Little Camas Fire proves difficult to extinguish

By KYRA PLANETZ

Last Thursday, July 5, a fire started for unknown reasons in the Little Camas area about six miles from Cashmere. The fire has engulfed nearly 400 acres of land between Little Camas Rd. and Sand Creek Rd. near Camas Meadows Bible Camp. Although 334 personals are working quickly to extinguish the flames, the steep rugged terrain, unfavorable weather conditions, lack of road access and amount of combustible material on the ground have made firefighting efforts difficult.

As of Sunday, July 8, the Little Camas Fire had reached 11 percent containment. Ground troops have been working day and night to put out the fire along with several aircrafts dropping water and obtaining aerial views of the area to help contain the flames as much as possible. As firefighting efforts have become more involved, troops from across the state and beyond have traveled to Cashmere to help the cause. A camp supplying crews with food and shelter has been set up at the Chelan County Fairgrounds.

The Western Washington Incident Management Team Public Information Officer, Eric Waters, said access to the afflicted area is difficult to reach and can take up to an hour for crews to make the drive up to Little Camas. He cautioned the public to be vigilant and courteous to fire trucks driving around our area.

"We're asking folks to be extra aware of the amount of fire resources we have around here, particularly the Cashmere and Highway 97 corridors. Please be extra careful when traveling those corridors, slow down and give trucks extra space for the safety of the public as well as firefighters' safety," Waters said.

The firefighters' strategy is to minimize burning of timber and the surrounding plant habitat as well as build a fire line along the northern and southern edges of the flames. High heat and winds this week may slow the process down and Waters said it is too early to tell how long it might take to completely eradicate the fire.

Nearby Camas Meadows Bible

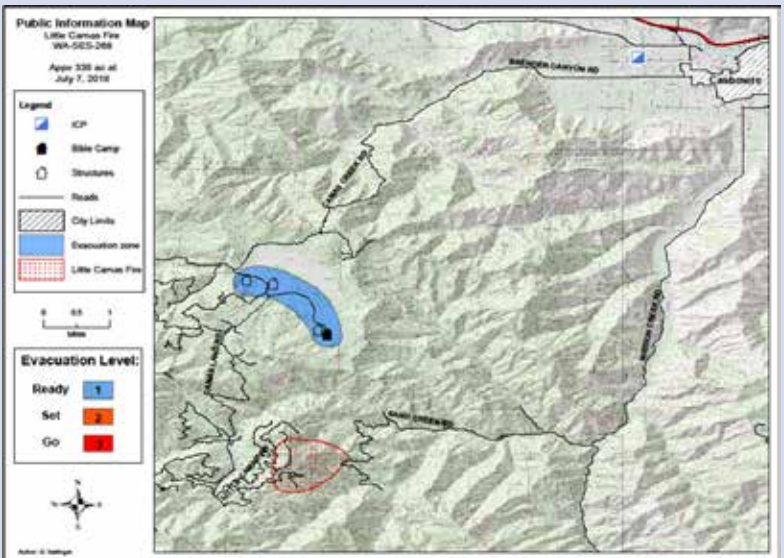

Camp and several surrounding residences are on a level one evacuation notice meaning folks living in the area may stay put but need to be ready to leave if the fire worsens. The Little Camas Fire is not expected to spread or reach anywhere near city limits.

Plain's Zach Miller wants to be Chelan County Commissioner

By GARY BÉGIN

As part of our continuing interview series with candidates for county, state and federal office, NCW Media, parent company of the Leavenworth Echo, Cashmere Valley Record and Lake Chelan Mirror, sat down with Chelan County Commission candidate and Plain native Zach Miller and asked him a variety of questions. His answers are presented below:

NCW Media: Why do you want to run for Chelan County Commissioner?

Zach Miller: With gratitude for all that this community has given me, I want to give back through public service. When I look at my daughter and think about the kids in our community, I want to ensure that they are afforded the same opportunities for work and housing when they grow up. We live in a special place, and it will take a lot of hard work and dedication to maintain our way of life in an ever changing world.

NCW Media: Do you have any organizational, NGO or private sector experience?

Miller: Throughout my time at Hopesource (a Community Action Council), and now Tall Timber (as the Assistant Director), my two primary responsibilities have been people management and problem solving. When managing people, my focus is providing each employee with the training, resources and support they need to most effectively carry out their job. I also strive to make every position sustainable, creating an environment where employees are retained and enjoy being part of a team. Both of these jobs also had constant moving targets, requiring that I am on-call all the time and respond quickly to the needs of clients or guests. The work of Chelan County is never finished. As a commissioner it would be my full time job, with that same 24 hour a day dedication, to solve problems alongside Commissioners England and Overbay, and the county staff.

NCW Media: What is Chelan County's most pressing issue?

Miller: Affordable housing is our number one problem. With so little private land, a growing number of second homes, and zoning that leaves little room for high density housing outside of the towns, we simply don't have enough homes for the families and workers in Chelan County.

Property taxes are on the rise, and it is getting more expensive to live in the homes we have. But there are real solutions, and I am hopeful that through a combination of rezoning for higher density housing, and more public and private partnerships, we can find collaborative ways to solve this issue with a regional focus instead of putting off as a problem for our cities and towns to solve. Every day I talk to people that have creative ideas, and I truly believe we can solve this problem together.

NCW Media: How will you help the two most vital cogs of the county 1) Tourism 2) Agriculture?

Miller: Tourism is thriving in our towns, but we still have so many untapped opportunities in ecotourism. For example, if you look at Plain, and how nordic skiing has drawn more tourists into a rural community, you realize that this land still has a lot of untapped potential. I will draw attention to these opportunities, while also focusing on improving the roads through strong maintenance programs, to help our citizens and visitors get to the tourist destinations. For Agriculture, first and foremost we have to call out what an important and unique industry this is. Water will be an ongoing issue, and we need to make sure that our orchardist get the resources they need to keep their crops healthy. I will also call on our young adults to realize the opportunities available, and consider joining these important industries.

NCW Media: How do you feel about the cannabis industry being chased out of the county by the current commissioners and will you keep their policies?

Miller: While there are tensions between cannabis growers and the county, the simple truth is that growers haven't been chased out. If the commissioners didn't want any growing they would have placed a permanent moratorium on growing and shut it down. Commissioners have the constant challenge of balancing multiple sides of every issue, and I believe they are trying to honor the many voices they have heard. I will always be open to reviewing policies and trying to find common ground, because I don't want anyone to feel they are being chased out of a community.

Hundreds of local veterans have breakfast at Pybus

Cashmere Valley Bank employees manned the kitchen and the serving line as well as paying constant attention to the seated vets and their friends and families. The overflow crowd even got to sit on the spacious patio overlooking the Columbia River and re-acquaint themselves with old friends while making new ones. A military-style jeep welcomed patrons to the side entrance of the market. With big smiles and a welcoming demeanor, Cashmere Valley Bank employees Edith Amante (left) and Ann Kinzel checked in the early morning diners.

WENATCHEE -- Nearly 400 local veterans, friends and family ate breakfast at Pybus Market July 4 thanks to the generosity of Cashmere Valley Bank, sponsor of the event. Area veterans representing World War Two, Korea, Vietnam, the "First Gulf War," Iraq and Afghanistan were all feted to scrambled eggs and ham, pancakes, coffee, orange juice and most of all camaraderie and recognition from the community.

Packs of granola mix and Crunch Pak apples were also on the serving line.

Non-combat veterans, those who served during peacetime, were also a big part of the mix of ages from infant

There will be riots in the streets

Part Two

Last week I mentioned how I thought both the extreme left and extreme right will basically beat each other up as they riot in the streets of urban America, but most rural folk won't really care and they will remain conservative as they have been for decades, even if the cities catch fire.

I am making the basic assumption that the cities are filled with leftist liberals anyway and that means the Democrats control them.

I said these riots would happen because of the Trump-kept promises of appointing conservative judges to SCOTUS as well as his immigration and other policies.

BTW, I voted for Trump, but I will not participate in riots for or against the left.

It means nothing to me who runs the country as long as the Constitution is respected and the garbage truck shows up on time and the various promised obligations of the government are fulfilled such as the mail delivery, a standing army, gun rights and a short list of other essentials.

If you don't vote in August (primaries) or November then you are part of whatever problem you are complaining about. If your solution is to riot, then you belong in jail, but that won't stop the frustrated from rioting anyway.

If you didn't vote then you get what you get and that person must be respected. If you voted and your side lost - too bad. Your party didn't do its job so change your leadership and try again in the next election.

When you were a kid, did you throw a temper tantrum if you lost a game of Parcheesi? The adult within screams at you now to learn to play better and bide your time.

Can the college kids do this? I doubt it. Can the minorities stop their righteous indignation from manifesting itself as violent acts? I doubt it. Thus, we will have riots and counter riots.

Stay indoors and protect yourselves if you live in a city or just ignore the rest of America if you live in the country. It has always been thus. Polarization is a part of the problem and will continue to be so as long as we keep electing polarizing figures. That sounds like a no-brainer, but it is also difficult to stop from happening every two and four years.

Speaking of which, President Trump already has a new Supreme Court nominee to replace Justice Kennedy and this new appointee will be rushed through the process and be serving before anyone tries to impeach Trump. Probably even before the November election.

Hopefully this new person will be against Roe v Wade and that's all I care about. That's right. One reason I voted for Trump is to destroy Roe v Wade just like Roe v Wade destroys babies.

Television and radio talk shows love to cite statistics, especially polls, to explain why 69 percent of Americans believe in leaving Roe v Wade as is and so that must be the right answer. That must be the "choice" of Americans, when in fact, it all depends whom you ask and under what situations their lives happen to be in at the time of the asking.

We, as a people, don't give adults the right to choose to kill other adults without consequences, but apparently it is okay to kill those with no voice to defend themselves?

I, like so many millions of evangelical Christians, believe this crazy fox with orange hair and a New York attitude aka, Donald Trump, was sent by God to rid us of Roe. Now this concept is coming to fruition.

I will gladly trade 11 million immigrants for 11 million new American babies.

Roe gives us the right to kill the unborn, but not even animals do that and hopefully, we are above the animal phase of our existence.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Publisher twists the facts

In his latest editorial, "Facts trumped by crying babies," the Echo publisher began by labeling as "factually flawed" the recent Time Magazine cover that showed Donald Trump looming over a crying toddler. The articles that followed in Time outlined the controversy over the Trump administration's policy that has separated more than 2,000 children from their families at the U.S. border with Mexico. Most of these families are from El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and other Central American countries.

The publisher claimed that since the child on the Time cover was never separated from her mother, the cover was an example of "fake news." The cover has inspired outrage, he wrote, by the "Trump Derangement Syndrome crowd," which "rarely" bothers to "examine the facts of any issue." Fact: Time Magazine never claimed that the child was separated from her mother. If the publisher had bothered to examine the facts, he would have found a clear explanation of the child's situation on page four of the magazine.

The publisher claimed that the parents whose children have been taken from them "have committed a crime by crossing into this country illegally." Fact: Most of these families seek asylum from domestic abuse and/or gang violence. Seeking asylum from violence is not a crime; it is a human right.

The publisher's rant diverged into a potpourri of subjects, from Stormy Daniels to Hillary Clinton's emails (can't miss that one). More of his claims:

- "The voters have chosen to elect [Trump]." Fact: Voters nationwide chose Hillary Clinton over Trump by more than two million votes in 2016.

- "[T]he anti-Trump media has (sic) fanned the flames of emotional unrest over ripping children from their mother's (sic) arms." Fact: It is Trump's policy of separating families, and not media reporting, that has created this controversy.

The publisher's most outrageous statement: Those he cleverly calls the "TDS crowd" don't "care about compassion for immigrant children." How dare he claim to know what millions across this county care about. Fact: According to polls by CBS, CNN, Reuters and others, two-thirds of Americans oppose Trump's policy of separating immigrant families. Fact: The children stolen and still separated from their families have been scarred for life.

Fact: The New York Times reported that according to officials of multiple agencies involved, when the Trump administration devised its "no tolerance policy" to separate families at the border, "[t] here was no system set up beforehand to link families and no plan on how to bring them back together." Where are the children and their families? This is a national tragedy.

On June 30 in Wenatchee, we joined millions of people across this country to express our grief and outrage at the national disgrace created by Donald Trump. This was our simple collective statement of fact: families belong together.

Beware of contract slavery

"Freedom at Last" as three teachers were enjoying their coffee in Wenatchee shouted when the Supreme Court ruling concerning compulsory union WEA and agency dues was considered a violation of the First Amendment. This decision directly affects every teacher and employee who belongs to the WEA. No union dues would be subsidizing the Washington State Democratic party for those candidates and policies that directly affect their deeply held religious principles and values in violation of their First Amendment rights, relating to "compelled speech."

There is no doubt there will be fewer WEA members after this decision. Teachers can opt out of the WEA immediately. Of course, the WEA will throw up all sorts of road blocks, such that they cannot accept a resignation from the union unless the school WEA representative is part of the process, and then "slow walk" the request to the State WEA who have their own set of "moon walking" behavior patterns. New teachers will be faced with a WEA contract who do not understand the significance of this momentous decision. Beware of the small print if you elect to join the union on your application. You have signed a contract that is legally binding for your entire teaching career in Washington state as a union member that prevents you from withdrawing from the union at a later date. This is known as "contract slavery." You may resign from the union but they collect the dues from your paycheck. The Washington state SEIU is a masteer of this technique. Governor "sleepy" Inley is working with other labor unions to guarantee union dues from every government worker by legislative initiative thru the Democratic House and Senate.

Just say "No" to the WEA representative at your school district when that issue of union dues is approached. Too often teachers and other government employees don't read the fine print, only learn later that they have signed away their First Amendment rights forever.

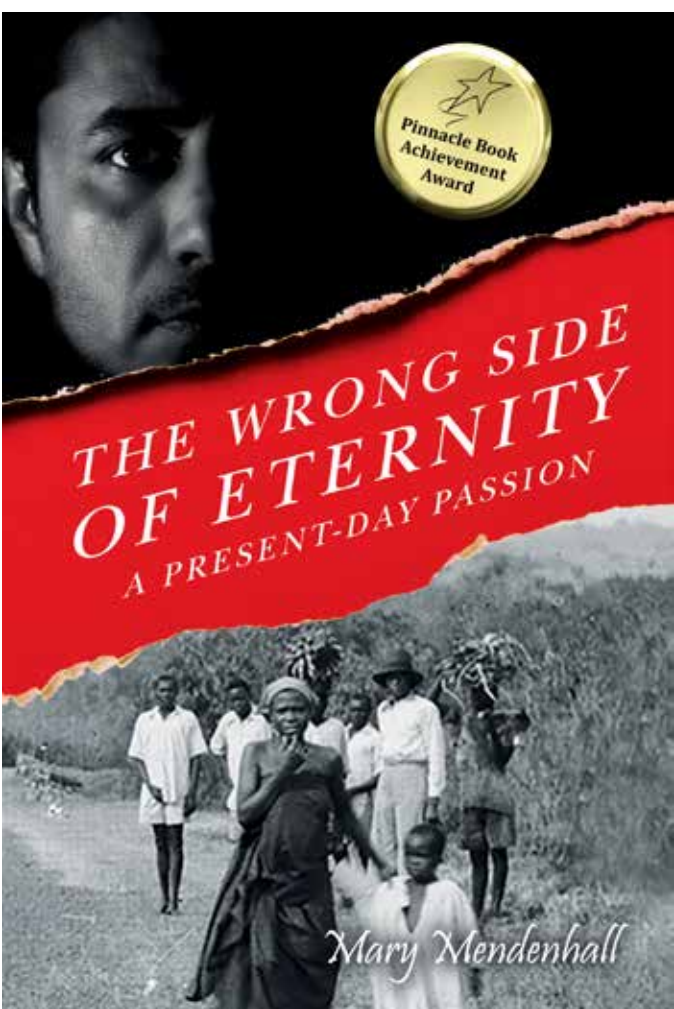

For those with an "agency shop" agreement with the WEA, these individuals do not have to pay any WEA union dues whatsoever. Send a certified letter, and hold a duplicate copy, requesting that no WEA fees be deducted from their paycheck, and cite the most recent Supreme Court decision concerning "compelled speech" as a reason for your letter to the WEA. Send a cc to the Cascade or Cashmere school district HR section of your intentions.

If you are still having problems with the WEA, contact Washington Freedom Foundation, by phone or mail who may act on you behalf within the legal system.

The next case to hit the Supreme Court will be "compelled speech" in the private sector with union sometime in 2019.

Life as J.O.E.

What is important to you? It is not a hard question to answer, just observe where you focus your time and money on and it will reveal what really matters most in your life.

Yet I fear for most people that where they spend their energy is on things that don't have any eternal significance. In other words, many people are tragically wasting their lives on trivial pursuits.

Priorities matter and how you manage your priorities can either mean success or failure in your Christian walk.

For some, family is the priority. The family comes first and everything that happens in life is to ensure kids are successful in sports, academics and that the household functions as a well-adjusted, well fed and well-to-do unit. Others, it is the career. Life revolves around work schedules and long hours at the office to ensure corporate success.

Whatever it is, it pales in comparison to Christ.

Families can be taken away. Jobs can be lost. As long as we are here on this earth, we are to hold onto things loosely.

The Bible gives us the order of priority. In fact, Christ commands that we are to be "all in" when it comes to him.

If you read the Gospels, you will see that Jesus spoke some incredibly hard truths. One of them found in Matthew 10:34-39, specifically in verse 37, Jesus says if you love your parents and your children more than him, you aren't worthy of Jesus. Statements like that, on the surface, are hard for us to swallow. Many people stumble on the reality that Jesus Christ demands absolute allegiance and first place in people's lives.

Is Jesus some megalomaniac or tyrant to command priority? Well, to be blunt, He is Lord and Creator and that gives him the right to not only be enthroned in heaven but to be enthroned as King of your life.

Even more so, Christ is the highest good and when we orient our lives so he takes center stage, it leads to real spiritual blessing and satisfaction. Oh, to be sure, having a priority on Christ may cost you and is extremely difficult but the rewards outweigh the cost every single time. As Paul says in Romans 8:18 "I consider that our present sufferings are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed in us".

When our priorities are distorted things just don't seem to fit as well. We are constantly bustling about. There is certainly no sense of peace or fulfillment. We feel and act as if our lives are out of order.

The truth is, they are when we don't put Christ first.

Jesus gave this incredible promise about setting and maintaining right priorities. He says that "seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things will be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). God's fatherly care and provision—the sustaining of your life is what Jesus means by "these things" and those things will be provided when we are placed under Jesus' kingly rule and part of his Kingdom work.

When is the last time you checked your priorities? Could it be observed that you are a seeker of the Kingdom of God? Or perhaps you have placed your priorities on making a name for yourself in the office or being the devoted soccer parent?

Here is an acronym for us to remember: J.O.E., Jesus Over Everything. Christ demands to be first place in our lives and he is worthy of such.

A WALK WITH PASTOR JOHN SMITH

Mexican resident killed by train in Cashmere

CCSO NEWS RELEASE

On Thursday, July 5 at approximately 6 p.m., Sheriff Brian Burnett reports an accident involving a train versus pedestrian on the railroad tracks in the area of Goodwin Road and Ruby Street in Cashmere. The reporting party, Burlington Northern Santé Fe Railroad (BNSF), told Rivercom the accident occurred near train track milepost 1662.5.

The Chelan County Sheriff's Office arrived in the area along with multiple Chelan County Fire Department units and Ballard Ambulance. The victim was located underneath a train car approximately 250 feet west of the front engine. Ballard Ambulance Paramedics confirmed the victim was deceased.

The train had been eastbound at approximately 25 miles per hour when they observed a male approximately 200-300 feet in front of the train. The male was walking away from them in the middle of the tracks. The investigation indicates the male was wearing headphones and walking eastbound, the same direction the train was travelling. The train operators activated the horn multiple times, but the male did not respond.

The deceased has been identified as 32-year-old Mario Villalobos Subias, a resident of Mexico. His family has been notified.

NCW Media Inc.'s Obituary and Memorial Policy

An obituary is a way for family members to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the larger community of the deceased.

Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data. Memorials are another way of letting the community know about the life and memories of the person who has died. A memorial is different from an obituary. An obituary is usually current while a memorial can be written later.

For publication in the Cashmere Valley Record or The Leavenworth Echo, an obituary or memorial needs to be typed and emailed to editor@leavenworthecho.com no later than 4 p.m. Friday for the next week's issue. Funeral homes and chapels can submit obituaries by noon on Monday, except holidays.

Obituaries are priced per word while the charge for memorial ads are by the column-inch. Cost of the obituary/memorial is due at the time of placement.

Jack Hughes-Hageman wants to be your next Congressman

By GARY BEGIN

Issaquah entrepreneur Jack Hughes-Hageman is vying for Washington's 8th Congressional District. At 26-years-old, he is the youngest candidate in the race. NCW Media asked Hughes-Hageman a variety of questions and the following are the answers he gave:

NCW Media: Why are you running for office?

Hughes-Hageman: As a fifth-generation resident of the state, I am a staunch supporter of Veteran's rights, Tourism, and Small Town America. Following in my grandfather's footsteps, I want to bring practical "No Nonsense" politics to a dysfunctional congress.

NCW Media: Why is your youth an asset?

Hughes-Hageman: In today's technological and fast paced atmosphere politicians need to be aware of the unique and ever changing threats to American interests and democracy. My age gives me a unique perspective that is both malleable and well informed. I am focused on creating solutions not making problems, still young enough to remember that our government is of the people, by the people, and for the people of the United States of America.

I am an unabashed dreamer, and man is the American dream strong when I dream it. I was raised in a post 9/11 world dominated by internet commerce, the conflict in the Middle East, fast food, and social media.

NCW Media: What do you tell people who say you don't have any experinece in almost anything?

Hughes-Hageman: Just like the Johnny Cash song says: I've been everywhere man. I have worked as a farmer, a logger, a construction worker, a salesman, a waiter, the President of my college fraternity, a banker, community activist, and an award winning essay writer all before the age of 21.

NCW Media: Why Republican Party?

Hughes-Hageman: When I was a young man I read about a boy who grew up in a log cabin and was famed for his height and honesty. This man would grow up to be Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican President of the United States of America. That man set a precedent of greatness for the position; extolling honesty, integrity, audacity to dream of a better world.

NCW Media: What are your opinions about abortion, gun rights, North Korea, Jerusalem as the place for the American Embassy, Steel/ Aluminum tariffs?

Hughes-Hageman: My official opinion on abortion is that I have no opinion on abortion. As a man it is an issue that will never affect my body or my autonomy and thus I refrain from forming an opinion or passing judgement on others. My decisions as a law maker will be based on the decisions, input, regulation or mental illness? I think it is both. We need a complete overhaul to bring gun checks into the 21st century, eliminating backlogs entirely and give the public real time accountability to gun regulation in the United States.

The old embassy in Tel Aviv was a building; the new one in Jerusalem is also just a building. Was the move advisable from a peace process point of view? Jack doesn't think so, but then again not many do.

In global economy unilateral moves tend to trend negative in the long run; people remember getting screwed out of the blue. In the short run you might get lucky and the tariffs increases American steel and aluminum production, but the long-term downturn in manufacturing from higher commodity prices means there will be no increase in demand at all for steel and aluminum. These tariffs will devastate American steel and aluminum in the long run and destroy short term manufacturing.

NCW Media: What do you mean by calling yourself an "entrepreneur"?

Hughes-Hageman: Believe it or not I was a private business consultant for a number of years. I returned to Washington after college to advise new business in developing markets with the kind of cutting edge techniques they would need to be successful in a fast paced and competitive markets. Specializing in good old fashioned know-how and having a knack for success, I had several clients in the micro agriculture and retail sectors.

NCW Media: Where do you stand on DACA?

Hughes-Hageman: DACA stands for Deferred Action against Childhood Arrivals, this policy was implemented in 2012 to acknowledge that morality, and above all the will to hold the nation together even if it would cost him his life. He would be followed by such great men as Ulysses S Grant, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, William Howard Taft, and Dwight D. Eisenhower. These men reformed legislation, won wars, and changed the face of the globe. They did it with style, and a sincere love and respect for our great nation. These men are why I am a Republican, them and others like them gave me the and feedback of my female constituents. Those decisions should be made by the women of Washington's 8th district, and I will be relying on them for guidance in regards to women's health issues.

Today the rights to firearms versus their danger to the public is one of the number one issues in America. The problem has gotten severe enough that more children have died in schools this year than active military personnel in the battle field.

Public Notice

Notice Of Meeting by the Commission of Public Utility District Number 1 Of Chelan County On Development Of An Integrated Resource Plan Progress Report Under RCW 19.280

To Interested Persons

The Board of Commissioners of the Chelan County PUD (Commission) hereby gives notice that it will hold a public meeting to approve the District's 2018 Integrated Resource Plan (IRP) Progress Report. The report, required by RCW 19.280, describes the mix of supply-side generating resources and conservation and efficiency resources that will meet current and projected needs at the lowest reasonable cost and risk to the utility and its ratepayers.

Per this notice, the Commission invites public participation in the meeting scheduled for 1:00 p.m. on July 23, 2018 in the Commissioner's Boardroom at 327 N. Wenatchee Ave.

Integrated Resource Plan Background
In 2006, RCW 19.280 was adopted by the Washington State legislature. The statute requires investor-owned and consumer-owned electric utilities with more than 25,000 customers to develop IRPs and progress reports. Among other things, IRPs must include a range of load forecasts, assessments of commercially available, utility scale renewable and nonrenewable generating technologies, a comparative evaluation of renewable and nonrenewable generating resources and conservation and efficiency resources and an assessment of methods for integrating renewable resources and addressing overgeneration events, if applicable. The District must hold a public hearing prior to submitting its 2018 IRP Progress Report, which is due to the Department of Commerce by September 1, 2018. Utilities must produce progress reports reflecting changing conditions related to and the progress towards the IRP every two years and an updated IRP must be developed at least every four years.

Public Participation Opportunities

This will be the Board's final public meeting on the development of the 2018 IRP Progress Report. To learn more or provide comments, please visit Chelan PUD's web site at www.chelanpud.org/environment/operating-responsibly/integrated-resource-plan Published in the Leavenworth Echo/ Cashmere Valley Record/ Lake Chelan Mirror on July 11 2018. #82481

Protecting your skin from the sun

Fifteen years ago, on a lovely Saturday morning in Tampa, Florida, I parked my rented Ford Focus next to a baseball field. Patricia, her husband Bill and I had been invited to come watch Frank, a mutual friend's 10-year old son pitch in a Little League game that afternoon. The weather was perfect: high, wispy clouds, not too humid, with a temperature in the mid-70s.

Frank was warming up in the infield as we claimed 3 seats on the top row of the open bleachers. And 30 minutes later, at exactly 1 pm, the opposing team took the field.

Their pitcher walked the first two boys of Frank's team, then struck out the next 2 batters. With 2 on base and 2 outs, the pressure was on. The next 2 pitches were balls, then on the third pitch we heard a sharp crack as the ball shot between the first and second basemen, bouncing out to center field before being scooped up. The two runners on base both made it home, and the batter made it all the way to third base. Frank was next at bat, letting two balls go by and valiantly swinging at the next two. With two balls and two strikes, he hit the next pitch, but it was caught by the second baseman, ending the first inning. In the middle of the third inning I felt flushed.

"Patricia? I feel hot..."
"Goodness, you're red as a BEET! You need to get out of the sun RIGHT NOW!"

5 minutes later, I sat in the shade, puzzling over my red, itchy skin.

"I KNOW I put on sunscreen this morning!"

Exposing our skin to sunshine causes our skin to react by "tanning",

"burning" or even rash and itching. Sunlight contains ultraviolet radiation, which makes exposed skin turn red, creating tanning, burning or other skin reactions like rash and itching. Sunshine has several types of radiation, including ultraviolet A and B. Exposure to ultraviolet B (UVB) radiation causes sunburn, skin cancer and accelerated skin changes such as wrinkles and spots called photo aging. UVB rays are most intense between 10 in the morning and 4 pm, and help our skin produce Vitamin D.

Like UVB, ultraviolet A (UVA) radiation also causes sunburn and tanning, but in people taking certain medicines it can also trigger redness, swelling and itching in exposed skin, which is called photosensitivity. Normal sunlight has approximately 20 times the UVA radiation as UVB. Because UVB radiation causes more sunburn, 96% of the rays from tanning beds are UVA wavelengths. Back on that day in Florida I was taking a prescription medicine that could cause photosensitivity reactions by increasing increased the sensitivity of your skin to UVA radiation. Unfortunately, the sunscreen I'd applied that morning was several years old and only formulated to protect against UVB rays, not against UVA wavelengths, the ones responsible for photosensitivity skin reactions. Today, most sunscreen products protect against both UVA and UVB radiation.

The measure of how much protection a sunscreen product gives is called its SPF (Sun Protection Factor). The bigger the SPF number, the better the protection. For example, if you properly apply a sunscreen with an SPF of 15, you could stay out in the sun 15 times as long without burning as you could without it. Sunscreens come in two main types: chemical and physical. Chemical sunscreens work by absorbing specific wavelengths of UV radiation before they penetrate your skin, while physical sunscreens reflect and scatter UVA and UVB radiation. The lighter your skin, the more quickly it can burn and the more protection you need.

5 Tips for Avoiding Sunburn or Photosensitivity:

1. Apply sunscreen at least 15 minutes before you are exposed to the sun. To be most effective, sunscreens need time to bind to your skin.

2. Don't skimp when applying sunscreen. The FDA estimates an adult in a swimsuit should use about 4 and 1/2 teaspoonfuls when applying sunscreen to their whole body.

3. Reapply sunscreen frequently, especially after swimming, playing in the water or just sweating. And don't forget to reapply sunscreen after drying yourself off with a towel.

4. Replace your old/expired sunscreen.

Although most are good for at least 3 years, when stored near heat they can lose their effectiveness even sooner.

5. If you take medicine that causes photosensitivity, avoid direct sun or tanning beds.

Cover up with long sleeves and a hat with a brim at least 4 inches wide, or apply sunscreen that protects against with both UVA and UVB, reapplying frequently.

to 90-plus years old. Cashmere Valley Bank employees gave out American flags, manned the kitchen as well as the serving line and made sure all attendees were well cared for during their stay.

One anonymous veteran said he never expected to be treated as an esteemed member of the community, especially after the treatment he received upon returning from Vietnam.

"I'm speechless. Almost in disbelief that after all these years we are being recognized for our service," he said.

The event was dubbed "Breakfast For Heroes" and was held in the community room for the third year. Vets ate for free and all others paid $5. The proceeds went to help local veteran organizations.

Body found in Wenatchee River in Monitor

CSSO NEWS RELEASE

On July 6 at approximately noon, Sheriff Brian Burnett reports a body was recovered in the Wenatchee River, near the 4700 block of Old Monitor Road, in Monitor. The body was first observed tangled in some brush by a rafter as they passed through the area. The rafter reported the sighting through Rivercom, but had left the area prior to the arrival of emergency responders.

Chelan County Sheriff's Office deputies arrived in the area and located the deceased body in the river 15-20 feet from shore snagged on submerged logs. The body was recovered and turned over to the Chelan County Coroner. Further investigation is required for identification purposes and the potential cause of death.

many in our nation came here without documentation or legal status as children and grew up as an American and that they deserved legal recognition, the ability to work, and protection from deportation as long as they maintained their biannual paperwork. This program stopped short of giving these people a true path to citizenship, which is in my opinion a travesty.

NCW Media: Are you in favor of building a wall?

Hughes-Hageman: I do not feel large scale walls and border fortifications have been effective for several hundred years. Even the best of the best giant walls in history have been spectacular failures; The Great Wall of China, the Trojan wall, the double Theodosian walls of Constantinople, Hadrian's wall, the walls of Jericho and even the fabled walls of Babylon are all famous for how they didn't work as intended.

NCW Media: Are you able to represent rural Washingtonians as well as urban?

Hughes-Hageman: My ability to represent both urban and rural populations comes from hands on experience living in both.

NCW Media: Should Trump be forgiven his corruption or impeached?

Hughes-Hageman: I think as American's we can all agree on the kind of severe punishment that high treason comes with. Anyone, even the president or president elect, who commits treason against the government founded of the people, by the people, and for the people of the United States of America should be held accountable.

NCW Media: Can you work well with others to pass bipartisan laws?

Hughes-Hageman: The real chances of passing a law without bipartisan support are virtually nil; anyone trying to pass legislation without bipartisan support has no real intentions of passing it into law. I pride myself on my ability to find compromise, and there is certainly no other candidate willing to cut a deal like I am. I am young, empathetic, and have a sincere love for America and all her people; this is why I am much more like to make friends across the aisle than any of my counterparts.

NCW Media: Feel free to tell the readers about yourself:

Hughes-Hageman: I am an avid camper, hiker, gardener, and I really enjoy a nice bike ride. As for education I graduated from Sammamish Highschool and went to university at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. I am also a graduate of the Frank J. Ruck Leadership Institute in 2013 and received awards at the Carlson Leadership Academy in 2012.

NCW Media: As an ordained pastor, will you be able to keep your religious beliefs from crossing over into county business?

Miller: With any faith based organization, just as within politics, there are differing views on almost every topic. Conservative and liberal, traditional and progressive, left and right. I have done my best to stay neutral and honor all voices wherever I have worked, supporting people for who they are while looking for ways to help everyone work together in harmony. The most foundational part of my beliefs are that every person, regardless of any categorization is of equal value, dignity, and worth. I will always stand for everyone, because a commissioner's job is to represent the people, not their own special interest. I want to serve, and I don't have any religious agenda going into local politics other than honoring the amazing people of Chelan County.

NCW Media: Do you feel city, county, state and federal government has too many regulations that inhibit growth?

Miller: The question of regulation is not about how many regulations, but having the right regulations. We need good codes and standards by which we can live together that don't infringe upon individual liberties and rights. Talking to business owners, you almost always hear about a frustrating regulation that doesn't make sense for a rural county. But there are also numerous good regulations that keep us safe and preserve our infrastructure. As a commissioner, I will fight for common sense, taking in all opinions and facts so that we can maximize our growth while adequately planning for our future with the right regulations.

NCW Media: How will you join Republicans and Democrats divergent points of view if elected, and why are you running as an independent?

Miller: The truth is that I'm for both parties. I want to see Republicans and Democrats operate as the best versions of themselves. Iron sharpens iron, and we need two parties with diverse opinions and approaches engaged in respectful dialogue. My working life has shown me the benefits of equally valuing everyone in the room, and I want to carry that into local politics. Within our county, I want to be a voice for diplomacy. We are all in this life together, and the divergent views we have can help us see more innovative solutions to the problems we face. I am running as an independent to stand for both parties equally. I care more about people than party lines, and will do everything I can to ensure that every voice is heard.

NCW Media: Tell the readers about yourself, family, hobbies, etc.

Miller: I grew up in Plain, and met my wife Cassie, as a freshman at Cascade High School. We have now been together for 18 years. Our daughter Melanie turned 4 this summer. The two most important things to Melanie in Chelan County are finding water to swim in and unrestricted public dancing. I love my family, and am so thankful for their support. My wife has spent more than half my life with me, and knows my heart is fully dedicated to the people around me, which is why she supports me running for office. I am thankful for the opportunity to show my daughter it is more rewarding to serve than receive. It is with deep gratitude and thankfulness that I am seeking public office, because the communities of Chelan County have given me and my family so much.
