Did not file, did not run Citizen caught in election snafu advises awareness at filing time

By Mike Maltais, Staff Writer BREWSTER - There's an old joke about the man who said he checked the newspapers' obituary section every morning, and if he did not see his name there, he proceeded to make breakfast.

Even more problematic, what if you won? Brewster resident Clark Cooper can testify from experience that such an event did happen to him in last November's General Election and that the ensuing consequences were both unexpected and unpleasant.

Bridgeport Council votes to resolve Atomic Way impasse

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

BRIDGEPORT - By unanimous vote, Wednesday, Dec. 19, the city council agreed to push ahead with actions that could lead to a resolution of the current impasse over a productive use of Atomic Way. The small parcel of land on the north side of Columbia Boulevard near 22nd Street includes an access to the Columbia River but is too small to permit any kind of residential development.

Bridgeport resident Scott Wright, who owns property adjacent to Atomic Way, has been negotiating with city officials for the past year over available options both parties can mutually pursue to get some practical use out of the parcel. As it currently sits, access to Atomic Way is limited and a line of boulders along the north side of Columbia serve as a makeshift barrier to prevent vehicles from leaving the roadway and falling into a large depression adjacent to the boulevard.

In a prepared statement he read to council members at their regular monthly meeting last Wednesday, Dec. 19, Wright reviewed some earlier history of the site including previous unsuccessful attempts by interested investors to develop property there.

In previous council meetings Wright asked that the city vacate Atomic Way as a means of eliminating a city liability and creating a potentially buildable site for a residence. In his prepared statement, Wright quoted a portion of a letter concerning Atomic Way, written by Public Works Superintendent Stuart Dezellem.

In the letter dated last November 14, Dezellem wrote: "In light of new information vacating or surplusing Airport Way should not have an impact on the future of the river for recreational purposes."

Wright added that Atomic Way abuts two of his parcels

Pateros council approves Well 4 Pump Station call for bids

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

PATEROS - City council members at their regular monthly meeting, Monday, Dec. 17, voted to authorize the city engineer to proceed with a call for bids for construction of the downtown Well 4

Pump Station. Ben Varela of Varela Associates in Spokane updated council members with a 25-page summary of the design and construction documents and said that 90 percent of that phase is complete.

Varela said his team has a goal to pull all the final structural, landscape, elements of the project together by January 13, 2019.

"There's a lot of stuff we still have to coordinate," said Varela of the final fine-tuning. "The last 10 percent takes 90 percent of the effort."

Varela said that while he is awaiting final figures from his structural, landscape and electrical teams he estimated that the total cost of the project will range from $1.5 to $1.8 million dollars. He noted that the price tag is higher than originally expected but that his company allowed for that contingency.

New Douglas County Sheriff Kevin Morris updates city council

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

BRIDGEPORT - Newly elected Douglas County Sheriff Kevin Morris made his first appearance at the Bridgeport City Council since his election last November. Morris brought council members up to date on the current status of the DCSO and requests made to the Douglas County Commissioners for additional resources.

Bridgeport resident Deb Dezellem spoke during the council's public comment period and expressed her concerns over public safety following an encounter with an intruder on the porch of her residence.

"I want to feel safe when I go to work. I want to feel safe when I come home, and I don't anymore," Dezellem said.

Morris said a deputy responded to Dezellem's 911 call in 30 minutes according to dispatch records. Morris said he considers that a respectable allowance considering the deputies assigned to the north county must cover 700 square miles. Morris said that since he has been with the county in 2000 he has seen the number of north end deputies increase from a sergeant, two deputies and one part timer to a sergeant, six deputies and a that, unlike Atomic Way, have been properly maintained per city code requirements and distributed a series of photos to council members supporting his claim.

Wright wants to combine the front portion of Atomic Way with the unbuildable portion of his adjacent property to make a usable site from two separate unusable properties.

"In the event we are not able to acquire the above (Atomic Way), I hereby make a formal request to the mayor that the City of Bridgeport bring the derelict and hazardous Atomic Way into maintained city code 17.56.060 referencing noxious vegetation, and city code 17.50.080 referencing junk and trash," Wright said.

City contract planner Kurt Danison advised that since access to the water runs through Atomic Way, the city should investigate applicable Revised Code of Washington (RCW) regulations relative to water rights of way to verify what authority the city has to vacate or surplus Atomic Way.

Danison said a vote by the council to go forward "triggers the formal review process as laid out in RCW."

Once the city has clarified the scope of its authority it can then proceed with a resolution, a public hearing, and a final decision, whatever that might be.

Pateros city-wide flush boosts pressure, beats a breakdown

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS—The long-awaited city-wide flush that integrated the new city reservoir, pump, and water system with the existing delivery network pulled the handle last Tuesday, Dec. 18, giving the city its first water upgrade since the town was relocated in the early 1960s.

Technicians made the transfer from the two old reservoirs to the new one just after 10 a.m., tested the new pump through the day and switched it on to automatic operation at 7 p.m.

"it went pretty smooth," said City Administrator Jord Wilson. "We did not receive a single phone call from a resident with an emergency."

The new pump increased the system's water pressure by 22 pounds, said Wilson, and that event did trigger a minor consequence at the Pateros school. The sudden increase in pressure activated a sensor in the school's fire sprinkler system and the ensuing alarm prompted an evacuation exercise.

Elsewhere there were some reports of dark or cloudy water but no concentrations of manganese. There was, however, unanimous approval of the improved pressure especially from those living at higher elevations in town for whom adequate water pressure has been an issue since the city was relocated.

When Pateros needed to move to higher ground to make way for the construction of Wells Dam, eight miles south on the Columbia River, the relocation raised the downtown elevation about 20 feet and decreased water pressure proportionately.

"We had O.K. pressure downtown," said Wilson of that 60-pound average, "but at the base of Ives Street the pressure dropped to 30 or 40 pounds."

Now the pressure gauge reads 80 downtown and up to 60 along Ives that borders the higher north side of the city.

The citywide flush was originally scheduled for Dec. 7, but was then pushed ahead to Dec. 11. On the big day, an overlooked well water test forced a last-minute delay until the 18th. As it turned out the transition of systems came just in the – dare we say it? – St. Nick of time.

After putting the new pump through some paces Wednesday morning, Dec. 19, Wilson and crew did a walk-through of the old pump station. They discovered that sometime during the previous evening an electrical malfunction had taken out a fuse, electrical panel and other components that would have shut down half of the city's water supply.

Interestingly, during Santa's visit to Pateros Memorial Park on Dec. 6, Pateros mayor Carlene Anders sat on his knee and asked the jolly old elf for just one Christmas wish: an incident-free city-wide flush.

Yes, Carlene, there is a Santa Claus.

"We took the project package costs and added 30 percent because we were seeing all these construction costs explode – and they have," said Varela. "On the flip side, we didn't do a third well and pump house, and we thought we'd have to. We have plenty of good water right now."

The state Legislature awarded the city two direct appropriations to cover the costs of the pump station and a Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) hazard mitigation grant covered the generators.

The target date for completion of the Well 4 Pump Station is by Apple Pie Jamboree time next July. City Administrator Jord Wilson said some related work like installation of fire hydrants and distribution loops will remain but expects the project to wind up later in 2019.

In other business council members approved the terms of a $62,906 grant from the Washington State Transportation Improvement Board (TIB) for seal coating some city street surfaces.

Wilson clarified that the project will include I Street from Stadium Way to North Street, and all of North Street down to U.S. 97.

Wilson reported on winterization tasks that include readying the snow plow fleet, draining leaky fire hydrants, insulating vulnerable meters, checking heat lamps and tape, and stabilizing small engines, among other cost-saving measures.

City officials completed two applications with the Economic Development District (EDD) for the Mail Rehabilitation Project and the Starr Road Business Development Project.

Wilson and mayor Carlene Anders have been meeting with Nancy Nash of the Okanogan County office of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and other stakeholders about housing solutions in the city. Last October the 16-unit Pateros Garden Apartments, a rent-subsidized complex of HUD Section 8 housing reverted to market value rents and will transition to the higher costs as leases of current occupants expire.

Kris Erlandsen, Westco, and Pateros Trailer Court, the three principles involved in the planned development of the Pateros Trailer Court on Pederson Road, continue work on a February 2019 completion date for the planned development.

The Memorial Park restroom was scheduled for completion by Dec. 27. KRCCI contractors of Wenatchee who installed the new Peninsula Park restroom last November, took advantage of favorable weather to pour the concrete sidewalk in front of the structure.

The city was recognized with a safety award from the Risk Management Assessment Agency for its work to minimize exposure to everyday risks that municipalities face.

The next meeting of the city council will be at 6 p.m., January 22, 2019.

full-time SRO (School Resource Officer).

Morris said his three requests to the commissioners included a corporal position to assist the sergeant in each seven-man deputy squad, a designated Emergency Management person, and a new deputy to serve on the Task Force. Commissioners approved the first two and are still negotiating with Morris on the third request.

Zuni and Carlos Henriquez introduced themselves to the council as the new pastors from Moses Lake who will be relocating to Bridgeport and reopening the Foursquare Church in the near future. Mayor Janet Conklin inquired if their plans for the church included reopening the food bank that operated out of its building until its closure in September 2017. Mrs. Henriquez said she was aware of the church's former role as the food bank distribution site and will be investigating options to offer that service once again.

In other business council members intensified their search for pool lifeguards for next year so the city can avoid possible loss of its pool per state regulation if it sits idle for more than two years.

Council also approved the 2019 fee schedule, amendments to the Bridgeport Municipal Code, a Washington State Transportation Improvement Board (TIB) Overlay Project, and the 16th Street/Cherry Hill Sewer Project.

Mayor Conklin announced that she hired Susan and Jesse Stanley as 2019 camp hosts for the Marina RV Park.

The city was advised that a small parcel of property owned by the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife that the city wants to purchase for a water reservoir site cannot be sold due to its status as critical habitat. The city is making a second request to higher authorities to acquire the site because of its proximity to the city's water infrastructure.

Conklin said she has suspended an earlier desire for a reader board at city hall when she learned that environmental impact concerns could become an issue. Conklin said funds from the county have been approved for the reader board but in its place, she will look at the Capital Facilities Plan to see if the money can be applied to another project.

Breaks three-way knot

Brewster tops Raiders, tied for first with Oroville in CW2B

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER – The basketball matchup of the early season between two of the Central Washington 2B League’s top three teams, the Bears and Lake Roosevelt was not as close as expected when 4-1 Brewster hosted the 4-1 Raiders in Champions Gym last Thursday, Dec. 20.

Combining a smothering defense with a passing and penetrating offense, Brewster jumped out to an 18-2 lead at the end of the first quarter and were never seriously threatened during the rest of the game as the Bears cruised to a 30-point, 66-36 final over Lake Roosevelt.

Following a slow start where both teams remained scoreless through the first two minutes, sophomore Cade Gebbers broke the stalemate with a corner shot that put the Bears up, 2-0, Brewster dropped in 10 more points before the Raiders got on the board with 3:20 left in the first quarter. The lid stayed on the basket for Lake Roosevelt through the remainder of the quarter with the Bears taking a 16-point advantage into the second quarter.

The Raiders had their hands full trying to get inside Brewster’s defense and the perimeter shots they tried would not fall through the second quarter where they entered the halftime locker room down 35-8.

The last half of the game was anticlimactic since it was more a question of how much ground the Raiders could recover from being 27 points down to a motivated host. The Bears nearly doubled their first-half score while Lake Roosevelt scored 28.

only loss either team suffered was against Oroville. The 4-1 Hornets were scheduled to host winless Waterville-Mansfield, Friday, Dec. 21, so there is a strong possibility that they will join the Bears at 5-1 at the top of the CWB. The next meeting between Brewster and Oroville is Jan. 15, 2019.

BREWSTER – Behind junior Sammi Emigh’s 10 opening quarter points, the Lady Bears jumped out to a 17-6 lead over Lake Roosevelt in the first quarter of play last Thursday, Dec. 20. Brewster never allowed the Lady Raiders to catch up, as the Lady Bears captured their sixth league game to remain undefeated in CW2B play. The previously undefeated Lady Raiders dropped to second place at 5-1.

With the help of a pair of three-pointers from Mikenna Kelpman in the second quarter, Brewster stretched its lead to 33-18 and set the tone for the last half of the contest. With help from senior Kelsie Olbricht, the Lady Raiders gained a little ground in the third and fourth quarters, but fell seven points short of overtaking Brewster, 51-44, at the buzzer.

Emigh led all scorers with 21 points. Lake Roosevelt senior Kelsie Olbricht led the Lady Raiders with 20.

On the road against Soap Lake, Dec. 18, the Lady Bears won their fifth straight league game, 57-40.

WATERVILLE-MANSFIELD – The Shockers varsity basketball teams have been having a split season so far where wins are concerned with the girls ranked among the top three teams in the Central Washington 2B League, and the boys near the basement.

The Lady Shockers at 4-1 suffered their only league loss to undefeated Brewster, 61-46, on Nov. 30, but since then have posted wins over Liberty Bell, 45-42 on Dec. 4, Manson, 68-29, on Dec. 11, Soap Lake, 60-35, on Dec. 14, and Tonasket, 57-41, last Tuesday, Dec. 18. The girls are a game behind Lake Roosevelt at 5-1, and a game ahead of 3-2 Liberty Bell on the CW2B ladder.

The Shocker boys are up against some competition this year with Brewster, Oroville, and Lake Roosevelt hovering at the top of the CW2B and still fighting it out to see who keeps the top spot.

The Shockers are still in the hunt for their first league win with losses so far to Brewster, 75-23, on Nov. 30, Liberty Bell, 46-44, on Dec. 4, Manson, 57-20, on Dec. 11, and Tonasket, 64.43, on Tuesday, Dec. 18.

Both Shocker teams were scheduled to take on the Hornets at Oroville, Friday, Dec. 21, and will have a break until Jan. 3, when they host Bridgeport.

19 cases of whooping cough in Okanogan County public health officials warn

SUBMITTED BY OKANOGAN COUNTY PUBLIC HEALTH

Okanogan - Okanogan County Health Department officials say 19 people in the county have whooping cough – up from 9 last week. The health department urges families to make sure everyone in your home is up to date on whooping cough vaccine to help prevent this serious illness. Getting vaccinated is the best way to prevent whooping cough. While some vaccinated people may still catch it, their illness is usually much milder than in an unvaccinated person.

Whooping cough spreads very easily from person to person. Because it usually starts off like a cold, people who have whooping cough may not know they're spreading it. And it can be deadly, especially for infants. Anyone with a persistent cough, especially if it includes fits of coughing or causes vomiting, should seek medical care. Anyone with a cough should avoid being around infants.

Babies who get whooping cough can have dangerous complications, like pneumonia, convulsions (uncontrolled shaking), and brain damage. That's why it's especially important for pregnant women to get a Tdap shot in their third trimester, and for people who spend time with babies to be up to date on their whooping cough vaccine, too. Check with your healthcare provider to find out what vaccines you may need.

Learn how to prevent whooping cough on the Department of Health's whooping cough webpage, or the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Information in Spanish is also available. If you are concerned about symptoms in yourself or a family member, contact a healthcare provider.

For more information call Lauri Jones, MN, at Okanogan County Public Health, 509-422-7158.

Spanish Translation:

Los funcionarios de Salud Pública del Condado de Okanogan dicen que 19 personas en el condado tienen tos ferina, nueve casos nuevos desde la semana pasada. El departamento de salud insta a las familias a asegurarse de que todos en su hogar estén al día con la vacuna contra la tos ferina para ayudar a prevenir esta grave enfermedad. Vacunarse es la mejor manera de prevenir la tos ferina. Si bien algunas personas vacunadas aún pueden contraerla, su enfermedad suele ser mucho más leve que en una persona no vacunada.

Los bebés que contraen la tos ferina pueden tener complicaciones peligrosas, como neumonía, convulsiones (temblores incontrolados) y daño cerebral. Es por eso que es especialmente importante que las mujeres embarazadas reciban la vacuna Tdap en su tercer trimestre y que las personas que pasan tiempo con bebés también estén al día con su vacuna contra la tos ferina. Consulte con su proveedor de atención médica para averiguar qué vacunas puede necesitar. Cualquier persona con tos persistente, especialmente si incluye ataques de tos o vómitos, debe buscar atención médica. Cualquier persona con tos debe evitar estar cerca de los bebés.

Aprenda cómo prevenir la tos ferina en la página web del Departamento de Salud contra la tos ferina o en los Centros para el Control y la Prevención de Enfermedades. Si usted o un familiar tiene algunos de los síntomas y está preocupado, comuníquese con un proveedor de atención médica.
