, it will raise the stakes significantly.

Not coincidentally, Trump and Chinese leader Xi Jinping are planning to meet in early December. So, there's certainly the potential for a deal in the coming weeks. I think both sides would like to see that happen. China's economy has been slowing recently, and while it's not all because of the trade war, it certainly isn't helping. Similarly, here in America, the stock market is nervous and there are signs that the economy has peaked. So, a deal would be helpful to both sides. But what could a deal look like that would satisfy both sides? The simplest route for a deal would be something like this:

COMMUNITY VOICES
By BRAD BLACKBURN

Over the next 5 years, China will commit to buying $200 billion more in goods from America, which will cut the trade deficit in half.

However, if Trump comes to the American people with a plan as small as "China will buy more stuff from us," will that be good enough? Trump talks a lot about the trade deficit (which is more America's fault than China's), but nearly everyone agrees that the real problems with China are technology theft, and how they subsidize certain industries. If Trump is really committed to changing those actions from China, I worry that it will take much more hard work and pain from both sides.

If our stock market keeps falling, and the economy keeps slowing, does Trump have the fortitude to endure that pain? He doesn't seem like a delayed gratification sort of guy. However, his options are limited After declaring that China is "raping our country," his base might revolt if he agrees to a deal that doesn't solve the biggest problems.

Clearly, the best scenario for the stock market over the short term is for a small, North Korea-style deal that doesn't accomplish much, but allows both sides to declare victory and move on. On the other hand, our problems with China are real, and now that Trump has brought those issues to a head, this might be our only chance to fix them. But that won't come easily.

It's a tough situation, and I'm genuinely unsure of which way I want this to go. But the stakes are high, and they are about to get higher. The stock market will be watching closely.

Leavenworth Summer Theater

Leavenworth Summer Theater is looking for winter seasonal parking for the LST truck and/or the LST handicapped van we use at the Ski Hill. This could be covered parking in the Leavenworth/Lake Wenatchee/Cashmere area - a carport type situation would be fine; a large garage is certainly wonderful but unexpected or uncovered parking if down valley in the Wenatchee area where snow load is not such an issue. The truck is 10'4" tall and 24' long. The van is 9' tall and 26' long. Please call 548-7324 with any options. (er48,49).

"The Most Wonderful Time of the Year!"

The Leavenworth Village Voices will perform its annual "Christmas in the Mountains" concert series on Friday, Nov. 30 and Friday, Dec. 7 at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 9 at 1:00 p.m. at the Leavenworth Church of the Nazarene. The choir will perform traditional and sacred holiday favorites that will delight all ages. Tickets may be purchased in advance by credit card at Sergeant Leandro Antonio Sleeper Jasso, 25, a longtime Leavenworth resident, was mortally wounded while conducting combat operations in Afghanistan on Saturday, November 24, 2018.

He was born on June 19, 1993 in Brewster, Washington, met his future adoptive family in September, lived in Entiat, North Bend, and Leavenworth where he started his education at Osborn Elementary School. As a senior, he completed the 2011-2 cycle in the Washington Youth Academy and returned to complete his senior year at Cascade High School, graduating in 2012. Lando wrestled and played football with the Kodiaks. He also played the tuba in Band and had previously taken piano, violin and cello lessons. He played soccer, swam with the Wenatchee Valley Summer Swim League, skied and snowboarded at Ski Hill, and was active in Scouts through Pack 28 and Troop 28 where he earned his Life rank.

Upon graduation, Lando enlisted in the U.S. Army and completed Basic Training in August at Fort Benning, Georgia. He graduated Airborne school on January 25, 2013. He became a Ranger on July 22, 2013 and was stationed at Joint Base Lewis McChord and lived the Ranger Creed. He attended and graduated Ranger School in 2016 and was promoted to Sergeant later that year. He served as a rifleman in Delta company from July 22, 2013 to December 6, 2016. He then served as an Automatic rifleman and Ranger Team Leader in Alpha company from December 7, 2016 to November 24, 2018. He was currently serving with the 2nd Battalion of the 75th Ranger Regiment and had been deployed to Afghanistan since August. He was currently serving on his third deployment.

Lando was a music enthusiast which led him to his current passions of karaoke, writing songs and playing the guitar.

GO BULLDOGS

By KALIE DRAGO
Echo Reporter

After the boys walked away from their first game with a win against a hard team to beat, 79-74 Euphrata, it's clear that this will be a promising season for the Cashmere Bulldogs boys basketball team. And after finishing last season with a 14-9 record, missing state playoffs by one game, the team seems to be coming back eager to push further this season.

"This year we are very young, but have some talented players," said head coach Levi Heyen. "The league is very talented and senior heavy, so we know that each game will be a battle. We are planning on competing in every game and if things go well, we'll be on the hunt to win the league championship."

The five out of name varsity players are sophomores, but four of them are familiar on the court as varsity players since they were starters as freshmen. One of the returning starters is Sam Phillips who was second team all league last year as a freshman. He'll be one to watch for scoring, handling the ball and rebound. His twin brother Nate Phillips missed a good portion of last season due to a broken hand but made up for lost time on the court, waveraging nine points per game. Heyen is counting on him to play strong defensively and also outside shooting.

Carter Alberts is a promising returning sophomore starter, with a height of 6'5 and experience starting ten games as a freshman, Heyen expects him to be both a solid rebounder and shooter for the team. Mason Landdeck, a sophomore point guard, is known for his ability to get to the basket quickly and Heyen credits his ability to be a dynamic player on the court.

"Mason and Sam Phillips will do a great job of breaking down defenses and creating shot opportunities for us this year," said Heyen.

So despite being a relatively sophomore heavy varsity, according to Heyen, all nine of the varsity guys have spent significant time practicing during the off season. So what they lack in age difference, the boys have made up for in experience and practice.

"We are going to play a much faster paced game and pick up our defensive intensity. Last year we had a big strong team with a couple of great shooters. We are smaller this year, but much quicker as team and have more balance," said Heyen. "We think that every one of our guys can score for us and we have a number of great outside shooters."

The team is strong in its ability to score and speed. So this season will be heavily concentrated on strengthening defense.

"We want to really focus on being just as good on the defensive side. With our lack of size, we'll need to be aggressive and out work our opponents if we want to win the rebound battle," said Heyen.

Players like Landdeck, who Heyen says is a feisty defender who draws tough match ups defensively, and Brooks Elliot, a fast player who is rebounder that's talented at guarding anyone at the floor, will be huge assets to the team's defense this season.

"We have the athletes to cause a lot of problems for others teams if we can pressure the ball and force teams into turnovers which will lead to easy baskets for us," said Heyen.

The team's impressive roster, speed and growth defensively are all elements indicating that the boys will produce winning results by the end of the season.

"They are a great group of basketball players and young men and they have the ability to make plays without having to have too much structure or set plays," said Heyen. "I think this is going to be a very fun group of boys to watch play basketball. They have the ability to score in bunches and once our defense gets established, we could be a very dangerous team come playoff time."

By KALIE DRAGO

With an impressive record of winning five League Championships and five District Championships, the Cashmere Bulldogs Girls Basketball team is striding into the 2018-2019 season with big expectations. The last two years, the girls have left the 1A State Tournament in second place - losing the State Championship by minimal points (1 point to Mount Baker in 2017 and by 2 points to Lynden Christian in 2018). The upcoming season will hopefully mirror the previous year's success.

"I think we will be a very competitive team this year," said head coach Brent Darnell. "We only graduated one senior (Cami Knishka) last year and returned the other four starters."

The return of four starters is an indication that the team will be similar to last year's, according to Darnell. Players like last year's League MVP, Hailey Van Lith, returning to the court emphasize the talent on the roster is returning and will be a strong asset to the season's performance.

"She has worked unbelievably hard the past year to be even better that she was last year. She is going to have another outstanding year for us," said Darnell.

However, the veteran players aren't the only positive element for the team - but also the strong number of subs this year as well. Darnell also stresses the strength of the team being defense and thinks this set of girls ability to be flexible on the court also will push them far in the season.

"Our strength has always been and will always be our team defense. I think we are as good defensively as any team we've had at Cashmere the last five years," said Darnell. "We are also a very unique team in the fact that we can really run and play up-tempo or we can slow it down and really execute in the half-court."

Some standouts on the court this year, according to Darnell, will be Claire High who is a notable post player that works hard to make the entire group better. Grace Hammond is a sharp shooting guard with a competitive streak. Grace Erdmann is versatile with any position 1-5 on the court and Darnell believes this will be a big year for her. Ellie Alberts has an impressive shooting range and newcomer, freshman Riley Johnson is expected to turn heads with her talent and basketball IQ.

"Our energy and level and great competition in practice has been contagious," said Darnell "(The) girls are really competing and it's making everyone better."

There is still room for growth for the girls since its just the peak of the season, but the forecast is looking optimistic in the upcoming months. The talent seems synonymous amongst all of the players and the girls appear to be on the path for many wins.

"I'm looking forward to watching us grow and get better as the season progresses. I think were not even close to being as good as I think we can be. I feel very fortunate to coach such a talented group of girls, but more importantly a very classy and well respected team that this school and community can be very proud of. This is really a team that I can wish I could hit the pause button and slow it down. Its going to go really fast because we are going to have a lot of fun," said Darnell.

STAFF REPORT

Overall, Coach Ken Hoyt has now been coaching wrestling for 38 years. This year is his third year coaching for the Cashmere High School Wrestling team. "Any time you get an opportunity to coach kids—they're all great opportunities and they all have their own rewards," Hoyt said. "Cashmere is no different. I think one of the better things that I've enjoyed about Cashmere is that the value system is a little bit better when it comes to how they still treat and respect their kids in relation to the sport and the coaches in relation to the sport. It's more like that old school feeling as opposed to what it is in a larger school. It's more personal for more contact from your administrators to your custodians and to your teachers. It's just a better feel." First and foremost, Hoyt hopes for this year's seniors to get the best opportunities to succeed. "I always have strong feelings for my seniors and how they put in this amount of time over the years and when they've given up so much over the years," Hoyt said. "Let's face it, these kids haven't been able to enjoy their winter, fully, for the last four years." According to Hoyt, his wrestlers are just looking to make improvements and better themselves throughout the season. "We're looking forward to improvement every single day," Hoyt said. "Working hard and showing improvement, it's one step at a time. We look for the successes in the little ways." Attitude is one of the team's biggest strengths according to Hoyt. "To put up with what they put up with and still stay positive takes a tremendous amount of attitude," Hoyt said. "Good attitude. These kids are awesome. It's not an easy (practice) room by any means and those practices are tough, tough, tough. This team accepts what we have to dish out every single night and they do it with a lot of enthusiasm and there's a lot to be respected for that." Returning players include Blake Brown, Tucker Weatherman, Tony Ibarra, Aaron Guerrero, Tristan Napoles, Bryson Pratt, Madeleine 'Maddie'

Fadenrecht and Skylar Wierima. There are also a few more girls on the team this year. "Hunter Duke and Maddie Fadenrecht, the two girls that started last year, they have two of the best attitudes I've ever seen of any of my athletes," Hoyt said. "They're just awesome kids and in a lot of ways I wish my male cohorts had their kind of drive, their kind of vision and their kind of stick-to-it-ness." Hoyt looks forward to the hard work that his team will put in this year. "We're going to promise to wrestle hard, we're going to promise day by day, week by week, to get better and hopefully represent Cashmere wrestling on its next step towards building towards a championship," Hoyt said.
