BRIDGEPORT/MANSFIELD/BREWSTER/PATEROS – The Easter Bunny is going to have to hop to it to make all the rounds of holiday celebrations between here, Mansfield, Pateros and Brewster between March 31 and April 1.

Mr. Bunny will need to be at Bridgeport at 9 a.m. Saturday, March 31, when activities get underway at Merryman Park and last until noon. Helping out the holiday rabbit will be the American Legion, Bridgeport Eagles, and Chamber of Commerce. While the youngsters are busy searching for hidden eggs, Mr. Bunny will hightail it for Mansfield where the Town at the End of the Rails begins its Easter festivities at 10 a.m. in Blue Stem Park. Joining forces to help make that event happen are the Mansfield Lions Club, Sportsman Club, and Dale Mills.

If last year was any indicator, the Brewster Boys and Girls Club will draw the largest crowd of all as more than 100 youngsters gather in the field across from the BBGC building. Director Brian Paine and his helpers will have hundreds of eggs hidden in the grass in areas sectioned off by age groups.

Youngsters who arrive early Saturday morning, March 31, can get photos taken with the Easter Bunny at 9 a.m. before the egg hunt begins at 10 a.m.

Jeanette Palmer and Howard's on the River is again sponsoring the Easter celebration in Pateros on Sunday, April 1. The egg hunt gets underway at 10 a.m. in Pateros City Park. Three age groups will each have their own designated areas, so everyone can have a fair chance to find a prize. Section One will be for ages 0-4 years, Section Two, 5-7 years, and Section Three 8-10 years.

Bridgeport Council approves chicken application pending ordinance review

BRIDGEPORT – Why did the Bridgeport resident cross the road? Last Wednesday, March 20, it was to attend the regular monthly meeting of the Bridgeport City Council where, among other items on the agenda, was an application to keep four chickens inside the city limits.

“I see on the agenda that there is something about having chickens in town,” said resident Meredith Spencer. “I just wanted to remind the council that in April of 2016 we also had a request for chickens.”

Spencer said that at that time she presented a petition with 22 signatures who opposed having chickens within the city limits and council members voted against the request.

“So, I’m hoping that the council will once again consider the smell, the noise, the restrictions that have to do with chickens in town.”

Resident Dan Petersen spoke next in support of chickens in town.

I would be in favor of having chickens in town,” said Petersen. “I’ve been around chickens and people that have

House of Representatives acknowledges City of Brewster

OLYMPIA – It isn’t every day that the Washington State House of Representatives acknowledges en masse a small town’s achievement with a standing ovation. And when Brewster city officials made a special trip to the State House in mid-March to thank their legislators for city water financing assistance, they certainly weren’t expecting one.

Like all municipalities in the state, Brewster officials compiled a long-range, 20-year plan – a wish list of sorts – of water infrastructure projects they wanted to complete. And like every other small town, what Brewster could realize in that plan depended in large part on loans and grant funding that could be secured to pick up part of the tab.

The main problem that has been confronting the city for years has been manganese in the domestic water supply. Former Brewster mayor and now council member, Jan May, made the manganese problem her primary goal when she was elected mayor of Brewster. Ruiz

Bridgeport Council hears report from Gjesdal

By MIKE MALTAIS, STAFF WRITER

BRIDGEPORT – City Council members put in a long night at their regular monthly meeting last Wednesday, March 21, where they address a laundry list of fees, ordinances and needs.

Douglas County Sheriff Harvey Gjesdal delivered a summary of activities by his office since January including an update on new law and justice facilities in Wenatchee.

“The bids haven’t gone out yet but odds are we are going to get it,” said Gjesdal.

The new complex will include the sheriff’s office, probation, court, and prosecutor’s office, Gjesdal said. Gjesdal announced that law enforcement and community service agencies will hold a Vulnerable Adults and Children Registry on Saturday, April 21, in Wenatchee.

Gjesdal said individuals who are identified as vulnerable, such as children with autism or older adults who may become disoriented, will have their personal information entered into a database that will be available to law enforcement officers.

“If we run into them out in the street and they are not communicative or become aggressive, (the database) will show that this person has this issue, so we can better respond to it,” Gjesdal said.

Gjesdal added that with police under increased scrutiny for not responding appropriately in given situations “it’s a good thing for all of us.”

Douglas County Sheriff Harvey Gjesdal addressed the Bridgeport City Council.

In response to a question about the new resource officer for Bridgeport school next year, Gjesdal identified him as Sam Tonseth who has been with the Sheriff’s office since 2007. Gjesdal said Tonseth will be available to the community in cases requiring “immediate help or more than a one-person response is needed.”

In other business the council amended the Bridgeport Municipal Code subsection pertaining to dangerous dogs to require a secure enclosure as an additional restraint provision for any dog designated as dangerous by the Animal Control enforcement officer.

Council members also approved an Interlocal Agreement advised May that she would need time – several years - to work on securing the funds necessary to get the job done.

“The money is out there, you just have to find it,” Ruiz said.

Ruiz, who said later that she likes financial challenges, went to work.

At least half of the equation of finding the money to get a project like Brewster's water well system funded, is calculating how all of part if it is going to be repaid without placing increasing financial burdens on the ratepayers.

Brewster's well retrofit carried a multi-million-dollar price tag. For the entire state of Washington, only some five million dollars is allocated statewide for such rural municipal projects. To find the money it needed the city would have to look to federal-level funding for the money it needed.

Ruiz began applying with the United States Department of Agriculture's Rural Development division for the money Brewster needed. Six times she applied and was six times refused, but along the way, Ruiz took the RD model and re-engineered it to fit the loan-reimbursement profile of small town Brewster.

Along the way, the 2014 Carlton Complex wildfire happened, threatening the town and taxing its reservoir system. It was then that the city discovered that one of its reservoirs was losing significant amounts of water and would need a replacement at worst, or renovation at best. The city secured $1.25 million plus an additional 750,000 to build a new 500,000-gallon reservoir, repair the original that was leaking and install a network of city water meters.

On the seventh try at USDA-RD, Brewster won approval of Brewster Clerk/Treasurer Misty Ruiz kept reworking and resubmitting grant requests for the city water upgrade until she found the combination that fit.

its funding request that would amount to almost $9 million from all sources. When he announced the award at a council meeting last year, Mayor Art Smith chuckled in an aside “and they said it couldn't be done!”

With the help of legislators like Rep. Mike Steele, R-Chelan, and state senators Penny McQuade and Jim Honeyford, among other, officials arranged some 75 percent forgiveness of the monies. The city will repay $2.6 million over 40 years.

Brewster's 20-year water comp plan has been reduced by more than half and the best part is that the loan repayment will not increase the amount ratepayers are paying now.

When city officials journeyed to Olympia to say “thanks” their fiscal achievement had preceded them. The House Speaker recognized the group seated in the public gallery and the entire House rose in unison to endorse the gesture.

“It was a total shock,” said Ruiz. “None of us expected that.”

The delegation also away with an invitation from their legislators to return with requests for more funding.

“They do like our project,” Ruiz said.

The Fort Okanogan Interpretive Center at 14370 Hwy. 17, near the junctions of State Routes 17 and U.S. Route 97 in Brewster, was added to the Washington Heritage Register in a nomination meeting earlier this month in Seattle.

BREWSTER – The Fort Okanogan Interpretive Center at 14370 State Route 17, near the junctions of State Route 17 and U.S. Route 97 in Brewster has been selected to be included on the Washington Heritage Register by the Washington State Advisory Council on Historic Preservation following a nomination meeting of the Governor's Advisory Council in Seattle on March 8.

Officials in the Colville Confederated Tribes History and Archeology Department made application to the state to be considered for a spot the Register, said Fort Okanogan museum coordinator Kristen Heidental.

Heidental said that an interesting sidelight to the research done by History and Archeology personnel in preparation of the application was the discovery of both the architect and builder responsible for the design and construction of the Interpretive Center.

“This year we will include a permanent display of that information at the Center,” Heidental said.

Heidental said the next step is to apply to have the Interpretive Center included on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Fort Okanogan Interpretive Center will open this year on Friday, May 25, and will remain open from Wednesday through Sunday every week.

chickens and if properly cared for there's not a problem with them...I think it's a good thing for the town.

Council person Anthony Jenkins said he inspected the property of the party making application for approval to house four chickens on their premises and found space and other factors adequate to win his support.

Council person Phil Lee recommended reviewing the process before allowing a use that cause the applicant to incur costs for something that might later be denied.

"I would hate to see someone make a big investment in something and then lose it because they violated some part of the ordinance," said Lee, "and we don't know what they are yet."

Mayor Janet Conklin concurred and added that while she was neither for nor against chickens in the city, "our ordinance is not bullet-proof" and itemized several instances that were not covered. Conklin therefore recommended that the city revisit the guidelines before allowing any chickens in the city."

Jenkins made a spirited defense of the applicants and recommended that council members allow the permit while the council reviewed and revised the existing ordinance.

Council person Matt Schuh said he review the city's current ordinance and advised that there were provisions for revoking the permit if provisions of their care were not followed.

Following a lengthy discussion that touched on many pros and cons of chickens domiciled within the city limits, a majority of council members voted to allow the permit while the specific ordinance undergoes review.

Council members further voted to allow no further chicken permits until the council enacts a new ordinance.

Knights of Veritas at area libraries over spring break

OKANOGAN/CHELAN: North Central Regional Library is bringing the Knights of Veritas to several of its libraries over spring break.

The free program the week of April 2-6 features interactive, educational demonstrations of medieval arms, armor, combat, knighthood and chivalry.

"Our mission is to make history exciting and relevant to today's audiences, and show that even great warriors had a code of conduct that was expected of them," said Knights of Veritas Director Eric Slyter. "We love getting kids excited about learning and reading!"

The program includes accurate replica arms and armor, an examination of the culture of the middle ages, common myths and misconceptions, accurate combat based on period manuscripts, rare antiquities, the Code of Chivalry, and more.

They will perform at the following libraries:

- Chelan Public Library: April 2, 3 p.m.

ment with the City of Twisp to allow that municipality to use Bridgeport's wood chipper with the addition of a $100 per eight-hour usage fee.

Mayor Conklin advised council that the Douglas County Solid Waste Advisory Council (SWAC) has increased its fees for tire collections.

Passenger car tires increase to $5 and on rims to $8; small truck tires $7, and on rims $10; pickup tires $11, on rims $20; large truck tires $25, on rims $45.

"That's why they get dumped," said Public Works

Superintendent Stuart Dzellem of the increasing fees.

Since the city is charged with collecting the tire fees and transferring the funds to SWAC, council members voted to add a flat transaction fee of .50 cents per tire.

As of this writing the city has no lifeguards signed up to work at the public pool this season. One of the issues brought up was the $150 cost to prospective candidates to receive the necessary training.

Conklin said she may arrange to speak to some of the students at Bridgeport High School to encourage some to consider signing up.

Time: 9:00 am until 2:00 pm
Where: Pybus Public Market, 7 N Worthen St, Wenatchee, WA 98801

What is the Vulnerable Persons Event ?
The Vulnerable Persons Registry is an event with the local Police Services and local community agencies. The registry promotes communication between vulnerable persons, the people who support them and the police. This information will assist officers when responding to an emergency involving the vulnerable individual. The registry provides quick access to critical information about a registered person, such as who to call in an emergency, a detailed physical description, and any particular sensitivities that the person may experience. Registration is completely voluntary. The database is to help alleviate safety concerns for those that are vulnerable in our community.

Who is a vulnerable person?
A vulnerable person is defined as a person who due to medical, cognitive, mental health or physical condition may exhibit patterns of behavior that may pose a danger to that person. Examples of Vulnerable Persons may include persons with autism, dementia, acquired brain injury, cerebral palsy that may cause a person to exhibit atypical behaviors (e.g. wandering, physical instability, inability to communicate, aggression, irrational fear, oversensitivity to sensory stimulus (sounds, lights, touch).

What is the goal of the registry?
The goal of the VP registry is to provide police with quick access to critical information about a registered person so the officer can assist in an emergency situation. When a Vulnerable Person is thought to be at risk, his or her personal information will be shared with relevant organizations, enabling them to quickly respond and provide effective assistance to the registrant.

The Quad joins the Digital age

The Community Bulletin Board has been a popular feature ever since we bought the papers nearly 18 years ago. But times have changed and we are changing as well. We have launched our new digital classified ad section and it is a powerful tool for promoting your events. You can include photos, videos and more information. Non-profits can still post a free notice in the paper - up to 100 words, but events that have an entry fee or are a fund raising project will have to pay for an ad. The cost is not significant $10 for 30 days and $20 if you want it to be a featured ad. A featured ad posts at the top of the listings and rotates among other featured ads on the home page. Check out the new site at NCWMarket.com. You can set up an account and post your ads 24/7. If you have lots of local events you want to post you can even set up a subscription account that allows you to post a number of ads every month and change them daily if you would like for no additional charge. Free notices should be emailed to heraldads@qcherald.com, subject line: Bulletin Board

Many activists ready to surf the Big Blue Wave

Now, after we have witnessed one of the largest mass coordinated marches in American history last weekend, it is time to say Democrats are suddenly the recipients of several million new voters and future activists vis-a-vis gun issues.

APPLES TO APPLES
Gary Bégin

I couldn't be happier and prouder of the students exercising their rights of free speech. Whether I agree with all of their ideas is another matter. I do agree that we, the so-called adults, have failed to keep them safe in schools.

school kids and their big brothers and sisters, the Millennials and their supporters, can actually vote in a larger block than Baby Boomers.

How can anyone blame them for wanting to end their own slaughter?

Even a cop that was supposed to protect them in Florida ran for cover. I am 100% pro-police, but it seems to me he should be stripped of his pension and criminally charged with dereliction of duty.

What's the point of hiring school safety officers unless they take their jobs seriously and get in there and stalk and kill those who are killing our kids?

I am not a macho maniac, but that's the job bud, you enlisted for it so then do it. I want an officer at every school from K-12 and every college too. I want a metal detector and limited access to guns on the inside for certain qualified staff members.

Unfortunately what I want doesn't mean squat.

On the other hand, what these new, young activists want really does matter because they are our nation's future. Us older geezers better get out of their way. That demographic, if disciplined enough, can take over the political landscape for the next several decades.

For years we have not allowed kids to drink until 21, but we are quick to send them to war. I heard something on TV last weekend that made a lot of sense. One Muslim wannabe terrorist had a bomb in his shoe and ever since then millions of us have had to remove our shoes at airports. Yet we have had many school shootings and almost nothing has changed.

Chances are the "kids" mean exactly what they say and sing and chant and scream: Never again. They intend to push every candidate for every office to swear a solemn oath to put more and more restrictions on assault weapons and to not take money from the National Rifle Association.

Even here, in little Wenatchee, there was a private party at the Eagles Club last Saturday for Friends of the NRA, but are the local kids willing to cross mom and dad and vote "blue." Will the Democratic candidates have enough guts to state they are against assault weapons even in gun counties and states? They might. Will any Republicans do the same? I seriously doubt it.

Will the young stay home like most of us come voting day? That would be a shame. The real test is if they can maintain this fervor of theirs until November. It is a known fact that a flash in the pan is exactly that. As is a shooting star as is the phrase "that was yesterday's news."

The litmus test has been set for November. It used to be abortion or jobs or exotic thoughts about war and peace, but in the mind of every parent nationwide will be the idea that little Johnny isn't coming home anymore because of some moron with an assault rifle.

Meanwhile the kids in those same schools will be wondering if it could be their school next.

Remember Mothers Against Drunk Driving and how they single-handedly changed DUI laws across the nation? Today's mothers will be an even greater force to be reckoned with. It is quite possible that 10 months from now the Congress will turn blue whether us "adults" like it or not.

Trump getting impeached will be just the beginning of what promises to be a massive turnover of political power. The GOP is bent on destroying itself for a fistful of blood-stained dollars.

Building a wall on the southern border for billions of dollars will not yield as much safety for the average American as figuring out how to protect our flesh and blood as they pursue state-obligated education.

When I was a kid in the 1960s there were race riots in the schools, but the only weapons anyone had were knives and razor blades, chains, sticks and lots of friends. Today, it just takes one mental case to destroy the world as we know it. BTW - the geniuses out there who fancy themselves constitutional experts on gun rights ought to remember they only had swords, knives and muskets back when the founding fathers talked about a "well regulated militia" and a right to bear arms.

They also owned other human beings and didn't allow women voting rights either. Times have changed and these youngsters are ready to take over. Candidates mock this youthful movement at their own peril.

The Swamp wins again

President Trump disappointed most of the people that voted for him last week when he failed to veto the Omnibus Spending Bill brought to him courtesy of our spend-thrift Congress.

IN MY OPINION
Bill Forhan
Publisher

It seems the Republicans are bent on self-destruction to the delight of the Democrats who are willing to bankrupt the country for an opportunity to impeach Donald Trump.

Well the Republicans, and especially the Republican leadership, continue to show they are tone deaf to the voice of the people.

Trump was right. This is a horrible bill. The only good thing is the increased funding for the military but the cost of getting that increased funding is too high.

Trump has failed at his first confrontation with brinkmanship legislation. He should have vetoed the bill. Shut down the government and forced the Congress to override his veto or amend the bill. He didn't.

The result was the talk shows were overrun by angry voters who swore they would never vote for Trump again.

I understand their anger but turning against Trump is a victory for the establishment. The politicians that need to be defeated are the party leadership - Paul Ryan, Kevin McCarthy, Steve Scalise and our own Cathy McMorris-Rodgers. It is no surprise that our two liberal Senators, Cantwell and Murray voted to load more debt onto our grandchildren, but McMorris-Rodgers vote in support was.

Trump needs to hear from all of his supporters that he made a major mistake by not vetoing this bill. But hoping to drain the swamp by voting in more alligators is not the way to solve the problem.

Quite frankly listening to the angry "conservatives" calling in to tell everyone they were done supporting Trump, sounded more than a little disingenuous. I am sure many of those encouraging Republicans to stay home during the next election were not really Trump supporters. They were simply doing what the left does best. They were trying to utilize conservative anger to steal the next election. Do not be fooled by these activist manipulators who will use any dirty trick to advance their agenda.

Winning the war to take back America will require more than one election, more than one President. We must work hard to root out the Republicans who have proven they are not conservative and we must campaign hard against any liberal replacements.

Expect the politics of personal destruction to heat up as the left and the media digs up any dirt they can find on a conservative candidate while ignoring the dirty laundry in their own basket.

We need to be clear headed and single focused if we are going to look past the skirmishes we lost and energize the American people to stay the course we have begun by electing an outsider to be President.

So let us start by putting together a list of Republican representatives who did not vote to repeal Obamacare; Republicans who voted to fund Planned Parent Hood;

Republicans who voted in favor of the Omnibus spending bill. These must be our targets for replacement.

Many of these individuals are not in our home state but we must find ways to actively support their replacement with more conservative representation not with another spend thrift liberal Democrat.

Finally, we must bury the Whitehouse and our own Congressional representatives with letters of protest over this latest travesty. What is done can always be undone. Let us call for a repeal of this travesty and demand that they cut the pork out of this bill and that all members of the Congress be required to read it before it is signed into law.

Congress and President Trump join in effort to fight opioid abuse

Joining together to combat the crisis of drug and opioid abuse that is harming our communities is a major issue that should unite Americans in common cause. The impact of drug addiction and overdoses has touched too many lives in our country and in our state.

Dan Newhouse
U.S. Cong.

According to the American Society of Addiction Medicine, in 2014, 1.9 million Americans had a substance use disorder involving prescription pain relievers, in contrast to the 586,000 Americans that had a substance use disorder involving heroin. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has estimated that 115 Americans lose their lives every day in connection with opioids... Drug-caused deaths involving opioids have been rising steadily statewide and in Central Washington, with 6,668 deaths from 2002-2013 according to the University of Washington. In Yakima County, according to UW, from the periods of 2002-2013, publicly-funded treatment admissions for Yakima County increased by over 50%.

These are stark numbers. There is no question that opioid abuse is a national crisis for American families.

Steps are being taken to implement a national strategy to respond to this epidemic. Addressing the scourge of drug and opioid abuse has been an area of bipartisan work in Congress and a strong focus of President Trump.

This is a critical matter for bipartisan representatives in Congress to partner with the President.

In 2016, I voted in favor of the bipartisan 21st Century CURES Act, which increased state grants for treatment from $500 million to $1.5 billion. Half of those grants were made available in 2017, and the next half in 2018. Last week, the House Energy and Commerce Committee held investigative and legislative hearings on 25 solutions focused on law enforcement, prevention, and insurance coverage.

Earlier this month, President Trump announced his initiative to stop opioid abuse and reduce drug supply and demand. Not only will the administration work to raise public awareness about the dangers of prescription and illicit opioid use, but it will work to implement a safer prescribing plan with the following goals:

Cut nationwide opioid prescription fills by one-third within three years.

Ensure that 75 percent of opioid prescriptions reimbursed by federal healthcare programs are issued using best practices within three years, and 95 percent within five years.

Ensure that at least half of all federally-employed healthcare providers adopt best practices for opioid prescribing within two years, with all of them doing so within five years.

Leverage federal funding opportunities related to opioids to ensure that states transition to a nationally interoperable Prescription Drug Monitoring Program network.

The announcement of a national strategy by the administration is a major important step forward. I support President Trump's initiative to address the opioid crisis. This is about helping struggling Americans, and I will continue to work to so that affected individuals, families, and communities receive the help they need.

OKANOGAN – Dawson Gym was rockin' to the rafters last Saturday, March 24, as youngsters from at least three counties converged on Okanogan High School to compete in the annual Little Kid Wrestling Tournament.

Parents and friends filled the bleachers on both sides of the gym as toddlers to pre-teens from Kittitas, Chelan, Tonasket, Okanogan, Omak, Liberty Bell, Brewster, and Pateros squared off in four simultaneous rings of competition. Screams of support from spectators mixed with shouts of advice from coaches and kept the decibel count at rock concert level as boys and girls fought it out from mid-morning through mid-afternoon.

As each successive grade level was sorted out, competitors were called to the gym's wrestling anteroom where wrestlers were called by name, matched with an opponent, and seated in two rows of metal chairs in order of appearance on the main floor.

Among the scores of youngsters from points around the Okanogan County was Landon Bradley of Pateros who wore his school's purple and gold colors and competed at the fifth and sixth grade level.

Chris Talavera of Brewster took to the mat in the third and fourth grade division and among his opponents pinned Isabella Chapa of Omak.

Julian Solorzano was another Pateros youngster who squared off against C. J. Mower of Liberty Bell in a fifth and sixth grade bout.

Okanogan High School varsity wrestling coach Andy Knutson, in his 26th year with the Bulldogs, started the Little Kids tournaments in 1991 and for the last couple of years has handed the job off to assistant coach Lee Morrison.

Young wrestlers competed in four tournaments so far this month beginning with Oroville on March 3, Chelan and Liberty Bell, March 10, Pateros-Brewster at Brewster, March 17, and Okanogan last Saturday.

The final youth tournament of the season will be at Omak High School on Saturday, March 31.

Local wrestlers attend wrestling camp taught by Cameron Guerin

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

OKANOGAN – Opportunities to learn a sport at the feet of a master are few and far between, so when local wrestlers got the chance to listen and learn from the best high school girl wrestler in Washington State, scores jumped at the chance. Among them was perhaps the youngest of the group, six-year-old Louis Brotherton of Pateros who, though still in kindergarten, has already been wrestling for three years.

Brotherton showed up at Dawson Gym at Okanogan High School last Sunday, March 25, to participate in one of two sessions taught by Cameron Guerin, a Davis High School senior in Yakima. Guerin is a four-time state wrestling champion, four-time national champion and Pan American champion who has her eyes set on competing for a spot on the 2020 Olympic wrestling team.

Among her other achievements, Guerin is a two-time Cadet World Team member, 2016 Pan Am medalist and 2017 Junior World placer. Guerin set Washington State history last month when she recorded 126 straight wins on her way to her fourth state title and became the only girl to finish her high school career undefeated.

Guerin was in Okanogan to teach the one-day camp at the invitation of family friend and Okanogan varsity assistant wrestling coach, Lee Morrison.

Brotherton, who also competes in rodeo events, according to his grandmother, was in Dawson Gym the previous day competing in the Little Kids Wrestling Tournament. He returned Sunday to learn some new moves from one of the best. He was one among 36 youngsters who turned out for Guerin's two-hour afternoon class.

Guerin's next national competition is in May 11-13, at the Junior World Team qualifiers in Irving Texas. If she decides BRIDGEPORT – The Mustangs varsity soccer opened their season with a strong home start with non-league wins over Omak, 3-1, on March 13, and Ephrata, 2-1, on March 15.

Bridgeport shut out Liberty Bell, 4-0, on its home pitch Thursday, March 22, to kick off the Central Washington 2B league competition.

"Keven Cervantes scored in the 19th minute, Ozzy Orozco scored in the 22nd minute, Leonardo Sanchez scored in the 24th minute, and Ozzy Orozco scored again in the 34th minute," said head coach Gabe Gonzalez.

Edgar Meza was Bridgeport's goalkeeper for the first half before Carlos Ruiz took over in the second half. Ruiz had eight saves, Gonzalez said.

Bridgeport was scheduled to host Tonasket on Tuesday, March 27, and play Manson on the road Thursday, March 29. The Mustangs will host Okanogan in non-league play at 11 a.m. Saturday, March 31.

State Champ Garcia competes at NHSCA High School Nationals

BY MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA – When young wrestlers gathered at the 2018 Okanogan Valley Wrestling Camp last Saturday, March 25, little did any of them know that on that same day, on the opposite side of the country, a Brewster alumnus of youth wrestling was competing in the National High School Coaches' Association High School National Wrestling Tournament.

Brewster senior, Alex Garcia, the reigning 2018 high school 2B heavyweight wrestling champion, experienced the culminating trip of his high school career when he departed Brewster on last Wednesday, March 21, to compete against the nation's best opponents in his 285-pound weight class at Virginia Beach, Va.

Accompanying Garcia on the trip was his mother and coach, Cindy, and Pateros varsity wrestling coach, Bill Haley, who started the varsity wrestling program at Brewster High School.

"Bill started the school wrestling program when I was a senior at Brewster in 1993-94," said Cindy.

Garcia, went undefeated in 19 matches during the 2017-18 season.

"Alex was the shortest guy and the lightest guy in his weight class," said Cindy. "He was the smallest of all of them, but he never let his size make the difference of whether he won or lost."

The 29th annual NHSCA tournament drew more than 3,500 wrestlers from around the nation to the Virginia Beach Convention Center where matches were held on more than 40 mats.

Garcia, who sat out more than a few matches in the Central Washington 2B league because he had no opponents in his weight class, did not have that problem at the three-day NHSCA blowout. How large were some of the heavyweight contenders there?

Haley summed it up best: "There were some that had their own zip code," Haley said.

Garcia came away from the encounter with a win and two losses and a heightened appreciation for the caliber of talent that gets to compete at the national level.

Haley said the first opponent that defeated Garcia ended up placing fifth in the heavyweight division.

"There was an amazing new level of kids and such quality of wrestling," said Haley.

It was not the first trip for a Garcia wrestler to national competition. In 2016, older brother Jose Garcia, now 21 and a U.S. Marine, was the undefeated state champion at 120 pounds. Prior to high school, Garcia competed at the Junior Nationals in Harrisburg, Penn, and placed sixth at 113 pounds.

All the Garcia children began their wrestling careers at four years of age, said Cindy. Gabe Garcia, now a Brewster sophomore has another two varsity years in him and younger sister Kaitlyn is an up and coming freshman. Both will be attending wrestling camp this summer, their mother said.
