BREWSTER – Incoming Brewster Chamber of Commerce president Mike Mauk and outgoing two-term president Anna Marie Dalbey hosted A Winter Concert last Friday, Dec. 13, in the dining room at American Legion

Columbia Post 97. The price of admission for the 40-plus who attended was a donation of non-perishable food items for the Brewster Food Bank.

Mauk said last minute complications resulting from staff help coming down with flu threatened to cancel the event but volunteers stepped up to fill the vacuum and the show went forward as scheduled.

Jim Walker, Brittany Jean's father/manager provided the round six-place tables that added a more intimate ambience to the evening's dining and entertainment. Diners were able to order from the Post's kitchen menu and its usual Friday Steak Night specials.

Mauk was pleased with the turnout.

"It was a huge success," said Mauk "and we got a big container full of donated non-perishable food items."

Quilt raffle raises funds for Hope Lutheran cause

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER -- A special quilt auction held earlier this month by the Hope Lutheran Church at 1520 Sunset Drive raised more than $250 that was donated to the Care Net Pregnancy Center in Omak. The two donated quilts, one featuring a Santa Claus-reindeer Christmas scene and the other a goose with goslings were on display at the Pateros-Brewster-Bridgeport Senior Center on Dec. 3-5, that hosted ticket sales for the heirlooms. Tickets sold for a $1 each and by the time the two lucky winners were drawn on Dec. 8, $257 had been raised for Care Net.

Sue Moore, wife of Hope Lutheran pastor Kevin Moore, said it is the second year that Hope Lutheran has held a fundraising event to help a local cause. Last year the beneficiary of the church's generosity was the Brewster Food Bank.

Care Net, located at 4 S. Main St. in Omak, is part of a network of 1,100 affiliated pregnancy centers founded in 1995 with more than 30,000 volunteers in all 50 states and Canada.

"During the past nine years, 603,474 unborn children were saved from abortion due to the valiant efforts of our staff and volunteers," the website said.

Care Net notes that its support does not end once a child is born.

The Audubon Society expects more than 10,000 volunteers to fan out across the Western Hemisphere for this year's project. Counters follow designated 15-mile diameter circles and tally all the birds they see or hear within a 24-hour period.

The tradition in 1900 when ornithologist proposed the holiday count in response to growing concerns over declining bird populations from over-hunting. That first count ranged from locations in Toronto, Canada, to Pacific Grove, Calif., and tallied about 90 species combined.

The CBC numbers help researchers and wildlife agencies track long-term health and population numbers across the U.S.

CBC data have contributed to Audubon's 2007 Common Birds in Decline report that identified falling numbers of some familiar species over the past 40 years. The annual counts have also supplied data for the 2009 State of the Birds report compiled by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the North American Bird Conservation Initiative.

The Environmental Protection Agency has included CBC data as one of 26 climate change indicators in its 2012 report.

Audubon's 2014 first-of-its-kind Climate Change Report outlines how climate change could affect more than half of the continent's 588 bird species it studied through the loss of more than half of their range by 2080.

Final sale completed of 2019 Methow Housing Trust homes

By SARAH STEPHENS, METHOW HOUSING TRUST OUTREACH COORDINATOR

METHOW VALLEY - The final home of Methow Housing Trust's first phase of construction in Mazama's McKinney Ridge Neighborhood has sold. This sale marks the completion of Methow Housing Trust's first phase of affordable home development. The total of nine homes consists of four in Mazama (McKinney Ridge Neighborhood) and five in Twisp (Canyon Street Neighborhood).

The new homeowners, Chris and Keri Moore said, "Now, with a home that we can afford, in a place that we adore, we can completely open our hearts to love this place without fear of losing it." Keri is a Health Educator at Room One, and Chris works as an arborist. They moved to the Methow Valley in 2016, with hopes of making it home. Chris and Keri were able to move into their new home just as the first real snow started to fall in Mazama this week.

Phase 2 of construction in both neighborhoods is well underway with 8 more permanently affordable homes scheduled for completion and purchase in spring, 2020. Applications are now being accepted on a rolling basis.

Methow Housing Trust opened its doors in 2018, and attributes the mission impact they've had to date to "the exceptional trust and support from early donors, the bold vision and energy of the Board of Directors and staff team, skilled and efficient contractors, and the leap of faith that the first 9 homeowner families were willing to take." Danica Ready, Executive Director of the Methow Housing Trust. "The local business community and MHT membership have really embraced the need and given generously. It goes without saying that we would absolutely not be where we are today without the kickstart of investment received from 3 incredibly generous donors in our first two years. Their contributions are truly the bricks and mortar of our success."

One of those key donors made McKinney Ridge Neighborhood in Mazama a reality - creating the opportunity for families like the Moore's to afford homeownership in our community today. Lee Whittaker, the visionary behind the development, had this to share regarding the community he and his late wife Marilyn had hoped to build, "Marilyn and I had a vision and it is a pleasure to see our McKinney Ridge co-housing community taking shape in partnership with the Methow Housing Trust. Both inside and out these low-cost homes are a really nice fit. What a great group of new residents! ... with more to come in 2020."

As 2020 approaches, Methow Housing Trust is preparing for the year ahead, "Our first year was all about building a new organization, and year two has been about building homes and creating pathways for applicants to buy those homes. Looking ahead, we are excited to bring the Community Land Trust model of affordable homeownership to Winthrop. Additionally, we are investing significant time into developing key partnerships with community service providers and interest groups to ensure that all Methow Valley community members have equitable access to the portfolio of homes we are developing. We feel more informed and strategic in our outreach thanks to the partners that are connecting us with the people we serve," said Danica Ready.

years, our centers provided more than 1 million women and men with parenting support and education and 1.5 million with material resources like diapers, clothing, and new car seats," the website said.

"Every month we also collect pennies," said Moore of one of the church's programs that illustrates how much can be done when small amounts from throughout its network are pooled to support charitable causes.

On being a 'compassionate Conservative' in the face of sloth, greed and PC run amok

Years ago I heard some guy named Bush, might've been Bush the First. He was talking about caring about people at the same time that these same people cared about themselves.

Compassionate Conservative values equal giving a hand up, but not always a handout.

It's the old maxim: Give a man a fish and he is grateful and eats it and for one day he is satiated, but teach a man to fish and he can feed himself forever.

As a society, America is the most generous one that ever existed. Americans, on a regular, standard operating procedure basis, give food, clothing, medicine, shelter to any disaster-struck nation regardless of race, creed or even politics.

Now comes the idea of just giving everything away to everyone regardless of whether or not they ever raised a sweat doing work themselves.

Not all high school grads belong in college, but that doesn't stop demeaning higher education by literally giving it away. Many college degrees are worthless anyway because the market is saturated with liberal arts degrees showing only a general interest in general subjects.

I tell kids to get a STEM degree and it will serve them forever and be a way of achieving societal, financial and career status.

Giving away college has some merit, but only if prospective students are vetted to make sure they aren't better suited to a vocational skill.

The cost of a four-year

APPLES TO APPLES

degree is often prohibitive for the "less than brilliant" non-scholarship garnering student, which is probably the vast majority.

I applaud Wenatchee Valley College for offering vocational courses in welding, cooking, healthcare and even forklift training and I hope Chelan and Douglas County students, young and old, take advantage of these great courses.

They are more than reasonably priced and often lead to certificates that can get jobs for those motivated enough to make their own futures, not just be satisfied with Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or mooching off mom & dad.

To be fair, some of our fellow citizens need SSI just to barely squeak by in life. These are mostly senior citizens or the disabled.

While others use excuses as to why they can't get a job or hold a job or why they go through the ever turning turnstiles of incarceration, re-offending, incarceration, re-offending.

In the mean time, when not in jail, money is spent on drugs (both legal and illegal), alcohol (to the extreme) and junk food binges by the parasites who ought to be striving to become better men and women serving the greater good.

I don't mean to deny the impact of addiction and mental health issues on one's life, but part of the journey includes brave attempts at self-reform by education, sobriety, religion and other therapeutic methods.

In my view, I would rather have 20 welders, forklift drivers and cooks than one "social worker" who is merely working to maintain an excuse for keeping the line item for salaries in the annual budget.

That includes school districts, state, county, city and federal governments and entities, especially the Washington State Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) and the Social Security Administration (SSA).

The latter is especially guilty of not having a field investigations department that ensures the receivers of tax dollars are actually using the money for the intended survival of themselves and their kids.

It just takes 10% of slime to infect the entire batch of ice in the machine.

I can sympathize with advocates of tax reform because it is obvious some of the social programs we support are not necessarily good for the greater good and heavily favor those who claim a false incapacitation for whatever reason.

Perhaps high school dropouts ought to be made to take vocational training instead of welfare?

Gary Bégin's opinions are not the official views of NCW Media. To reach him email: gary@ncwmedia.net. Any email is subjected to publication as a "Letter to the Editor" unless explicitly requested not to do so.

North Central Educational Service District releases campaign

SUBMITTED BY NCESD

WENATCHEE – The North Central Educational Service District (NCESD) has released a public campaign to raise awareness of student safety. The campaign, called "See Something, Speak Up," was developed by the NCESD and created by students in the Cinematography program at the Wenatchee Valley Technical Skills Center.

The campaign has launched with a video featuring student interviews that share the warning signs of student depression and outline actions to take when identified. The purpose is to remind each of us that we are all participants in protecting the safety of our students and schools. The interviews were conducted during the November Career Expo held at Wenatchee Valley College.

The videos are available to view and access on the NCESD YouTube Channel and can be found directly at: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=shwHUNyNqfk>

"This campaign has been created to remind each of us that we all play a role in ensuring student and school safety. The students who were interviewed are from a variety of North Central Washington schools and share their own thoughts and ideas on what to look for and do if you recognize concerning behavior. By recognizing the signs, we can provide support," explained NCESD Superintendent Dr. Michelle Price.

The project was led by Wenatchee Valley Technical Skills Center and Wenatchee High School students Chelsea Craig and Ben Adkinson. Craig, a senior, served as the Editor on the project and Adkinson, a sophomore, captured the audio.

The North Central Educational Service District is a resource to the 29 districts within the four-county service area, providing professional and timely tools to meet the needs of individual schools and districts, and a reliable point of education-related information for the communities served. The NCESD is a respected resource to other ESDs throughout Washington State.

Wenatchee Network Group donates $200 to Eagles/Wellness Place

According to WNG Secretary Sherry Gustin, $150 goes toward the Christmas food baskets the Eagles will distribute and "We decided to give the other $50 toward the Eagles Cancer fund. They were just $50 short of the $1,000 needed to make a big impact in our community.

"The Eagles will pledge the $1,000 raised to our local Wellness Place (home for cancer patient families), and the National headquarters of the Eagles will pledge another $4,000, as long as the local aerie raised at least $1,000.

With our $50 donation, we have helped get $5,000 donated to Wellness Place here in Wenatchee. If you thought little donations don't make a difference, here is proof that it does have an impact. Thank you to our members for the generosity shown!" concluded Gustin.
