Hooked on Kids Fishing Derby lands another large turnout

BY MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BRIDGEPORT – Hooked on Kids, the popular annual fishing derby for youngsters up to 14 years old hosted by the City of Bridgeport drew both good weather and a large turnout last Saturday, June 8, at the Marina Cove.

Kids began wetting their hooks at 8 a.m. sharp in pursuit of some of the 400 trout, 25 of those wearing special prize tags, donated by the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife. The narrow entrance to Marina Cove off the Columbia River was blocked by a net to prevent fish escapement and anglers fished from the bank or a floating dock.

Several volunteers were on hand to make sure everyone got hooks baited properly and could land and unhook their catches.

Volunteers included Bob Fischer, Dan Peterson, Martin Landin, Cipriana Morales, Liz Jenkins, Anthony and Amanda Jenkins, Ed Conklin and, representing North 40 Outfitters, Matt Featherly.

Alyda Ceferino won a $50 gift certificate for catching the largest trout. Alex Saucedo also won a $50 certificate for hauling in the most tagged fish.

Isaac Saucedo and Misael Lorenzano each won a bike. Chloe West, Minam Gomez and Jacoby Saucedo won $25 certificates.

"No one went home empty-handed," Bridgeport Mayor Janet Conklin said.

Other prizes included fishing rods, tackle boxes, footballs, squirt guns, soccer balls, life jackets, Seahawk hat and more. Donations came from North 40, Coulee

Brewster High School Class of 2019 graduates 47 strong

By Mike Maltais
Staff Writer

BREWSTER – Threatening skies and light rain neither discouraged nor delayed 47 seniors from the Brewster High School Class of 2019 from completing outdoor commencement exercises on Champion Field last Friday evening, June 7.

Driven by a brisk north wind, raindrops began to fall on the ceremony as senior Valeria Mendivil sang the National Anthem. Superintendent Eric Driessen advised the audience that while some may need to seek shelter, the threatening weather would not cancel or delay the Class of 2019’s special moment.

Julissa Olvera and Kim Nila delivered the invocation followed by the Salutatorian address by Nation Rios.

Driessen presented Hall of Fame awards to two recipients this year, Dan Webster and Roy “Spider” Riggan.

Shakira Guzman and Adriana Cobarruvias introduced graduates’ family members who were themselves former Brewster High School grads.

Samanta Yanez delivered the Valedictorian address.

Brewster High School counselor Amy Stennes recognized graduates who will be entering branches of the military and conducted the presentation of graduate awards.

Dean Busching was class speaker while seniors Giselle De La Paz, Miguel Chacon and Jose Gomez presented the graduates’ slide show.

The Brewster High School Recognition assembly was held the at 1:30 p.m. the previous day, Thursday, June 6.

retired in 2007 after 60 years in the orchard business.
In prepared remarks delivered last Friday evening, June 6, a portion of which are included here, Driessen acknowledged both inductees:
“Dan has served on the Chamber of Commerce, City Council and Three Rivers Hospital Board and Foundation,” said Driessen. “He was given the Mayor’s Award in 2002 for his active campaign for the School District’s M and O levy.”

“Dan is gifted with the talent of playing the guitar and singing,” said Driessen. “He has volunteered at Sacred Heart Parish leading the music for over 30 years. Dan is heavily involved in the church activities supporting and loving their members.”
“Spider provided employment for many families in the area,” said Driessen of Riggan’s 60 years in the orchard business. “Those families meant a lot to Spider and were more than employees but were a part of his extended family. Spider has sponsored Brewster athletics from AAU basketball through high school events.”

Driessen said Riggan’s example of starting with nothing to build a large orchard and warehouse business serves an example of the “American dream” and “the determination and hard work needed to be successful.”

“Each individual inducted into the Wall of Fame will have a plaque placed on the wall in the High School Commons area as a tribute to the impact they have had since graduating from Brewster High School,” Driessen said.

OBITUARIES

James Anderson Comer Smith Jr.
December 17, 1962 – May 27, 2019
Bridgeport, Washington

James A. C. Smith, Jr., “Jimmy”, 56, passed away at Central Washington Hospital in Wenatchee, WA, on May 27, 2019.

Jimmy was born in San Francisco, California, on December 17, 1962, to Jim and Carol (Johnson) Smith. He attended all 12 years of school in Brewster, where he participated in basketball, football, and baseball. He is fondly remembered for his awesome left-handed curveball. In 1984, Jimmy’s son DJ was born and he could not have been prouder of his son. Then again in 2000, John was born. One of the happiest moments in his life was becoming a grandpa to Benjamin.

In 2007, Jimmy met Kris, and on August 4, 2012, they married at The Hitching Post in Coeur d’Alene, Idaho. Together they made their home on the Bridgeport bar, where they resided until his passing.

Jimmy had a passion for salmon fishing, and was an avid hunter. Many of his fellow fishermen were amazed and respected him for the success he had landing salmon. He was always given his spot at the bottom of the wall. He was a true warrior and provider.

Jimmy and Kris loved to attend all the Brewster Bears’ basketball games and show their support to the team. He especially enjoyed watching his son, DJ, at his wrestling matches and track meets.

James is survived by his wife, Kris, of Brewster; children: DJ and wife, Leticia Smith, of Brewster, John Powell Smith of Omak; stepsons: Bear Ives, Josh Ives of Chicago and Tyson Lamar and Zach Holt of Brewster; mother, Carol and stepdad, John Johnson of Okanogan; sister, Tammy and Dan Townsend of Keller; brother, Jack Smith of Omak; great-grandmother, Margaret Johnson of Riverside; nephews: Garet and Jason Townsend of Keller and Levi and Shelby Holt of East Wenatchee; mother-in-law, Jackie Holt of Brewster; brother-in-law, Ron and Holly Holt of East Wenatchee; Aunt Betty and Uncle Larry Landreth of Reardan. He was preceded in death by his dad, James A. C. Smith Sr., and grandparents: John and Emily Smith and Helen and Ernie Waggoner.

A Memorial Service will be held at 11:00 a.m., on Sunday, June 23, 2019, at the Core of Engineers Park, below the Chief Joseph Dam, on the side of the salmon dedication, in Bridgeport, WA. Following the service, there will be a dinner held at the American Legion in Brewster. Friends and family are all very welcome to come and share old memories and photographs. Arrangements are in the care of Heritage Memorial Chapel, East Wenatchee & Cashmere.

Trejo receives CW2B Athletic Director’s Scholarship

By Mike Maltais Staff Writer

BRIDGEPORT - Senior Anayeli Trejo Lugo was selected for a $500 scholarship by the Central Washington B League Athletic Director's to assist in her future educational pursuits.

“Each year the 2B and 1B Athletic Directors of North Central Washington recognize one boy and one girl from each league for a total of four scholarships based on their athletic and academic accomplishments,” said Bridgeport Athletic Director Scott Darwood. “Ana was Valedictorian of her graduating class, a three-sport athlete in cross country, basketball, and track and field, was chosen as Female Outstanding Senior Athlete of her graduating class of 2019, and was one of four Bridgeport seniors to be recognized as an Outstanding Senior Scholar Athlete for the NCW2B League.”

Anayeli Trejo

Trejo had to maintain a 3.5 grade point average (GPA), letter in a varsity sport her senior year and be a person of high moral character to qualify for the honor, said Darwood.

Trejo’s other high school accomplishments include two years as a Washington State LEAP representative, four years of FFA (President this year and District President last year) Senior Class President and ASB President, a member of the Multi-Cultural Club and 2018-2019 Senior Student of the Year.

Trejo earned her AA degree from Wenatchee Valley College upon graduation, and was presented with $144,500 in scholarships towards college.

“It is extremely impressive to see how hard Ana has worked and been involved so much these last four years in such a wide variety of athletics, academics, politics, social involvement, in clubs and has been as untiringly as she has in these pursuits,” said Darwood. “I can think of no one more deserving than Ana in earning this scholarship opportunity.”

Trejo plans on attending Gonzaga University this fall.

“We are quite proud at Bridgeport to be sending off such a dedicated and capable young lady to pursue her dreams,” Darwood said.

Track star Prestegui named WIAA Athlete of the Week

By Mike Maltais Staff Writer

BRIDGEPORT – Fillies High School sophomore Joanna (Jo Jo) Prestegui was named a Washington Interscholastic Activities Association (WIAA)/Wendy’s State Athlete of the Week for the week of May 19-25 (Week 37) for her accomplishments at the recent State Track and Field Championships in Cheney.

Bridgeport Athletic Director Scott Darwood said Prestegui was selected for “helping to lead the Bridgeport High School girls’ varsity track and field team to the 2019 Girls Track and Field Para-Combined State Championship.”

Prestegui won first place in both the 100-meter run and javelin events and second in the discus and shot put in the Ambulatory Division of competition. Coupled with junior teammate Yareli Palacio’s eighth place finish in the shot put and javelin events the combo won the Para-Combined title.

A letter to Prestegui from the WIAA said: “Throughout the school year, the WIAA

Mike Maltais/QCH

and Wendy’s honor 12 student-athletes per week from around the state. This award is designed to honor Washington’s best, and your performance certainly qualifies for the recognition. We know you spend a great deal of time and energy and that participation requires dedication and discipline. The WIAA and Wendy’s salute your efforts.”

“Her teammates, coaches, school staff, student body and community couldn’t be more proud of both Jo Jo and Yareli on their efforts and accomplishments,” said Darwood. “Both the state title and the WIAA/Wendy’s recognition are really quite the accomplishments!”

By Mike Maltais Staff Writer

MANSFIELD – There was a hot time in The Town at the End of the Rails last weekend as the Town of Mansfield hosted its annual three-day Playdays celebration from Friday, June 6 through Sunday, June 9.

Bracketed by theatrical productions on Friday and Sunday, Saturday’s main event began with the presentation of the Mansfield Museum and Historical Society’s annual Award of Merit to Ward and Nancy Glessner for their contributions to the community. Mayor Tom Snell presented the award after which the Glessners were guests of honor in the parade along Main Street.

Leading the procession was the red 1964 Ford F100 pickup that belonged to 2001 Mansfield graduate Marine Lance Corporal Caleb Powers who was killed in action while serving in Iraq in 2004.

RIGHT, TOP TO BOTTOM: The Glessners received this Award of Merit before last Saturday’s Mansfield parade; The 1964 Ford F100 pickup that Marine Lance Corporal Caleb Powers helped restore before his death in Iraq in 2004 led the procession down Main Street; The bouncy houses and slides were popular with the kids; Tomas Rios rode one of several dancing horses in the parade; and These two enterprising youngsters came prepared for the real parade payoff.

Stool softeners, laxatives, here is the difference

Q: After I had my hip replaced, my surgeon recommended I take a stool softener for a couple of weeks to prevent constipation. Is that the same as a laxative?

Laxatives encourage movement of your stool through your intestines, helping to prevent and relieve the pain and pressure of constipation. The word laxative means “to loosen”, similar to the more common words “relax” and “lax”, meaning acting loose or relaxed. So, a laxative works to “loosen” your bowels, relieving constipation. Stool softeners are considered a particular type of laxative called an emollient laxative, used to lubricate the stool.

When you swallow a bite of food it starts down a series of tubes called your digestive tract. Highly acidic gastric juices are secreted by cells in the lining of your stomach, breaking down your food into a form that will eventually be absorbed into your body. Moving the mostly liquid mass of food from your stomach into your small intestine begins the process of absorbing the vital nutrients in the food that you just ate.

Your intestines are lined with special cells designed to absorb nutrients, medicines, and water. There's also a layer of very important muscles that run the entire length of your intestines that keep that mass of food and liquid moving along, and whatever is left over is eliminated as stool or feces.

The longer it takes to move through your small intestine to your rectum, the more water gets pulled out of your stool, making it smaller, harder and more painful to eliminate. An emollient can soften the stool both by pulling moisture back into the stool and by lubricating it, easing the discomfort of constipation. The most common stool softeners are docusate and mineral oil.

Docusate is a surfactant very much like a detergent or soap, and helps water to move into your stool. Although docusate doesn't directly stimulate the muscles of your intestines or increase the movement of stool, it can relieve constipation by replacing some of the water in your stool that is absorbed by your body as it moves through your intestine. Docusate is usually easy to tolerate but may occasionally cause diarrhea or stomach cramps. Unlike mineral oil, it doesn't interfere with absorption of nutrients or vitamins.

Mineral oil is a liquid refined from crude oil. It lubricates the stool but doesn't increase its water content like docusate. Mineral oil is colorless and odorless, and “baby oil” is a scented version of it. Mineral oil can interfere with your body's absorption of fat-soluble vitamins like vitamin A, D, E and K, eventually causing a deficiency and also can leak out from your rectum. If you accidentally inhale it while trying to swallow, mineral oil can cause life-threatening irritation to your lungs. Mineral oil usually stays in your intestine where it is needed, but if you take docusate and mineral oil together, the mineral oil can be absorbed into your body and away from where it can help relieve painful elimination.

Emollient laxatives like docusate and mineral oil may turn your stool “mushy” but don't directly stimulate the muscles lining your intestine. While most people get results within 2 days, it can take up to five days for full effect.

Here are 5 Tips on Using a Stool Softener:

1. Drink enough water and fluids, especially around mealtime.

This will help docusate do its job of helping move water into your stool.

2. If you are on a sodium-restricted diet, choose docusate calcium instead.

Docusate has two forms, sodium and calcium. If you must restrict your sodium intake, choose docusate calcium instead of docusate sodium. It can be hard to find; if you don't see it on the shelf, ask the pharmacist.

3. If you have trouble with large pills, don't buy 250mg docusate capsules.

The size of the capsules is hard to see through its dark bottle. Although the 250mg capsule is a better value than the 100mg because they cost the same, the 250mg capsule is HUGE and should not be cut.

4. Avoid cutting or biting docusate capsules.

Docusate tastes HORRIBLE, just like soap, because that's what it is. Avoid biting or cutting docusate capsules unless you like the soapy taste. The syrup is nearly as bad; it ranks consistently at the bottom of liquid taste tests and the aftertaste can linger for hours.

5. For faster results, choose a combination laxative and stool softener.

Docusate is often combined with a more stimulating laxative like senna or bisacodyl. Senakot-S® and Peri-Colace® are examples of combination products.
