Bridgeport Council votes to reject, revisit Atomic Way vacation

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

BRIDGEPORT – The Bridgeport City Council took a step backward so it could move forward with a property vacation application for Atomic Way at its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 20.

Following an extended discussion over an application by Bridgeport resident Scott Wright, who owns property adjacent to the small Atomic Way parcel, council members voted to reject Wright's petition and revisit the process with a new application. The action was taken at the recommendation of city legal counsel Julie Norton who advised council members that the current application as submitted was not in conformance with the state RCW statue governing the vacating of city property.

Norton told the council that what was missing from the current application was proof by dollar value or other means

New County Sheriff Tony Hawley calls on Pateros City Council BY MIKE MALTAIS an Interlocal Agreement for

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

PATEROS – Okanogan County Sheriff Tony Hawley paid a visit to the regular monthly meeting of the Pateros City Council on Tuesday, Feb. 19, his first since his election as the county's chief law enforcement officer last November.

AN NCW MEDIA PUBLICATION.

Accompanying Hawley was new undersheriff Aaron Culp who replaces the retired Joe Somday. Culp, a retired Army Lieutenant Colonel with military police experience, previously worked for the Washington State Department of Corrections.

On the council agenda was a resolution amending the annual law enforcement contract with the county that was incorrectly approved at the council's January meeting. The correct document, an Interlocal Agreement for Law Enforcement Services needed to be approved and submitted to the Okanogan County Commissioners. Pateros has contracted with the county for law enforcement services since 2005.

Mayor Carlene Anders opened the floor to questions from council members. Council member George Brady had one.

"The one thing we did ask for and hadn't gotten in the past couple of years was the Drug Task Force," said Brady. "We give additional money to them every year and... when their number comes up that someone from the Drug Task Force needs to come down and explain to us what they're doing and how it's working."

Council members unanimously approved the 2019 Interlocal Law enforcement Agreement with the county.

Pateros Council approves review of zoning code updates

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

PATEROS – City contract planner Kurt Danison appeared before the regular monthly meeting of the city council on Tuesday, Feb. 19, to explain proposed zoning code changes recommended by the city's Planning Committee.

Danison said that during a January public hearing the Planning Committee received comments on three issues, a rezone of school district property; increased density on R-3 (mixed family residential); and chickens and/or small mammals allowed in residential zones.

Regarding increased density on R-3 property the Planning Committee recommended modifications to current R-3 zones to allow 18 dwelling units per acre, up from the present 15 unit maximum.

With respect to chickens and/ or small mammals the Planning Committee added new regulations allowing the livestock subject to conditions.

Council member Megan Sherrard introduced a Pateros Poultry and Small Mammals Proposal with additions by City Administrator Jord Wilson. The proposal recommends chickens only – no roosters or ducks – and limits small mammals to rabbits – no guinea pigs, ferrets or other similar type animals – for Pateros residents. It also lists the chicken codes for the neighboring communities of Bridgeport, Brewster, Chelan

Kurt Danison is the contract city planner for the City of Pateros and Omak, all of which allow chickens in quantities of four or six birds maximum.

The proposed ordinance recommends a permit fee of $35 and annual relicensing fee of $10. It outlines requirements for coops and restricts the keeping of chickens and rabbits in R-1, R-2, and R-3 zones only.

On the issue of the school district property rezone request, the Planning Committee was unable to reach a consensus to members deferred to the council to make that decision.

The school property rezone request did include several letters supporting the change from its current status of Light Industrial (LI) to Public Use (PU). The district purchased the eight-acre Field of Dreams along Industrial Way in 1990 to use as a future football field.

City planner presents five topics for Bridgeport Council consideration

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

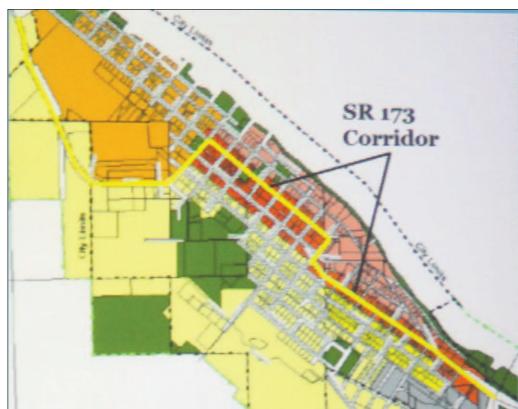

BRIDGEPORT – City contract planner Kurt Danison addressed the Bridgeport City Council at its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 20, to discuss results of recent Planning Commission meetings.

"Once each year we open up the comprehensive plan and zoning code for input from the community, members of council staff, or whomever because we're only allowed to amend these codes once a year," said city contract planner Kurt Danison. "We started last December and let the community know that we were starting this process."

Danison said the Planning Commission received no input, letters, or attendance at the two meetings held but that the Commission came up with five items, some of which have been discussed for a number of years. Those items include a Trails Plan, Community Revitalization Plan, Ag Overlay, RV Dwelling, Mobile Vendors

1. Trails Plan – The city does not have a trails plan, said Danison but it does have some "rudimentary pedestrian planning" while the PUD has done limited trails planning. Danison said the Commission seeks direction if the city wants to pursue a trails plan.

2. Community Revitalization Plan – Danison narrated a slide show presentation explaining how a revitalization plan could benefit Bridgeport that has a legacy of shuttered businesses, abandoned commercial buildings, and deteriorating housing. He highlighted two programs, the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and the Community Economic Revitalization Board (CERB).

CDBG funds target projects aimed at mainly low and moderate-income activities while CERB provides funding to study high-priority economic development, rural broadband, and related projects.

Danison used the State Route 173 corridor running through downtown Bridgeport as an example of a community revitalization project for the city.

3. Ag Overlay – This would allow commercial agriculture within the city limits under certain conditions in certain residentially zoned areas. Danison said city attorney Julie Norton found a number of flaws in the Commission's

PBS station will feature local county watch group

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

OKANOGAN - Tacomabased public television station KTBC-TV will profile local watchdog group, Okanogan County Watch on its weekly program, Northwest Now, during Washington State's Sunshine Week between March 10-16.

Okanogan County Watch was the 2018 recipient of the Key Award presented annually by the Washington Coalition for Open Government. Northwest Now, produced and hosted by Emmy award-winning Tom Layson, KBTC managing editor, typically profiles the Key Award winner as part of its coverage on open government

Northwest Now focuses on Washington's Public Records Act and Open Public Meeting Act by keeping the public informed about the importance of transparent government proceedings by acknowledging the work of journalists, government agencies, and groups like Okanogan County Watch toward that end.

"County Watch is surprised and greatly honored to be recognized by those who have defended open government in Washington state for years," wrote the group's coordinator Isabelle Spohn. Spohn said that since at least 2014 dedicated volunteers have promoted open government by hours of notetaking and now video production.

Spohn said her group is inspired by the state's Revised Code of Washington (RCW) 42.30.010 which states: "The people of the state do not vield their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them. The people, in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control over the instruments they have created."

County Watch volunteers post weekly notes and videos of most County Commissioners meetings as well as those of additional governmental bodies and elective candidates' forums. They submit requests for important public information, send email reminders of commissioners' agendas and meetings, and compose summaries of meetings for distribution to the media, government agencies, and active citizens. County Watch notes and videos can be viewed online at countywatch.org.

proposal so the Commission elected not to make any recommendations to the city council last year but wanted to know if the council was interested in pursuing the matter this year.

4. RV Dwelling - Owing to the shortage of housing, Danison said more and more people are living in RVs which are neither intended to nor constructed for any kind of code that allow them to be used as full-time residences. "Our code really doesn't have anything to say about it," Danison said and added that if council was interested, the Commission would investigate regulations and make proposals regarding parking, enforcement and other fac-

5. Mobile Vendors - Danison said the city does not have any current regulations that address a situation where a mobile vendor comes into town and sets up shop. He suggested some considerations might include obtaining a business license, a health inspection permit for food sales, water and sewer connections, and related concerns.

Of the five topics discussed Danison confined most of his presentation to the benefits of a community revitalization plan and the options to help the city address its commercial and residential potential.

ZONING CODE

Board of Directors wrote that while it is possible to develop athletic fields under the current LI zoning "Public Use zoning gives us greater ability as Educational Facility/entity to manage the discretionary use of the property and therefore manage our liability and use.'

Another Public Use supporter, Gene Dowers, Executive Director of the Pateros-Brewster Community Resource Center wrote that "the best use of this property is for the betterment of the students of the school and of the community in general. In making it a Public Use parcel the opportunity for general benefit is preserved."

Finally, Pateros School Superintendent Greg Goodnight weighed in with his support of Public Use zoning so "the Pateros Board of Directors have the flexibility to use this land in the best interest of our students with due respect given to pressing needs of the community." Another recommendation in the zoning recommendation is greater flexibility for Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs). ADU refers to "a small separate living unit accompanying the primary residence or business, or dwelling permitted on a lot of minimum size or larger having its own living area, kitchen and toilet and bathroom facilities," according to "Definitions" in the 40-page Zoning Code Update are "designed to meet a need for an alternative form of housing without compromising the existing character or appearance of single-family residential neighborhoods," the draft said.

Council members approved the updated zoning draft for submission to the Department of Commerce for a 60-day review. Following approval by Commerce a public hearing will be held before the council takes further action on the changes.

that the city would benefit more from the vacation of Atomic Way than the recipient of the property would. Norton said that requirement was necessary to be in alignment with state law, to avoid any appearance of favoritism, and satisfy any future audit of the property transfer.

Atomic Way, a small unbuildable parcel that connects to the north side of Columbia Boulevard near 22nd Street provides a short dead-end access to the river. Over the decades as city officials have wrestled with what to do with the property the site has become overgrown with brush, a liability for ve- of Atomic Way. hicles using Columbia, and a hangout for drug and alcohol

"We're certainly going to gain if we get rid of that mess down there," said council member Phil Lee. "Right now, it's a hazard; people walk in there and hurt themselves, who's going to be liable? If it catches fire and burns up homes, who's liable? The city, because it's our property."

As one adjacent property owner, Wright has been negotiating with the city to acquire the parcel by whatever means most workable, a purchase, exchange, or vacation. The Douglas County PUD, the other adjacent property owner advised the city that it has no interest in acquiring all or part

Lee and fellow council member Anthony Perkins serve on the street committee that researched Atomic Way for options the city could pursue to resolve it. At previous council meetings members addressed the best way for the city to make Atomic Way a productive piece of property and concluded that striking an agreement with Wright was in the best interests of both parties. Along the way, city contract planner Kurt Danison also advised the city about resolving of any right-of-way issues that might apply as part of the decision-making process. The application that Wright subsequently filed requesting vacation appeared to be the next proper step

Norton's caution that the application as presented is missing a key consideration to avoid any conflict of interest issues persuaded council members to scrap the current document and begin with a new one incorporating the additional detail.

Perkins expressed understandable frustration that such a simple process as dispensing with a small piece of burdensome property was such an involved process.

"The best thing for our town is to move forward," Perkins said of the vacation process.

"There has to be a tangible benefit of sorts to the city," reiterated Norton who reminded the council that she has handled multiple street vacations for the City of Bridgeport and explained what those required.

In the end the majority of council members denied the petition on file, agreed to authorize Norton to prepare a new resolution that can be taken up at the March meeting to continue the vacation process.

OBITUARIES

Dorothy M. Jess

Dorothy (Dot) Jess, a well loved and respected resident of Brewster, passed away Thursday February 14, 2019 at her

She was born January 1, 1930 at Bullard, Texas, the daughter of Madison and Mary Anne (Phillips) Stanley.

She was the sixth of seven children and the family moved to Washington State in 1943 where Dot attended Brewster School. She and her husband John of Pateros were married October 18, 1947. The couple had two children, Jacqueline of Kansas City, MO and Daniel (Carrie) of Post Falls, Idaho.

Dot was beloved by all as she invested in each person with her outgoing personality, the most brilliant beautiful smile, and ways of easy humor & a contagious wit & wisdom. She walked in love and true interest in everyone she met. Her love for Jesus was a continual strength in her life.

In 2009, Dot was named "Citizen of the Year" for Brewster. She served as the Senior Center Site Director from May 10, 1995 until her retirement January 10, 2019. Prior to this Dot worked as a Mental Health counselor.

Dot is survived by her son Dan (Carrie) & Jacqueline, 3 grandsons, 3 step-grandchildren and 8 step-great grandchildren; a family filled with nieces and nephews, her dear sister-in-law Barbara Stanley and all of you whom she adopted with her love and devotion. We will all miss her warmth, joy, smile and caring heart but we know she is at peace in Heaven with those who were waiting for her.

A celebration of life service will take place on Friday, March 22, 2019 at 10 a.m. from Barnes Chapel, with the Rev. John Inurnment will follow at the Locust Grove (Brewster) Cemetery. Immediately following the inurnment please join the family for a reception at the Brewster Senior Center. Cake and coffee will be provided by the family, but this will be a "potluck" affair, so please bring something to share with others, as Dot would want it!

Please leave any thoughts and memories for the family at www.barneschapel.com. Services are entrusted to Barnes Chapel of Brewster.

Neah Bay swamps Pateros state basketball hopes

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

TACOMA – Despite nine three-point balls scored by two Pateros starters, the Billygoats varsity basketball team was unable to stay with the Neah Bay Red Devils in their loser-out 1B Regional game at Mt. Tahoma High School last Saturday, Feb. 23.

The Red Devils took an early 11 point, 24-13 first-quarter lead and built on that through the second.

"They were able to outrebound us and convert in the first half to get a 20-point (43-23) lead," said head coach Marcus Stennes. "We were able to gain a little ground in the third, but it wasn't enough."

After trailing through the first half the Billygoats rallied to outscore Neah Bay by three points, 23-20 in the third quarter but the Red Devils regained the momentum in the final eight minutes to make up that deficit plus a little more to win, 80-58.

Ethan Freels, the Central Washington 1B League Most Valuable Player and the Billygoats' leading scorer connected on six three-pointers and teammate Sam Larsen added another three more in the losing effort. Freels ended the game with 20 points and Larsen made 15.

The loss ended the season for the Billygoats who placed second in CW1B District and went 15-9 for the year. "I'm proud of my seniors who were able to help us get to a regional game," said Stennes, "and also all the time and effort they have put into continuing to build our program over the last four years."

Pateros will lose varsity seniors Tag Easter, Andrew Gonzalez, Sam Larsen, Jeremy Piechalski, and Max Ewing to graduation this year.

Pateros: 13-10-23-12 58 Neah Bay: 24-19-20-17 80 Pateros stats

Ethan Freels: 20 points, 8 rebounds, 5 assists. Sam Larsen: 15 pts, 6 reb. Aiden Hall: 7 pts, 3 reb. Jeremy Piechalski: 7 pts.

Bears squeak by plucky Ducks in close Regional contest

By Mike Maltais Staff writer

EASTMONT – They had to work for it, but the Brewster Bears varsity basketball team greased the skids to state with a win over a tenacious Toutle Lake team in 2B Regional playoff action at Eastmont High School last Saturday, Feb. 23.

Unlike the first time both teams met at the SunDome Invitational Tournament during the Christmas break last December, the Bears did not blow out Toutle Lake by 22 points this time around and had their hands full just staying a few points ahead of the Ducks at every stop throughout the game. Brewster had its largest lead, a 10-point, 12-2 margin early in the first quarter that was just a happy memory by the time the second quarter came into view.

Toutle Lake tied the game for the first of five times, 17all, midway through the second quarter, 34-all midway through the third, and 40-all at the start of the fourth. Behind the three-point shooting of senior guard Logan Grabenhorst who connected on seven treys, Toutle Lake held a brief lead at three stages of the first half and threatened down to the final minute of the final quarter. Sophomore Cade Gebbers combined a bucket and freethrow into a three-point play with 30 seconds left on the clock that put Brewster up, 66-63, through the buzzer.

Grabenhorst led all scorers with 25 points and senior 6'5" post Mike Adams close behind with 23.

EAST WENATCHEE – Turnovers and fouls haunted the Brewster Lady Bears in their loser-out Regional game against Mabton at Eastmont High School gym last Saturday, Feb. 23, but a last-seconds basket banished the spectre and advanced the Lady Bears to State on the heels of a one-point, 47-46, win. It was a far different game from the 64-37 District 5/6 loss that Brewster other meeting on Feb. 13, though it appeared to begin that way.

The Lady Bears jumped out to an early first-quarter lead and were up 25-18 over the Lady Vikings at halftime. Early in the third quarter Mabton scored seven unanswered points to close within a point of the Lady Bears, 29-28. Brewster managed to hold off the takeover and ended the third quarter up by four, 40-36.

the Lady Vikings grabbed a one-point 46-45 lead.

Brewster's Mikenna Kelpman and Kim Nila kept Brewster in the game down the stretch before Sammi Emigh scored with less than 20 seconds remaining to give the Lady Bears a one-point, 47-46 win.

The win puts the Lady Bears in the WIAA 2B State playoffs where they faced Rainier at 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 27. The Mountaineers finished second in the 2B Central League behind Wahkiakum. Rainier took a 74-13 drubbing from Wahkiakum in its first round of Regionals on Feb. 23.

Could you have a heart attack? Reduce your odds through these tips

4 top tips: Your best odds for preventing a heart attack

(BPT) - Many Americans consider themselves wellinformed and attentive when it comes to their health.

That's why it's so puzzling that many remain unfazed by the threat of heart disease.

That was among the findings of the MDVIP Heart Attack IQ Survey, a national study showing Americans are more concerned about cancer than a heart attack - even though cardiovascular disease kills more people than all forms of cancer combined. In fact, heart disease is the underlying cause of one in three U.S. deaths. Many Americans don't take it seriously because they believe most heart problems can be treated with medication or surgery, while others simply procrastinate when it comes to adopting healthier behaviors that help prevent

As a result, many are surlife-threatening heart attack, at any age. While the average age for a first attack is 66 for men and 70 for women, the risk increases significantly as soon as men reach 45 and women reach 55.

"Despite the statistics, people assume a heart attack is going to happen to somebody else, but not to them," said MDVIP Chief Medical Officer Dr. Andrea Klemes. "Heart disease can be dangerously silent, which is why it's important to know your risk factors and the steps you can take to minimize them."

Gloom and doom aside, awareness of the issue is the first step, and there is much

> Your primary care doctor is your first line of defense in helping prevent heart disease. you can do to prevent heart disease. Some 80 percent of heart attacks and strokes are preventable.

Consider these suggestions for reducing your risk of heart attack:

 Partner with your primary. Your primary care doctor is your first line of defense in helping prevent heart disease. Make sure you partner with a physician who has the time to identify and discuss your risk in detail, who will work on a plan to control your risk factors and who can provide ongoing support to keep you motivated and accountable. Physicians like those in the MDVIP network maintain smaller practices so that they can devote more time to each patient and provide the coaching needed to keep them on track.

· Stay up to date on screenings. When's the last time you had your blood pressure and cholesterol checked? But don't stop at the basics. Most heart attacks occur in people with normal cholesterol levels. You also want to get a read on whether you have inflammation in your arteries or insulin resistance, both of which raise your heart disease risk. You can only act on what you know, and knowing your numbers is key to early detection.

 Make heart-healthy changes. Creating and sustaining healthy lifestyle habits can help keep your blood pressure, cholesterol and sugar in check and lower your risk for heart disease. So don't skip your exercise, weight management or smoking cessation programs. Just make sure you consult with your doctor before changing your diet or beginning a new exercise program.

· Sleep more, stress less. While often overlooked, insufficient sleep and excessive stress can put strain on your heart over time. Both can also influence your eating habits, mood and overall health. Most adults need seven to nine hours per night; if you're getting that and still feel tired, consider asking your doctor for a sleep apnea test. Also, try starting a regular practice - whether it's a yoga class, deep breathing or a daily walk outside - to better manage

Eating to age gracefully: Top tips from a registered dietitian

(BPT) - What if you were 60 but felt more like you were 30? Consider taking charge of your nutrition by adding in foods that help you feel decades younger.

"What you eat and drink can have a tremendous impact on how you look and feel," says Dawn Jackson Blatner, Registered Dietitian and Nutritionist. "Eating healthy is important at any age, but as you get older, certain foods can have a powerful impact on your overall well-being."

Top picks for food that fight aging include:

"Try substituting fish into meals a few times a week," says Dawn. "Americans tend to eat less fish than people in other parts of the world and they are missing out on greattasting protein that's packed with omega-3s." Omega-3s support brain and heart health, two important considerations as you age. In fact, Mayo Clinic doctors believe that omega-3s reduce the risk of dying of heart disease. "Fatty fish like salmon, tuna, sardines and mackerel are good options," she says. "Try buying wildcaught versus farm-raised when possible.'

Eggs

"Many people don't realize the benefits of eating eggs, and when you choose the right type of egg, you get higher levels of omega-3s, B12, and vitamin E, all nutrients needed for healthy aging," says Dawn. She suggests Eggland's Best eggs, which have 25 percent less saturated fat, more than double the omega-3s, 10 times more vitamin E, and more than double the amount of vitamin B12. Eggland's Best has superior nutrition due to its proprietary all-vegetarian hen feed that contains healthy grains, canola oil and a wholesome supplement of rice bran, alfalfa, sea kelp and vitamin E. Our ability to absorb energizing B12 decreases with age, so getting B12 in places like EB eggs is important. Also important in EB eggs is the antioxidant vitamin E, which can act like an internal "sunscreen" to protect skin from sun damage and help skin age more gracefully. "A better egg equals a better recipe," she says. "Eggland's Best eggs are the only eggs I recommend to my clients and serve to my family - double the omega-3s will help promote healthier aging.

Berries

"Antioxidants protect your cells from damage and support a strong immune system," says Dawn. "This is incredibly important as you age so you can stay healthy and feel younger."

Packed with vitamins C and E, berries are a superfood great for snacking and cooking. Try eating an array of colorful berries each week to give your body the antioxidants it craves. Blueberries are particularly well-known for their antioxidant properties. "The sky is the limit for

Take charge of your nutrition by adding in foods that help you feel decades younger.

berry versatility," she says. "Sprinkle some in yogurt, make a smoothie, add some to a salad or eat as a healthy

Cruciferous vegetables

"Pack your plate with cruciferous vegetables as you age," says Dawn. "These are members of the cabbage family and include broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, bok choy and kale."

These tasty greens are great fresh or cooked, providing plenty of fiber to help keep your digestion on track, which is a concern for many as they age. But there's more: The National Cancer Institute states that cruciferous vegetables may help reduce the risk of some cancers. "These dark-green powerhouses pack a nutritional punch that supports healthy aging, so discover recipes that include cruciferous vegetables and other 'anti-aging' foods." Dawn shares one of her favorite recipes featuring some of these ingredients.

Omega 3 Burrito Makes 2 servings

Ingredients: 2 tablespoons olive oil 2 tablespoons chopped red

2 tablespoons cream

1 clove garlic, minced

4 Eggland's Best eggs

4 lacinato kale leaves, destemmed with leaves finely chopped

4 ounces sliced smoked salmon 2 10-inch whole-wheat tor-

Gillespie 4 ways to reduce your stress

(BPT) - Stress. No one wants it but we all experience it from time to time. Higher levels of stress can cause problems at work and at home. But stress is not just hard on your mental well-being, it is hard on your body and can lead to many negative health outcomes.

Stress levels can also increase significantly when economic times are tough. In England, the British Health and Social Care Information Centre found that stress had increased by 47 percent during that country's recession and that stress was the single biggest cause of sickness in the UK, affecting 20 percent of the population. In the United States, a survey by the Anxiety and Depression Association of America found that seven out of 10 people reported feeling some stress daily. To help you stay calm and focused, consider these four ways to reduce

> Smells Certain smells can bring back very specific and detailed memories. These could be of a person, event or place. Most often the memory also has a deeply emotional feeling that is recalled. This is because smells are processed by a specific part of the brain that stores emotional memories. Taking the time to seek out the smells that bring back those happy memories can help reduce stress levels.

Salt

Stress is characterized in the human body by high levels of the hormone cortisol, referred to as the "stress hormone." Scientific research has shown, in animals and in humans, that increased levels of salt consumption are very effective in reducing levels of cortisol. Research from the University of Haifa, published in the science journal Appetite, confirmed the relationship between salt and stress in humans. Researchers found an inverse correlation between salt and depression/stress, especially in women. Craving salty foods may very well be a biological defense mechanism we evolved to cope with daily stress.

Animal therapy has long been used to relieve stress, improve mood and treat anxiety. Some studies have also indicated that just being around an animal can reduce blood pressure. This pet therapy has been used in hospitals and nursing homes and even with military veterans suffering from depression. And it is not limited to dogs and cats. Rabbits, Guinea pigs and even horses are used. An added benefit is that having a pet encourages exercise.

Exercise

Regular exercise, even if mild, may be the best stress reducer there is. When you are active the body releases endorphins, which produce a feeling of wellbeing. Regular activity can improve your concentration as well as your sleep, which can often be negatively affected by

Just going for a daily walk can help improve how you feel. And the results of exercise can also improve your self-image and confidence.

Wintertime can be stressful for many people. The cold and shorter days mean less sunlight and fewer opportunities for outdoor activities. That is why it is important to take the time to take good care of yourself and your family by looking for ways to relax.

Fighting an illness? 4 ways to boost your immune system

(BPT) - The winter months bring cold and flu season, which can take a toll on your health. While flu shots and rest are common advice for prevention, a strong immune system is critical to keeping you healthy all year long. According to Margaret Martin. RD, MS, LDN, CDE, a Registered Dietitian at The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society, "Your body's ability to fight infection and disease depends on your immune system."

Margaret provides one-onone nutrition consultations for people with cancer who have a weakened immune system due to the effects of treatment, but she says keeping a healthy immune system is important for everyone. "Boosting your immune system during and after cancer treatment can help you feel better, maintain your strength, avoid treatment delays and speed your recovery. This goes for anyone fighting an illness, or preventing one."

Margaret offers these important tips to help boost your immune system and keep it running smoothly throughout the year.

Keep a plant-based, hearthealthy menu.

Choose foods first as your source of vitamins and nutrients. Unless your healthcare team directs you to take a vitamin or supplement, you likely do not need one. The best way to include these nutrients is by eating whole foods. Make sure your meals incorporate a variety of vegetables and fruits, whole grains, legumes, beans, lean protein and healthy fats.

Eat small, frequent meals throughout the day to stay energized and to ensure your body is getting enough calories, proteins and nutrients. Protein acts as a "builder" and the body uses it to build and repair tissues. Protein is also vital for making hormones and enzymes that promote the body's daily functions and supports a healthy immune system. In addition, drinking eight to 10 glasses of fluids every day is one of the most effective ways to flush waste from your body and support the health of your immune system.

Power up with phytochemicals.

Fruits, vegetables and other plants contain naturally occurring substances known as phytochemicals. Phytochemicals give fruits and vegetables their color and flavor. Phytochemicals act as soldiers in the immune system to protect the body from damage. Studies show that phytochemicals help support the:

- Immune system
- · Creation of healthy cells

• Death of damaged cells (such as cancer cells) Decrease your risk of malnutrition.

It can be harder for a malnourished body to fight off an illness or infection. Malnutrition results when the body does not receive enough calories and/or nutrients to promote good health and sustain healthy functioning of your body's systems. When you're "in the slumps," it can be easy to avoid eating altogether. Follow these tips to reduce your risk of malnutrition during cancer treatment:

• Choose a variety of foods each week from all the food groups. Talk with your healthcare team before changing your diet. Eat regularly throughout the day, every four to six hours. Even if you do not feel hungry, try to have a snack or mini meal. If you forget to eat, try setting a timer.

• Include a protein source with every meal and most

In addition to using nutrition to boost your immune system, you can also make changes to your lifestyle to help support health and immunity. These

- Decrease your exposure to

- · Reduce stress by taking time to do things you enjoy such as spending time with family, spending time outdoors or reading. If your feelings of anxiety or depression make it difficult for you to complete daily tasks, talk to your healthcare team.

5 dermatologist tips for winter skincare

Conquer winter itch with dermatologist tips

(BPT) - The chill, the dryness, the itch: As temperatures drop, winter can wreak havoc on your skin. Fortunately, you can fight winter's wrath by taking a few smart, proactive steps.

Winter skin woes are common, with 83 percent of Americans saying their skin feels differently during the winter than it does the rest of the year, according to a recent survey conducted online among 2,000 U.S. adults by Harris Poll on behalf of CeraVe. More specifically, 77 percent say their skin feels dry in winter and 41 percent even describe it as itchy.

"Winter weather can affect all skin types," says boardcertified dermatologist Dr. Shari Marchbein. "Even though people are aware that their skin is dry, they often unknowingly make mistakes that can cause their skin to feel worse. Being mindful of how you're treating your skin and adapting your skincare routine are two essential ways to help ease the skin discomforts that often come with the season."

To help fight dry and itchy skin brought on by winter, Dr. Marchbein suggests five simple skincare tips:

1. Stay warm, not hot

Everyone loves a long, hot shower in the winter. In fact, the survey found 50 percent of people take more hot showers during the winter. Unfortunately, hot water strips the skin of natural moisture that keeps it healthy, hydrated and protected. Take a short, lukewarm shower instead to avoid irritating the skin. Find that warm comfort by cozying up in a blanket afterward instead.

2. Fix the winter itch That winter itch is most commonly caused by severely dry skin, so be sure to moisturize daily with products that contain ceramides to maintain hydration and fight dryness. Ceramides are naturally found in skin but can be regularly disrupted by factors like the environment and daily activities, leading to dry skin. Keep a tub of a ceramide-rich cream in your bathroom to slather on while your skin is still wet after showering to really seal in moisture and help restore the skin's protective barrier. For added moisture and protection, use an ointment like CeraVe Healing Ointment, which contains ceramides and helps to heal dry, chapped skin, and immediately slip on socks, gloves and comfortable clothes to help it soak in.

3. Dress smart

When you're heading outside, be sure to bundle up! Always wear gear that protects your skin from the elements, like hats, scarves and gloves. Additionally, while winter makes us more inclined to bundle up in cozy sweaters, avoid any materials that may irritate your skin. If you feel itchy under your favorite wool sweater, wear a breathable shirt underneath or consider swapping it for a different material, like fleece or cashmere.

4. Maximize moisture

The colder winter air pulls moisture from the skin leaving it dry, itchy and lackluster, and heading indoors isn't helping. The rising thermostat in your house causes dry air that sucks hydration from your skin. Use a humidifier to add moisture back into the air in main spaces, like your bedroom. You should also be sure to adapt your skincare routine for the winter just like you would your wardrobe. Swap your light creams out for richer products that will add the extra moisturization needed during the winter and be sure to use them twice daily.

5. Drink up However, adding moisture back into the air isn't the only way to hydrate yourself. You should also be moisturizing yourself from the inside out by drinking plenty of water throughout the day. Water has a wide array of health benefits and the quality of your skin is one of them - especially during the winter months when we tend to lose moisture more often. Warm tea is another great way to get hydrated while comforting yourself during the colder months.

"Winter doesn't have to mean dry, itchy and uncomfortable skin," says Marchbein. "A few proactive steps and adjustments to your daily routine can help ease some of those winter worries so you can enjoy all the fun the season has to offer.'

Retirement planning: How 'life' gets in the way and how to overcome the obstacles

(BPT) - If you're like many Americans, retirement planning may not be high on your "to-do" list. When life is busy and you're shouldering the burden of looking out for yourself and your family, setting up a retirement plan can slide down the priority list - especially if you're hoping it will somehow be easier in a year, two or more.

But if you look at the root causes of inertia behind retirement planning, it's clear how the effects from your behavior can be significant.

Below are some insights to help you get on track and better understand the kinds of behaviors that can get in the way of planning for your financial future.

1. Put simply, it's overwhelming. Saving for retirement can feel open-ended and ambiguous, in large part because it's difficult to predict just how much you'll need. Adding to the stress are many hard-to-anticipate variables, including how long you will live and healthcare needs. The good news is there are on-line calculators that can assist you in determining what your future needs may entail.

2. We can't see our "future selves." Researchers have found that people struggle to identify with their future selves, according to a study published in the Journal of Marketing Research. It's not just young people who have difficulty imagining how long they'll live in retirement - older Americans also often underestimate how long their retirement nest egg will have to last. Increased life expectancy means we may live 20 or 30 years - or even longer - in retirement. The good news is that companies like Prudential Retirement now offer interactive games like an Aging App to help people better understand how the decisions they make today

50 or over? Why you may want to consider new shingles vaccine

(BPT) - When it comes to vaccines this time of year, influenza is often top-of-mind and it should be, with as many as 35 million cases expected this flu season. But as you age, don't neglect the shingles vaccine.

Imagine if the slightest breeze or the touch of a bed sheet caused excruciating pain on your head, shoulder or side. What if you also had a fever, chills or an upset stomach? That's what shingles, a painful, blistering rash, can be like for some people.

Nearly one out of every three people in the United States will develop the disease in their lifetime, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The risk for people over 50 is especially high, and it goes up with increasing age.

The good news is there is a way to reduce your risk of shingles. The CDC now recommends that healthy adults 50 years and older receive Shingrix, a vaccine approved by the FDA in 2017.

Cause and complications of shingles

Shingles isn't contagious in the way we think of the cold or flu. Instead, shingles erupts from the same virus that causes chickenpox, the varicella zoster virus (VZV). After a chickenpox infection ends, this virus becomes dormant or inactive within the body. Anyone who has had chickenpox can later get shingles if the virus reactivates. Scientists are unclear why this happens.

A bout of shingles typically occurs in a single stripe on one side of the body, often the torso and less often the face region, and generally lasts from two to four weeks. Around 10 to 13 percent of people who develop shingles continue to suffer for many years from the debilitating nerve pain of post-herpetic neuralgia (PHN), according to the CDC.

Other potential shingles complications include vision loss, hearing problems and even, in rare cases, blindness or death, the CDC said.

The only way to reduce your risk of developing shingles and its aftereffects is to get

What's different now?

The CDC describes Shingrix as the preferred shingles vaccine. Its protection has been shown to last longer than the older shingles vaccine. It also can be administered as early as age 50. The other shingles vaccine, an older version called Zostavax, may still be administered to healthy people 60 and older.

Shingrix is more than 90 percent effective at preventing shingles, and effectiveness stays above 85 percent for at least the first four years after you receive the vaccine, according to the CDC.

What else to know about the vaccine

• There is a high demand for Shingrix, so check with your pharmacy or doctor's office to see if they have a supply. You may be placed on a waiting list.

Shingrix comes in two doses, spaced two to six months

• If you've already had shingles or received the Zostavax vaccination previously, you should still consider getting vaccinated to help prevent another bout of shingles and its complications, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

· Check with your health insurance provider or Medicare about whether the cost of this new vaccine is covered under your plan. Whether it's helping to schedule routine care appointments or checkups, UnitedHealthcare can help you navigate the health care system to get the care you need as soon as you need it.

How to avoid the Prescribing Cascade

My sister-in-law has a good friend, Carol, who is 75 years old and takes 15 prescription medicines, not counting her multivitamin or blood glucose test strips. They were concerned that Carol could be taking too many medications, and asked me to help. Carol agreed to send me her current list of allergies, medical conditions and medicines. Over the past several months, Carol had complained that she "felt too tired" to do the things she'd always used to have fun doing, and was in the hospital twice this winter for lung problems. She kept telling her friends, "It's no fun getting old!" But what if her fatigue is not from getting older but instead from taking too much medicine? Over 1/3 of older adults take 5 or more prescription medicines. If you count non-prescription medicines like vitamins and supplements, the number taking 5 or more medicines doubles, to 67% percent. Part of the reason older Americans take so many medicines is that as we get older, we collect more chronic ailments, and the most common treatment doctors use for most medical conditions is a medication.

Taking too much medication actually has a name: polyphar-

What is polypharmacy? "Poly" means "much" or "many", so polypharmacy literally means "many medicines". Polypharmacy is not defined based on a specific number of medicines you take but whether you are taking more medications than medically necessary. Polypharmacy is dangerous because the more medicines we take, the more they can interact with each other and cause harmful side effects, ranging from fatigue to confusion to an increased risk of falls.

Who is at risk for polypharmacy?

Older adults like Carol who live in their own home are more likely to be at risk of either taking multiple medicines for the same thing, or new medicines rent medicines. Polypharmacy is even more likely if, like Carol, they see specialists or have been recently hospitalized.

Louise

How does polypharmacy happen? When people visit a physician, they expect something to happen, and they are not often disappointed. Between 50-75% of emergency department (ED) and clinic visits result in the doctor prescribing a new medicine for you. Doctors feel pressure to provide some kind of tangible "care", and medications are by far the most common form of medical treatment in the United States. One preventable problem is that sometimes new prescriptions aren't treating a new condition. Instead, they are prescribed to address a side effect of one of the medicines you are already taking!

There's a name for this: The Prescribing Cascade.

There are several factors that create conditions for polypharmacy and the Prescribing Cascade to happen. One risk factor is your doctor not having complete information on the medicines you are already taking or have already tried. Another risk factor is seeing multiple doctors, including specialists who are seeing you for one specific issue, who don't see the entire picture or are not aware of what your other doctors have already done. Being admitted to the hospital for a new or worsening condition is another risk factor, which can add medications that condition stabilizes, but which are often continued after being discharged back home.

One of the most preventable yet dangerous causes of polypharmacy and the Prescribing Cascade is taking two medicines for the same thing at the same time. This can happen whenever a new medicine is prescribed, because doctors don't have much time to talk to you these days, and there can be confusion or misunderstanding about whether your doctor ADDED this new medicine to the others you already are taking, or REPLACED one of your medicines, and if so, which one. Using a mail-order pharmacy can also contribute to polypharmacy and the Prescribing Cascade. It can take a week or more until your new prescription arrives in the mail, which by that time you may not remember what the doctor told you about why you were taking that medicine and whether it was in addition or to substitute for another one. Using than one pharmacy also hampers the ability of a pharmacist to recognize unnecessary or dangerous combinations of medicines, because you don't get all of your prescriptions in one place.

Why does polypharmacy tend to continue?

Reluctance to change can play a part. Physicians can be reluctant to change another doctor's orders, especially if a medication is from a specialist.

Our medical care system is fragmented, with vital information often missing from the doctors taking care of you. New and important information about you from specialists isn't always shared with your other doctors in a timely manner, creating gaps in knowledge of what has already happened to you. Some patients become anxious about stopping a medicine that they were told by a doctor that they would be on "for life", and may feel that the clinician suggesting they reduce or stop it as "giving up on them". Do certain medicines cause more trouble than others? Unfortunately, yes. There are medicines that cause more problems in older adults, setting them up for getting prescribed even more medicines to "treat" those side effects, creating the Prescribing Cascade. As we age, we gradually lose some resilience when it comes to tolerating different medicines. Adults over 65 years old are more likely to get dizziness, fatigue and confusion from their medicines than younger people.

To avoid the Prescribing Cascade, any new symptom you experience should be considered as a possible side effect of a medication until proven otherwise.

6 Ways to Protect Yourself from Polypharmacy and the Prescribing Cascade:

1. Watch out when starting or changing medications. After starting a new medication or after a dose adjustment. report any problems to your doctor change that medicine than end up on an additional one that's treating its

2. Keep a complete list of ALL your medications and supplements. Include all the non-prescription medicines and supplements you currently take, and any allergies or adverse experiences you have had with any specific medicine in the past.

3. Take your medication list to EVERY medical visit. Whenever and wherever you receive medical care, give your medication list to your regular doctor, the Emergency Department, any specialist, even your dentist and chiropractor.

4. Keep your medication list updated. After any hospital stay or appointment with a specialist, update your medicamedicines. Ask for a summary of the hospital stay or specialist appointment that includes with any new plans or medicines, and use that to update your current list.

5. Clarify any new medicine as either an addition OR a replacement.

Whenever vou receive a new prescrip tion medicine, make sure you understand whether it is in ADDITION to what you already are taking or REPLACES one of your current medicines, along with which medi cine to stop.

6. Ask your pharmacist. If you have questions about whether medicines belong together or could be duplications, your pharmacist is a great to begin. Try taking a small step forward and consider setting aside 1 percent of your paycheck for a retirement account. Or, if you already have a retirement account but you're saving very little, increase your contribution by 1 percent.

4. Budgetary pressures. Families have other future needs to plan for, such as their kids' college education or saving for a down payment for a home. Add in the immediate need to cover day-to-day expenses, and it always feels like it's "the wrong time" to save for retirement.

The good news is that there is a great deal of information available online to help with retirement planning. Take time to educate yourself and become familiar with the various tools that are available.

The push to make retirement planning easier "It turns out that many financial companies and employers are acknowledging the psychological barriers that can get in the way of retirement planning," says Harry Dalessio, head of full service solutions at Prudential Retirement. "Today, many employers have products and solutions to assist with student loan debt and that help employees set aside money for emergencies. Financial counselors are now available in many companies to discuss approaches to help get employees on the right path," Dalessio said.

In addition, important innovations, such as automatic enrollment, where new employees are automatically enrolled in their company's retirement plan, have led in many cases to plan participation exceeding 90 percent. Also, simplified products such as target date funds are making it easier for investors to benefit from savings products that are appropriate for each worker's age and goals.

Finally, innovations, such as the ability to use mobile devices and gamification tools, make it even easier to stay engaged.

"Even with these innovations, there is still ample opportunity to think bigger, and make retirement planning more accessible to employees," says Dalessio.

The bottom line is that it's easy to underestimate the importance of retirement planning. The good news is that with more tools and innovation, people may be better able to achieve the financial future they hope for as they grow
