Douglas County Undersheriff Tyler Caille reported that at approximately 8 a.m. the search warrant was served at a location where suspected narcotic and firearm offenses were present.

As a precaution the Mansfield School was notified and placed on a lockdown until the crime scene was secured by deputies.

More interest in Community Solar needed for PUD program

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

OKANOGAN –The PUD is putting out the call for more county residents to express interest in the Sunny Okanogan Community Solar project or the program may not get off the ground. PUD officials estimate that a few hundred participants will be necessary to build the project but so far fewer than a hundred have filed interest forms.

"At the time of this writing, only 74 interest forms have been turned in," write community relations coordinator Sheila Corson.

Interested parties can learn more about the program online at okanoganpud.org/community-solar. A link at the bottom of the webpage directs users to an interest form they can complete. Forms are also available at PUD branch offices. Project organizers can be reached by email at communitysolar@okpud.org.

The state has approved the solar project for incentives of $0.14 per kilowatt hour of production.

"The incentive program has since closed," said Corson, "so if the project is moved to a later date, incentives will no longer be available."

However, with sufficient community interest the project could be as large as 74.4 kW, enough to power seven to nine average homes, Corson noted.

Business and residential PUD customers can purchase units of the project at a minimum buy-in yet to be determined. Buy-in contributions will include project construction and maintenance costs. Low income participation may also be available through grant funding.

"Those who participate will receive an annual check from the state for the incentives, plus a credit on their utility bill for their share of the production," wrote Corson. "There is also a possibility for participants to receive a federal tax credit."

Cushing, Miss Pateros wins America No. 1 APBA honors

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

PATEROS – Brandon Cushing, owner and driver of the SE-33 Miss Pateros hydroplane was named No. 1 in America by the American Power Boat Association SE class this season. Cushing, whose boat sponsors include three local businesses – Thomason Law & Justice, Les Schwab Chelan, and Unique Interiors - was the leading points winner when the season ended at the Manson Hydrofest last Sept. 28-29.

Cushing ended the season 250 points ahead of his closest contender for U.S. 1, and that was another competitor in the Region 10 circuit that includes the Northwest states. Driver Chip Brown finished

Library Backpack Program encourages park visitations

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

BREWSTER – Personnel from the Washington State Parks and Recreation Commission and Washington State Department of Transportation came together to host an open house at the Brewster Boys and Girls Club last Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 23, to gather community input about the local state parks and community access improvements.

Washington Parks program planner Melinda Posner said that among the commonts she received were several concerning more multi-purpose trails at both Bridgeport and Alta Lake parks.

George Mazur, WSDOT Senior Transportation Planner said he heard helpful feedback from citizens concerning more spaces for pedestrian and bike access around the city

Posner said one of the ways the parks system is working to get more people to visit their state parks is through a backpack checkout program that was introduced as a pilot project in partnership with

Mike Maltais/QCH

Among Washington Parks personnel who attended the BBGC open house were, from left, Amy Brotherton, Alta Lake State Park ranger, Colleen Foster Assistant Regional Manager for the Eastern Region of Washington state, WSPRC Program Planner Melinda Posner, and Sharon Saelter, Central Lakes

The project will not only return participant investment over several years, it will also offer the solar option to those whose property characteristics do not allow solar production, who cannot front the initial installations costs or face other constraints to a clean, renewable energy source.

New Law & Justice Center to be dedicated Nov. 4

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

EAST WENATCHEE – The new Douglas County Law and Justice Center that began construction in July 2018 is now completed and will be dedicated at a ribbon cutting ceremony at 2 p.m., Monday, Nov. 4.

The 17,898 square foot facility located at 100 19th St. N.W., cost about $8 million to complete and was funded by a combination of cash reserves and real estate excise tax revenue and a bond issue. When the current building at 110 Second St. N.E. housing the sheriff's office and courts is sold, proceeds from that sale will also be applied to pay for the new center.

The Law and Justice Center is located adjacent to the public services building on 19th St. that houses the county's transportation and land services. The new center will house the Douglas County Sheriff's Office, Douglas County District Court (East Wenatchee), Probation Services, IT Department and future county coroner, when that office becomes a requirement

Get paid for pike on Lake Roosevelt

NESPELEM – About the only way to make fishing any more fun than it already is would be to pay folks for doing it. That is precisely what the Colville Tribes' Fish and Wildlife Department (CTFW) has been doing since September with the Northern Pike Rewards Program on Lake Roosevelt.

Participants receive $10 for every pike head they bring to designated drop stations at anyone of five locations: Hunters boat launch, Inchelium Fish and Wildlife office, Fort Spokane boat launch, Noisy Waters gas station, and Kettle Falls boat launch. So far CTFW has paid out about $3,000 for redeemed pike heads. In 2020 three more drop locations will be added along Lake Roosevelt in second place. Brown also drove the vintage unlimited hydro Miss Pay N Pak at this vear's Seattle Seafair and Lake Chelan Mahogany & Merlot exhibition races.

Cushing also won both the Region 10 title and the Western Divisional championship. He was also recipient of the Northwest Power Boat Association's sportsmanship award.

"I knew that as long as I performed well at the Manson race, I would end up the points leader," said Cushing by phone in the Tri-Cities.

Ironically, Cushing was just 20 points shy of the U.S. 1 title in 2017 going into the Manson race. In order to secure the top spot, all Cushing had to do was start his engine for the race and receive an automatic 25 points for that alone. Unfortunately, a mechanical failure at just that moment became the spoiler for the top prize.

The notification letter from APBA to Cushing said in part: "Congratulations to you and your team for winning the National High-Point Championship...The awards will be presented at the APBA National Meeting scheduled for Friday evening, Jan. 24, 2020, Hilton Seattle Airport and Conference Center...We look forward to honoring you and your team in Seattle at the Inboard Award Banquet."

This year's win comes at a good time for Cushing who stepping away from the Miss Pateros to work with his nineyear-old son who will begin racing in Junior Class competition next April. Cushing's sister, Jennifer, who graduated from rookie to licensed APBA driver at this years' Pateros races, will be back on the circuit with her own boat next season.

Northern pike are a serious threat to Lake Roosevelt fish populations. Pike are ambush predators that feed on steelhead, salmon, trout and frogs. They can grow to be quite large as evidenced by the 28-p9ound, 47-inch specimen pulled from the lake. A female pike can hold 10,000 eggs.

The Colville Tribes, Spokane Tribes of Indians and Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife have been cooperating to remove pike from Lake Roosevelt.

"CTFW staff removed approximately 800 northern pike so far this year," a CTFW media release said adding that a total of 13,000 pike have been removed since 2015

"We will be conducting a reservoir gill net survey from Oct. 28 to Nov. 8." Said CTFW fisheries biologist Holly McLellan. "We will be setting 350 nets during this two-week period as this will assist us with determining distribution and abundance of northern pike."

Cosmic crisp apples come to stores Nov. 1

BY MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER – A new apple variety that has been decades in the making is coming to store fruit displays on Nov. 1. Sources at Brewster Marketplace confirmed that the new apple variety will join others it currently offers.

The Cosmic Crisp has been getting lots of buzz lately in print and electronic media after coming out of 20 years of study and research at Washington State University's world-class tree fruit breeding program. The name "cosmic" is derived from the starburstlike lenticels that dapple the fruit's surface. Crisp denotes the fruit's crisp texture.

Cosmic Crisp is cross between the Honeycrisp and Enterprise varieties and, according to the website cosmiccrisp. com "maintains its texture and flavor in storage for more than a vear.'

Key characteristics of the new apple include its large size, exceptional eating quality, appearance, crisp texture and sweetness that allows bakers to use less sugar when it is used in pie recipes. It has earned the Good Housekeeping Nutritionist Approved emblem.

OBITUARIES

Ralph Barrutia

A4

Ralph Barrutia, 91, was born to Cipriano and Juanita Barrutia (Mandiola) in November 1927 in Grandview, Idaho. His parents had immigrated to America from Basque Country Spain in 1922.

Ralph's childhood was spent on his Dad's sheep ranches in Grandview and Mountain Home. He spent his teenage summers working in the family business as the camp cook in the mountains. Their 4,000 head sheep herd moved frequently, and their camp moved with them.

He was responsible for moving the food and cooking gear using a horse pack string; then having meals ready by cooking over a campfire. This provided a few unintended mountain rodeos with a steep learning curve about horses and methods. Times were tough during the recovery years following the Great Depression, so life was very basic.

Ralph graduated from Mountain Home High School in 1946 and went one semester at the University of Idaho between 1948-49. He played on the high school football team and was a lifelong football fan.

In 1950 Ralph was drafted into the U.S. Army. He married Georgia Elguezabal just before reporting for basic training in Maryland. He served 14 months active duty in the Korean War as a heavy equipment and tank mechanic in Pusan, Soule, Chunchon and the 38th parallel.

His career as a Hydroelectric Powerhouse Operator started in 1952 in Idaho with the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation. In 1959 he moved to larger power plants being built on the Columbia River in Washington. He was part of the startup crews on Priest Rapids, Wanapum and Wells Dams, working his way up to Chief Operator and retiring from Douglas Co. P.U.D. as an Operations Supervisor in 1986.

He then worked 4-years in consulting with Bechtel

Engineering doing start up and automation of small hydro plants. He worked on projects in Vermont, West Virginia, and California.

He was always busy building a camper, their home, cabinets and furniture, planting and managing their apple orchard, working with the local irrigation district to solve problems and actively maintained the Catholic Church and its grounds. He and Georgia have made Brewster their home for the last 52 years.

Ralph was an avid outdoorsman who regularly went camping, hunting, fishing and firewood cutting in the mountains. He was skilled in mechanics and electrical work thus maintaining all his own farm equipment and vehicles.

He and Georgia enjoyed traveling and spent 16 winters snow-birding in Arizona. They visited numerous national parks along the way. They made trips to Spain, Venezuela, Mexico and Canada.

Ralph was proceeded in death by his parents and two older infant sisters.

He is survived by 2 brothers and families, his loving wife Georgia of 69 years, their 3 sons and wives, Arsen (Holly), Gene (Doreen), Rich (Bobbi); 8 grandchildren, and 15 great-grandchildren.

Shockers zap Billygoats, 14-12

BY MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

PATEROS - Playing one of their two closest games of the season, the host Billygoats varsity football team lost a twopoint, 14-12 heartbreaker to the visiting Waterville-Mansfield Shockers last Friday, Oct. 25.

Pateros head coach Marcus Stennes said his team struggled on offense through the first half but managed to find the end zone in the second quarter for one of two touchdowns.

Shockers head coach Tayn Kendrick watched his team play a largely defensive battle in the first half punctuated by a second-quarter TD that tied the game, 6-6 going into the half.

Neither team lit up the field through the second half, but the Shockers tacked a twopoint conversion onto a fourthquarter score that made the difference in the 14-12 final.

The Billygoats are still looking for their first season win and hope to find it when Sunnyside Christian comes to town for Homecoming on Friday Nov. 1.

The Shockers with one win under their belts, travel to Entiat this Friday, Nov. 1. The 5-1 Tigers are currently standing second in the Central Washington 1B league. Waterville-Mansfield will host Bridgeport for Homecoming on Friday, Nov. 8.

BREWSTER - The Lady Bears varsity volleyball team not only dominated their eight rivals on the road to the 2019 Central Washington 2B League championship, the held all but one team scoreless during regular season play. Brewster gave up one set at Manson on Sept. 24, but won

Oct. 24.

The Lady Bears now await the winner of fourth place and fifth place who will play a loser-out match at Brewster on Saturday, Nov. 2, before the winner faces the league champs. When the semifinals are decided, the higher seed team will host the district championship game at a time

Mustangs give Liberty Bell a run

BY MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

BRIDGEPORT – The home field advantage helped, but not quite enough for the Mustangs varsity football team that gave up a hard-fought 36-28 loss to visiting Liberty Bell last Friday, Oct. 25.

"Like the first matchup of the season, it was a tough, hard-nosed game full of big hits," said head coach John McDougal. "The Mustangs led at halftime but saw that quarter."

Gilberto Padilla had 168 yards, two touchdowns, a two-point conversion, and six tackles for the Mustangs. Julio Sanchez had 12 catches for 118 yards, a TD, and 26 total tackles including two sacks, McDougal said.

Immediately after falling behind, 22-20, Arturo Perez caught a 50-yard TD pass from Miguel Mendoza to put the Mustangs back up 26-22, said McDougal. Then, Gilberto the final game of the regular lead disappear in the third Padilla ran in the conversion season on Nov. 8.

WDFW commission hears updates on fishing regulation changes and more

SUBMITTED BY WDFW

OLYMPIA – The Washington Fish and Wildlife Commission heard updates for spring black bear hunting, cougar management, and proposed fishing regulation changes at their Oct. 18-19 meeting.

The commission approved three land transactions, including 560 acres in Grays Harbor County, 900 acres in Yakima County, and the Fir Island Farm Easement in Skagit County. The acquisitions in Grays Harbor and Yakima counties are expected to offer hunting and other recreational opportunities, while improving conservation for a variety of species. The Fir Island Farm transaction will help facilitate a restoration project expected to significantly contribute to the recovery of Skagit Chinook salmon.

Fishery managers with the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) briefed the commission on a number of fishing rule proposals, including changes to sturgeon regulations and the department's ongoing efforts to simplify its fishing rules statewide.

The commission also heard public comment following an update on the department's efforts to liberalize limits on bass, walleye, and channel catfish in waters throughout the state, a requirement passed by the state Legislature this spring as part of House Bill 1579, with the intent of implementing task force recommendations to benefit the endangered Southern Resident Killer Whale population.

The fishing rule proposals included summaries of WDFW's work to collect public comment, including at in-person public meetings around the state. The commission will consider the public's comments and testimony before staff brings recommendations at the December commission meeting in Bellingham.

Staff also presented changes to the current spring black bear season. Some of the changes include increased permits in several GMUs, elimination of permits in one hunt area, and adding mandatory reporting for spring black bear hunters. The commission is expected to make a decision on this item during their conference call in November.

The commission also heard updates on the department's work to update rules for commercial crab fisheries to protect humpback whales from entanglement. The commission has scheduled this item for their January meeting, and the agency is pursuing the funds to implement this item as part of its 2020 supplemental legislative request.

In addition, the commission heard staff presentations about how WDFW currently manages cougars for hunting opportunities. The commission will consider changes to the cougar hunting guidelines in a future 2020 meeting. The commission also heard an update on how WDFW conflict management and enforcement programs provide for the public's safety in relation to cougars.

A full broadcast of the meeting is available to the public at www.tvw.org.

The Washington Fish and Wildlife Commission is a citizen panel appointed by the governor to set policy for the WDFW.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Don't give up your health, women 50-74 get your annual mammogram, just in case

I was disturbed to see in the article in the October 23, 2019 Lake Chelan Mirror, page A5, advising women 50-74 to "undergo breast cancer screening with mammography every other year."

Right here in Wenatchee during my times taking radiation in both 2018 and 2019, by far the most prevalent cancer for women taking radiation was breast cancer. What I noticed in 2019, over 2018, were the earlier diagnosis' that were translating into less length radiation treatment protocols and seemingly high cure rates.

One lady in particular stands out in my mind, a lady from right here in Chelan. She was 87 or 88 and had been told by her doctor it wasn't necessary to have an annual mammogram any more because of her age, but since Medicare would pay for it she decided to have it anyway, just to be sure. Good thing she did, because her cancer was found early and would have gone undetected for at least one more year if she had followed these new guidelines.

I'm not a doctor, but it seems to me the strides and successes we've have had coming from all of these new mammogram machines, like the new 3D one Chelan is scheduled to get, the annual screenings, the earlier diagnosis and treatments, at least that's what they've been telling us. It's disturbing to think women are being discouraged from getting these early screenings. In 2019 there was only myself and one other woman who I meet that was not taking radiation for breast cancer. If all of us, there were only 2 who were possibly under the age of 50.

The treatment is oh so much easier if it's caught in Stage 1 as opposed to Stage 3 or 4.

I say "Just in case" take the time to get an annual mammogram and protect your health.

Women of 50-74 or 90 are important too.

Could soy cause breast cancer? 3 tips on taking phytoestrogens safely

Q: Can phytoestrogens help relieve menopausal symptoms like hot flashes and night sweats? What about women with breast cancer?

I experienced my first hot flash standing in front of 120 pharmacy students in a large lecture hall in Pullman, Washington. While explaining how a particular weight loss medicine worked I felt the temperature in the room skyrocket and my scalp felt hot and prickly. Suddenly, sweat began shooting out of my pores front and back, showering my skin inside my shirt and leaving me damp and disoriented in front of everyone. Talk about being distracted... and embarrassed!

Can phytoestrogens relieve the physical and social discomfort of menopausal symptoms like sudden hot flashes/flushes or their night-time equivalent, night sweats? Researchers have noticed how Asian women don't suffer as much from hot flashes during menopause as Western women do, calling it the "Japanese Effect". They suspect the major reason for this difference is diet, because the typical Asian diet contains a lot more soy than a typical American diet, and those soy foods contain phytoestrogens: plant-based substances that can act like estrogen in your body to relieve menopausal symptoms.

Eating more soy-based foods may not be the only thing responsible for the "Japanese Effect". Protection against hot flushes may also depend on how well you convert the phytoestrogens in soy to a more active form called equol. It's estimated that only 30-50% of women in North America can make the conversion to equol, while Asian or Hispanic women convert soy-based phytoestrogens into equol much more readily.

Phytoestrogens act by attaching or binding to the same places in your body that other estrogens do, in binding sites called estrogen receptors, or ERs. There are two main types of ERs: ER alpha and ER beta receptors. Most estrogens and phytoestrogens bind to ER alpha receptors, relieving hot flushes but possibly stimulating certain types of breast and endometrial cancers.

Phytoestrogens that bind to ER beta receptors create the opposite effect, instead they block the action of estrogen on breast tissue, much like the estrogen-blocking medicines tamoxifen and raloxifene (Evista®), which may help prevent certain types of breast cancer.

Unfortunately, it's not a predictable effect because it's very hard to pin down and study the effects of phytoestrogens on the body. One reason is that common food sources of phytoestrogens usually contain more than one phytoestrogen, and they can bind to either ER alpha or ER beta receptors, creating conflicting effects.

Plants will develop differing concentrations of phytoestrogens depending on the species and their own growing conditions. They can also act differently in your body depending on whether you are still making your own estrogens or you are menopausal or postmenopausal, with very little estrogen in your body.

How much soy does it take to reduce hot flash/hot flush symptoms? Most clinical studies use from 40 and 80 mg daily of phytoestrogens from soy-based products. Recent evidence suggests that you start with 2 servings a day of soy foods and try that for 3 months to see if your frequency of hot flashes decreases.

One serving of soy food can be 3 ounces of tofu, ½ cup of edamame, ½ cup tofu, ¼ cup sov nuts, or 1 cup of sovmilk. Flaxseed, chickpeas, beans, peas, green leafy vegetables, cauliflower and nuts are also good sources of phytoestrogens. After trying soy for 3 months, if you don't notice any decrease in your hot flashes or hot flushes, you probably won't, and can stop it.

Could soy cause breast cancer? If you're not vegetarian, it's unlikely you'll get enough soy in your diet to increase your risk of breast cancer unless you also take supplements containing concentrated soy or herbal products like black cohosh marketed for "menopause support", such as Remifemin®.
