PATEROS – The Pateros-Brewster Community Resource Center (PBCRC) announced confirmation that the organization has received final approval for a grant from USDA Rural Development.

PBCRC Executive Director Gene Dowers disclosed approval of the $27,175 grant in an email to supporters on Wednesday, June 19.

“Thank you very much for your generous, positive, powerful letters of support,” wrote Dowers. “I am convinced that they were the ‘reference check’ that gave us the final nudge for approval.”

Dowers added that in conjunction with a new lease agreement currently being finalized, PBCRC “can charge into developing our building into a much stronger, more fully-featured center for resources with our communities.”

BREWSTER – Last Saturday morning, June 22, more than a dozen motorcyclists departed the headquarters of American Legion Columbia Post 97 and headed east toward Bridgeport on State Route 173. But before they left the post, the 16 riders each donated $20 for a five-card poker hand as part of the Honor Flight fundraiser that was the object of the trip. Each rider next pulled a card out of the deck bag as the first of a five-card hand each would build at stops along the route.

The group’s first stop on the road was just beyond 50 miles east at the Electric City Bar & Grill, at 2 Coulee Blvd. in Electric City. There the second of five cards were drawn from

New hosts energize Bridgeport RV park

BRIDGEPORT – The camp hosts hired this year to manage the city’s RV and camping operations are making their presence felt, by the looks of comparative numbers disclosed during the regular city council meeting last Wednesday, June 19.

Sue and Randy Stanley assumed management of the city’s RV and camping operations last April and the experienced team’s focus on accountability is paying dividends to the city. Reporting current numbers during last week’s council, Sue Stanley raised some eyebrows with gains made over the same period last year.

In the short time they have been on the job, the Stanley’s have streamlined procedures, tightened policies and ramped up publicity to make reservations easier, eliminate abuses to the system, capture lost fee opportunities and get the word out to potential users. The new approach is paying off, literally.

According to Stanley the comparison looks like this:

April 2018: $1,450
April 2019: $2,281
May 2018: $2,735
May 2019: $8,749
June 2018: $7,510
As of June 19, 2019: $10,379
July 2018: $13,254
July 2019 already $9,054.

Stanley reminded council members that this June’s revenue has already exceeded last year by $2,869 with nearly half a month remaining. July looks even better.

Port urges Bridgeport to partner on projects

BRIDGEPORT -- Officials from the Ports of Douglas and Chelan counties called on members of the city council at their regular monthly meeting Wednesday, June 19, to encourage city planners to reach out to the county economic development authority for help and funding for local improvement projects.

Douglas County District 3 Commissioner Mark Spurgeon, Port Economic Development Manager Ron Cridlebaugh, and Port of Chelan County Deputy Director James Kuntz jointly addressed council members about the advantages and resources the port can offer small communities like Bridgeport to get projects done.

Earlier this year, contract city planner Kurt Danison proposed a Community Revitalization Plan that encouraged development of the State Route 173 corridor that runs through the center of the city. Danison highlighted two programs, the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and Community Economic Revitalization Board (CERB).

“We know how to work with CERB; we know how to work the public trust funds,” said Kuntz who encouraged Bridgeport city officials to identify projects for city or recreational improvement and allow port staff to help with planning, grant writing and other specialties.

The port representatives stressed the advantages of the public-private partnership in making projects come together.

“Governmental institutions don’t create jobs, private enterprise does that,” said Kuntz. “What we want to do is provide infrastructure or whatever we can to get the private entities in here.”

Kuntz said in some cases that means helping with regulatory compliance, permitting and other preliminary procedures to make it easier for private entities to get up and running.

In a related action, council members approved a contract to allow SCJ Alliance Consulting Services to help the city engage the State Route 173 corridor revitalization project.

OCSO K9 help HIS locate smuggled drugs

MAZAMA – A Canada-Washington state cross border drug smuggling operation was intercepted on June 17, when elements of the Okanogan County Sheriff’s Office (OCSO) working with Homeland Security discovered a cache of narcotics near the town of Mazama.

Okanogan County Sheriff Tony Hawley reported that Sergeant Gene Davis and his K9 partner Gunner assisted Homeland Security Investigations (HIS) in locating two suitcases full of methamphet-amine weighing 186 pounds in a heavily brushy area of the Okanogan National Forest near Mazama. The street value of the seized drug is estimated to be about $1 million.

“The Okanogan County Sheriff’s Office currently has two K9 teams, Sergeant Gene Davis with K9 Gunner and Sergeant Tait Everett with K9 Havoc,” said Hawley. “Both K9 Gunner and K9 Havoc were purchased with funds raised by the citizens of Okanogan County.”

Hawley said Davis and K9 Gunner have been a working team for six years.

New Pateros reservoir comes in under contract

By MIKE MALTAIS

PATEROS – City council members received some good news at their regular monthly meeting on Monday, June 17 when City Administrator Jord Wilson advised that the Cemetery Reservoir Project, now completed, came in at $94,515.88 below the total contract.

The city continues to receive complaints from some residents of muddy, dirty or black water and are encouraged to save samples with the date, time, address and contact info for later follow up. Wilson said the contaminated water has three likely causes: higher flows, increased chlorine levels and residual manganese that has accumulated in pipes over the past 40 years.

The higher elevation of the new reservoir has increased water pressure by about 22 pounds per square inch (psi) with the highest pressure of just below 80 psi along Riverside and Lakeshore Drives.

While work on Pump Station 4 is progressing steadily, the project has been extended into Apple Pie Jam-boree weekend, when it was discovered during construction that the ground water was too high for stable construction. The contractor, POW Contracting, requested that the storm drain system be adjusted so work can continue above the ground water level.

During APJ the main pump area will be fenced off, but sidewalks and parking lot along Lakeshore Drive will be open to the public.

A change order has been added to clean up the concrete edge along the Mall to avoid having a patchwork of concrete between the new and existing project. Wilson said he expects more change orders as the project continues including the addition of two street light poles that were missed in the design.

Council members approved Field Orders 1,2, and 3 in the amount of $61,732.90 to address the drain issue and an additional $6,370.13 for concrete removal for a total change order of $73,687.48.

OMAK – Okanogan County Long Term Recovery Group (OCLTRG) volunteers and supporters joined family and friends for two home dedications last Friday, June 21, at sites east of Omak to dedicate two of the final homes in the county, built in a three-phase project over the past five years.

Susan and Dennis Best’s house on Haley Creek Road, and the Robert and Aaron Stafford home at Bigfoot Crossing are among the last of some dozen residences completed in the Phase Three round of recovery and rebuild being completed this year. More than 60 celebrants gathered at both sites before concluding the day with a BBQ dinner at Smallwood’s Farm south of Okanogan.

OCLTRG was founded in October 2014 as the Carlton Complex Long Term Recovery Group following the July 2014 Carlton Complex wildfire and expanded to include more homes following the 2015 Okanogan Complex wildfire.

Phase Three scheduled for completion this summer adds up to a dozen homes to the Okanogan County chapter of the project.

The Peter Pan Syndrome*

What has happened to American men? My sister calls it the Peter Pan Syndrome from the book of the same name by Dr. Dan Kiley. The syndrome is a disease that begins with spoiling a male child right from birth through grade school into college and beyond. The "adults" that emerge from this reality-cheating chrysalis are still uncertain of their own genders, still depending on mom and dad, still wondering what to do in life, still stifled under bad credit. Worst of all, they are selfish because they were brought up to be that way.

The original Peter Pan character was played by a girl, Mary Martin. (See photo). A perfect example of confused gender, but back then it was for theatrical reasons, not meant to be a template for either sex to follow.

Today, young college graduate wings are still wet and their first flight has not been planned yet. Once they emerge from the gooey falsehood of domestic tranquility attached to mother's apron strings, will we gaze upon moths heading to the flame or graceful monarchs flying in clouds of youthful chaos?

Ultimately these naive kids must define themselves as separate beings from friends, parents, cult heroes and their own sense of worthlessness reinforced at every moment by Old Grandad. He, representative of the disabled Vietnam Vet, remembering when Americans gave a hoot about America.

Today's leaders are great at mostly leading from behind. The 1960s fomented and gave birth to the "me, me, me" movement that prized self-expression above family, country and God.

Political leaders now are merely expert at pandering to their respective bases.

Juxtapose that with the brave souls who went to 'Nam. The moment they landed they knew Peter the mystique was dead. By the following month they would go from a wild-eyed 18-year-old to a jaded 30-year-old ... or maybe not. Depended on what Charlie had to say about that.

American women have endured enough bias and prejudice and their time is long past due for them individually and as a group to reap the rewards of endurance and persistence after battling "male chauvinist pigs" for centuries.

Only good things will come to our harsh culture if we have a distaff champion of peace. Regardless of gender, keep in mind that absolute power corrupts absolutely and we're not talking vodka here my friends.

The only problem I see with more and more women in power is that more and more men will devolve into Peter Pans. Eventually male babies will grow wings and flutter about as the women take care of business but wait, that's already been happening for many years.

The Peter Pan Syndrome: Peter Pan Syndrome is an inability to engage in adulthood. The term comes from Peter Pan, who never ages. Read "Men Who Have Never Grown Up" by Dan Kiley (1983).*

Burger joint encounter

2 Timothy 4:1-2 "I solemnly charge you in the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His kingdom: 2 preach the word; be ready in season and out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with great patience and instruction..."

Tim
Lamb

I encountered a young woman today in my travels with this symbol tattooed on the back of her neck and her hair braided to one side so it could be seen. It was the letter 'A' inside the top of a question mark. I couldn't remember what it meant so I asked; it is the symbol for an agnostic I was told. She added that an agnostic is a person who doesn't practice any religion, which isn't entirely accurate. (More accurately, it is a person who does not accept any evidence for a supreme being.) But by this point she was handing me my burger so I had but a split second and all I could say was "I hope you meet God someday". She smiled sweetly and turned away... chance gone.

She will meet God someday. I only hope someone inspires her more than I did before that moment. All in all it was better than silence which is what often comes out. I drove on thinking of this girl and praying for her – that my “semi-seed” would plant a thought that might bloom with the help of the Holy Spirit. In the next town I had some time so I took a break at a local second hand book store. There on those massive shelves two titles caught my eye. “Knowing God” and “Finding God”. It crossed my mind if those books could do what they seemed to promise that gal back at the burger joint could sure use them....I didn't spend the money.

For the rest of the day driving the two lane roads of Central Washington it seemed I passed little roadside cross more often than usual and with each I was reminded how quickly opportunities pass us by. Opportunities for us to speak and opportunities for others to listen are there and gone and only the tears of regret are left. Each of those crosses represents someone for whom eternity came too soon. We have little agnostic teenagers who don't know what they believe serving up burgers...and they're lost. They don't even know what it means and they are decorating their bodies with it. She doesn't look old enough to be out of high school but she's practicing the religion of skepticism. Somebody is letting her down and that somebody is me and everyone else who learns of her lack of faith and does nothing.

They're starting younger all the time and we're losing them, in part because we don't care enough to speak. They look to us for answers and in the silence they take the broad, easy path traveled by their friends.

“...3 For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but wanting to have their ears tickled, they will accumulate for themselves teachers in accordance to their own desires.”

We are losing them to foundationless doctrine that tickles their ears. We are losing them to apathy. We are losing them to a society in the process of throwing off “chains of obligation” to a Creator God who can save them. They exist in the darkness and without knowledge they are in essence throwing off the life-line to eternal life.

Be a light, say stupid things, risk the reprisal; affirm your faith through words and deeds. It's great to live your faith but sometimes there isn't time for them to notice; sometimes you have to speak.

Pray, read the Word, apply it to your life, then open your mouth. It's hard, I know, and we all fail sometimes, but we have to try, we have to shine, for the sake of teenage girls in darkness... 2 Timothy 4:2 “Preach the word; be ready in season and out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with great patience and instruction.”

Tips to guard against bites and burns this summer

(STATEPOINT) For families -- and everybody else for that matter -- protecting skin should be a top summer priority. After all, there is no shortage of summer skin woes you'll want to avoid.

From protecting skin from sun to repelling disease-carrying insects, here are some top insights that will help you and your family enjoy a safer, more comfortable summer.

Sunscreen: Get it Right

When it comes to sunscreen, it's important to understand and follow sun safety guidelines. Fewer than half of moms (48 percent) knew the correct amount of sunscreen to apply to the face and body while at the pool, lake or beach, according to a NO-AD Sun Care-commissioned survey on sunscreen. The correct amount of sunscreen to be applied -- or reapplied -- is at least 2 tablespoons. More alarming still, the majority of those surveyed (54 percent) believe the proper time to apply sunscreen is as soon as they start feeling their skin burning.

Experts say that parents should apply a broad-spectrum sunscreen to themselves and children 15 to 20 minutes before going out in the sun in order to give it time to bond to skin, and then reapply at least every two hours or after 80 minutes of swimming or sweating and immediately after towel drying. Unfortunately, 17 percent of moms were unaware that after an initial slathering of sunscreen, they needed to reapply it following extended exposure.

Beyond application, the type of sunscreen you use matters, too. Luckily, there are quality products at great value, which means you don't need to skimp on the amount you apply or reapplication. For example, NO-AD has been protecting families for generations at an affordable price per ounce. And for those who want to avoid added fragrance, parabens, alcohol, retinyl palmi-tate, BPA and dyes, consider trying NO-AD Naturals Clear Mineral Formula SPF 50, which is developed with naturally sourced active ingredients such as titanium dioxide and zinc oxide, offers broad-spectrum UVA/UVB protection and is water-resistant for up to 80 minutes. Oxybenzone- and Octinoxate-free -- both of which are chemicals considered harmful to coral reefs -- this is also a good choice for the eco-conscious. Parents take note: the line, which offers great value, also carries pediatrician-tested versions for kids and babies.

Other safe sun habits include limiting time in the sun, especially between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m, and wearing long-sleeve shirts, pants, hats and sunglasses.

Bite-Free Summer

Summer days are full of outdoor fun in backyards, parks, baseball diamonds and more. And any time you and your kids are outdoors, you are at risk for insect bites. Unfortunately, a bite can carry risks beyond discomfort. Mosquitoes can carry Zika, West Nile, Dengue Fever and Chikungunya viruses.

Consider streamlining skin protection with a two-in-one combination such as BullFrog Mosquito Coast SPF 50 Continuous Spray Sunscreen + Insect Repellent, which is DEET-free, Oxybenzone- and Octinoxate-free, and a good choice when you want to pack light or send kids to camp or sports with a simple sunscreen and insect repellent solution.

You can also dodge mosquito bites by wearing loose long sleeves and pants, particularly on hikes, and by keeping your yard free of any standing water. By knowing the facts, you can better ward off bites, burns and other summer skin pitfalls.

Qué se debe saber antes de cualquier proyecto casero que implique una excavación (STATEPOINT) Al mirar al suelo, es posible que no esté consciente de los millones de millas de infraestructura de servicios públicos que hay enterrada y que mantiene a la sociedad vestida, alimentada, con energía eléctrica, conectada y mucho más.

Desafortunadamente, muchos de nosotros pensamos "fuera de la vista, fuera de la mente" sobre las tuberías, alambres y cables situado justo debajo de nuestros pies, y esto puede tener consecuencias desastrosas cuando tratamos de cavar sin hacer primero nuestra tarea.

Habiendo establecido conexión hace poco con varios expertos en el campo, como parte de la National Excavator Initiative, Mike Rowe, Presidente y Director General de la Fundación mikeroweWORKS y mejor conocido por los exitosos programas "Dirty Jobs",

"Deadliest Catch" y "Returning the Favor", está invitando a todos los que cavan, ya sea un excavador profesional o un propietario residencial, a llamar al 811 antes de comenzar sus proyectos, e igualmente a aprender más sobre la seguridad en las excavaciones y por qué esto importa.

“¿No es curioso que las cosas de las que más dependemos –nuestra agua, electricidad, gas, televisión por cable– que en última instancia damos por sentado y, en muchos sentidos, acaban molestándonos?”, reflexiona Rowe, que señala que muchas personas se sorprenden e incluso se molestan cuando descubren que no pueden simplemente ponerse a cavar en su propiedad sin llamar primero al 811. “Lo que aprendí es que llamar al 811 previo a una excavación es la forma más importante en que los excavadores pueden garantizar la seguridad y evitar daños”.

Uno de esos expertos con los que habló Rowe, lo expresó contundentemente.

“El mensaje que me gusta dar es ‘llame al 811 para no tener que llamar al 911’”, dice Erica Fink, consultora de continuidad de negocios de energía de Xcel Energy.

Fink es una de varios expertos en prevención de daños subterráneos que entrevistó Rowe. Cada mes se publica un nuevo video de expertos que se centra en los pasos clave del proceso del 811. Se han publicado cuatro videos hasta la fecha y destacan lo que hay bajo tierra, la importancia del tema, la seguridad y el proceso de notificación. Puede verlos en www.safeexcavator.com/meet-the-experts.

Si está planeando un proyecto que requiera excavar, debe saber que las leyes de excavación varían de estado a estado y puede resultar desafiante encontrar la información específica que está buscando.

Entérese descargando la aplicación gratuita Safe Excavator en el app store de Apple o Google. La aplicación describe los requisitos específicos de cada estado para excavar, se conecta a un centro de notificación de llamadas (811) de modo que los usuarios puedan hacer una solicitud de localización y proporciona una lista de comprobación para excavaciones seguras con objeto de ayudar a que su proyecto se desarrolle sin obstáculos.

La mayoría de los estados

exigen que llame al 811 de dos a tres días antes de su excavación. Se enviará a representantes de los conductos y servicios públicos para marcar la ubicación aproximada de los servicios y cables subterráneos usando pintura con códigos de colores, banderolas o estacas, a fin de que usted (o su contratista) puedan cavar con seguridad a su alrededor. No solo la llamada al 811 es la ley, sino que puede protegerlos a usted y a quienes lo rodean de una lesión, evitarle a su comunidad la interrupción de los servicios públicos esenciales de los que depende y ayudarle a evitar posibles multas y costos de reparación.

Siempre cava con cuidado. Hacerlo es un proceso sencillo y los protegerá a usted, a su comunidad, y al medio ambiente.
