State Senator Brad Hawkins holds District 12 Listening Tour

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – Washington State Senator Brad Hawkins, representing the four-county 12th District that includes part of Okanogan County, visited Pateros and Winthrop as part of a three-day Listening Tour last Friday, Oct. 6.

Hawkins said he conceived the Listening Tour “primarily to inform myself on issues that are important to people here before I go over to Olympia. Sometimes when you are over there in the middle of a legislative session it’s difficult to be proactive on the issues during the middle of a session because things are already in motion.”

Capital Facilities Budget

In an exclusive interview with the Quad City Herald last Friday, Senator Hawkins responded to questions submitted by officials from the Bridgeport-Brewster-Pateros communities.

High on the list of concerns for Pateros mayor, Carlene Anders, was passage of the state’s $4 billion Capital Facilities Budget (CFB).

gets, Operating ($44 billion), Transportation ($9 billion) and Capital ($4 billion) the latter still awaits the Legislature’s approval.

Hawkins acknowledged that failure to pass the CFB has created a hardship for communities, like Pateros, “that have funding for their facilities already in the pipeline.”

Hawkins added that school districts that have passed bonds with a 60 percent vote, as Brewster and Bridgeport have recently, also qualify for matching state funds so they are hampered as well by the failure to pass the CFB.

“My hope was we would get it passed this fall,” said Hawkins. “The legislators are getting together in mid-November for what is called Committee Days; it’s not a special session but if there’s an opportunity to take action on the capital budget at that

Pateros drills third well site; debuts pump station design

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – Drilling for city wells by Blue Star Enterprises Northwest of Richland began last month when the commercial well driller sunk the first casing at a site on the south side of East Industrial Way north of South Dawson Street.

When the strong presence of creosote was found between five and 20 feet down, the city brought in a backhoe to excavate the site and determine the source of the creosote. Pateros City Administrator Jord Wilson said the city’s original plan called for the Industrial Way site, with the blessing of the state Department of Health, to be the location for two city wells.

While residue of railroad ties was found, no ties were discovered and further inspection revealed the area to be the former site of an old warehouse or packing shed adjacent to the railroad tracks. Wilson said the basement of the structure may have been used for apple storage.

“Likely there were some railroad ties in that basement,” said Wilson. “We pulled the casings and abandoned the site.”

Wilson said the city had identified 16 potential well sites with hydro-geo surveys and pulled well logs to prioritize those locations that promised the best quality and quantity of water.

The next drill site near the corner of Pearl Street and East Warren Avenue produced “lots of good water,” said Wilson. “We will do pump tests

The city’s third well site in the parking lot on the north side of West Lakeshore Drive across from the city park is also the site for a proposed Interpretive Center and pump station. The city needs three wells for peak use periods and backup.

this week and do water quality tests as that time.”

Pateros needs a minimum of three wells so that one can serve as a backup for the other two and be available for peak usage periods, Wilson said.

Another potential well site at Lakeshore and Warren was rejected by DOH, so the city settled on the parking mall across from Memorial Park for its third location. Several DOH requirements helped narrow down that site.

“We have to be 200 feet from the river and have a 200-foot diameter for sanitary control, said Wilson. “When you start dropping 200-foot diameter circles in Pateros you are really limited.”

An option to locate a well near the car wash would have deprived the downtown of the last premium retail space that connects to the mall, Wilson said.

The present site dovetails with expansion plans proposed by local businesses.

“Right after the wildfire the business community got together,” said Wilson. “They wanted to connect the mall to the park, expand green space and reduce pavement.”

That thinking inspired a multi-use pump station concept that would be more than just a cinder block single-use building. As the accompanying concept design shows, the new structure will incorporate an Interpretive Center with a stage, greenery, landscaping and walkways that connect the mall to the park.

Wilson said he met with the Apple Pie Jamboree Committee and it was agreed to move the popular three-on-three basketball tournament onto the street and food vendors can also utilize the street as a food court.

“We will have a pump station there,” said Wilson. “We’re still taking suggestions about what else to include with it.”

Leftover funds from two grants will allow the city to proceed with development while the state Legislature wrestles with approval of the Capital Facilities Budget (CFB). A third federal Committee Development Block Grant is tied to CFB funding.

Mansfield's 40th Lions' Auction draws a crowd

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

MANSFIELD – The Lions Club's 40th annual October auction is in the Town at the End of the Rails' record book but it took four auctioneers and a full day of barking, bidding, and buying to get it there.

A larger-than-average selection of items, including farm machinery that overflowed onto surrounding lots kept Dal Dagnon and Daryl Asmusen of D&D Auction Sales, LLC, and associate auctioneers hopping to get everything sold before darkness fell.

Lions Club past president Betty Wilsey, chairwoman of this year's auction said that while the number of consignments were greater than normal, it wasn't until auction time neared at 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, that items really started rolling in.

"We accepted items up until 9 a.m. Saturday, an hour before the auction started," Wilsey said.

The gavel came down on the final item at about 6:30 p.m. but Wilsey said that while sales totals are not expected to set any records, it's still too early to tally the results.

The Lions Club receives a percentage of the sales price of each item and that money goes back to the community.

"We fund scholarships and a limited amount goes for hearing aids and eyeglasses," said Wilsey. "We also help out the FFA when kids are getting ready for the fair and other projects."

Wilsey said she has been involved with the annual auction for more than two decades dating back to 1994-95.

Wilsey, as last year's president of the Lions was in charge of this year's auction but had lots of help from some of the club's 25 members.

"We had a large crowd this year," said Wilsey. "They knew what they were looking for and pretty much had their prices set."

The annual Mansfield Lions Club Auction is held on the first Saturday in October.

The crowd was large and the selection substantial as bidders competed for many items they didn't even know they needed.

PATEROS – The Pacific Science Center's movable feast for young imaginations, Science on Wheels, parked its interactive workshops and portable exhibits at the Pateros school last Friday, Oct. 6.

Pateros principal Mike Hull said it was the first return visit of Science on Wheels to the school in many years, but after the reaction of the students the school plans to invite the demonstrations back next year.

"We wanted to get that back into our school to raise the inquisitiveness of our kids," Hull said.

The Science on Wheels crew knew how to capture an audience.

"They held an opening assembly at 8:05 a.m. that lasted 40 minutes, included some group interaction and really grabbed the students' attention," said Hull.

Later that morning classes of K-8 elementary and junior high students got their opportunity in turn to launch metal washers into circular spins down a Gravity Well, put hands on the flashing bolts of electricity encased in the Eye of the Storm globe, nudge a ball floating on air coming out of the Bernoulli Funnel, control the force of a large hand-held Gyroscope, look at their images in the Parabolic Mirror, and many more exhibits that demonstrated principles of physics.

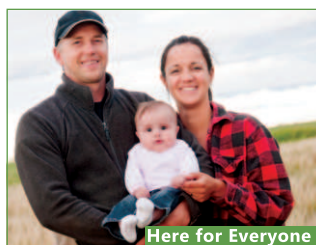

"The kids want them back next year," said Hull "and I just heard from our secondary school (9-12) and they want to participate as well."

time I would welcome it."

Hawkins said that the legislature has a negotiated CFB between the House and Senate, "that is pretty much ready to go so it's not really an issue of if we pass the capital budget but more of an issue of when," but added that the recent Hirst water rights decision by the state Supreme Court is a pressing tandem issue that also needs to be resolved.

"The Hirst situation has multi-generational impacts with respect to kids and grandkids, peoples' family property, the value of their property, access to water, rural development. It's a big, big deal," Hawkins said.

Some state legislators are determined that the CFB will not be passed until Hirst is settled.

Public Works Assistant Account

Bridgeport mayor Janet Conklin asked that the senator continue to work on behalf of small communities. Key to that effort is the state's Public Works Assistant Account (PWAA) that Bridgeport has used in the past for infrastructure funding.

"The PWAA is a competitive process for local governments - cities, counties, sewer districts, water districts - to compete for low interest loans," said Hawkins. "It's not free money but an opportunity to fund infrastructure projects without the cumbersome process of going through a bond where you have to borrow at market rates."

Hawkins said the 2012 state Supreme Court McCleary Decision mandating the state to fully fund education shifted the legislative focus to K-12 funding that "sometimes makes funding some of the other programs more challenging and in the past the Public Works Trust Fund has been victim of that."

"Out of the $44 billion two-year budget, K-12 education is approximately half of that," the Senator said.

Hawkins added however that PWAA is "really popular particularly in Eastern Washington and that there is renewed support to restore funding the in the future."

Public Records Act

Brewster city clerk Misty Ruiz said that city staffers are looking for some support for or adjustments to requests for public records that saddle city government with excessive demands to supply that information.

"We only have one staff member who does that work and some requests can take years to complete," said Ruiz. Not all our records are computerized so that requires time-consuming hours devoted to the examination of paper records.

The Public Records Act (PRA), first adopted by voters in 1972 through Initiative 276, requires, with few designated exceptions, that all public records gathered and maintained by local and state agencies be made available to the public.

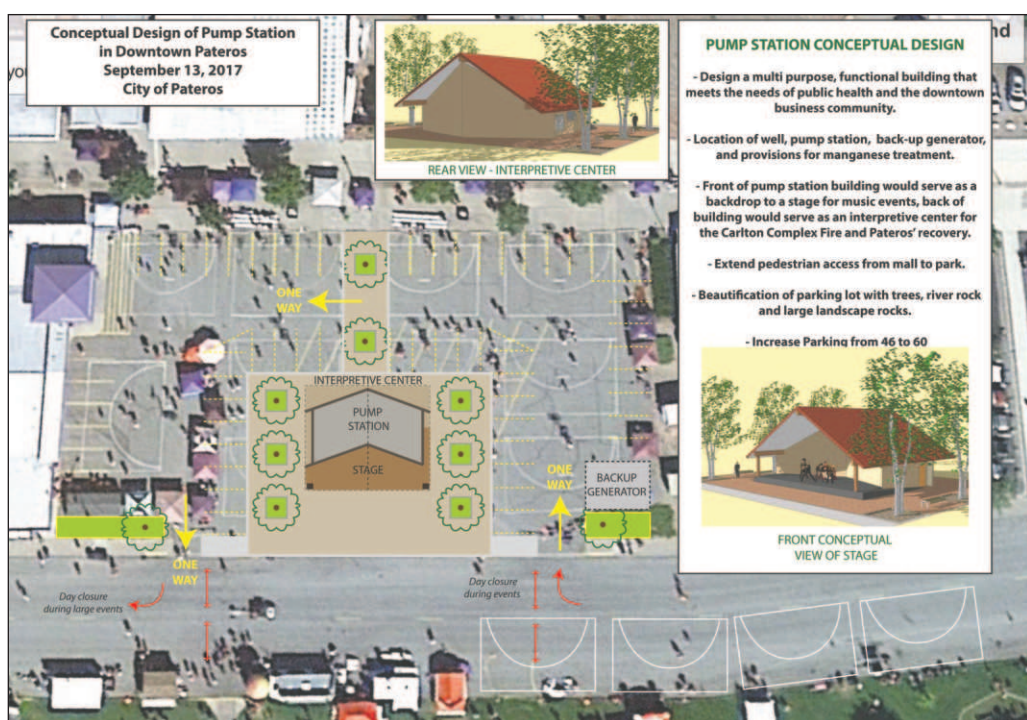

"Transparency of the government is important," said Hawkins, "but there certainly have been some abuses of the Public Records Act."

Hawkins said that in the last legislative session, one PRA modification called Identifiable Records allows a government entity to request more clarification of a records request.

Hawkins said it might make sense to limit PRA requests to in-state requesters and not allow out-of-state requesters for commercial benefit. He related an example of out-of-state graduate assistants utilizing the PRA law to perform much of their research.

Added to the search burden is the requirement that certain privacy data to be redacted which requires a page-by-page review to comply with regulatory law.

Hawkins said that when the legislature could not resolve the PRA debate a couple of years ago, it commissioned a study from the William D. Ruckelshaus Center that should soon be releasing some recommendations concerning PRA access.

This conceptual design shows the location and layout of a new pump station and Interpretive Center that will link the downtown commercial core to Pateros Memorial Park.

"We will run out of money in February," said Wilson.

"If the capital budget has not passed by then the city may look at getting a loan." In a meeting with the Quad last Friday, State Senator Brad Hawkins expressed hopes to see an approved CFB no later than January 2018.

BREWSTER – The Bears varsity football team improved its Central Washington 2B League record to 3-2 with a 56-10 win over visiting Bridgeport under a full Harvest Moon Homecoming Night on Champion Field last Friday, Oct. 6.

Brewster's early lead gave the coach an opportunity to give his bench reserves some

Pateros beats back RC in best of five-set battle

PATEROS – The Nannies varsity volleyball team edged a tough Riverside Christian team last Saturday, Oct. 7, in the best of five sets to improve their league record to 5-2 and take third place in Central Washington 1B League.

“This one was a bit of a test of character,” said coach Gene Dowers. “We started a little nervous and tentative and stiff and didn't quite seal the deal in the first two sets.”

The visiting Crusaders won the first two sets, 25-23 and 29-27 before the Nannies found their range.

“The mood changed when we got back to the tough serving that we've been so good at,” said Dowers. “When Sarah Poole and Ashlyn Gonzalez get on a roll at the beginning of a set, confidence builds quickly.”

Poole was perfect with 26 for 26 from the service line. Gonzalez was 25 for 27.

Pateros regrouped to take the last three sets and the match, 25-14, 25-20, and 15-10.

Dowers said the RC game was the Nannies' best attacking at the net.

“We've been focusing our practices on going for kills and reducing errors and the girls did a super job against RCS,” said Dowers. “We had a lot of aces as usual, but we had a lot more kills than aces for the first time.”

Stats
Sarah Poole: 9 kills, 26/26 serves w/6 aces, 1 assist, 19 passes, 25 digs.
Jissele Ornelas: 5 kills, 3 passes, 2 digs.

Samantha White: 3 kills, 10/12 serves w/2 aces, 3 assists, 15 passes, 9 digs.
Andrea Baird: 2 kills, 5/7 serves, 15 assists, 1 pass, 3 digs.

Ashlyn Gonzalez: 25/27 serves w/8 aces, 2 assists, 14 passes, 21 digs.
Taylor Harrild: 8 kills, 10/12 serves w/3 aces, 2 assists, 3 passes, 2 digs.
Jessi Hixon: 2 kills, 1 dig.
Anna Williams: 8 kills,

19/25 serves w/10 aces, 7 assists, 2 passes, 3 digs.
Jillian Piechalski: 1 kill.

On the road against Cascade Christian Academy on Tuesday, Oct. 3, Pateros won in three sets, 25-15, 25-7, and 25-15.

“When we play a team a second time, we like to make sure we do something better than the first time,” said Dowers. “In our first meeting, the second set nearly got away from us.”

This time the Nannies did not make the same mistake. “The girls did a great job of concentrating their efforts to get a much better result,” said Dowers. “Poole led the serving charge again. Poole was 23 for 25 from the service line.

“Samantha White did pretty much the same in the other half of the rotation,” said Dowers. “We had 22 aces as a team and very few other stats because the ball just didn't come back as much as usual.”

Stats
Poole: 2 kills, 23/25 serves w/10 aces, 1 assist, 3 passes, 8 digs.
Ornelas: 1 kill, 2 digs.
White: 4 kills, 12/13 serves w/4 aces, 3 assists, 5 passes, 5 digs.

Baird: 1 kill, 6/8 serves w/3 aces, 8 assists, 1 pass, 2 digs.
Gonzalez: 2 kills, 3/4 serves w/2 aces, 13 passes, 13 digs.

Harrild: 3 kills, 2/3 serves, 3 digs.
Hixon: 4 kills, 1 dig.
Williams: 3 kills, 7/9 serves w/2 aces, 3 assists, 1 pass, 3 digs.

Pateros was scheduled to host Republic, Tuesday, Oct. 10, and Thorp-Easton on Thursday, Oct. 12. The Nannies will be back on the road at Wilson Creek on Tuesday, Oct. 17.
