Bluegrass comes to Cashmere

The Wenatchee River Bluegrass Festival was held in Cashmere June 15-17, at Chelan County Expo Center. The 16th year of the event featured vendors, workshops, good eats and of course, a wide variety of live musical performances. Bluegrass fans from across the state enjoyed listening to the old timey music and many amateur jam sessions were held around the camp. Six bands performed throughout the three-day event: Flatt Lonesome, Alan Bibey and Grasstowne, Special Consensus, The Kody Norris Show, Old Growth Quartet and Rusty Hinges Bluegrass. The arena was jam packed with folks listening to the upbeat, fast-paced music during the evening shows on Friday and Saturday nights. Many, dressed in their Sunday best, also came to enjoy the gospel show on Sunday morning which featured bluegrass-style hymns and other songs praising God. Kody Norris, of The Kody Norris Show, and the rest of his band traveled all the way from Mountain City,

Tennessee to perform in Cashmere. Clad in a rhinestone-studded suit, Norris explained his band’s music has a traditional minded, classic country, retro and “1950’s Grand Ole Opry type feel.” Norris said growing up in a small church-oriented community – with many local bluegrass bands – made him want to keep the retro tradition alive. On Sunday morning, Norris performed a religious original song about a woman from his hometown who died suddenly, which resulted in a standing ovation from several audience members. “I felt the audience was very receptive, I hope they’ll have us back and this won’t be our last time here,” Norris said.

Facts trumped by crying babies

The cover of Time magazine last week offered a doctored photo showing President Trump standing over a crying baby with a tag line - Welcome to America. It has inspired outrage by the Trump Derangement Syndrome crowd. Problem is it is factually flawed. In other words it is fake news. News deliberately created to inspire a visceral emotional response.

Here are the inconvenient facts of the story. The mother and baby were never separated. The 2-year-old baby was put down while border agents patted the mother down. Moments later the mother picked the baby back up and they were taken away in a van-together. The baby's father and the Honduran Deputy foreign minister confirmed that fact.

This is just the latest example of how the truth of the issue is irrelevant to the TDS crowd. Facts do not matter to these people despite their constant cry, "you are entitled to your own opinion but not to your own set of facts." They rarely bother to examine the facts of any issue.

Tearing families apart is not an option any of us find desirable. But the reality is it happens all of the time. American citizens are regularly separated from their children when they are incarcerated for committing a crime. Why should the children of illegal immigrants be treated differently? The parents have committed a crime by crossing into this country illegally.

Some have argued that the families should be kept together until the parents have been arraigned in a court of law. There are a number of problems that make that a difficult option. First, the parents have already demonstrated disrespect for our laws by coming here illegally so there is no guarantee they will show up in court when required. Second a court has already ruled that the children cannot be held indefinitely.

Failing to get any traction with Stormy Daniels or the Russia collusion stories the anti-Trump media has fanned the flames of emotional unrest over ripping children from their mother's arms. Their stories are couched in terms of keeping the children in cages and placing them in "concentration camps". USA Today ran a story with the headline, "Hundreds of immigrant children wait in cages." CNN tried to justify the Time cover photo saying, "...it shows the compassion gap that exists between the Trump administrations zero-tolerance border policy and the real life people that are affected."

The problem with this type

What if we all just got along?

Many years ago a Black guy was nearly beat to death by bunch of cops in L.A. Afterwards he simply said, "Why can't we all just get along?"

Of course he was given a ton of money for his illegal treatment and lived the good life thereafter.

Eventually he partied too much and was found dead in his swimming pool.

That was a sad ending, but it brings up a good point: Why can't we all just get along? Those famous words uttered by Rodney King during a news conference about his beating should not only apply to the various demographic communities that make American diversity such an incredible dynamic cauldron of entrepreneurship and culture, but also to the family of nations.

Wouldn't it be nice if the Koreans united and California divided and many other states of sensational journalism is it creates false narratives that do not allow us to confront and resolve difficult real world issues. Worse, it empowers the misinformed and factually limited to act in ways that could be harmful to those who are working hard to address the issues.

It is far past time that the Trump Delusion Syndrome crowd got over their hatred of the Donald and resolved themselves to the fact that most Americans are fed up with business as usual in Washington. The voters have chosen to elect an outsider in an effort to overturn the corrupt and ineffective programs that are bankrupting our country and turning average Americans against each other.

While the country is focused on babies being separated from their law breaking parents. No one is paying attention to the real scandal in Washington. Our entire justice system has been corrupted. There is no longer equal justice for all. There is substantial evidence that government employees conspired to influence the outcome of an election. Forget the fake Russian collusion investigation. There are Federal government employees that need to be terminated immediately.

When our justice system favors any political party, individual or group over another then clearly we are course to becoming another third world dictatorship.

and nations allowed those who wanted more freedoms to separate peacefully?

The fact is, separating everyone who wants to be separated and uniting those who want unification is a naive answer to much more complex issues. The same holds true with this 51st State idea of Washington Legislator Matt Shea who wants Eastern Washington to break away from the mother ship in Olympia.

War is a failure to communicate. Putting everything on a ballot for voters to decide is a failure of leadership.

What's worse in this case is FBI officials were willing to ignore clear violations of the law by one candidate in order to prevent the other candidate from getting elected.

Hillary Clinton should have been charged with gross negligence in the way she handled her email and electronic messages. To make matters worse she obstructed justice by destroying evidence. None of that mattered to her supporters. But more importantly, it didn't matter to the FBI investigators who should have recommended charges be brought against her.

The Justice Department scandal is proof that there is still much work to be done in draining the swamp in Washington. And the controversy over how to deal with children of illegal immigrants at the border is just another diversion from the more significant problem of out of control bureaucrats in our nations capital.

The TDS crowd doesn't care about compassion for immigrant children. What they care about is their loss of power. True American patriots must not allow themselves to be distracted by fake news and false narratives.

It is time to clean house at the FBI and indict Hillary Clinton and any of her campaign aides and government employees that tried to cover up for her.

Bill Forhan can be reached at 509-548-5286 or publisher@leavenworthecho.com.

We need skilled ambassadors and skilled legislators to learn and perfect the art of compromise. As Lincoln said, "A House divided against itself can not stand."

It is easy to punch someone in the mouth to get your way, but that was an action bullies took at age 10.

Adults can do better and yes, we can all "just get along," but mediation, negotiation and compromise are skills that only folks who practice them can learn. Anyone can throw a punch, but not everyone can talk state and national sovereignty off the ledge of certain anarchy.

Is anarchy what we really want? Of course not. We want peace and a place for our children to be safe. Food in our bellies and a shelter over our heads. Most other things in life are superfluous. That includes the ideas we cling to so tightly that we are willing to kill for them.

Learn to be tolerant or it will be the undoing of your cause. Give a little and get a little. That is the American way. Ask Ronald Reagan and Tip O'Neil.

City Council appoints Jim Fletcher Mayor of Cashmere

By KYRA PLANETZ

Following Former Mayor Jeff Gomes's resignation three weeks ago, Cashmere City Council has been in need of a new mayor. At the last council meeting on Monday, June 11, members filled the vacancy by appointing the former pro tem, Jim Fletcher, to take on the full responsibility of the position. Fletcher will serve until the end of Gomes's term in 2019 when a new mayor will be elected by the people to begin serving in 2020.

City Attorney Chuck Zimmerman explained to the council the logistics for choosing a new mayor at the meeting, which required them to appoint someone within 90 days of Gomes's resignation. After several minutes of deliberation, the council decided it was best to appoint Fletcher the day of as he was already comfortable serving as the pro tem and planned to run in the 2019 election. Councilman Daniel Scott said he felt comfortable appointing Fletcher because the people of Cashmere would still be able mayor.

"I'm going to be here to do everything that needs to get done, that's the long-term picture. Short-term, I still have a day job until September but I have the flexibility in my job to be able to schedule my clients' appointments to work around meetings the mayor needs to be at," Fletcher said.

Because Fletcher accepted the new position, there is currently an open spot for a city council member. The council accepted applications until Thursday, June 21, and had received three as of that date. Interviews will be held at next month's first meeting on Monday, July 9, with expected appointment that night. The council will continue to accept applications for the city planner position until a qualifying candidate is found. Other items discussed at the June 11 meeting are as follows:

- The city accepted a $900-dollar state grant to improve their archives and records management.
- The city signed a contract with Central Washington Asphalt, Inc. to begin the 2018 Pavement Preservation Overlay Project.
- The city approved an interlocal agreement with Chelan County Public Utility District No. 1 to replace Cashmere city lights with LED fixtures.
- Dave Erickson was appointed pro tem, to serve as Mayor in the absence of Fletcher.

OBITUARY

Glenda Ann Goedde

Glenda Ann Goedde, 79 of Wenatchee, Washington joined our Lord and many family members and friends on June 5, 2018. Born Sept. 7, 1938 to Kenneth and Juanita Johns, Glenda began her life in Los Angeles, California. Her family traveled to and from Washington several times before permanently moving to start a family ranch in 1947, in the town of Orondo. There, Glenda attended Orondo and East Wenatchee schools while working on the family ranch with her sisters and cousins and enjoying many rides on her horse, Toots. Glenda graduated from Wenatchee High School in 1956, and was Princess Orondo that same year. After high school, she attended Kinman Business University in Spokane.

Glenda met and married the love of her life, Ken Goedde, in 1959. As their family grew and job requirements changed, the Goeddes moved from Chelan to East Wenatchee. The family then moved to Cashmere in 1976, where they raised three children. Ken and Glenda then moved to Wenatchee in 2017.

Glenda worked at several banks during her working years as well as Welsh Fruit Sales, where she earned her nickname "Sam." Her first granddaughter is named after her (Samantha). All while working, she carpooled several children across town to school, built and kept an amazing home of warmth and love, volunteered with Ken building parade floats, and eventually started building them commercially.

Designing and building floats with Ken provided a great opportunity for Glenda to express her artistic abilities. In a span of 15 years, 45 award-winning floats were designed, built, and transported to partake in numerous festivals. Glenda's sister, Marge Noyd, joined in the fun and worked side-by-side for several years, where they shared their talents, lots of laughter and sometimes tears over their precious works of art. Ken and Glenda enjoyed those years meeting and creating deep friendships across the globe.

In between years of floats the Goeddes enjoyed traveling to Europe, Canada, the East Coast, and Hawaii.

In 2004, Glenda was diagnosed with breast cancer.

She fought this battle with fierce determination for the remainder of her life. In 2012, she was baptized, confirmed and became a member of Saint Francis Xavier Catholic Church, where she built an additional community of great friendships and support.

Glenda was known by many as a gracious host, ready with some goodies, wisdom, a welcoming smile, and a deep sense of humor. Even in her times of difficulty, she wanted to know how everyone else was.

Glenda is survived by her husband Ken Goedde, children Russ (Lynda) granddaughter Samantha Goedde, Tony (Tina) granddaughter Gabrielle Goedde, and Jill (Dave) grandsons Peter and James Nye, sisters Ardie Shriner, and Kathy Bailey and her husband Jim, and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents Kenneth and Juanita Johns, an infant brother, nephew Alan Shriner, and sister Marge Noyd.

A celebration of life will be held Thursday, July 12, 2018, 11 a.m., at Our Lady of Assumption Catholic Church, Cashmere. A reception will follow at Cashmere Riverside Center.

In lieu of flowers, please make a donation in Glenda's name to Our Lady of Assumptions Catholic Church building fund, Wells House, or Wenatchee Wellness Center.

The family gives special thanks to her many doctors, nurses, hospice caregivers, friends and family for the many years of prayers and support throughout her journey.

OBITUARY

Phoenix "Robellini" Roaster

Phoenix "Robellini" Roaster, age 8 years, of Blewett Pass, Wa., died Saturday, June 2nd. He was the rescued pet of Dan and Sherrie Kill, owners of Kashmir Gardens Florist in Cashmere, Wa. The Kills rescued "Robellini" at their flower shop 4 1/2 years ago after he had been abandoned in the downtown Cashmere area. "Robellini" lived out the remainder of his life at the Kill home up Blewett Pass. He leaves behind his flock of 2 hens. Sophia and Dolly, Riley the border collie, his adopted caregivers, Dan and Sherrie Kill, and his friend, Nola Hensley, who kept a watchful eye on him prior to his cap111re.

"Robellini" had become somewhat of a sensation in Cashmere. It's not everyday you have a "celebrity rooster" that gets stories written and printed about him in the local paper.

His friendly "Cock-a-doodle-do" will be greatly missed. A private burial was held at the Kill home the same day.

NCW Media Inc.'s Obituary and Memorial Policy

An obituary is a way for family members to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the larger community of the deceased.

Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data. Memorials are another way of letting the community know about the life and memories of the person who has died. A memorial is different from an obituary. An obituary is usually current while a memorial can be written later.

For publication in the Cashmere Valley Record or The Leavenworth Echo, an obituary or memorial needs to be typed and emailed to editor@leavenworthecho.com no later than 4 p.m. Friday for the next week's issue. Funeral homes and chapels can submit obituaries by noon on Monday, except holidays.

Obituaries are priced per word while the charge for memorial ads are by the column-inch. Cost of the obituary/memorial is due at the time of placement.

Is Immigration Enforcement Biblical?

The government has a right to enforce its laws and supporting that doesn't make anyone less Christian.

The hysteria within the media concerning the enforcement of our immigration laws and what to do about families separated when those laws are broken has been overwhelming.

And of course, like with any issue, this discussion finds its way into the church and Christians are responding to it in very different ways.

Some are advocating compassion at the expense of immigration enforcement, stating emphatically that this is what Jesus would do. Jesus cared for the ailing, the downtrodden and the disenfranchised. Therefore, if he were to look at the multitude who are crossing the border, he would have compassion on them like he did with the crowd mentioned in Matthew 9:36. They were "helpless and harassed" so what makes the illegal immigrants of our day any different?

What makes them different is that this multitude that has crossed the border is breaking the law.

I can find no one who is for the separation of families or is unmoved by this humanitarian crisis involving children. But there are consequences for breaking the law and every parent who has been tried, found guilty and now imprisoned are separated from their children. Thousands of kids are in the foster care system because their parents made the choice to commit a crime.

Also, take in consideration that people do not have to break the law to find the opportunity for a better life or for a safer home to raise their children. There is a pathway to citizenship and there is a way of seeking asylum besides illegally crossing the border and putting children at risk.

Instead of buying into the sensationalism and the rhetoric that is designed to play on the emotions, we need to look at the role of government biblically when it comes to immigration.

Romans 13:1-7 clearly states that the government has been ordained by God and given the responsibility of establishing and enforcing laws that people are required to obey. The only permission to civilly disobey is when the government enacts legislation that is against the clear revealed will of God or when it forces its citizens to disobey His commands. However, in the case of immigration, it is against the law to enter this country illegally and according to the Bible; the government has every right to punish those who do so (1 Peter 2:13-16). To support, enable or condone the violation of a government's laws or to disregard its responsibility to protect its own borders is not only refusing to submit to the government but to the Word of God, itself.

Let's be honest, many of our immigration policies are broken and need to be fixed.

But also, the immigration laws need to be enforced.

As Christians who are citizens of this nation, we must recognize the God-given responsibility that the government has while at the same acknowledging the complexity of the immigration issue. We must remember we are talking about individuals created in the image of God and although they may have broken United States Law, they are still entitled for a level of decency regarding their treatment.

The best way to handle the immigration issue is to allow the government to do their job and for us as Christians to seek God that we as a nation uphold a standard of righteousness. In addition, we need to pray that immigration reform happens and for our leaders, who were appointed by God himself, to make decisions not based on partisan politics but ones that reflect the values that have made this country a place where people want to be.

Dave and Mary Weldy, then and now.

Weldys to celebrate 50th wedding anniversary

David and Mary Weldy of East Wenatchee will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on June 30. The celebration will be held at the Culinary Apple in downtown Chelan, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., in conjunction with the 22nd anniversary celebration of their store.

Manufacturers are helping the couple celebrate along with the Culinary Apple team and Candy Kisses and special treats will be served.

Mary West and Dave Weldy were married June 29, 1968 at Moffett Field Naval Air Base, in Mountain View, Calif.

They are the parents of Teresa Weldy of Chelan; and Joshua (Shannon) Weldy of East Wenatchee. They have two grandchildren, Thomas Weldy and Connor Weldy.

The couple transferred to Seattle in 1978 where David worked in the heavy duty trucking industry and Mary working in the wholesale gift industry. They moved to Chelan in 1996 after purchasing the The Harvest Tree gift store.

They have full-filled their dream of owning a store in small town America as co-owners of Culinary Apple, a Kitchen and gift store. Dave is a member of the Lake Chelan Rotary Club and has been a member of Rotary since 1984. Dave and Mary currently serve on the board of the Thursday Evening Farmers Market.

In 2009 they moved to East Wenatchee to be closer to their grandsons.

Bluegrass

Throughout the festival there were workshops teaching adults and children alike how to play instruments and write songs. Youth could even participate in a special performance showcasing what they learned. Groups of festival-goers also gathered to play jam sessions in the campground. One such group included Chandler Faraome from Redmond, Rich White from Carnation and David Miranda of Auburn. The musicians bumped into each other at a similar event a few years back and have since traveled around Washington to meet and play together at various bluegrass festivals. The trio, with guitar, mandolin and base in hand, seemed to agree coming to events like the Wenatchee River Bluegrass Festival is more about comradery than actually watching performances.

"We love to come here and play, we'd rather sit out here and play than go sit and watch," Faraome said.

Whatever fans' reasons for attending the festival were, fun times seemed abundant at the event. Folks of all ages from all over Washington either played instruments, listened to performances or both. First time festival-goer Mike Rynolds, of Brier, Washington, said he's always had a special place in his heart for bluegrass and appreciated the friendly atmosphere here in Cashmere.

"Everything in bluegrass is positive, I love every moment of it," Rynolds said, "this event is well organized with lots of great people, it's a well-oiled machine."

The Wenatchee River Bluegrass Festival will return in summer of 2019, for more information visit wenatcheeriverbluegrass.com.

Chelan PUD warns public about feeding marmots

Increased marmot populations causing damage in parks and neighboring orchards – risk to humans

Submitted by Christy Shearer

Pesky marmot activities at Chelan PUD Kirby Billingsley Hydro Park and Riverfront Park in Wenatchee and in the past at the Rocky Reach Hydro project are nothing new. These common rodents have wreaked havoc on flower plantings, as well as causing fish habitat damage and riverbank destabilization along the rocky banks of the Columbia and Chelan Rivers. Chelan PUD is asking for the public's help – Please, Don't feed the marmots.

While these critters may look cute, they can carry diseases such as Sylvatic plague, spread by marmot fleas that can come into contact with domestic pets and humans. Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever is another disease spread by marmots from infected ticks. And, marmot droppings can carry cryptosporidiosis that can cause nausea and diarrhea.

With no real predators, marmots become quite tame and will take advantage of food being left by people who, although well-meaning, are putting the marmot at risk, as well as the public. Marmot populations are increasing rapidly, which means that there's more competition for food and homes and the greater likelihood of diseases and parasites. An agitated marmot will bite. Washington State Parks & Recreation prohibits the feeding of wildlife in their parks for this very reason.

These rodents aren't polite visitors to our parks either. They destroy park properties and there's a risk of marmots venturing beyond park areas into other parts of the community or into neighborhoods. Marmots have been known to chew through fuel and water hoses on cars resulting in thousands of dollars in personal property damage.

Chelan PUD asks for the public's cooperation and not feed the marmots! The PUD will be putting signs into the parks to inform the public on the risks of feeding marmots. For more information, please visit our website www.chelanpud.org/parks-and-recreation.

Should I be taking a Vitamin D supplement?

Yes, you probably need one. I did, and didn't realize it until my doctor did a blood test and discovered how deficient I was. Vitamin D plays an important role in maintaining the strength of your muscles and bones. It's also called the "Sunshine Vitamin" because your body generates it when your skin is exposed to UVB rays in direct sunlight. Unfortunately, sun exposure also increases risk of skin cancer, so medical professionals recommend you cover up or use sunscreen when going out into the sun. You are more likely to be deficient in vitamin D if you are elderly, have dark skin, or, like me, take medicine that causes sun sensitivity and have to avoid exposure to sunlight or wear sunscreen. Vitamin D deficiency from not being able to absorb fat-soluble vitamins like vitamin A, D, and E is common after gastric bypass surgery, in inflammatory bowel disease, or when taking prescription medicines like prednisone or anticonvulsants or the weight loss drug Alli®. Over 50% of elderly Americans are thought to be deficient in vitamin D, and there is evidence that vitamin D deficiency is associated with muscle weakness and falls. Replenishing body stores of vitamin D with supplementation has been shown to improve muscle strength and balance and decrease falls in some groups of elderly Americans and may be particularly helpful for elders who are homebound or live in nursing homes. Unfortunately, it's hard to get enough vitamin D from just your diet. The best source is fatty fish such as salmon, canned tuna and sardines, which have about 300 units of vitamin D per 3.5 ounce serving. The next best source is fortified milk, which has up to 100 units per cup of added vitamin D. Milk was fortified in the United States beginning in the 1930s to combat rickets, a deficiency of vitamin D in children that caused soft bones and deformed legs. How can you find out if you need vitamin D supplementation? A simple blood test measuring the level of 25-hydroxyvitamin D can determine how much vitamin D is present in your body. A normal level is 20ng or above; my blood test came back at only 12ng, which is considered vitamin D deficient. If you are deficient, your doctor will prescribe an 8-week course of prescription vitamin D supplementation at 50,000 units once a week, after which you'll be retested, which is what happened to me. If your vitamin D level rises to 20ng or above, you'll be switched to a maintenance dose of 1000 to 2000 units daily, but if you're not there yet you'll continue on 50,000 units of prescription vitamin D for another 4-8 weeks. I was able to switch to a maintenance dose of 2,000 units of vitamin D after taking the once weekly prescription tablets for 12 weeks. How much vitamin D should you take? Those of us who live in Washington State don't get a lot of vitamin D in the winter, and you are even more at risk if, like me, you avoid being out in the sun in the summer months. Most adults can maintain a good level of vitamin D with a supplement of 1000 to 2000 units per day, but if you have any concerns that you may be deficient please tell your doctor so you can get tested.

Here Are 5 Tips on Getting Enough Vitamin D:

- 1. Include foods rich in vitamin D in your diet, like egg yolks, tuna or salmon. Fortified foods like milk, yogurt and fortified orange juice are also good food sources of vitamin D. Unfortunately, most other foods have very little vitamin D in them.
- 2. Take a vitamin D supplement. The National Osteoporosis Foundation and the North American Menopause Society both recommend 800 to 1000 IU daily of D3 for people age 50 and older, but if you are overweight you will need 2-3 times that amount.
- 3. Supplement with 1000-2000 units of D3 (cholecalciferol) daily. With 1300 units per tablespoon, cod liver oil is the most concentrated vitamin D supplement, but thankfully there are less fishy tasting alternatives available today.

- 4. Avoid taking medicine that interferes with your body's ability to absorb vitamin D, like the weight loss medicine Alli®.
- 5. UVB radiation from sunlight on bare skin produces vitamin D in your body, but due to an increased risk of skin cancer, diet and supplements are preferred over sun exposure.

Two Additional Bats Tested Positive for Rabies in Chelan County

Chelan County, WA—Two (2) additional bats tested positive for rabies. The Chelan-Douglas Health District risk assessment recommended that the bats be tested after consultation with Animal Control. One individual is being treated with post-exposure prophylaxis. This is the 3rd rabid bat in our area this year and the 7th in Washington State. There were two (2) cases of human rabies identified in Washington, in 1995 and 1997. During the last 25 years, four (4) domestic animals in Washington have been diagnosed with rabies. All cats, dogs and ferrets in Washington must be vaccinated against rabies. It is extremely important never to touch a bat and to seek medical attention if you have encountered a bat. Bat encounters include:

- Bite or saliva in your eyes, nose, mouth or fresh wound
- Finding a bat in the same room of a person who might be unaware that a bite or direct contact occurred (i.e.: sleeping adult or unattended child)

More information on bat exposures, what to do if you find a bat in your home or cabin, what to do if you are bitten by a bat and how to avoid exposure to rabies can be found at: <https://cdhd.wa.gov/bat-exposures/>. Additional information about Rabies in Washington State is available at: www.doh.wa.gov/rabies.

■ TERI MILLER RECIPE

TEA TIME

June is National Tea Month, the time to celebrate everyone ones favorite summertime beverage. Tea in America is divided basically into two groups, sweetened tea and un-sweetened tea. In the beautiful South there is only one tea group and that is sweetened. Also anything that is bottled, canned or is instant or comes out of a soda fountain is not considered tea. We southerners are serious about our tea so please don't offend us with anything less than brewed or sun tea. In a recent survey 85 percent of Americans prefer their tea served iced . Hot tea on the other hand can be served with a little milk (never a heavy cream), lemon or sugar. True hot tea drinkers would never put honey in tea. In the South iced tea is typically served at every meal and drank throughout the day. Just like some coffee drinkers they are tea snobs, and I am proud to say I am one of them.

Since Colonial times farmers have tried to propagate tea leaves in America, with limited success. Over 100 years ago a group of tea planters brought their finest ancestral tea bushes from China and India to Charleston, South Carolina. A beautiful and still primitive island near Charleston was selected for growing tea. This quaint island called Wad-malaw is now home to the largest tea producing plantation in the US.

The Charleston Tea Plantation still produces tea from the descendants of the first plantings. The main variety is Camellia Sinensis which produces both black and green tea on the 127 acre plantation.

In 2003, the owners entered into a joint venture with the Bigelow Family Tea Company. Tea leaves produced on the plantation are not used in Bigelow teas , but are marketed under the The Charleston Tea Plantation brand. Tea has been grown in other parts of the U.S. especially Hawaii and even in the Skagit Valley, but most have gone out of business mainly due to labor costs and lack of employees.

Please enjoy a big glass of ice tea and enjoy the sunshine.
