Cashmere High School's FFA will be heading to Washington State University Wednesday, May 10 through Sunday, May 14 for their State Conference.

While at State, the students will compete in career development events, leadership sessions and they will receive chapter awards that were earned throughout the year.

Once in Pullman, the state's land grant institution, the students will stay in the dormitories that will be available on campus.

According to Rusty Finch, FFA advisor, there will be 50 Cashmere students going to the Conference, which will have about 3,000 students overall in attendance.

The events at the State Conference will include Extemporaneous Speaking, Agriculture Sales, Meats Evaluation, Milk Quality & Products Evaluation, Novice Parliamentary Procedure, Food Science, Public Speaking and Job Interviews.

Jason Kenoyer, who's taking part in the Meats Evaluation and Job Interview events at State, is mostly anticipating the meats competition.

"I'm looking to build character and looks forward to competing in the Ag. Sales event the most.

"I'm hoping to learn communication skills and preparation skills,' Mongeon said. Lizzy Carney is also one of the Ag. Sales event participants and is eagerly awaiting the competition.

"I'm looking forward to leaving school for a week," Carney said with a laugh. "I'm hoping to learn more people skills because with sales you have to understand people and (really) talk to them."

Madison Schoening will be competing in prepared Public Speaking and Ag. Sales.

"I'm hoping to learn better time management," Schoening said.

Competitions can have anywhere from 20 to 40 teams competing Finch said.

Of the 50 students heading to State, 24 of them will be freshmen competing in the Novice Parliamentary Procedure event. There will be 38 girls and 12 boys attending altogether. "Girls are a lot more competitive with agriculture," Finch said. There is going to be a mix of leadership contests along with skillsoriented contests.

"We usually perform a little bit better in the skills ones," Finch said.

The club's State Livestock Evaluation will be held in Spokane on Wednesday, May 3.

"We can't do them all in Pullman," Finch said. "They just can't facilitate it all."

According to Finch, winners of the State competition have to be in the Top 8 winners to be able to make it onto stage.

"I think all of those teams have the potential to do that," Finch said.

Finch is eager to see all of his students gain new experiences while in Pullman.

"It's kind of eye-opening for them to be on a college campus for four days," Finch said. "And we're staying in the dorms. It's a good experience.'

There will be many keynote speakers at the conference and tours being given for the students to participate in.

"There's lots of agricultural dignitaries there as well as facilities that we use," Finch said. "So they get to be a part of that as well.'

For Finch, the State competition is a great way for students to truly put their knowledge to the test.

"These kids thrive on competition, deep down they do," Finch said.

Legislature confirms $2 million for US 2/West Cashmere Bridge

Senate and House approve final budget, agree on bridge funding

OLYMPIA - The 2017-19 transportation budget adopted by the Legislature includes $2 million toward replacement of the US 2/West Cashmere Bridge.

"I am thrilled that the budget negotiators kept the Senate-proposed funding in the final transportation budget," said Sen. Brad Hawkins, a member of the Senate Transportation Committee. "I had been assured that the project would be included in the compromise package, but you never actually know until all the work is finished.'

The House approved the final budget yesterday, and the Senate did so this evening. The $2 million legislative appropriation raises the combination of federal, state and local funding commitments to a total of $20 million. Replacing the 85-yearold bridge, which carries Goodwin Road over the BNSF rail line and the Wenatchee River west of Cashmere, is expected to cost $23 million.

Hawkins credited a meeting between local ambassadors and the Senate and House transportation committee chairs as the key to securing this level of support outside of a gas-tax package. Representatives from the county, city, school district, port, transportation council and Crunch Pak joined him and the 12th District's state representatives at the Capitol a month ago to make the case for funding to replace the bridge.

"Our local leaders did a fabulous job with their presentation, and we kept up our advocacy. We have very talented and respected people in our area. This just goes to show what we can accomplish together," said Hawkins. "At the beginning of this whole effort, I knew there was a chance we would come up short and get nothing. Instead, we gained renewed interest in this project and two million bucks."

Weight restrictions already force heavy trucks to move through downtown Cashmere - including some 250 trucks per week associated with Crunch Pak, the packaged-fruit company that is the city's largest employer. Also, the bridge represents a primary route for emergency responders because traffic isn't halted by trains.

The project has long been a high priority with local officials, who worry the US 2/West Cashmere Bridge may fail to the point of closure within five years. Federal and local funding commitments were made, however, the bridge was not included in the Legislature's 2015 'Connecting Washington" package of transportation projects.

"I believe this appropriation gives new momentum to this important project, and that can only help in securing the remaining funding from other sources," he added, mentioning freight-mobility grants as an example.

"Ihavebeeninclosecommunications with our local officials throughout the session, and I believe we have strong leads on opportunities to close the remaining funding gap and actually get this done," said Hawkins.

Kyrgyz leaders meet young entrepreneurs

By MIKAILA WILKERSON AND CASHMERE ROTARY CLUB

Seven Kyrgyz leaders participating in the Open World Program spent April 8 - 16 in the Wenatchee Valley examining young entrepreneurship. Cashmere Rotary Club will host the delegation. Managed by the independent Open World Leadership Center, Open World introduces rising leaders of emerging democracies to legislative functions essential to democracy. Open World maintains a network of leaders who have gained significant, firsthand exposure to America's democratic, accountable government and freemarket system. Funded almost entirely by the U.S. Congress, Open World links Members to their counterparts and is an instrument for Americans engaged in citizen diplomacy.

While in the Wenatchee Valley, the delegates visited a variety of companies, chambers of commerce. attended several Rotary meetings, stayed with host families, and visited local sites.

In the Wenatchee Valley, the Open World delegation is visited Rocky Reach Dam, hiked up Saddle Rock, visited Wenatchee Valley Museum, Crunch Pak, Aplets and Cotlets, Icicle Brewery, Benson Winery and Badger Mountain Brewery among many other visits.

Homestays allowed Open World delegates to experience American family life. They also took part in several cultural and community activities, including jam night at Columbia Riverside Pub, a visit to Mission Ridge, bowling at Brian's Pizza in Cashmere, and several "social hours" with other young career driven youth.

According to Cashmere Rotary Club's Randy Smith, the coordinator of the Kyrgyzstan group's activities, the Rotary has been bringing international groups over for the last 8-9 years. They've hosted two governors, two ambassadors and an eco-tourism group. Smith, himself, has been to Kyrgyzstan on four separate occasions. Last September, nine local people went to Kyrgyzstan to where the country's World Nomad Games are held every two years to see their competitions. "It's been just an incredible week with these young people," Smith said. Tilek Toktogaziev, one of the delegates, owns two coffee shops and has opened an education center back in Kyrgyzstan. Laura Satkankul Kyzy owns a catering company and teaches catering to young children who go through a two-year homeless housing facility in order for them to possibly get a job in that field. Rakhat

BY REEMA GRIFFITH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

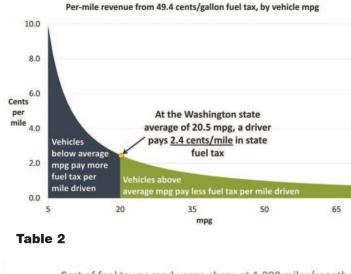

Washington State Transportation Commission

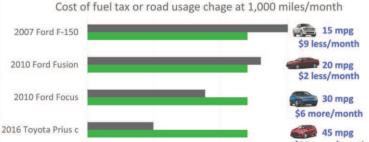

Washington, along with every state in the nation, utilizes a gas tax to provide a major source of funding for roads and bridges. It has been a reliable workhorse for decades, but its future sustainability is uncertain as vehicles become more fuelefficient and alternative fuel sources emerge.

We all want to lower our costs of owning a car and many of us want to leave less of a mark on the environment. As gas consumption goes down for all the right reasons - gas tax revenues also go down, which leads to less available funding to build and maintain transportation critical infrastructure.

Washington's gas tax was increased in 2016 to the current 49.4 cents per gallon to provide a much-needed infusion of funding to build many transportation projects across the state over the next 16 years. However, forecasts suggest that over the next 20 road-usage charging to the test. We want drivers to experience it first-hand and give us feedback on what works and what doesn't. We need people from all over the state to participate in the yearlong pilot project, beginning in early 2018, to ensure a broad spectrum of perspectives goes into shaping the outcome. We need drivers from urban areas and rural areas, with different income levels, and varying car types from old to new, from gas to electric. Drivers must be part of the solution and help identify a potential replacement for the gas tax - and the pilot project is all

While a road usage charge holds a lot of promise for the future funding of transportation, it can certainly evoke concerns and confusion as it proposes a fundamental shift in how we pay for roads and bridges. Let's look at some of the myths and facts around road usage charging.

MYTH 1: A road usage charge must utilize GPS technology to work and will monitor individual driving habits and location.

> FACT: Road usage charges can be collected without the use of any technology, including location-based technology (GPS). Our state will test four different options in the pilot project, two of which will be no-tech and two high-tech; drivers get to pick one they want to test.

One of the no-tech options is an odometerread approach where drivers report their total miles driven to the Department of Licensing as part of the vehicle registration renewal process. Road charges would be calculated by multiplying the per-mile rate by the total miles traveled.

Another With this permit, drivers utilize technology to increase money and generally be unfair consumer convenience. One is compared to the current gas a mileage meter that utilizes tax. GPS to determine if you are FACT: If fairness is in state and on a public road. measured by the cost to If you are on a private road drivers, the cost of a road usage or out of state, road charges charge will be determined by your car's mpg. A road usage charge ensures everyone pays their fair share for the use of the roads, regardless of their car type, mpg or fuel source. As shown in the chart below, a pickup truck that gets 15 mpg will pay the same road usage charge on a per mile basis, as a Toyota Prius that gets 45 mpg. While this may seem unfair to those who drive more fuel-efficient cars, the fact is those drivers will still enjoy a significant fuel cost savings at the pump, given they fill up much less often than drivers of less-fuel efficient cars.

[See Table 2]

This is a lot of information to digest and contemplate considering it really reshapes how we fund critical infrastructure and road maintenance. It is essential that Washingtonians be part of helping us find the right solution.

The road usage charge pilot project is a test, not necessarily the answer. Your participation in the pilot will help us determine whether a road usage charge is worth carrying forward. Your input and guidance before, during and after the pilot project will directly impact the policies that emerge and the direction our state takes in addressing our growing transportation challenges. Your participation is key, so be a part of the solution and sign up for the test drive. There is no cost to participate. All we ask is that vou share your experience and offer your input.

no-tech approach is a mileage permit where drivers pre-pay for a block of miles, similar to how prepaid cell phones work.

about making that happen. another version of the mileage meter that will not have GPS capabilities, but will act as an odometer and submit your total miles driven to the state electronically, rather than requiring drivers to go to the Department of Licensing to manually report them. The other high-tech option is an application that would allow drivers to report their miles utilizing their smart phone. This will face challenges, but is an approach many states are considering given the widespread usage of smart phones.

will not be assessed. There is MYTH 2: A road usage charge will unfairly impact rural residents and drivers who must drive long distances to get to essential services or work.

FACT: The gas tax and road usage charging carry the same effect as far as distance goes - the farther you drive the more you pay under either approach. In fact we are already paying by the mile today under the gas tax – we just don't think of it this way. Because the gas tax is consumption-based, your car's mpg determines your per mile cost. As shown in the chart below, if you drive a car that gets the state's average 20 mpg, you are currently paying the equivalent of 2.4 cents per mile in gas tax today. Cars that get less than 20 mpg could be paying as much as five times more per mile, than cars that get over 20 mpg. Essentially, less fuel-efficient cars are subsidizing the roads for the more fuel-efficient cars that pay little to nothing in gas tax.

of hearing any observation by another individual without attributing some type of negative motivation to it.

Facts be damned. We know what we know and anyone that might challenge our personal collection of accumulated prejudices is clearly driven by some evil intention.

For example, criticize the actions of a person of a different race and you are dismissed as a hateful racist. It is true that some humans are

Let's explore a few other conversation killers.

Climate Change – question the science behind the "consensus" and expect to be demonized as a climate change denier or a shill for big oil. "Big oil" by definition is a group of self-serving capitalists who are willing to sell their souls to the devil to fatten their wallets. Really? I'm sure there are a number of selfserving reprobates in every organization, but dismissing all oil company executives and their employees as moneygrubbing devils is equivalent to racial prejudice.

Corporate Greed - Many people believe everything wrong with America can be traced to corporate greed. Truth is corporations are nothing more than a group of individuals organized for a common purpose. Our Constitution guarantees us the right to peaceably assemble. Corporations are formed for many reasons not just to rip off American consumers any way they can. Unions and most charitable institutions are also incorporated. Corporations are the engines of our economy. To deny corporations the right to lobby the government on legislation that impacts them is to deny the civil rights of the individuals who are represented by that corporation. Demeaning and dismissing all corporations is equivalent to racial prejudice.

Being a citizen of this great country requires that we take the issues we face seriously and that we make informed decisions about policies and laws that impact our lives. It requires that we hold our politicians accountable for the promises they make and the laws they pass.

Despite what the politicians promise government cannot create jobs. Government makes no product that is in such high demand that consumers rush out to buy it.

Hiding behind anonymity when expressing an opinion is the first sign that we are unsure of the truth of our position.

Denying an audience to those with whom we disagree only shows the immaturity of our convictions.

It is far past time that we each made an individual commitment to reexamine our own prejudice. It is far past time that we resist the temptation to resort to name calling and demonization of everyone with whom we disagree.

Jordan Green: From Cashmere resident to Gonzaga Assistant Coach

By Mikaila Wilkerson

Staff Writer

Jordan Green, born on February 7, 1979, and his three siblings were raised in Cashmere, where their parents had also been raised. Green would later go on to leave the community of Cashmere and find himself being the assistant coach for the Gonzaga University women's basketball team in Spokane.

"I couldn't have asked for a better place to grow up," Green said about Cashmere.

Green loved growing up in the Cashmere community and experiencing all that he did while here.

"A lot of my best friends growing up are still my best friends today," Green said.

Green's parents, Marcia and Scott, retired Cashmere teachers, met in the 5th grade as they were both growing up in Cashmere.

While going to Cashmere High School Green played basketball, baseball and football.

After graduating, Green attended Idaho State University to pursue his Master's Degree

Green even experienced being the Associate Head Coach for the women's team at the University of Idaho for a period of time.

Lisa Fortier, Gonzaga's current women's basketball head coach, was the assistant coach for the Gonzaga team before Green.

The former head coach, Kelly Graves, accepted the head coaching position for Oregon women's basketball and Fortier got hired on as the new head coach for the Gonzaga women.

"I'd known her just from recruiting," Green said of Fortier. Green had met Fortier before Fortier became head coach, and after Fortier was hired she had asked Green if he would like to be assistant coach.

Esen Dzhumanov, the CEO for Dodo Pizza Company in Kyrgyzstan, described his experiences while in America in one word: 'Fascinating'. Esen has been sampling other types of pizza while here to experience pizzas made in another country.

"There's delicious pizza here," Esen said. For Esen, people here are very smart, especially those in the business world. "People are passionate about their work," Esen said. "People want to improve their businesses, I can see that." During their visit, the group hiked up Saddle Rock. "The view was nice," Esen said. "Beautiful view." Jarkyn Mamytova, Jarkyn Mamytova, who manages projects for the Rotary Club of Bishkek, the Capital of Kyrgyzstan, has loved meeting new people and experiencing new things during their visit. According to Jarkyn, their first stop when coming to the US was to Washington DC to visit the US Congress Library. This was done to learn more about America, and what sort of customs to expect when coming to Washington State for their visit. "I've got new friends and new experiences," Mamytova said. In the face of challenges, Jessica Green emanated grace and built a life full of family, friends, generosity, and love. She now joins her husband Everett on a final moonlit flight. Jessica Green (Tilley) was born March 15, 1937 and passed away peacefully at home surrounded by loved ones on April 14, 2017. She was born in Derby, England to Dorothy (Myles) and Edward Tilley. When Jessica was two, World War II broke out and her father, who was a lawyer, joined the Army. He served with distinction under General Montgomery in North Africa and Europe. Jessica saw her father only during brief leaves over the next six years.

Fearing the bombings that would eventually become reality in the industrial city of Derby, Jessica and her older sister, Perdita, were evacuated to Oxford to live with their beloved Great Aunt Margaret. Margaret founded the Catholic Women's League and studied painting in Paris. Jessica's brother Paul was born in late 1940 during the Battle of Britain. This period was marked by the contrast of enjoying their time with Margaret while coping with the challenges of being at war, such as rationing and scrambling for cover during air raid warnings. Margaret's painting of Jessica's grandmother hung in the Green home for many decades reminding her of the happy times.

Sometime after the war ended, Jessica followed her sister to Felixstowe, a boarding school on the coast of England. While Felixstowe was a difficult experience for a free spirited girl like Jessica, it was there that she met her best friend Carol Zimmern and another lifelong friend Sally Terry. Jessica spoke of an extraordinary and supportive kindness amongst the girls who missed their families and were beset by harsh disciplinarians at the school.

She attended the University of Heidelberg in Germany and later sailed to America to begin a new life. After spending some time in Portland, Maine, Jessica moved to San Francisco. Once there, she worked as an interpreter in French and German for Bank of America, and later was one of the first employees of Jess Stonestreet Jackson, an entrepreneur and lawyer, who later started Kendall Jackson Vineyards and other wineries. Wanting more adventure, she became a flight attendant for Trans World Airlines, where she met the love of her life, Everett Green, and later married him in Carson City, Nevada. The newlyweds lived in the Bay Area, where she gave birth to Chris and later Suzy in San Mateo. They moved to Lake Stevens, Washington where Craig and then Kim joined the family.

The young family of six then spent a few years living in Reno, Nevada before they settled down in Dryden. Jessica and Everett bought a pear orchard in Williams Canyon and built their family home. She learned to be an orchardist and cultivated warm friendships and beautiful rose gardens. She adored having friends and family over; she was a fantastic cook and served gourmet meals on the deck overlooking the picturesque Canyon

After her first bout with cancer, Jessica and Everett helped found Our House, a charity which provides a home away from home for cancer patients who must travel a long way for treatment. It was a wonderful gift to her friends and family that she was able to live so long beyond expectations and that she fought so hard to live.

Jessica traded in her urban upbringing to create a life in rural Washington as a loving mother to kids, foster kids, and exchange students. She was a voracious reader with a dry British humor and her command of the English language came in handy to lawyers she worked with over the years. She loved to travel and enjoyed many exotic adventures with Everett. She had a toughness that humbled most yet was also incredibly generous and caring.

Jessica was preceded in death by her Loving Husband Everett in November of last year. She is survived by her sister, Perdita Harvey and brother, Paul Tilley. She will be deeply missed by her children: Christopher, Suzanne, Craig (Monisha), and and her cherished Kimberly; grandchildren, who affectionately call her Muzzy: Salvatore, Dominic, Jasmine, Christina, Gavin and Aniali, Jessica's family would like to thank the Confluence Health and Hospice staff for their loving care.

Memorial Service А of Commemoration to celebrate the life of Jessica Green will be held on Saturday, April 29, 2017 at 2 p.m. at St. James Episcopal Church in Cashmere, Washington. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Cancer Care of NCW, Inc., 1708 Castlerock Ave, Wenatchee, WA, 98801 or St. James Episcopal Church, 222 Cottage Ave, Cashmere, WA 98815. Sophrona Irene Pusel

Sophrona Irene Pusel, 104, went to be with her Lord, Friday, April 15, 2017, in Cashmere, Washington She was born to Christian and Lutie May Johnson on July 2, 1912, in Brewster, Washington Sophrona lived the first seven years with her grandparents, Deak and Lucy Brown in Monitor, Washington Then in 1919. she moved with her mother to Seattle. Washington. One loving memory that Sophrona had of her youth was when her family was living near the Omak area. Every time the family had to go to town for mail and groceries, they had to take horses about 12 miles to get to town. When Sophrona was 12 years old and her sister, Fern, was six, they were riding to town to get the mail. On the ride home, they encountered a rattle snake. While Fern held the head of the snake down with a stick, Sophrona smashed the snake's head with a rock. Then, Sophrona cut off the rattle and wrapped it in the new Sears Roebuck catalog page to take home to show her mother. After getting back on the horse and going only a short distance, the girls came upon a second rattler, which they also killed. They added this rattle to the first and headed home. When Sophrona and Fern arrived home, they tried to share their exciting news with Lutie, their mother. However, Lutie was so shaken from running a bear out of their cabin, she could hardly listen to Sophrona and Fern's story about the rattlesnake encounter. In 1928, at 16 years of age, Sophrona left home to go to the Olympic Peninsula to begin working as a maid for several families. In 1935, she was the maid for the base commander of Key Port Navel Torpedo Station in Keyport, Washington. One day while working for the commander, Sophrona went out on a blind date with a very handsome Marine guard, Kenesaw Pusel. It turned out that this blind date was the love of her life. They were married May 30, 1935, and were together for 67 years. Two years later, on Oct. 2, 1944, Ken and Sophrona welcomed Jack Charles into their family: their one and only son. At the end of World War II, they moved to Monitor, where they purchased four acres of homestead property from Sophrona's Aunt Melvina. They built their home on the property in 1950. This was their home for the next 51 years. Sophrona worked as a sorter in every shed and warehouse in Monitor, as well as working at Blue Star of Cashmere, Washington. When she wasn't sorting fruit, she was baking pies for the community, helping Ken in their own small orchard, or helping at community dinners at the Monitor Methodist Church. Sophrona was a member of the church for 100 years. That made her the oldest and longest member of the United Methodist Church in Monitor, Washington In February 2001, they moved Cashmere, where she continued her gift of caring and assisting any resident who needed a helping hand. Tragically she broke her hip December of 2010, and had to rehab at Cashmere Convalescent Center, where she resided for seven more years. Sophrona was the Champion of BINGO and all her prizes went to children in the hospital and charitable organizations in the vallev.

She was preceded in death by her husband in 2002: and all of her other siblings and parents. She is survived by her son, Jack; daughter- in- law, Nadine; two granddaughters; and five great-grandchildren.

Graveside Services was held on April 21, 2017, at Evergreen Memorial Park in East Wenatchee, Washington. Memorial donations may be made to Monitor United Methodist Church. Cashmere tennis team plays against Chelan Atheists Don't Exist

God doesn't believe in Atheism. Actually, God doesn't believe atheists exist at all. Now perhaps I am being overly snarky, and to my atheist friends who are reading this, please don't be offended, I love you all, but I do want challenge you to really think about your position.

To be an atheist is to be a person who is doesn't believe in a god or gods, and rejects entirely the possibility of a metaphysical reality. It could also be said that an atheist has a very naturalistic perspective when it comes to the nature of man. In other words, humans don't possess an immaterial aspect to their being; emotions such as love, sadness, joy are all products of a chemical process developed by evolution, for the purpose of human flourishing.

Atheism differs from agnosticism because agnostics don't reject the existence of God entirely, they simply do not know if God exists. As the late Carrie Fisher, (I'm a big Star Wars fan, by the way) once said that she was an "enthusiastic agnostic who would be happy to be shown that there is a God." The atheist, however, doesn't share the same sentiment as Princess Leia. unfortunately.

Now, this might come as a shock to you, but everyone knows God exists. God has clearly revealed himself in creation, and has manifested hisglory by his handiwork. Psalm 19:1 says, "the heavens declare the glory of God." God is not silent when it comes to his existence. Moreover, the Scriptures teach that God's invisible attributes, such as his power and nature have been clearly shown to people by God himself ever since the creation of the world, so that no one, including those who don't believe, will have any excuse (Rom. 1:19-20).

Furthermore, and I have written on this already, the very pursuit of transcendence or the seeking after glory, shows us that there is a God. As the author of Ecclesiastes

If God has displayed such revelation about his existence and his PASTOR power, why do people disbelieve? As I wrote last week, it is not because of a lack of evidence. Simply put, people just don't want to believe that God exists. To acknowledge that there is someone greater in the universe, means that you have to be accountable to Him, and people just don't want to answer to anyone else but themselves. In fact, Romans 1:18 speaks of the unbeliever knowing God's existence, yet suppressing that truth by their unrighteousness, so it is not matter of whether or not God has revealed himself, rather he has, and people don't like it.

Suppressing the truth of God's existence is like trying to submerge a beach ball in a large swimming pool. You have to actively push it down into the water, because if you don't, the beach ball is going to come popping up to the surface. Deniers of God have to actively wrestle, dare I say fight against the overwhelming reality that surrounds them. Every day they have to wake up, look outside and condition themselves to reject clear and amazing revelation that God is real. If they stop wrestling, the knowledge of God will surface and they will have to come to grips with the One they have been denying. What a stressful existence that would be to constantly be at war with creation itself, and your own person, all proclaiming loudly that God is real. It is no wonder, in my experience at least, I have never met a joyful atheist.

God is real, the Bible says so. Not only that, creation and the atheist themselves are a testimony to the working of an all-powerful, all-loving Creator. With the news of many abandoning their faith and becoming atheists, I would say this to them: abandon fighting against the Truth, and find rest in God.

On Tuesday, April 18 the Cashmere tennis team went up against the Chelan goats in a home match.

Paiton Wagner, playing singles, won both her matches with 6-0 in the first match and 6-0 in the second.

Tyler Kert, playing singles, won 6-0 in his first match and turned around to win 6-1 in his second.

Anna Van Elst and Gabby Covarrubias, playing doubles, both played beautifully in their matches.

Matt Powell and Gavin McCabe played together in doubles matches and they played fiercely.

"Chelan is a good team so it's fun to play them," Coach Trevor Kert said. "They're a good team in the league."

Cashmere had an away match against the Omak Pioneers on Saturday, April 15. Both the boys' and girls' teams won 3-2.

"We need improvement with our volleys," Coach Kert said regarding their game in Omak.

Unfortunately the Bulldogs lost 3-2 against their home game against Chelan on Tuesday, but that will not dampened their spirits.

On Tuesday, April 18 the Cashmere Softball team played against Warden in a double header and won both their games.

Within the first inning of the first game, Hailey Van Lith drove the ball over the center field fence for a walk-off home run on the first pitch, according to Coach Craig Wisemore.

Just in the first game alone, Van Lith scored 3 home runs.

Later in the first game, Sydnee Mongeon hit a home run to left field.

"The whole lineup, from top to bottom, yesterday was able to get the bat on the ball and produce base runners and score a lot of runs," Wisemore said.

The Cashmere girls won the first game 11-1, with the one run of Warden's being unearned.

"Syd pitched a fantastic game on the mound," Wisemore said. Hunter Duke played exceptionally behind the plate according to Wisemore. The Warden softball team had been 8-1 before they played against Cashmere. The lady bulldogs played as hard as they could and ran the bases incredibly hard. "We scratch and claw for Wisemore said. girls all played The exceedingly well yesterday. 'The first game was probably the most complete game that they've had yet."

In the second game against Warden, Van Lith scored 2 more home runs.

For three innings, the Cashmere girls were down 6-1. "We turned that around to 11-7 when the girls just decided to pick up the pace a little bit,' Wisemore said.

According to Wisemore, the Warden pitcher in the first game was a lot faster than the pitcher in their second game.

"It upset their (Cashmere's) timing a little bit but once they dialed that in they just pounded the ball," Wisemore said.

Wisemore stated that everyone in the batting lineup, especially the bottom part with the 5-9 hitters, played exceptionally well.

"They got on base and we had some great base running by kids who are our runners and don't get a lot of at-bats but they are courtesy runners and substitute players in that way," Wisemore said. "They were excellent on the bases."

Erika Namba and Maddy Fadenrecht were two of those runners who Wisemore stated played great during the game. "All of the kids took victorious in their second game with the overall score of 11-7. "It was a non-league game," Wisemore said. "But it was a of that.'

There were minimal errors played in the two games, with the first game only allowing one run for Warden.

Once they got past the third inning of the second game, the Cashmere girls were solid throughout the rest of the game.

The Bulldogs started off with 13 hits and got a 7-0 lead after just two innings.

Tyler Chipman (2IP, 0R, H, 4K, BB), the starting pitcher, tossed two shutout innings before he left the mound with a 7-run lead.

Garrett Tarver (2IP, 2R, ER, 3H, K, 3BB) pitched for two innings before Jay Lightfoot (Win, 3IP, 0R, H, K, 0BB) pitched for the final three innings. Both Tyler Chipman (3-3, 2B, 2RBI, R, SB) and Garrett Tarver (3-4, 2B, 3RBI, R) led Cashmere offensively and they had three hits apiece.

Hudson White, a junior, was 2-4 with 2RBI and a double.

Jay Lightfoot (2-4, 3B, 3R, RBI), a senior, stole 2 bases and had two hits.

Both Daniel Wright and Jarec Kunsman (1-3) scored two runs.

"I was very interested," Green said. "We met and then shortly thereafter I was hired." According to Green, how Gonzaga supports its student athletes is much like how Cashmere supports its student athletes and there is 5,500 people attending each game.

Green is just as amazed at this as he is about how many people stand behind the sports teams back at home.

"That's pretty awesome and is similar in that way," Green said. "That's just the support we get."

The Gonzaga girls went to the Sweet 16 during Green's first year with them and they had the chance to play Tennessee to move on to the Elite 8. Unfortunately they lost to Tennessee in overtime.

According to Green there were over 10,000 people in the Spokane Stadium for the Tennessee game.

The team did beat Stanford while playing at Stanford late last year.

"That was the first time in school history that Gonzaga beat Stanford," Green said.

Gonzaga University is such a special place for Green.

"It's a place where teamwork and personal development are very important," Green said. According to Green, the Gonzaga girls are extremely competitive and work hard every single day.

Green hopes that during their time on the team, the girls will have learned to work together to achieve their goals and dreams.

Gonzaga is not only well known for its athletes, but also for its great academic reputation Green said.

The athletic department and those involved in it are also individuals who Green is very appreciative of.

"I work with great people everyday," Green said. "They're wonderful people to be around."

For the duration of one year, Green was a volunteer assistant coach at Seattle University. This is during the time he had met his wife, Jessica, who had been working at a nearby Nordstrom. The two were introduced by someone who was dating Jessica's close friend.

Jordan and Jessica have two children: Jaden, their 2-yearold son, and their 3-month-old daughter, Josephine.

"I'm very blessed to be here," Green said.

When my allergies kick up, my eyes itch like crazy. Visine® eye drops don't really help. Is there anything else I can try?

Years ago I bought my "dream" car: jet-black 1985 Jeep CJ7 hardtop with low miles from its original owner. It was a real classic, and to celebrate, my husband Charlie and I took it cruising on a Saturday afternoon in mid-August through the gently rolling hills of central Ohio. With the top off, it was magical: moist earth warmed by the sun greeting us as we crested each hill, cruising past cornfields alternating with lush fields of bushy soybeans. Then came the morning after: waking up with my nose completely stuffed up and eyes that itched like fire. I grumbled to my husband, "My allergies haven't this bad in years, not since living downwind to a patch of ragweed one summer back in Washington State. It's crazy... we drove past corn and soybeans last night, not ragweed." "But we did drive past ragweed, TONS of it, growing thick in the ditches by the sides of the road." "Nooo...!"

How do you soothe the discomfort of itchv eves from allergies gone wild? You'll find several eye drops on the pharmacy shelf, but which one can help you the most? Lubricating eye drops can ease burning and help relieve dryness. Systane®, GenTeal® or Refresh® may help with the "sand in your eyes" feeling by flushing pesky pollens out of your eyes but they can't shut down the allergic reaction after it strikes. Decongestant eve drops shrink the blood vessels in your eyes to make them look less irritated or "bloodshot". Like lubricant eye drops, decongestant eye drops can't stop an allergic reaction but they can help reduce puffiness around your eyelids.

Naphazoline is the only decongestant currently available as an eye drop without a prescription and is sold either by itself, as Naphcon[®], or combined with an antihistamine like Visine-A® or Naphcon-A[®]. Too much of this medicine can cause dry eyes and aggravate certain types of glaucoma, threatening your vision. You shouldn't use eye drops containing naphazoline for more than 3 days at a time and avoid them entirely if you have glaucoma.

Antihistamine eye drops work by helping reverse the itching and swelling of your eyes. Pheniramine maleate is an antihistamine available in both Visine-A® and Naphcon-A® eye drops (the "A" stands for antihistamine), but because these drops also contain the decongestant naphazoline, you should only use them for a short time, up to three days.

Even more effective than an antihistamine is a medicine called a mast cell stabilizer. Mast cell stabilizers can prevent an allergic reaction from even getting started. When your body encounters a particular allergen, a chain reaction occurs. Special cells called mast cells that store histamine react when your body recognizes pollen or cat dander as an allergen. These mast cells open up and release the histamine stored inside, triggering the swelling, itching and redness of an allergic reaction.

Although antihistamines can block the swelling and itching caused by histamine running around in your body, what if you didn't need to do that because you kept histamine locked up? When you are exposed to an allergen, a mast cell stabilizer works by keeping histamine safely stored inside your mast cells, keeping you from reacting to it. The medicine ketotifen actually does both: it works as a mast cell stabilizer and as an antihistamine, helping to prevent and treat allergies.

I recommend ketotifen as my favorite eye drop for allergies, which is the only eye drop available without a prescription with a mast cell stabilizer. Originally marketed as the prescription drug Zatidor®, you can buy it as the brand name Alaway[®] and as generic ketotifen eye drops.

Here are 3 Tips on Using Eye Drops for Allergies:

Avoid usina 1. decongestant eye drops for allergy symptoms. They only decrease redness, not get to the cause of the problem. Don't use naphazoline for more than 3 days and avoid it completely if you have glaucoma.

2. Ketotifen is the most effective eye drop available without a prescription because it works both as an antihistamine and mast cell stabilizer. It is inexpensive and safe to use, even in children 3 years old.

3. When using medicated eye drops always wash your hands first and avoid touching the tip of the dropper directly to your eye or to any other surface. You'll only need one drop in each eye; any more than that will just run out and be wasted.

I COOKING WITH TERI SPRING IN THE ORCHARDS

By Teri Miller

Spring is the time of year everyone is busy cleaning up their yards and homes and for many of us preparing our gardens. Due to the weather our local farmers are really struggling to get the first sprays of the season on. You may have seen the helicopters out spraying orchards as the hillsides are to wet and slippery. For folks new to the valley the trees that have been sprayed white is Kaolin Clay with an insecticide mixed in. The clay because of of its structure confuses the female pear psylla (which is the target insect) and she lays her eggs elsewhere not on the trees. Some growers use a different spray program using oil and sulfur. All these products are safe and work guite well. The downside of the clay is trying to get off the tractor and sprayer. As the season progresses more of these products will be reapplied based on the insect population. We will also be using other pesticides, fungicides and implementing mating disruption programs for coddling moth. Organic farmers will be spreading chicken mature as well, you will know by the smell when it happens. Fortunately an almost oderous manure is available in limited quantities. Pot farms in the county have drawn some criticism due to their smell. I am in the pathway of an organic farm and a pot farm and I would much rather smell the pot than the chicken manure. Here in our Upper Valley most crops are grown using conventional practices, some organic and some Intergrated Pest Management practices are also in place.

Growing pears is not easy work regardless of the best practices use, as all of the growers spend tens of thousands of dollars trying to kill our number one enemy "Pear Psylla". This insect arrived on our shore in the 1830's probably as a host on imported pear trees and spread rapidly. Psylla (as farmers refer to) is one of the most serious insect pest of pears, because of its ability to develop resistance to insecticides and to vector pathogens that cause pear decline. Pear growers like most producers pay an assessment to fund research into the production of pears grown in the Northwest.

Pears are big business in Washington as most of the pears grown are exported and one of our biggest markets is Mexico. Unfortunately, Mexico has placed a 30% tariff on our pears which has resulted in lower prices to the grower. It's all political and could change for the better or worse at anytime. China is starting to buy more of our pears especially Red pears, we would love to see that market grow.

The health benefits of pears is amazing and the year round availability makes them a year round treat. For more information about pears and great recipes using pears go to usapears.com. Eat Local and Eat Well!

Lincoln or Washington, two states or one?

A second plan widely supported in early days, but never brought to reality in Eastern Washington, was for state division. Had it come about, we might all be living in the state of Lincoln today!

Long before anyone saw much worth in the desert lands east of the Cascades, the western half of the state was progressing, encouraged originally by large land grants for those who settled in this well-watered section. Saw milling, agriculture, fishing, etc., all contributed to healthy growth.

Hence, when Washington voters sent representatives to the Legislature after achieving statehood, the preponderance of political power to enact legislation was held by the more densely populated west. This situation was to be loudly decried for decades to come; affecting especially the securing of such needed projects as state road funds and bridge building, the eastern half had not the numbers required to get bills passed benefiting this section. A plan to alter the situation came from Spokane booster clubs in early 1907 and was still being chewed on during the 1915 legislative session.

A release to the press, recognizing that the difficulty between east and west was no secret, stated: "There has not been a session of the legislature in which this conflict has not been evident. The conviction has deepened in the minds of close observers that this irremedial conflict is a disturbing influence in commercial and industrial relations of the two sections and that a readjustment of state lines as nature and the best interests of the people have indicated would eliminate the old-time friction.

"It is argued that similar conditions exist between eastern and western Oregon to a marked degree. It is evident that identity of interests and loyalty pervade the entire Inland Empire as against other sections of the respective states of which it forms a part."

Similar difficulties plagued northern Idaho also. Her "panhandle" was divided from the southern half of the state by a high mountain range and voters claimed the latter received the lion's share of benefits.

Since these portions of neighboring states were more closely united in interest and terrain to our drier zone than to the regions to which they had been assigned, why not add them to the new state?

The idea seem to take fire rapidly in Eastern Washington, but there was a question as to its legality under the Constitution of the United States. Section three, Article one, of this document stated: "New states may be admitted by Congress into the Union, but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other states. nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states or parts of states without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned as well as Congress.."

In this case, the community of sentiment must be stirred to action to secure the passage of a law that permitted the new state not in just one state, but in three.

Such action must be taken in a spirit of friendly cooperation, expecting all six portions of these states to be benefited by such division, it was pointed out.

There were other ramifications, extending almost from the border of Montana to the Pacific and Canada to California. Such questions as rail transport regulation, support of schools, new state institutions, division of school lands, regulating shared waterways, etc. must be settled.

The problem as to where a new state capitol for the infant state was to be established at a site pleasing to both Oregon and Idaho, and the general redistricting necessary must be wisely and fairly dealt with as well. An attempt to encourage economic growth and stability was also greatly desired.

Recognizing that the project was without precedent in the nation's history, it was obvious that every attempt must be made to keep the support and good will of leadership in all three states, if anything was to come of it. The first step seemed to be to call on cities and towns in the areas involved to meet and find agreement that would eventually lead to legislative action. As to constitutionality, the optimistic pointed to West Virginia's advent into the Union during the hectic days at the start of the Civil War. When Virginia elected to secede from the Union. her 40 western counties met to declare their independence and form their own government. When the Senate recognized the new state by admitting the two senators she elected, West Virginia was in possession of statehood. Perhaps there were useful guidelines here for the present case, some reasoned. As to boundaries, if the Cascades were to be the eastern border of the state of Washington, a line extending the northern boundary of Wyoming westward might set Idaho's new border. All above that was expected to join the new state. Lincoln would then join Montana on her western boundary. Oregon likewise would give up its northeastern corner to the new entity. Contacting all towns in eastern Washington with chambers of commerce, supporters urged that they provide leadership toward bringing about state division. Apparently, after considering all the angles and the work involved, including a harmony seldom experienced anywhere, a number in this region replied, "How interesting! Yes, we like the idea! Hmmm." And they slept on any further action. Not that it hasn't been proposed at other times, one of these being in 1914, when Seattle merchants backed a plan to make two states of one, thinking that they might be called Eastern Washington and Western Washington in the manner of the Dakotas and the Carolinas.

Noting that the two regions had entirely different needs interests, Eastern and Washington's 29 counties being mostly agricultural, while her counterpart specialized in coal, lumbering, ocean commerce, fishing, etc., they not only was the divorce desirable, but in all likelihood neither would miss the other, once it was brought about.
