Community meeting set about West Cashmere Bridge project

Design is nearly complete on the new structure that will replace the nearly 90-year-old West Cashmere Bridge. The community is invited to see the proposed replacement bridge at a meeting on Sept. 18 at the Cashmere Riverside Center, 201 Riverside Drive. The community meeting will be 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

During the meeting, Chelan County Public Works will update the community on the progress of the project, which is expected to begin construction in spring 2020 and take about 24 months. The county's engineering consultant, TranTech Engineering of Bellevue, will give a short presentation and then open the meeting up for questions from the public.

"When construction on the new bridge gets underway, it will be one of the largest projects Chelan County has ever undertaken," said Eric Pierson, Chelan County Public Works Director/County Engineer. "The overwhelming support from our community partners has played a significant role in garnering interest for the project at both the state and federal levels, and in keeping the project on track."

The West Cashmere Bridge, commonly called the Goodwin Road bridge, was built in 1929 on Cashmere's west side. A fracture critical bridge, the bridge is posted for weight and height restrictions, restricting most freight haulers, school buses, transit and some emergency vehicles from using it. County engineers have estimated the bridge may need to be closed by 2022 because of its progressive deterioration.

The replacement bridge, which will span the Wenatchee River near the current bridge's location and then cross over US 2 to Hay Canyon Road, is estimated to cost about $23.5 million. Chelan County has raised the money for the project, which is being paid for with a variety of state and federal grants as well as some county funds and a private contribution from Crunch Pak, Cashmere's largest employer.

At this time, Chelan County is working on finding a new home for the historic portion of the bridge: two 117-foot, Warren deck truss spans. The deck truss spans are available until January 2019 for donation to any governmental, non-profit or responsible private entity for public or private use. Details are on the county's website: co.chelan.wa.us/public-works/pages/west-cashmere-bridge-for-sale?parent=Projects

Former 'Land-Trust' exec wants to be county commissioner

By GARY BÉGIN

In our continuing series of candidate profiles, giving those brave enough to run for elected office a venue to express their ideas, NCW Media's Managing Editor Gary Bégin interviewed more than 20 prospective office holders so far. This installment features Chelan County Commission candidate Bob Bugert.

NCW Media asked Bugert a series of questions recently now that he survived a five-horse field in the primary. Little if any editing has been done to the candidate's answers as was the agreement beforehand in order to respect the exactness of the answers. Because of the length of this article, go to the CashmereValleyRecord.com website for the full article.

Cashmere Mill District property groundbreaking: future development, employment opportunities

The upcoming construction project for two general purpose industrial buildings of 16,500 square feet each, will be groundbreaking for the city of Cashmere and for Chelan County as a whole. It was only fitting that the construction of the two buildings be kicked off with a groundbreaking ceremony, Wednesday, Sept. 5.

That occasion saw the Port of Chelan County Board of Commissioners and one Chelan County commissioner host the ceremony at its Cashmere Mill District property. Both entities invested heavily in the project.

The project is projected to finish in the spring of 2019, according to a press release from the Port. Some of the notable figures at the event were Port Commissioners Board President Rory Turner and Vice President JC Baldwin. Chelan County Commissioner Keith Goehner

Anonymous “Senior” official unqualified to serve

This week’s circus was lead by the infamous anonymous editorial in the New York Times. Many are asking why the Times decided to run it. I am more concerned about the unspoken message of Mr. (or Ms) Anonymous. (Note - the use of the masculine gender in this column is not intended to exclude the possibility that the writer may be a woman).

Clearly, working in the rarified atmosphere of the Presidential office has overinflated the ego of the writer. His editorial is nothing more than the ranting of an unelected but impotent bureaucrat. He gives himself away with comments like, “This isn’t the work of the so-called deep state. It’s the work of the steady state.”

The writer of this piece apparently believes the job of executive branch departments and agencies is to provide a steady and consistent U.S. government. No matter who sits in the chair at the oval office.

This writer does not understand our Constitutional system of government. A system that allows for quiet revolution whenever the electorate is displeased with the direction our elected leaders are taking us. Like most of the President’s opposition Mr. Anonymous also does not understand Trump’s popularity. Trump was elected to bring change to the Federal Government. Not just to the Presidency. He was elected to bring a revolution to the Federal Government. A revolution that many believe is long overdue.

In another DC Circus last week, Senator Ben Sasse (R-NE), explained the problems in Washington best during the hearings for Judge Kavanaugh.

Senator Sasse pointed out that in the last century, the legislative branch has been delegating much of its Constitutional authority to the executive branch.

Sasse said, “the legislature is impotent, the legislature is weak. Most people just want their jobs more than they want to do legislative work so they punt most of the work to the next branch.”

Senator Sasse is right. Over the past century the legislative branch has been pushing much of its legislative authority to unelected bureaucrats. Bureaucrats who wield the power of government regulation without fear of being fired by the voters in the next election.

Given that background, Mr. Anonymous’ reaction is a natural response to the charge to drain the swamp.

Mr. Anonymous doesn’t like it. He has lost power and is lashing out. The handwriting is on the wall. If President Trump succeeds then his deep state power and influence is diminished if not gone.

A courageous and honorable advisor would resign. He would recognize his inability to serve a President with a mission to drain the swamp. He is just another whimpering malcontent bemoaning the loss of his own self-importance.

Democrats and the residents of the swamp continue to hold on to the belief that Trump’s Presidency is an anomaly. As soon as he is gone things will return to normal and “the adults” will be back in charge. They cling to the belief that this too shall pass.

The problem is that ignores the reality that the American people have begun to recognize the need for substantive change in Washington. It is unlikely that the voters will suddenly turn their back on a President that has re-energized a stagnant economy. Challenged our allies to make sure free trade is also fair trade. Addressed issues of illegal immigration. Initiated new efforts to confront our enemies and strengthened our military.

An anonymous letter from a disenfranchised government bureaucrat will not dissuade the American public when their duly elected President is making substantive change.

It’s time for Mr. Anonymous and his deep state friends to step aside and let the magic of the American system of government work – without them.

Remember the old childhood schoolhouse game of telephone?

During a recent game of “telephone” played in a church workshop meant to explain problems with human communication, someone whispered in my ear that I had ED. I said to myself - Wow! I have Extraordinary Deception! When I exclaimed my delight at discovering my newfound gift out loud in church the next Sunday after the preacher asked for testimonials, more than a few heads turned my way.

Later on at coffee in the basement community room, a young professional spoke to me quietly out of the earshot of ol’ spinster Hammerschlenkle, who was munching on a carrot cake nearby.

He explained to me that “ED around here means End of Democracy and you also must realize you are in a progressive community of like minded souls who truly believe in Democracy and progress. Don’t you?”

APPLES TO APPLES
GARY BÉGIN
NCW MEDIA
MANAGING EDITOR

He insinuated that I was a no-good conservative who hated both progress and Democracy.

An older fellow was listening in, although uninvited to do so, begged to differ and said, “No, that’s not it. What ED means around here is End of Days. Armageddon is nearing the family of man. You can tell by the events of the last few months.”

He was insinuating that I was obviously not a true believer and would be “left behind” upon the Rapture.

I was finally rescued by none other than Sharon Hammerschlenkle who heard every word of every speaker and had sympathy for me, playing as I did, the lowest deckhand on a ship of fools with captains forward and aft.

“Gary, I have a wasp’s nest in my car, can you get it out so I can drive home?”

Of course I can help you. By the way, can you explain what ED means so I don’t faux pas myself out of the congregation?

“Sure I can explain ED, but first get in the car and drive fast with the windows down,” she said.

Well OK, but what’s that all about?

“It is a way for me to explain to you that you actually have Event Depression and after just a mile or so you’ll figure out that you are not an exterminator and should never have offered to have helped me.”

But Sharon, I need a ride and an escape from these wise men. Besides you asked for my help.

“I just want you to drive me home. I am blind and that’s why I was able to hear you guys so well, she said.”

Sharon made me feel proud again. I was able to help the handicapped and justify my feeble existence. I never did ask her how she drove to church in the first place. It was enough to know we were mutually beneficial.

Hey Sharon, I asked boldly, bracing myself for the cold hard truth, what does Event Depression mean?

“It’s all about your situation in life,” she said. The events of tomorrow are influenced by the events of yesterday, thus leading to whatever fate has in store for you. It is a series of events that will be certain to depress you because you have absolutely no say in the matter.”

Sounds fatalistic Sharon. Does it count whether I am a registered Republican or Democrat?

“Look bud, when you go to the food trough at a buffet it all goes into the same pie hole. Need I say how that story ends?”

You mean that I voted for a Republican that was a Democrat, but it doesn’t mean anything because it was a choice from a Chinese menu?

Yes, now you understand. Although you have eaten what you paid for, you are still not satisfied and you will be hungry for change again soon - real soon.

The progressive vegetarian preacher heard it all and simply said - “lettuce pray.”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Never a dull moment

Benghazi, Stormy Daniels, Clean Coal (now there’s an oxymoron for you) Playboy centerfolds!! A lawyer known as “the fixer” – where was he when I was in court?

I’ll see your tariffs and raise you 2 more.

No third grade nick-names for Putin. I can only imagine what Vlad’s name for Trump is!

What is Russian for puppet? Howdy Doodie already has Donnies hair.

As the old saying goes, “Be careful what you wish for, you just might get it.” My rightie friends. I still don’t see why it’s not right or wrong instead of right or left.

I hope his executive order to stick his face on Mt. Rushmore will be a likeness of him while making fun of a handicapped person. Close your eyes and try to imagine Washington, John Adams, Teddy Roosevelt, D.D. Eisenhower, Bill Clinton, Obama, etc. doing something so despicable. Can’t do it can you?

I’ll sum up with this. How can you tell when Trump is lying. I ask as fathers and sons, how can either one of you not know the other is talking to Russia?

You either live on two different planets or you are as full of it as the proverbial Christmas Goose.

Remember Righties you elected (other than 3 million votes that somehow didn’t count).

Why keep track? You might as well go Rock, Paper, Scissors. The draft dodger in chief because you wanted change (that and your hatred of Hillary) Well you got it.

If every other President did it, I won’t. If every other President didn’t do it, I will.

And if Mexico says build your own blanking wall. I’ll just shut down the government until I get what I want.

I sure don’t recall any other President saying anything that stupid. I hope he does ignore the Constitution (again) and make himself El Presidente for life.

Right, wrong or indifferent with Donnie there’s never a dull moment!

Here are the results from Saturday's (9/8) at the Moses Lake Invitational Cross Country race held at Blue Heron Park: athletic.net/CrossCountry/Results/Meet.aspx?Meet=144283&show=all The race was five kilometers which is the maximum length for high school runners. The course looped around the park three times. The weather was nice for running.

Cashmere was a little depleted due to the large number of runners showing animals at the fair but the runners that participated in the race did very well. The girls had a good race and finished in 2nd place overall with 69 points. The winner, Deer Park, had 43 points. Third place went to Moses Lake with 79 points. There were 19 schools competing at the meet and nine schools had complete girls teams.
There were 66 runners in the girls varsity race. Cashmere girls results:

2nd Syd Smith 21:13
9th Eleanor Nelson 22:09 (45 second Personal Record for the Moses Lake course)
17th Gabby Terrell-Lewis 23:08
23rd Johanna Christensen 23:41 (2:01 improvement for a new PR)
30th Yailin Pina 24:26
45th Madison Schoening 26:08
50th Kylee Foster 26:36 (2:40 PR)

Willow Tonseth competed in the girls junior varsity race. Willow finished in 9th place in 27:02. There were 43 runners in the girls JV race.
The boys had a lot of rookies compete this year. Of the twelve boys that competed only three were in cross country at the high school level last year. There were 14 complete teams and Cashmere finished ninth. League rivals Cascade (2nd), Omak (4th) and Okanogan (8th) all finished in higher places.

There were 95 boys in the varsity race. Cashmere boys results:
6th Rob McManus 17:42 (43 second course PR)
41st Aaron Guerrero 19:51
59th James Terrell-Lewis 20:55

Cashmere’s historic lumber mill district redevelopment ready thanks to cleanup

By RHONDA LUKE,
Washington Dept. of Ecology

The old sawmill in Cashmere once pulsed with activity 50 years ago.

Now new life is breathed into the community thanks to cleanup and redevelopment. Today, the Port of Chelan County is celebrating added commerce and jobs.

The city of Cashmere’s Mill District has a long and varied history that began in the 1940s. Processes at the lumber mill and other activities left a legacy of contamination that impacted soil and groundwater. In all, 26,000 tons of wood waste and contaminated soil was removed, overseen by our toxic cleanup program staff and funded by Ecology grants.

The Port of Chelan County is marking the construction of two 17,000-square-foot buildings that will support the expansion of local business as well as new employers.

This project shows what success can come when you have the right ingredients -- grant funding, dedicated staff, and collaboration!

Cashmere now has a real vitality with added commerce and jobs, setting them up for long-term success.

A vision realized

The Cashmere Mill District is prominently located along Sunset Highway, highly visible to traffic and the local community of Cashmere in Chelan County. From the 1940s to the late 1970s, the Cashmere Mill Property was primarily lumber milling, while the 1980s and 1990s saw various commercial and light industrial activity.

The Port of Chelan County had a vision and in 2008, purchased the 32.5-acre property. Their goal was to remove the existing contamination and wood waste, and turn it into a thriving industrial property that would support the revitalization of the city of Cashmere.

Ecology was able to grant $1.5 million to the Port of Chelan County in 2012, and an additional $3.5 million in 2013 in order to:

- Figure out the type of contamination present on the property, and how far it had spread
 - Prepare a plan to remove and clean up contaminated soils and groundwater
 - Remove contaminated soils and wood waste
 - Set up a monitoring program for the groundwater
 - Replace a City of Cashmere water main that was in need of repairs
 - Prepare the property for redevelopment
- The greatly improved environmental and infrastructure conditions allowed for the eventual development into the Cashmere Mill District, complete with water, sewer, electric and internet utilities. Major highway connections only a half-mile away give easy access to Seattle or Spokane.

A bright future

Port Commissioner JC Baldwin, said the future looks “very bright” for the old mill site. In fact, Louws Truss Company just opened a new manufacturing facility in Cashmere in June.

Two flex buildings are planned for the future, and are generating interest from a variety of businesses. The Port of Chelan County also has the option to build an additional two more flex buildings, if necessary.

Commissioner Baldwin expressed her excitement that the city, port, and Ecology were able to work together to rehabilitate this blighted property in her district. “This is what Port Districts do!” she said.

Valerie Bound, central region section manager for the Toxics Cleanup Program, shared her own enthusiasm for the project. “We love to see this kind of positive impact for a community,” she said. “We were happy to work with the staff from the Port, and help make their vision a reality.”

and Cashmere Mayor Jim Fletcher also spoke at the ceremony. The development of the buildings is an effort to support local businesses in expansion plans while simultaneously recruiting new businesses. The buildings will serve as a pillar of economic activity, job growth and private investment, according to the Port.

“We’ve had good conversations with multiple local companies to expand here. There’s limited capacity for business here, really tight real estate,” said Port Executive Director Patrick Jones. “This is a lot of space to bring onto the market all at once.”

There was enthusiasm surrounding the dirt that was symbolic for the future buildings. Many entrepreneurs, as possible future tenants, are eyeing the land with eagerness especially in correlation to the current lack of supply for commercial property in this region. The buildings will be versatile and can fit many different forms of businesses and tenants. The space could be used for house production, office, laboratory, and a warehouse among other uses.

“Although the mill is not here, jobs will be,” said Goehner. “And that’s really what we need here in our valley. And once again, I appreciate partnering with the Port in making this a reality.”

The Port originally purchased the property ten years ago in 2008, however obstacles and restrictions based on environmental issues greatly slowed progress for the last decade. After the collective unit effort with Washington State Community Economic Revitalization Board, Washington State Department of Ecology and the city of Cashmere to work on the property to better improve the conditions and clean up the area for the two buildings.

“You can literally eat off this dirt, trust me,” said Baldwin.

With many years, effort and collaboration the groundbreaking ceremony was the public introduction to the new buildings, however this project has been long awaited.

“This has been a long time coming and people have been patient,” said Jones. “(The highlight of the ceremony) is that the clean up is finally completed and we’re moving forward to actually use the ground.”

No Discover Pass needed in honor of National Public Lands Day

Saturday, Sept. 22, marks the 25th anniversary of National Public Lands Day. Washington State Parks invites the public to visit a state park for free on this day. No Discover Pass will be required for day visits.

National Public Lands Day (NPLD) is coordinated by the National Environmental Education Foundation.

State Parks free days are in keeping with 2011 legislation that created the Discover Pass, which costs $30 annually or $10 for a one-day visit. The pass is required for vehicle access to state recreation lands managed by Washington State Parks, the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). The Discover Pass legislation directed State Parks to designate up to 12 free days when the pass would not be required to visit state parks. The free days apply only at state parks; the Discover Pass is still required on WDFW and DNR lands.

Two more State Parks free days are available in 2018:

- Sunday, Nov. 11 — Veterans Day
- Friday, Nov. 23 — Autumn free day

For more information about NPLD, visit neefusa.org/npld. The public is encouraged to follow and participate in the environmental stewardship conversation on social media using the hashtag #NPLD.

Bob Bugert

NCW Media: Tell the readers a bit about yourself.

Bob Bugert: I was raised with strong family values – hard work, honesty, your word is your bond, always lend a helping hand, and your name and your reputation are your most prized possessions. My father started his own small manufacturing company which he grew from two employees to over 200. It would have been easy to join the family business, but I chose to follow my passion and study Wildlife Biology at W.S.U. It was there I met my wife, Carolyn, and we charted our course together.

Carolyn and I first moved to Wenatchee in 1980. We both fell in love with the Valley and while our jobs and my Master’s degree in Fisheries Biology took us to many Eastern Washington communities, we committed to return to the Wenatchee Valley.

That opportunity arose in 1990. We moved from Waitsburg, a town of 1,000 people, to Wenatchee. We have lived in Wenatchee in the same house since then. Our three sons all attended Wenatchee public schools and graduated from Washington colleges. I enjoy skiing, backpacking, bicycling, travel, reading and woodworking--and of course, my sons.

NCW Media: Now that you have made it through the primary, how will you change or focus your campaign?

Bugert: My campaign focus remains the same. I am going door-to-door meeting people and learning about issues that are important in our county. I highlight my background as a pragmatic, moderate, competent guy with a track record for bringing people of all perspectives together for the good of all. It’s a pretty simple message, and it’s an accurate description of who I am.

NCW Media: What is it that you bring to the table as opposed to your opponent?

Bugert: I HAVE EXPERIENCE--lots of it. I have been working on local issues for many years. I have 30+ years of professional experience managing large professional staff, handling complex budgets, multi-party negotiations, and working with local governments, members of Congress, the State Legislature, and the Governor’s Office. I have the experience to be immediately effective.

I KNOW THE JOB. I have worked closely with county commissioners for most of my career. As Executive Director of the Chelan-Douglas Land Trust, I worked regularly with commissioners in Chelan, Douglas, and Okanogan counties. In Chelan County I’ve worked with our commissioners on specific local issues. In my ten years’ work for the Governor’s Office, I worked directly with county commissioners and other elected officials throughout eastern Washington. For 25 years I have worked with dozens--if not a hundred--county commissioners. I have partnered with them in hundreds of public meetings. I know first hand what a commissioner deals with, and have a solid understanding of what makes a good commissioner.

I HAVE A PROVEN TRACK RECORD. I have been working on issues that are important to our community--ranging from transportation to housing to land use--for many years.

These issues are not new to me and I am the best-positioned to be immediately effective.

I BELIEVE IN GIVING BACK. When my children were in school I was a soccer coach and active band booster. I drove the band truck to regional competitions and spent summers at the band’s concession stand selling hotdogs. I was well known at my children’s schools.

Since my children have grown, I have committed myself to volunteering with many community organizations. My interest in improving transportation in the county led me to volunteer on the Link Transit Strategy Team and Wenatchee Valley Transportation Council. My interest in education led me to volunteer with the Wenatchee Public Library Capital Campaign, raising money to renovate the library. My interest in affordable housing led me to volunteer with Habitat for Humanity. My belief that recreation brings tourist dollars led me to serve on the Board of TREAD, a nonprofit focused on outdoor recreation.

I have a long history of working to make Chelan County a great place to live. I am now ready to take that commitment to a higher level--as your County Commissioner.

NCW Media: Does your platform have specific help for tourism?

Bugert: I have been working on outdoor recreation for many years. There is a clear and documented economic benefit of recreation -- it brings dollars to our community as people come to boat, fish, bike, hunt, ski, parasail, zipline, golf, and participate in the wide variety of recreational opportunities our county offers. We need to capitalize on the fact we have good access to great recreation!

When I led the Land Trust, we completed a $8.7 million campaign to create an extensive trails system in the Wenatchee Foothills. People who come to bike, hike, birdwatch or hunt bring considerable sales tax benefits to our communities.

I have also been working with the Greater Wenatchee Chamber of Commerce and Port of Chelan County to strengthen our outdoor recreation economy. This has direct benefits to restaurants, motels, and other services in our communities. I am currently on the Board of Wenatchee Valley TREAD, the newly-formed nonprofit to promote outdoor recreation and tourism in Chelan and Douglas counties. Our work is done with the financial support and partnership of the Chamber of Commerce and Port of Chelan County, and many recreation businesses and nonprofits in the area. Our goal is to promote recreation to improve the quality of life and health in the region, and to develop recreation-based jobs as part of a strong and diverse economic mix that supports this region.

As a County Commissioner, I will continue to work with the chambers of commerce, port districts, and our cities to strengthen that approach. My goal is to bring all stakeholders together (motorized, non-motorized, water, snow and land) to provide the best outdoor recreation experiences in our communities, improving the quality of life for everyone who lives in or visits the region.
