Salmon Derby is back on!

WDFW announces reopening of summer chinook salmon season

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER - Good news for fishermen and the Brewster Salmon Derby comes with the announcement from the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) that the agency will reopen summer chinook salmon season from Wells Dam to Chief Joseph Dam on August 1.

Upon hearing that news, Derby organizers Randy Coles and Lori Kratzer announced that the 13th annual Brewster King Salmon Derby will be held August 3-5 as scheduled with a skipper's meeting on Thursday evening, August 2.

Coles said that he and Kratzer "are working hard to get our sponsors back on board and get the word out."

In a media release on Monday, July 23, WDFW announced that in addition to the derby waters, other specified fisheries on the Upper Columbia system will also open on July 25 or August 1, depending on the location.

Waters opening at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday, July 25 include:

• Rocky Reach Dam to Wells Dam through Oct. 15. Daily limit six salmon, minimum size 12 inches. Release wild adult chinook and coho. Retain no more than two adult hatchery chinook and three sockeye.

• Chelan River (from Railroad Bridge upstream to Chelan P.U.D. safety barrier below the powerhouse) through Oct. 31. Daily limit six salmon, minimum size 12 inches. Release wild adult chinook, sockeye, and coho. Retain no more than two hatchery adult chinook.

The WDFW release said the season above Wells Dam opens later to allow the Colville Confederated Tribes to collect brood stock for the Chief Joseph Hatchery summer chinook program.

Waters opening at 12:01 a.m. August 1, include:

• Wells Dam to Hwy. 173 Bridge at Brewster through August 31. Daily limit six

Mauk Fishing Stuff represents Washington state at Made in America Product Showcase

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER - When Mike Mauk first began making his fishing tackle covers in 2005 he could not have foreseen that one day his product would lead to a trip to the nation's capital to meet the President of the United States. But that was what happened on Monday, July 23, as Mauk represented Washington state at the Made in America Product Showcase at the White House, as part of Made in America Week designated by President Donald Trump last year.

"I cannot believe the White House called me to ask my company to represent Washington for Made in the USA week at the White House," said Mauk, after receiving a call from Alexandra Veletsis from the Office of Public Liaison at the Executive Office. "I know there are lots of companies that would be honored to do the same and most are lots bigger than I am."

Mauk said he did not know how or why he was picked, but Veletsis told him that he was the very first one they called in Washington. Later he learned that a member of the selection committee had used his product and was aware of his company. Mauk's brother, Ernie, who handles sales and public relations, accompanied Mauk to the south lawn and state floor at the White House to meet President Trump, Vice President Mike Pence, members of the President's cabinet and Congress, and White House Senior Staff.

A White House media advisory issued on Friday, July 20 said "Businesses from each of the 50 states have been invited to display their products made and produced in the United States."

Mauk, owner of Mauk Fishing Stuff, whose slogan is "We Have Your Tackle Covered," makes see-through covers that fold over to secure. Protect and organize fishing lures and flashers.

"I first started making them to keep my lures and flashers on our poles when we went fishing every morning, so they would be ready to fish when we got to our fishing spots," Mauk said.

Mauk and his mother, Anna Marie Mauk began designing the covers in 2005 and Mauk got his business license in 2013. Mrs. Mauk passed away in November 2015, but she can still be seen demonstrating

Pateros Apple Pie Jamboree delivers another full show

PATEROS - The annual Apple Pie Jamboree, the city's largest community event, seems to get bigger and better every year, and this year's 71st running of the APJ was no exception last Friday through Sunday, July 20-22.

For county political candidates, the parade was the place to be as office-seekers from county prosecutor and Okanogan County Sheriff to legislative and congressional hopefuls turned out. So did outgoing Okanogan County Sheriff, Frank Rogers, retiring after 16 years in the office.

Four hydro planes including the city-sponsored Miss Pateros were in the lineup along with the North Central Regional Library's new Bookmobile.

Rising from the Ashes closes busy week of wildfire reunion events

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

PATEROS - The sign greeting visitors at the entry to the Smoke and Mirrors Fire Maze Display in the Pateros gym last Friday and Saturday, July 20-21, said it all: "We survived because the fire inside us burned brighter than the fire around us."

The display of hundreds of news stories, photos, art, relics, memories and mementos from the state's two largest wildfires, the 2014 Carlton Complex and the 2015 Okanogan Complex wildfires took visitors through a comprehensive history of the trauma, heroism, recovery phases of the back-to-back disasters, and for many, it represented another step in the process of coming to grips with an event that altered many lives forever.

Pateros mayor, Carlene Anders, who also serves as Executive Director of the Okanogan County Long Term Recovery Campaign, witnessed the fires' carnage and has been involved in every step of recovery and rebuilding efforts ever since.

"I witnessed every range of how the covers work in an online video at Mauk's websites, luresafe.com and www.fishingtacklecovers.com.

Mauk makes covers from 2-x-2 inches up to 13-x-13 inches and sleeves that fit in notebooks to mega pocket sleeves that feature 13 pockets. He also makes dodger and flasher sleeves that have up to 20 pockets to hold small 4-inch dodgers up to 11-inch flashers.

"We now have about 80 sku's (stock-keeping units) with products in clear vinyl, blue, maroon, and white poly/vinyl," said Mauk. "We also have products made with Phifertex Vinyl Mesh, red, white, blue, and black that is made in the USA, which Austin Moser requested and I found to be very popular."

Moser, of Austin's Northwest Adventures, LLC, helped Mauk design Austin's Bottom Walker Keeper #45 to hold multiple bottom-bounding lures.

"Several fishing guides have given me lots of ideas for products they need to keep their tackle organized," said Mauk. "Captain Dave's Guide Service out of Spokane helped me design multiple pocket dodger sleeves to keep his many metal dodgers organized."

A contact at Thin Blue Tight Lines, a nationwide community of anglers from the law enforcement, fire and EMS fields turned Mauk on to covers for bass tackle spinner baits, so he now makes those.

The goal of Made in America Week is to honor "the incredible workers and companies who make 'Made in America's world standard for quality and craftsmanship," Venetsis wrote.

Venetsis defined a qualified Made in America product as "all significant parts and processing that go into the product must be of US origin. The product should contain no – or negligible – foreign content."

"I try very hard to buy only American made material when at all possible," said Mauk. "I do feel the pressure from the companies that have their product made overseas put on small businesses."

Mauk said that with U.S. wage scales high enough to enable workers to survive, combined with the cost of American-made goods, it is difficult to complete with companies who sell imported products.

Mauk sells to stores in Washington, Oregon, and Colorado, but most of his sales are online through Amazon, eBay and his three websites, Maukfishingstuff.com, fishingtacklecovers.com, and luresafe.com.

guided them through the exhibit. Anders came away with the opinion that the display accomplished what it set out to do, present the past and present circumstances of the fires in a chronological, matter-of-fact manner to help heal those who experienced it, and educate those who did not.

While the exhibit was extensive, taking up the entire wrestling room space at the end of the gym, Anders said that "boxes and boxes" of items were unable to be used.

A hand-written statement taped to exhibit's entry door advised viewers of what they were about to experience:

"Welcome Friends,
This exhibit is a powerful collection of memories, both tragic and joyous. It has been difficult for some survivors to have it all brought back up again. These memories are offered as a celebration of this town's triumph, but, please be advised, it might be hard. Thank you for coming.

Mauk is involved in the Brewster community as Secretary of the Brewster Chamber of Commerce and sponsor of events like the annual Brewster King Salmon Derby.

"I recently joined the Central Washington Coastal Conservation Association (CCA) out of Wenatchee and sponsored their banquet this year," said Mauk, "as well as sponsoring the Tri-Cities CCA banquet by donation of my products."

When he finds time to fish, Mauk prefers king salmon since "they come to my front door every summer here in the Brewster Pool on the Columbia River. I also fish walleye in the local lakes like Banks Lake."

Two arrested in Bridgeport for possession of a controlled substance

COMPILED FROM A REPORT FROM DOUGLAS COUNTY SHERIFF KEVIN MORRIS

BRIDGEPORT – A Douglas County Sheriff's deputy on routine patrol in the 1700 block of Foster Creek Avenue at approximately 7:42 p.m., July 8, spotted a vehicle with an unknown person leaning into the driver's side rear window. Based on his observation and recent drug activity in that area, the deputy parked his patrol car around the corner and approached the suspect vehicle. When the deputy reached the vehicle, he could see drug paraphernalia on the front center console.

The initial investigation led to the arrest of 22-year-old Martin Saucedo Espinoza, of Mesa, Wash, for possession of a controlled substance and use of drug paraphernalia. Espinoza was booked into the Okanogan County jail without incident.

Further investigation resulted in the arrest of 21-year-old Christopher Rodriguez of Bridgeport on July 17, for possession of a controlled substance. Rodriguez was booked into the Okanogan County jail without incident.

Citing its reason for the recent action the WDFW said that "current and projected summer chinook passage over Priest Rapids Dam and hatchery-wild mark rates confirm that surplus fish from the Chelan Falls, Entiat, and Chief Joseph hatchery programs are available for harvest."

The Department added that removing more hatchery-reared fish will further conservation objectives in the salmon spawning grounds.

Columbia River Quilt Guild honors three veterans during APJ

By Mike Maltais
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – As it has done for several years now, the Columbia River Quilt Guild honored military veterans with the presentation of custom-made Veterans Quilts during last weekend's Apple Pie Jamboree.

Quilts were presented to Pat McFadden of Bridgeport, Wayne Maitland of Pateros, and Glenn Farrington of Brewster.

In prepared remarks, Schluneger delivered a brief recitation of each veteran's military career prior to each quilt presentation.

"I have said this before, but it bears repeating," said Schluneger. "A veteran is someone who, at one point in his/her life wrote a blank check made payable to the United States of America for an amount up to and including their life. That is honor."

Following his graduation from the University of Idaho with an engineering degree, McFadden attended Naval Officer Candidate school in 1997 with additional flight training in Milton, Fla., Corpus Christi, Texas, and Jacksonville, Fla. Upon receipt of his wings, McFadden joined a patrol squadron at Whidbey Island Naval Air Station in Oak Harbor where he was assigned to fly the PC-3 Orion spy plane.

While completing deployments in Southeast Asia and the Persian Gulf, McFadden commanded aircraft sorties leading up to Operation Iraqi Freedom and flew 40 missions over Iraq and Afghanistan.

McFadden returned to Whidbey in 2005 and in 2009 was selected to command the Naval Operational Support Center in Roanoke, Va. He amassed more than 2,100 flight hours and nearly 400 combat hours in his 19-year career. Among his military decorations are six Navy Commendation Medals (one with combat "V"), Strike/Flight Air Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, and Navy Achievement Medal.

McFadden, who is still recovering from burns sustained while rescuing his stepson from a fire that destroyed the family home last January, was unable to attend the quilt presentation. His friend, Barry Watson, accepted the gift on his behalf.

Wayne Maitland joined the Navy following the attack on Pearl Harbor and was sworn in June 1943 one day after his 18th birthday. After boot camp Maitland was admitted to radio school and trained in Morse code. He was assigned to the USS Shamrock Bay, a Casablanca-class carrier escort that operated in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters.

While the crew was waiting for the Shamrock Bay to be commissioned, Maitland was assigned to the chow hall where long hours and little rest contributed to a case of Rheumatic fever. Following a hospital recovery, Maitland was unable to carry out his sea assignment, so he was transferred into communications at the Terminal Island Naval Station in Long Beach, Calif., then an important defense industries center.

Maitland was discharged in May 1946, after two years, 11 months and 14 days of service. He returned to Pateros in 1950 where he worked for Ray Burgett at Union Oil. He contracted Rheumatic fever for a second time and following his recovery, served as Postmaster for the next 28 years.

Maitland was unable to attend the quilt presentation, so his son, Mike, accepted the honor on his father's behalf.

Glenn Farrington enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1972 and completed boot camp and advanced training at Fort Ord, Calif. He was stationed at Fort Lewis and assigned to the Second Battalion, 39th Infantry Regiment, Ninth Infantry Division.

Farrington served as a squad leader and truck driver responsible for six trucks that hauled everything from troops, munitions, fuel, and supplies. He was discharged in March 1975 with the National Defense Service Medal and Good Conduct Medal.

Farrington returned to the area and was living at Leahy Junction when he joined Post 218 of the Bridgeport American Legion. He later transferred to Columbia Post 97 in Brewster where he is Assistant Director, Secretary, Ride Coordinator and Road Captain with the American Legion Riders, known for their charitable work.

Vintage Pateros fire truck returns to city it once served

STORY AND PHOTOS
BY MIKE MALTAIS, STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – Tucked in the middle of the Apple Pie Jamboree parade last Saturday morning was an entry that was probably a familiar sight to any old-timers who were Pateros residents back in the 40's or 50's. It was a vintage 1947 Ford fire truck that, according to its new owners, spent its working career responding to fires and other emergencies in the river side town.

Owners Brent and Marcia Crabtree of Lynden, Wash, acquired the hose-and-ladder show-stopper about two years ago while visiting a swap meet in Monroe. The truck is powered by its stock 239-cubic inch, 87-horsepower flathead V-8 engine and has less than 12,000 original miles on it.

"The owner said he was getting too old to maintain it," said Brent, "so he was liquidating some of his vehicles."

The elderly owner evidently had a particular fondness for Ford flathead engines because he told the Crabtrees that he owned and restored several vehicles equipped with them. Brent said that aside from taking some dents out of a fender and repainting the wheels, the truck is in the condition he acquired it.

Since purchasing the old warrior, the Crabtrees have entered it in some 200 parades, but this is the first time they brought it to Pateros.

Displayed with the truck was a set of fireman's clothes from the same era worn by Gordon Neyens of the Everson, Wash. Fire Department. The outfit was donated by Neyens' son, Jim, who also served in the same department.

When not out and about at parades or shows, the Crabtrees said they enjoy hauling the grandkids and their sports team friends to a pizza joint after the last game of the season.

"They get a real kick out of it," said Brent.

Ciderfest comes to Cashmere July 28

Local cideries participating

By RHONA BARON

CASHMERE - The majority of the Wenatchee Valley's hard cider makers will be in Cashmere this weekend pouring their samples at The Big Chill Ciderfest. Eleven cideries will participate in the first time event, slated for July 28, from 4-10 p.m. The Big Chill is being erected in the parking lot of Liberty Orchards on Mission Avenue.

Visitors will enjoy cider tasting, a lounge area in the mister cooled "chill pavilion," free games like the bean bag toss and an exhibit on cider making from the Cashmere Museum. Food concessions on site include The Wild Boar serving brats, potato salad and beverages, Kanoa Shave Ice, and Chris & Becks Pitas serving a variety of sandwiches and sides. Led by Sergio Cuevas and Markus Hoyer, a live trio will perform from 7:30-9:30 p.m., and a comprehensive selection of bottled local ciders will be available for sale.

The Big Chill will feature apple ciders, pearies and cherry ciders. Participating cider makers are Centre Ring, Longdrop Cider Co., Phillippi Fruit Company, Rootwood Cider, Snowdrift Cider, Steelhead Cider, Bad Granny Hard Cider, PearUp, Manchester Road, Archibald James Cider Works, and Barnes Etc. Hard Cider Shed.

Barns Etc Hard Cider Shed and Archibald James Cider Works are based in Cashmere.

Archibald James Cider Works, new to the cider industry, will debut three ciders at the Big Chill: Smashapple, Dry Sider and Cerise Sèche. They have been developing a series of small-batch ciders over the past 6 months in their facility in Yaksum Canyon. Using organic apples, the fermentation process occurs in stainless tanks and oak barrels. Archibald James ciders range from traditional styles to seasonal fruit co-fermentations with a focus on the dry side of the flavor profile.

PATEROS - The Northwest Jet Sports Association (NJSA) held the largest race on its annual circuit during the 71st Pateros Apple Pie Jamboree, July 20-22. NJSA spokesman Roger Harnack said the APJ Watercross Race drew 48 competitors, the largest field of the season.

"Everyone likes to come to the Pateros," said Harnack, "and they really like the water conditions here."

The jet ski racers have actually held nine events on the Pateros course, the past eight in conjunction with the Jamboree.

Harnack was one of the original five founders that started the NJSA in August 2010 in Kennewick to promote personal water craft sport competition in watercross, freestyle and other categories. Just two years later the group had attracted more than 100 members.

The NJSA 2018 competition schedule began with the Devils Lake Dash in Lincoln City, Oregon, on May 17. The next stop was the Lake Osoyoos Cup in Oroville, June 10, followed by the Lava Lamp Regatta in Soap Lake, June 20-22. The racers are headed back to Oroville for the Lake Osoyoos Cup Watersport Festival on August 5-6.
