building and major remodel targets, a number of other smaller projects will be part of the larger scope of work, Driessen said.

"The district is asking the general contractor to make sure and give local businesses the opportunity to be a part of the upcoming projects whenever possible," Driessen said.

Following voter approval of the bond measure, the project was originally scheduled to go out for bid by mid-July last year. However, the failure of the state Legislature to approve the 2017-19 supplemental capital budget did not allow release of the requisite funds to begin construction.

Last month, legislators passed the final version that included $198 million for K-12 school construction.

Driessen noted that the funding delay allowed contractors to complete their current jobs and be prepared to bid on new projects.

"This has the potential to create stronger competition during the bid process, producing lower bids," Driessen wrote on the district website.

Chinese tariff on wheat hits farmers, Trump voters

SUBMITTED BY WASHINGTON ASSOCIATION OF WHEAT GROWERS

SPOKANE - Pacific Northwest farmers are bracing for serious losses in the Chinese market after the country announced its intention to impose a 25 percent tariff on all U.S. wheat in reaction to tariff's imposed by President Trump on Chinese goods.

More than 12.5 million bushels of the region's flagship soft white wheat class, have been shipped to China during the 2017/2018 marketing year so far, a flow that is expected to be severely curtailed when the tariff goes into effect. The Chinese targeted other agricultural commodities as well including soybeans, corn, cotton, sorghum and beef.

Wheat and corn prices faced immediate single digit price declines in reaction to the news, but soybean markets saw a 40 cent per bushel drop. About a third of all soybeans grown in the U.S. are exported to China.

"It appears the Chinese are attempting to get the attention of the Trump administration by harming many of the people who voted for the president in the first place", said Gary Bailey, chairman of the Washington Grain Commission. "If my own reaction is any indication, it's a strategy that's working."

China has recently been ramping up its imports of soft white wheat and other U.S.-produced wheat classes as the country's millers and bakers emphasize quality. Frequently U.S. imports are blended with China's domestic crop to improve its flour and end use products. Over the last decade, U.S. wheat exports to China have varied between 6.4 million bushels to more than 61 million bushels, but exports bumped up to 154 million bushels in 2013/2014.

Marci Green, president of the Washington Association of Wheat Growers, said the tariff represents another challenge facing Eastern Washington farmers during a period of low prices and agronomic difficulties.

"I've read that Trump trade officials suggest that parts of the economy hurt by the Chinese tariffs are going to have to weather the storm for the greater good. I don't think those people really understand how precarious things are in farm country. This is not about weathering the storm, this is about survival," she said.

Laborers' International Union of North America, endorses Dr. Schrier for Washington's 8th District

ISSAQUAH - The Laborers' International Union of North America (LIUNA), Washington and Northern Idaho District Council and their affiliated Unions in Washington have endorsed Dr. Kim Schrier for Washington's 8th congressional district. The Washington and Northern Idaho District Council of Laborers' endorsement further solidifies Dr. Schrier as the Labor movement's top candidate in the 8th district race, building on endorsements from the Washington Aerospace Machinists and the International Union of Painters and Allied Trades District Council 5.

"Dr. Kim Schrier is a fierce advocate for working families and is the clear choice for Labor in the race for Washington's 8th district," said Jermaine Smiley, Business Manager/Secretary Treasurer, of the Washington and Northern Idaho District Council of Laborers. "We are proud to endorse Kim in this race and look forward to joining her in our shared fight for a stronger 8th district. She is heads and shoulders above the other Democratic candidates and the only one we trust to take on Dino Rossi."

The Washington and Northern Idaho District Council of Laborers represents 7 Union Locals and over 10,000 active and retired members in the Pacific Northwest, including laborers in construction, hazardous waste remediation, healthcare, education, maintenance, food service, aviation, and state and local governments.

"I am thrilled to stand alongside thousands of laborers across the 8th district represented by LIUNA's Washington and Northern Idaho District Council, as we fight for accessible healthcare, good-paying jobs, worker rights, and workplace protections," said Dr. Kim Schrier. "Today's endorsement is a true honor and underlines my commitment to laborers and the labor movement in the 8th district. Together we will take on Dino Rossi in November and fight for Washington's working families."

Reichert votes to 'STOP' school violence

WASHINGTON—The House passed the STOP School Violence Act of 2018 by an overwhelming vote of 407-10. Representative Dave Reichert (R-WA) supported this legislation and shared the following statement after his vote:

"I am proud to support this important legislation that helps protect our children when they go to school each day. Parents deserve to send their kids to school every day knowing that they will be safe and will come home that evening. Our children deserve the chance to focus on learning in a safe environment. By reauthorizing the Secure Our Schools grant program, we are providing an opportunity for schools to improve their security measures on campus. Our country has lost too many students to devastating shootings on school campuses. This important legislation is a necessary part of the solution to preventing future tragedies.

"While I support this legislation, I do not agree with a provision in the bill to remove this grant program from the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Office. The COPS Office has overseen this grant program since its inception and has ensured it is well run, despite the grant program's continual lack of funding. As this bill moves forward, I will work to see this provision removed and that the grant program remains within the COPS Office."

Colville Confederated Tribes offer Pike Reward Program

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

NESPELEM – Again this year, the Colville Confederated Tribes is offering fishermen cash rewards for their help if removing invasive Northern Pike from the waters of the Columbia River.

Northern Pike are aggressive predators of native game fish that are the focal effort of the tribe’s salmon and steelhead restoration programs.

“The spread of Northern Pike to the mid and lower Columbia River could be disastrous for salmon and steelhead fisheries,” a CCT advisory said. “Invasive Northern Pike (Esox lucius) are suspected to have migrated from the Clark Fork River system in Montana, downstream to the Pend Oreille River and now into the upper reaches the Columbia River in Washington and Canada.”

Northern Pike also populate Lake Coeur d’Alene and surrounding waters and may be contributing to the Lake Roosevelt population.

The first Northern Pike appeared in Lake Roosevelt in 2007. They have since spread where specimens are captured in the northern portion of Lake Roosevelt and lower Kettle River Agencies cooperating in the Pike Reward Program include the Colville Confederated Tribes, Spokane Tribe of Indian, Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife, Lake Roosevelt National Park Recreational Area, and Chelan PUD.

RIGHT: This Pike Reward Poster provides all the details anglers need to help remove Northern Pike from the Columbia River and get rewarded in the process.

Gregory Richard Sellers

Gregory Richard Sellers was fearless, curious and adventurous from the moment he started walking. He died of natural causes in his home on March 9, 2018 at the age of 62.

Greg was a natural athlete, excelling in everything, from football to baseball to basketball to skiing, both on the snow and on the water. While he was a bright student, he'd rather be exploring the outdoors.

He learned fishing from his dad, becoming an avid fisherman by his early teens. He made his family happy by bringing home rainbow trout and salmon—and happier by cleaning and cooking the fish! He stopped fishing due to his concern about the decline of salmon fishery in the Columbia river. He enjoyed rock and roll, gardening, and sports. He was a season-ticket fan of WSU football. Winning or not, he would drive to Pullman in the snow to watch the Cougars play. He was also a life-long fan of the Seahawks, Mariners and Huskies. His dad will miss talking sports with him.

A proud fourth-generation Washingtonian, Greg was the first child of Patricia and Richard Sellers. Born in 1956 in Coulee Dam, WA, Greg moved with his family to Bridgeport, WA, when he was five, and then to the Tri-Cities in 1973. He graduated from Hanford High School in 1974 and attended Columbia Basin College earning a welding certificate. He joined the International Laborer's Union in 1977. After working hard for more than 40 years, he retired just two months ago. He cared about the safety of his co-workers, the workplace, and about doing a job right.

Greg pushed through some difficult times with the persistent love of his family. He learned to be even more compassionate about the hardships of others. He wanted to remember the good times, saying there was no need to hold on to difficult memories. Try to learn. Move on.

His gift was his ability to be the same person with everyone, treating all with respect, kindness, and humor. When family was out and about with him, often someone would stop to talk or shout out a 'hey, Greg!'

He was a good man, well-liked by many throughout his life. He's now at peace, sharing stories with his much-loved mother, who died in 2001, and with his grandparents, aunts, uncles, and friends who preceded him in death.

He is survived by his father and his sisters, Sharron Sellers (Marlin Appelwick), and Linda Sellers, and his nephew and nieces, Jonathan, Annaliese and Megan McCambridge.

A celebration of Greg's life will be held at 2 p.m., April 28, at the Hillcrest Memorial Center in Kennewick. Memorial donations may be given to the Greg Sellers Memorial Fund (WSU Tri-Cities campus) at wsu.edu/give or sent to the WSU Office of Advancement, 2710 Crimson Way, Richland, 99354.

The Community Bulletin Board has been a popular feature ever since we bought the papers nearly 18 years ago. But times have changed and we are changing as well. We have launched our new digital classified ad section and it is a powerful tool for promoting your events. You can include photos, videos and more information. Non-profits can still post a free notice in the paper – up to 100 words, but events that have an entry fee or are a fund raising project will have to pay for an ad. The cost is not significant $10 for 30 days and $20 if you want it to be a featured ad. A featured ad posts at the top of the listings and rotates among other featured ads on the home page.

Check out the new site at NCWMarket.com. You can set up an account and post your ads 24/7. Trade wars target Washington agriculture

I recently traveled across Washington's Fourth Congressional District to speak with farmers from each county to hear their concerns about an upcoming Farm Bill. One of the largest concerns expressed by farmers had little to do with congressional action, however: Central Washington farmers expressed their anxiety about the impact of a potentially-escalating trade war with global trading partners.

President Trump recently announced new tariffs worth billions of dollars on products manufactured by China. The reasons he cited for tariffs are certainly valid: Some countries have not been playing by the rules, and China is one of the worst offenders. Everyone should recognize that for global trade to take place, there must be a level playing field. U.S. companies can compete with any country – if there is a level playing field.

Dan Newhouse

The U.S. response to trade cheating should be tactical and measured because American exporters have a lot to lose if tensions are ratcheted up too high. China is an enormous market where many U.S. companies want to engage in business, but China is not satisfied with merely competing. The world's most populous nation also wants to control markets. U.S. trade policy must be shrewdly-calculated to ensure that China, or any other country, is not bending the rules in their own favor.

Currently, Washington-based businesses are effective competitors in the global market in aerospace manufacturing, software development, agriculture, and more. 40 percent of jobs in our state are tied to trade. Much of the agricultural bounty of our state is grown right in Central Washington, and many customers who purchase Washington-grown products are overseas and yes, in China. As recently as 2016, Washington produced and exported $7 billion worth of food and agricultural products. According to the Washington Grain Commission, 90 percent of Washington wheat is exported each year, contributing in a positive way to the U.S. trade balance.

When the prospect of the Administration imposing tariffs on Chinese aluminum and steel imports became imminent at the beginning of March, I joined more than a hundred Republican colleagues to remind the Administration that tariffs are effectively taxes that are passed on to American businesses and consumers. The result is higher prices. In addition to higher prices, China has promised retaliation to hurt American businesses. As we have seen of products listed for retaliation, China's response would have a disproportionate impact on Washington and other farm state exports.

I will continue to meet with Administration officials and request that the Administration respond to threats to Washington agriculture that result from the back-and-forth of tariffs. I want to work with the Administration to enforce accountability for bad actors on trade while protecting U.S. businesses and jobs from negative unintended consequences of overbroad tariffs.

When it comes to a trade war that exposes agriculture producers in Central Washington and elsewhere, farmers need a quick solution.

No more cherries jubilee in Beijing

Local Orchardists are concerned about the impact of China's new tariffs on Apples and Cherries. Washington state is probably going to be hit the hardest. The question is just how big of a problem is this?

First, only 2 percent of U.S. apple exports go to China. Most of our exports go to Canada and Mexico. The Washington Tree Fruit Association reports that last year Washington exported $45 million worth of U.S. apples to China. China also imported $121.7 million in cherries, but it isn't immediately clear how much of the cherry sales came from Washington growers.

On the other hand, China is the largest grower of apples in the world producing one-half of the world's supply. So their decision to punish

IN MY
Bill Forhan
Publisher

America by putting a tariff on our imported fruit is mostly symbolic. The fact is, China has closed their market to importation of American apples in the past claiming disease could threaten their apple industry.

All of this is spurred by President Trump's threat to place tariffs on imported steel and aluminum. The real issue here is how do we make sure that free trade is truly free? What do we do when other countries are limiting our ability to sell goods in their country while getting unfettered access to ours?

For the past couple of decades our government has allowed China and other countries to abuse our American industries. The "globalists" have claimed that free trade is good for American consumers because it lowers the price of goods. The problem of course is it has also had a big impact on the American middle class who have seen their jobs being exported to countries with lower wages.

So how exactly has our free trade policies helped the middle class?

Homes and higher education are no longer affordable. Our national debt is growing faster than our economy. Health care costs are out of control and insurance is unaffordable. Minimum wage continues to escalate but the poor and least skilled can't find a job, so homelessness is growing exponentially. And wages to the American middle class have been stagnant for decades.

The problem is that we cannot unleash the power of our economy by exporting our jobs. That is what we have been doing and the results are now in. We are no longer the strongest economy in the world.

Our politicians have put us on a course where we are helping the rest of the world improve their standard of living by reducing ours. It doesn't matter whether you consider yourself a Republican or a Democrat. They have both contributed to support these failed policies.

That is not the country I want to pass on to my children and grandchildren.

The mainstream media keep talking about the stock market being unstable because of fear of an impending trade war. The problem is the stock market is not the measure of the health of our economy. The stock market accounts for about 5 percent of private industry.

Small business is still the engine that drives new jobs and innovation. And small business has been hit hard with over regulation and restricted access to capital. It is a fact that loans to small business during the Obama administration declined by nearly 35 percent. The result was the economy languished.

It will take a while, but much of President Trump's efforts will spur growth in the private sector. It won't show up on the stock market because that is dominated by multinational corporations. For example, Ford is now building many of their cars in China with cheaper labor and cheaper steel.

American made cars could well become more expensive when they are built here with American labor and American made steel but those increased costs will result in higher wages for American workers. I, for one, am willing to pay more for a car if the increased costs go to pay American workers.

It is far past time to fire up the power of the American free enterprise economy. If that means tariffs on imported goods, I support it. We need to put America first.

Fire @Trump Tower

Enter the generals in 2020

APPLES
Gary Bégin

port staff, money and jewels to local and regional office fronts south of New York, did double-duty as a profit center by coming back from Montreal with cocaine loads sent from France just like in the French Connection movie (based on actual events) of decades ago.

How did all of this come to light from a simple "mattress fire" due to a cigarette?

The New York City Fire Department and the NYPD and the U.S. Secret Service all have a special interest in safeguarding the part time home of the President.

Obviously a fire on the 50th floor caught everyone's attention. The man who died, the agent who was churning out bitcoin profits for a political movement, was also dead dog tired one night and had a few too many Stollis, lit a Camel Light and passed out on his $4,000 "perfect sleeper" complete with a dozen MyPillows.

"Have no fear," said the troler, but simultaneously husky-voiced Comrade spokeswoman, "we will shortly have a new operation on line. The next city will be selected for its cheap electrical rates, potential solitude and plethora of computer geeks. I think it will be somewhere near Seattle."

The Russians support White Nationalists because that helps undermine democracy worldwide.

Here's what needs to happen next: In 2020, Republicans need to have a presidential ticket of former Marine Corps four-star generals James Mattis and John Kelly. They will be elected because they are no nonsense, not liberal and sincere in their desires to actually keep America safe from Russians, Chinese and any other threat.

Trump kept saying we have great generals and he believed in them so why not give them a shot at running the whole show?

Dwight Eisenhower served eight years as president after helping us win WWII as a general.

We owe the creation and implementation of the greatest infrastructure project in our history, the interstate highway system. That road network transformed the American way of life culturally, economically and physically so as to literally "make America great again."

I have no doubt Mattis and Kelly can fix the bridges, highways, dams and even implement a high speed train service from coast to coast.

The fire at Trump Tower was only the tip of a new Russian iceberg that can't be handled by a president who is beholden to Czar Putin.

Mattis and Kelly are not beholden to Russians or anyone else. Integrity and patriotism are their calling cards.

They are examples of strong men who do not need to act like tyrants to be understood. I imagine they will thoroughly vet their cabinet unlike the jokers we have now, each carrying enough baggage for a circus troupe.

BTW - the scenario of bitcoin mining causing the recent fire at Trump Tower I started this column with was completely fabricated. Although, in our hyper-dramatic era of spying out loud, don't be surprised if evidence is uncovered implicating millions of rubles were in that mattress fire.

Do I hear David Duke ironing his white sheets in the background?

BREWSTER – The double-header between visiting Lake Roosevelt Raiders and host Brewster last Monday, April 10, might have been closer between the third place 5-5 Raiders and undefeated Bears if Lake Roosevelt would have had more bench to draw on. As it was, with only one player to spare, had a long afternoon as the host team cruised to 15-0, and 16-0 final scores.

“We really have some kids dialed in at the plate right now,” said head coach Todd Phillips. “Our younger kids and the bottom of our lineup have really been getting the job done.”

Turk Riggan got Brewster on the board first when he scored on a ground-out RBI by Caiden Riggan.

Then the Bears “blew things open in the third in one of the best hitting performances I have ever witnessed in a single inning,” said Phillips. “We just crushed the ball in line drive after line drive.”

Brewster scored 11 runs in the third on top of two runs in the second and added another four in the fourth inning.

Quincy Vassar had a good performance on the mound, allowing only one runner to reach base while throwing Brewster's fifth no-hitter of the year.

There were no homers in the first game, but Joe Taylor hit six triples. Kade Kelpman and Turk Riggan hit four doubles apiece and Jorge Ramirez hit one.

Kelpman took the mound for game two.

“He is quickly approaching being the winningest pitcher I have ever coached after throwing his second consecutive one-hitter,” said Phillips of Kelpman.

Corey Jarrell hit five doubles, while Taylor and Ramirez slapped two each. Kelpman tripled twice.

The Bears were scheduled to play at Liberty Bell on Tuesday, April 10, and travel to Cedar Park Christian in Bothell on Saturday, April 14. Brewster will then host Liberty Bell at 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, April 17.

Nannies fade to Lake Roosevelt in final innings

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

Pateros – The Nannies varsity softball team put up a good fight against visiting Lake Roosevelt last Monday, April 9, but faded down the stretch to give up a 16-6 loss to the Lady Raiders.

The Nannies and Raiders were knotted at 2-2 early in the third inning before Lake Roosevelt's bats came alive, the Raiders found their range and scored five additional runs in the top of the third.

Pateros responded with three more runs in the bottom of the third to close within two, 5-7, but would only manage one additional score for the remainder of the game.

Pateros came into the game standing in fourth place in the Central Washington 2B league with earlier wins over league rivals Soap Lake and Oroville. League losses so far this season have been against third-place Tonasket and Lake Roosevelt. The Lady Raiders, at 6-1, are second place in the CW2B behind the undefeated Brewster Lady Bears at 8-0.

Head coach John Slater said that his team suffered from a few mental lapses during the game but said that overall, he was pleased with the way they played.

“We'll get better,” Slater said.

Pateros was scheduled to be at Okanogan to play the Bulldogs' junior varsity on Tuesday, April 10. The Nannies will play a doubleheader at Bridgeport on Saturday, April 14, and travel to Lake Roosevelt for another game with the Lady Raiders next Tuesday, April 17. The next home game for the Nannies will be against the Okanogan JV on Wednesday, April 18.

In the first singles match, Cenicerros defeated Entiat's Jaime Padilla 6-2, 6-2.
