WDFW will discuss regional fish and wildlife issues at Pateros Sept. 19

By Mike Maltais, Staff Writer

PATEROS – Representatives of the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) will host a public meeting from 6-8 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 19, at the Central Building in Pateros to discuss fish and wildlife issues in the WDFW’s Northcentral Region.

The Northcentral Region includes Adams, Chelan, Douglas, Grant, and Okanogan counties.

In a media release WDFW Northcentral Region Director Jim Brown said the area’s recent record wildfires, drought conditions and low fish returns have adversely affected wildlife and fish populations, the local fishing and hunting economy. And challenged area residents and WDFW managers alike.

Returning summer steelhead numbers this year, for example, were the lowest recorded since 1980.

“This is an informal opportunity to talk with our fish and wildlife biologists and enforcement officers about these issues, whether they relate to post-wildfire habitat recovery, this summer’s new wild chinook salmon fishery, or other concerns area residents might have,” Brown said.

Upper Columbia River catch limits that allowed anglers to keep one wild chinook gave a boost to this year’s catches weighed in at the Brewster King Salmon Derby, according to derby co-organizer Randy Cole.

Brown said that while WDFW staff will provide updates on some issues, most of the meeting will be dedicated to attendee questions and comments.

Sources at Yancy’s Pateros Hardware said one topic that is sure to come up is WDFW’s decision to allow steelhead fishing at the Miller Hole, a popular spot on the lower Methow River where runs stack up before heading upriver.

Earlier this year, Methow resident and business owner Randy Moore circulated a petition among area business and sport fisherman requesting that WDFW close the Miller Hole that has been open to steelhead fishing every year since 2009.

able next time.”

The Senior Center is selling raffle tickets for a three-piece Weber barbecue grill, some Hickory BBQ smoking chips and a wood chip smoker box.

“This was a prize won by a person during the Salmon Derby last August and it was donated it to us,” said Lowry. “Tickets are $5 each or 5 tickets for $20.”

The raffle has raised $120 so far and plans call for keeping the sales open until $500 has been raised.

“This would make a great birthday or Christmas gift,” Lowry said.

The Senior Center will once again host another Pumpkin Decorating Contest in October.

“It will be coordinated with the downtown Brewster Halloween celebration,” Lowry said.

Legislative solution required to protect Dreamers

Cong. Dan Newhouse

When President Trump's administration announced that it would give six months to wind down the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program, many young people called 'Dreamers,' immigrants who grew up in the U.S., were once again faced with uncertainty regarding their future here.

In Washington State, there are about 17,000 Dreamers. I have sat down with some of these young people right here in Central Washington, and their stories are compelling. Many were brought here as young children without their say or knowledge and have grown up no differently than any other American child. The Dreamers I know are outstanding young people who desire to improve our communities. I firmly believe that as Americans, we do not punish children for the mistakes of their parents, and these children are no exception.

I also believe that President Obama's decision to take unilateral executive action to create DACA placed these young people in legal limbo. DACA required applicants to register and give proof that they were in school or have graduated from high school, pay a fee, and pass a criminal background check. In exchange, the federal government provided temporary protection from removal and authorization to work legally.

As we have seen, executive actions are not long-term answers because they do not have the force of permanent law. Under our Constitution, only Congress can make laws. Executive programs might only last as long as a single presidency, which is why any permanent solution requires action from Congress to change the law.

In Congress, I have long been working with my colleagues on legislative solutions for Dreamers. In January, I cosponsored the Bar Removal of Individuals who Dream and Grow our Economy Act (BRIDGE)

Act, which would provide "provisional protected presence" and employment authorization to DACA-eligible individuals for three years.

The BRIDGE Act was originally meant to transition Dreamers from their uncertain status under the executive order to bona fide legal status under a statute, which means it will likely need to be changed in light of the President's announcement.

I have also supported Recognizing America's Children Act, which would provide Dreamers with a five-year "conditional permanent resident" status if they pursue vocational or higher education, enlist in the military or are gainfully employed, and comply with other requirements. I have cosponsored the Encourage New Legalized Immigrants to Start Training Act (ENLIST) Act that would allow otherwise qualified undocumented immigrants brought here as children to earn legal status through military service.

With the President's announced six-month deadline for DACA, these proposals are now a starting point as debate in Congress takes center stage. A bipartisan compromise that invests in securing the border and providing a long-term solution that gives Dreamers stability may be one option moving forward. There are many facets of the debate to secure our borders and reform our immigration system. As this debate now returns to the people's representatives in Congress, I am committed to working on behalf of Dreamers and urge my colleagues to work together to provide a legislative solution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why do you fight so hard, to offend the Native Methow People?

Joanna Bastian, community member and journalist, requested an interview of me on behalf of the Methow Valley News after the 2014 Carlton Complex fires. That interview led to a series of articles that helped illustrate the “Indian” perspective about the Methow People.

After a time of gained confidence and demonstrated understanding of Indian Culture, she broached the topic of the word, Squaw Creek. Is it offensive? I laughed, which made her uneasy. I quickly apologized. It instantly brought two incidents to mind. First, an explanation by my grandfather when I was age five, then, a bloody nose I received at age 12.

I explained “Squaw” is a white word, not an Indian word. To white people, it means “Indian woman”. To Indian women, it is offensive and disrespectful. As a five-year-old traveling up the Methow Valley with my grandfather he explained this to me after I read the sign for Squaw Creek. “So, why is it called Squaw Creek?” I asked. He responded, “Because, the white man couldn’t speak Indian very well, so when told the Indian name of the place, ‘Swaram’, he changed it to ‘Squaw’.”

Next, at age 12, a senior boy provoked me by saying,

“Your sister is going to make a good ‘Squaw’.” I immediately jumped on him with the fury of an enraged bobcat. We were both bloodied. If you were keeping score, I probably lost. Twelve to fifteen years later at the Pateros Apple Pie Jamboree he approached me, gesturing to let him speak. “I have always been ashamed of what I said about your sister, I respect her and your family. Please accept my apology.” We shook hands.

When Joanna opened this issue, she asked, “what is the proper way to start?” I suggested that Elaine Timentwa was the eldest Methow woman that would freely talk to this issue from a language and cultural perspective. Elaine confirmed two points: yes, this word is offensive, and there has always been an Indian name that means “torch light fishing at night”. Swaram Creek is the name of the drainage that describes the traditions and history of that place.

After starting this process the proper “Indian” way, Joanna started the process the proper “white” way. Emotions have been stirred!! She has been criticized, threatened, and labeled a “newcomer” and an “outsider”. Those opposed cite decades, maybe even 100 years, of history in the Methow Valley. Archaeologist Stan Gough relates that the Methow People have probably lived here for 13,000 years. So, in relative terms of time, Swaram Creek has only been misnamed for about 150 years.

I agreed to support Joanna’s efforts. I gave her permission to refer those that would oppose her to talk to me. I have read most of the letters in protest. I recognize many of those names. Only one person has approached me to tell me how the Indian people should “feel.” After a brief discussion of our shared school, community events, and raising our families in the Methow – until that day he did not realize that “squaw” was demeaning and disrespectful. His name is not on these letters of protest.

It has been pointed out that an Alaskan Native woman is in protest. She lives on Squaw Creek. My mother befriended her because she was Native and she was so far displaced from her family. I am certain on their initial encounters, if she referred to my mother as a “squaw”, they would not have become friends.

I have tried to add some Native perspective to this issue and hope I haven’t offended anyone.

Over the past month I have struggled to find an answer considering the protests against change. This River, Valley, and communities are the reason we choose to live here. With these shared commonalities, my unanswered question to the protest argument is this: Why do you fight so hard, to offend the Native Methow People?

Respectfully,

Reichert support SAFE

Congressman Reichert, please cosponsor the SAFE Act and do all you can to stop horse slaughter.

Horse slaughter plants have been closed in the U.S. for the last ten years, and we need to continue to keep them closed, as well as prevent the transport of horses abroad for slaughter in Canada and Mexico.

More than 80% of Americans disagree with the practice of horse slaughter, nor is the meat consumed in America. Therefore it is an easy way to conserve American tax dollars by not supporting this industry from reopening.

Additionally, American horsemeat is potentially hazardous to humans. Throughout a horse's lifetime it is given any range of medications that improve their health and performance, but are strictly forbidden for animals intended to enter the food chain. Exposing foreign consumers to a likely toxic product is not a wise risk to take.

Finally, the existence of horse slaughter enables reckless overbreeding by providing a profitable outlet for irresponsible owners. Prohibiting slaughter and the transport for slaughter, will force breeders to produce sustainable numbers each year, and will help to humanely prevent unwanted horses.

Please call Representative Reichert at (202)-225 - 7761 and urge him to help end horse slaughter and support the SAFE Act.

Pragmatic Trump must work with Dems

Our president, the rogue, loose cannon, drain-the-swamp guy that we the people elected, must work with the Democrats for the good of the country.

So, you voted for Hillary and hate "The Donald," think him a sexist, a racist, an ignoramus -- and those are your "nice" ways to describe him.

OK, now back to reality. This "embarrassment" of a president just struck a deal with "Nancy and Chuck" and now all the anti-Trumpes must deal with it. He has already shown enough patience with the do-nothing Congress.

He is not just crazy like a fox, but he has made duplicate keys to the henhouse and can come and go as he pleases. For nearly a decade the GOP have had numerous opportunities to make needed corrections to the socialist, far left Democrat agenda, but have failed to do so.

APPLES

In order to accomplish at least some the of people-mandated conservative agenda Trump was forced to strike a deal with Pelosi and Schumer and show the "leadership" in the House and Senate how to negotiate.

McConnell and Ryan have been lobbing bombs at anything Obama for so long they have forgotten how to play well with others to get a bill passed and check some boxes on their own wish list.

The debt ceiling/hurricane aid package is just the first of many bipartisan deals Trump will have to make out of both frustration and expediency, but it sure won't be the last.

"Mitch and Paul" had better start talking to Nancy and Chuck and get on this compromise train of thought or get run over by it.

Trump has already proven his bellicose words against a North Korean midget has, so far, been an effective tool towards putting doubt into the world's mind as to just how much of a madman our "Dear Leader" really is. "Don't think I won't pull the nuclear trigger," the Trump "thought bubble" tells the world in his own cartoonish fashion.

The deal our golden-haired Commander-in-Chief has just struck with the other side of the isle is like a mini-nuclear political bomb and the fallout has been and will be tremendous.

Even Steve Bannon, the guy who wants to deconstruct government, understands the GOP leadership is still enamored with its own swamp stench.

Yes, even Bannon of the alt-right understands the art of the deal must be exercised in order to accomplish a breakage of the logjam.

Bannon appeared on Charlie Rose and said all that in no uncertain terms.

Surely if Bannon and his ilk understand this, why can't the Republican Party?

Continued stubborn attitudes by the extreme right will just keep pushing Trump towards the moderate middle. Moderates can take heart and would welcome changing DACA, Obamacare, immigration and tax laws as opposed to the do-nothings still protecting their turf in the swamp.

Give our newfound bipartisan Trump a chance to get things done. The do-nothings have been great at complaining for eight years, now it's time to shut up and give the people these needed changes.

I am not a psychic, but it doesn't take one to know the 2018 mid-term elections will bode badly for the Republican House and Senate incumbents if the Grand Old Party can't keep the promises they made in the 2016 election.

Trump was elected to be the agent of change, not the same-old, same-old, go-along-to-get-along kind of pabulum offered by the other presidential candidates.

Change is often painful, but the Republican Party must give the people what they voted for or suffer the consequences in 2018.

Top Congressional priority: Comprehensive immigration reform

Everybody admits that the DACA program is unconstitutional. It was unconstitutional when Obama implemented it through an illegal executive order.

Americans across the political spectrum seem to agree however that these are innocent children who should not be held responsible for the illegal acts of their parents.

But I have a few questions.

First, where are those parents now? Even assuming they are qualified “dreamers” in their 30’s, their parents should still be alive. Are those parents still in the U.S.? Have they been deported or are they still here illegally? If their parents are alive and have returned to their native country then these dreamers should return home. They are probably better educated than their counterparts back home and will undoubtedly prosper there and possibly make their homeland a better place as a result of their American experience.

Second, at what point in their lives did they learn they were here illegally? If their parents are still here illegally then they are complicit in maintaining the status of their parents. As such they should be required to leave with their illegal parents. If on the other hand their parents have already been deported then they should be required to return to their homeland.

Those who want to just grant these young people amnesty describe them as having been brought here as an infant, but they were not all infants when they first came here and many of them were undoubtedly aware of their status. As a result, at some point they were complicit in the illegality “imposed” on them by their parents.

In other words, while it is unpleasant to consider the hardship these young people may face we must look at them as individual cases not as a blanket class that is excused from responsibility.

Our immigration system is a mess and most if not all of the Americans who supported Trump are upset with the Federal Government’s refusal to deal with the problem.

Trump is right to put pressure on Congress to deal with this issue because amnesty is not an option to most Americans.

Living here in North Central Washington it is clear we need a worker visa program. Our fruit orchards are all crying out for pickers and if they don't get enough workers soon much valuable fruit will be lost.

Uncontrolled immigration will not result in a stronger and more prosperous America. Most Americans understand this. Most Americans recognize that a stronger America is good for the whole world because, like it or not, we have become the world’s police force.

There are many evil dictators around the globe who see American generosity as a weakness to be exploited.

We must make sure our country remains economically and militarily strong if we truly hope to continue to be a beacon of hope for the rest of the world.

Becoming a welfare state for the rest of the world’s poor and disadvantaged will not help us spread the light of freedom. Standing up for individual freedom against the failed and totalitarian systems around the world will do more to improve the quality of life for all global citizens.

Bridgeport fields young football team as rebuilding continues

By Mike Maltais
Staff Writer

BRIDGEPORT – Following a winless season last year as the varsity football program worked to rebuild its team after a year’s hiatus, the Mustangs remain a young team with only five upper classmen on its 23-man roster.

Bridgeport varsity assistant coach, Nain Sanchez said three seniors and two juniors are among the 12 returning veterans from last season’s team but overall team numbers are about the same as last year.

Both Sanchez and head varsity coach Pat McFadden are former Bridgeport football players.

“I played all through middle and high school,” Sanchez said.

McFadden was a member of the 1988 state champion Mustang team.

The coaches are taking a longer view on the rebuilding philosophy, said Sanchez, by applying some of the same practice and play routines to the middle school football program.

“That will help those young players be better prepared to play at the varsity level,” Sanchez said.

Bridgeport faces eight tough Central Washington 2B League opponents in Tonasket, Waterville, Manson, Liberty Bell, Brewster, Oroville, Lake Roosevelt and Soap Lake this season.

The Mustangs had to forfeit their non-league season road opener to Chewelah on Friday, Sept. 1. Against the defending league champion Tonasket Tigers last Friday, Sept. 8, the Mustangs lost 44-3.

Bridgeport welcomes Waterville to its season home opener at 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 15.

Fillies varsity volleyball returns a wealth of veteran talent

By Mike Maltais
Staff Writer

BRIDGEPORT – When varsity volleyball head coach, Paige Stevie, stepped into her new position with the Fillies this year she must have been grateful for the talent she should work with as a first-year coach.

Stevie has a roster of nearly two dozen girls turning out for the team this year and six of those are returning senior veterans.

Seniors Emily Saucedo, Kaiden Morris, Jamin LeDuc and Maura Morales will fill four of the six starter positions with junior Taylor Munson and sophomore Giselle Garcia tapped for the remaining two. Saucedo will be a setter, LeDuc, Morales and Garcia, hitters and Morris and Munson hitter/blockers).

Stevie a former high school varsity volleyball player and 2011 graduate of Liberty Bell High School in Winthrop, attended Eastern Washington University before accepting the position as Bridgeport’s varsity volleyball coach and middle school English teacher.

The Fillies are coming off a fifth-place finish in the 2016 Central Washington 2B season with three wins and four losses in league play and 6-9 overall.

Bridgeport dropped a close 3-2 season opener on the road against Lake Roosevelt, Sept. 5. They lost a non-league game, 3-0, to the 1A Caribou Trail League Okanogan Bulldogs last Thursday, Sept. 7. The Fillies played Soap Lake on the road last Monday, Sept. 11, and lost, 0-3.

Bridgeport’s first home game welcomes Manson at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 21.

Smoke cancels opener

Bridgeport varsity girls open home soccer season against Ephrata

By Mike Maltais
Staff Writer

BRIDGEPORT – Following the cancellation of their opening season game against The Lady Bulldogs at Okanogan last Friday, Sept. 8, due to heavy wildfire smoke conditions, the Fillies varsity soccer team hosted 2A Ephrata’s C team last Monday afternoon, Sept. 11.

Bridgeport lost its non-league home opener, 4-0 to the Lady Tigers but picked up some valuable experience along the way.

“We have many new players,” said coach Gabe Gonzalez. “It was a good game for us to learn from and improve on.”

The Fillies lost five seniors to graduation last June including two that made CW2B All-League. Bridgeport made is past the first round of Central Washington 2B League district play with a win over Mabton but lost to defending league champion Liberty Bell.

Returning veterans include Alondra Jimenez, Erika Santana, Karla Torres, Angelica Arellano, Becky Hernandez, Birdie Ekenbarger and Itzel Muniz

Muniz is the only returning veteran who, as a midfielder, made last season’s CW2Ball-League Second Team.

Veteran goalkeepers Birdie Ekenbarger and Becky Hernandez each saw a half of play against Ephrata.

Ekenbarger was the goalie for the first half and had 10 saves,” said Gonzalez. “Hernandez was the goalie for the second half and had six saves.”

The Fillies meet the Omak Pioneers of the 1A Caribou Trail League on the road, Thursday, Sept. 14.
