Cameron Quinn combines high school with Civil Air Patrol pursuits

By Mike Maltais STAFF WRITER

PATEROS - High school senior Cameron Quinn is not only a young man in a hurry, but also one who knows where he wants to go how and how to get there. The 16-year-old will graduate with both his high school diploma and an Associate in Arts (AA) degree from Wenatchee Valley College.

But that's not all.

While a full-time student at Pateros High School, Quinn has also found time to pursue his extracurricular activity of choice, training in the student cadet corps of the U.S. Air Force Auxiliary Civil Air Patrol (CAP) at the Northern Desert Composite Squadron in Omak.

"I became interested in the CAP because of its emphasis on aerospace education, such as in piloting and...the engineering aspect as well," said Quinn. "I was also interested in its emphasis on military traditions."

Quinn joined the CAP at its Pangborn Composite Squadron in Wenatchee when he was 13. He transferred to the Omak Desert Composite Squadron "because the fires made it uneconomical to drive all the way down to Wenatchee when my family lived in Mazama" said Quinn. "After moving back to Chelan last summer, I just continued to attend meetings

Quinn said military-related service also figures into his

"Í would like to eventually serve in the military or at least the DOD (Department of Defense)," said Quinn and mentioned the Air Force, Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA)

"I don't necessarily want to make the military my career," said Quinn, "but I do definitely want to serve for a duration of time, maybe 4-8 years."

Quinn's interest in aviation started at an early age, no doubt due to the number of family members who were actively engaged in the field.

"My father, who used to fly helicopters for recreational purposes, would frequently take me to the Museum of Flight (at Boeing Field in Seattle) to help me learn more and develop further interest in the subject," said Quinn. "My great grandfather (Cecil P. Jones) was a pioneer of aviation."

Quinn wrote an essay for college last year about his ancestor's involvement in several famous aviation ventures.

Cecil B. Jones started his aviation career as an engineer on Charles Lindbergh's Spirit

He was the last living member of the crew that build the plane," Quinn said.

Jones then signed on with Boeing as head chief engineer on the B-series bombers and served as Northrup's representative to Boeing.

"He also worked with his friend, Howard Hughes on the Spruce Goose (H-4 Hercules)," Quinn said.

Jones eventually founded his own contracting company to produce airplane parts and worked on the B-2 Spirit, the strategic stealth bomber.

Quinn's uncle, also an avid pilot, "has helped educate me on the subject as well as offer me flights in his plane," Quinn

The family owns a Cessna 172 hangared at the Chelan Airport and Quinn said he hopes to start working through the pilot licensing process next summer.

As for his CAP goals, Quinn said he wants to earn the Spaatz Award, the CAP's highest cadet honor and named after Air Force general Carl A. Spaatz, the first Chief of Staff of the Air Force and first Chairman of the CAP National Board. He achieved the rank of Cadet First Lieutenant last July.

"I attended the 2016 summer basic encampment at Camp Casey, Wash., and a NCSA (National Cadet Special Activity) - Space Command Familiarization Course - this summer in Colorado Springs," Quinn said.

tacted by a Washington State Department of Transportation (WSDOT) engineer requested comments and ideas from city officials concerning what WSDOT can do to make the crossing safer.

Council members were unanimous that driver speed feedback signs that show drivers their driving speed through restricted speed zones, would be a welcome addition.

Accordingly, council endorsed the driver feedback signs and maintenance of the existing lights at the crosswalk near the Exxon station.

"Those lights aren't shining very well," said Webster and attributed the problem to the need to replace the solar batteries at that location.

"Solar works great when you first start out," said Webster but added that over time the lights can decrease in effectiveness.

WSDOT added that State Patrol sources also advised them that "the milepost 260.03 pedestrian crossing lights were not functional."

In follow up correspondence with the WSDOT representative, Webster passed on three council recommendations:

- · Placement of driver feedback signs.
- · Maintain lights and batteries at crosswalks on State
- · Updated lighting, batteries and controls on signs within school zones.

The age difference between the two crosswalks on SR 97 account for part of the safety issue, Webster said. The Exxon crosswalk "has been there a while," Webster said.

The crosswalk west of Seventh Street "is brand new." said Webster. "It works exceptionally well if people push the (crossing) button."

Webster cited the crossing at Ferry and Bridge streets as a good example of a "great light that you can see" from many vantage points.

"But people must push the button when they want to cross," reminded Webster. "Drivers fly up and down Bridge Street."

Fredric Iver Schmidt

Fredric Iver Schmidt, born March 24, 1954 died at his home in Mansfield on August 25, 2017 following a sudden

He graduated from Bridgeport High School in 1972. Fred later attended Washington State University and Seattle Central Community College. While Fredric had lived in Mansfield for almost 40 years at the time of his death, Bridgeport was his home town

He supported the schools and all sports programs in both communities. He rarely missed Bridgeport Daze and Mansfield Play Days. The

who was an avid collector of all things an apt description of Fred.

At age 14 Fredric got his agricultural driver's license and started working with his father on the family farms in Mansfield and Leahy. He was employed for five years at Western Farm Service in Mansfield. Later he became a teamster and drove for Mumma Trucking first from their Brewster office and then from the Chelan office.

He spent a number of years at Hanford transportin workers and had various other short term driving positions before his health required him to discontinue trucking. At the time of his passing, he had been employed for a number of years by Jason and JoAnn Tanneberg once again working on a farm.

A lot change during the almost 50 years that Fredric was a farmer- he was always happy to be on the tractor or up in the combine making his way around a field, the only thing better than farming was telling stories about farming. Fred was a member of the Lake Woods Golf Course and played there for many years. He rode snowmobiles, downhill skied, water skied, enjoyed fishing and boating and followed several professional sports teams especially the Seahawks.

Fred survived kidney cancer in 2007 and thereafter he was a regular participant in the Relay for Life events in Okanogan. From the time he was a small boy, Fred had a good and giving heart. He was always the first to volunteer to help anyone he knew no matter how small or large the task. He was a gifted storyteller (like his father) and seemed to have an encyclopedic knowledge of all things related to families in Bridgeport or Mansfield (like his mother.) He was a loyal friend to many and will be remembered for his hearty laugh and big smile.

Fredric is survived by his sister, Kathleen E. Schmidt, Portland, Oregon and his beloved niece, Emily E. Schmidt, Portland, Oregon as well as his aunt. Ann Bolander of Richland.

He was preceded in death by his much loved grandparents, Fred and Myrtle Schmidt and by his parents, Wayne F. Schmidt and Olive E. Schmidt who had all made their homes in Bridgeport.

His life-long friends, Hal Rogers, Mark Steele and Jerry

Steele always had his back. A Celebration of Life service will be held at the Barnes Chapel in Brewster, Wash. on September 8, 2017 at 11 a.m. A luncheon at the Bridgeport Eagles will follow at 1 p.m. Memorials can be made to the American Cancer Society, the Mansfield Ambulance or the charity of your choice.

Please leave any thoughts and memories for the family at www.barneschapel.com. Services are entrusted to Barnes Chapel of Brewster.

Productive August in Central Washington

In the Fourth Congressional District, the August district work period has been a busy time for me traveling up and down Central Washington to meet with constituents and hear their concerns firsthand.

Many communities in our area are dealing with dry weather and wildfires, which are a constant reminder of the vital need for federal land management reform. I held a Forest Service Advisory Panel in Omak with community members, and the feedback I received is that the U.S.

Forest Service needs to improve forest health through active thinning and burning. Local residents also stressed that the Forest Service budget should be prioritized to address forest health needs. I could not agree more, and these improvements have been a focus of my work in Congress. I was also encouraged that the U.S. Forest Service Northwest Regional Office finalized and adopted a recommendation, which I requested, to maintain the North Cascade Smokejumper Base in Winthrop.

I will continue to work on these priorities on behalf of our rural areas across Central Washington that are prone to wildfire threats.

Cong. Dan Newhouse

Agriculture and water issues were front and center in Ritzville, where I sat down with Adams County community members to receive local input on the upcoming Farm Bill. As a farmer myself, I know just how critical federal policy changes are for farming communities nationwide and in Central Washington. I also heard concerns about improving water infrastructure, which is an important local issue for agriculture.

In Yakima, I held a senior symposium to bring together support organizations and resources for our local seniors. My event focused on assisting seniors navigate Social Security and Medicare, as well as steps to take to protect personal information from identity theft.

I am working hard in Congress to improve the economic climate for Washington families, and that means hearing from local businesses on challenges they face. I met with entrepreneurs and community leaders in Prosser and the Tri-Cities to discuss ways to help employers and small businesses through simplifying the tax code. I was honored to receive the "Spirit of Enterprise Award" at the Tri-City Regional Chamber of Commerce for supporting pro-growth policies. Another community highlight was getting the chance to attend the ribbon-cutting for a new transportation hub in Moses Lake, which shows the exciting local improvements in Grant County as it grows and prospers.

Now it is as important as ever that we ensure our veterans are receiving the care they deserve, which was the reason I hosted a veterans resource and benefits fair in Tonasket. I spoke with veterans about their concerns with navigating the Veterans Choice program, which has a new importance in light of the closure of the local veterans' clinic.

The input I have received from veterans, seniors, farmers, entrepreneurs, and from all constituents I met with during August will be important for me to represent Central Washington as Congress comes back into session.

Help your fellow Americans, but beware of scams

Red Cross Hurricane Harvey - You Can Help Make A Difference

redcross.org/Disaster-Relief/Hurricane

The website above is the one I trust because I know the American Red Cross, have donated blood to them for years and having also received help from them.

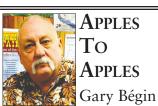

I also trust the Salvation Army for some of the same reasons as above. Their website is: The Salvation Army - A Donation Makes a Difference give.salvationarmyusa. org/.

I like to speak from firsthand personal experience when I can and in this case I can. I was an editor for a weekly rag in Beaumont, Texas about 18 years ago and then I was hired to be a "cops and courts" and "government" reporter for the Pt. Arthur News in Pt. Arthur,

I can verify without a doubt that both towns are flat as a pancake and it wouldn't take much to cause a flood.

Southeast Texas is basically a coastal piedmont as is much of its Eastern neighbors in the Bayous of Louisiana. Chambers County Texas, celebrates itself as the Alligator Capital of Texas and throws a party to remind folks of that fact every year.

The city of Galveston is basically just a big island and Galveston County is nothing more than a couple more islands added in. I believe part of the Bolivar Peninsula to the north makes up the rest of it.

Folks in North Central Washington are surrounded by beautiful mountains and well behaved rivers and a lake or two here and there, but way down South water has a mind of its own.

Car ferries are everywhere, bridges abound and many of the Interstates cross bodies of water masquerading as nothing more than causeways built precariously close to the water even on a nice day.

If you are ever down that way, take I-10 from Houston to New Orleans and you'll see exactly what I mean.

Back around the turn of the last century, Galveston barely survived a hurricane that killed 10,000 people and nearly completely destroyed the town. Imagine those kind of numbers today? It would be unthinkable and FEMA, state and county government heads would roll.

The city built a huge 20foot high seawall in response, but even that isn't enough to block Mother Nature when she's got her dander up.

Hurricane Harvey will be the most expensive natural disaster in U.S. history, AccuWeather said last week, estimating the full cost at close to $160 billion. That's more than Katrina and Sandy combined.

Having lived in Houston and Beaumont, I can assure readers here the importance of the oil refinery business in that part of our nation.

Pt. Arthur has a major oil terminal and unknown (to everyday Washingtonians) are other major oil refineries and ports all along that part of the Gulf. Places like League City, La Porte, Texas City, Baytown, Crosby and La Marque are some of the other towns heavily populated by those who supply refined oil (gasoline, kerosene, etc.) to the rest of the country and many other chemical products.

To put the area in another perspective, the infamous, but yet to be built Keystone Pipeline was eventually supposed to end in Pt. Arthur and then be loaded into ships from there.

ometoth STEP RIGHT UP, FELLAS — DON'T BE BASHFUL! AIN'T THAT AMAZIN'?-A

The area is also home to offshore oil rigs planted all over the Western Gulf of Mexico. When I wanted to have some fun and drink a few beers, I'd go to Galveston and take a deep sea eight-hour fishing cruise, which inevitably ended up at one of these rigs because that's where the big fish congregated, treating it as if they were coral reefs.

Red Snapper, Grouper, Spanish Mackerel and Blacktipped shark were plentiful and great on the "barbee."

Back to reality. Please donate generously to the Hurricane Harvey relief efforts, but don't fall for phone or mail scams operated by the worst of humanity trying to take advantage of the best of us who just want to help our neighbors in need.

TALKIN'PIG!

If you don't trust the internet, you can physically go to the local American Red Cross or Salvation Army offices in your town and personally hand them a check.

They are both verifiable non-profits so make sure you get a receipt for tax purposes. There is one more organization taking the lead in these massive relief efforts in the wake of Harvey and that is Americares.org. "Americares is a non-profit disaster relief and global health organization providing immediate response to emergency medical needs and supporting longterm health care initiatives for people in the United States and around the world," according to its website.

The only reason I haven't mentioned it earlier is that I have no personal experience with that particular organization.

Gary Bégin's opinions are his own and do not reflect opinions of ownership or coworkers of NCW Media. I can be reached via direct email: gary@ncwmedia.net.

Wildfires to impact fall hunting season this year

Submitted by HOLLY KRAKE, USFS

WENATCHEE— With a variety of hunting season beginning on Sept. 1, Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest officials are encouraging hunters to know and comply with current campfire restrictions and area closures in place across the National Forest. While thousands of roads and trails remain open, others have been closed for public safety.

"Hunting is a very important use of the Forest. As folks get out into the woods, it's imperative to know what areas are closed due to wildfires and have campfire bans," said Forest Deputy Fire Staff Officer Matt Castle. "Safety is important to all of us."

Due to wildfire activity in many areas of the Forest, public access to some roads, trails, and general forest recreation areas is restricted. Before heading out, hunters should check on forest closures, campfire bans, and current wildfire status at www.fs.usda.gov/okawen or from local national forest offices. A map showing closure areas for the Forest can be found at http:// arcg.is/2vpoLOz. Information about large wildfires burning in Washington is available on Inciweb at inciweb.nwcg.gov/ state/49/#

"Our number one priority is human safety and we want to avoid accidents and injuries as much as possible. Stump holes, unstable soils, flooding potential, washed out roads, and falling trees and branches are all things that forest users need to be aware of," Castle said. "Any time you enter the forest, you should be aware of your environment and changing weather conditions. The environment in and adjacent to recently burned areas is highly susceptible to rainstorms and wind events."

In addition to fire closures, campfire bans are in effect Forest-wide. Forest visitors are prohibited from maintaining, attending or using a fire or campfire along with the use of charcoal briquette barbecues, Tiki torches and other devices that use solid fuel. Recreationists can use pressurized liquid gas stoves as an alternative; go to http:// bit.ly/2xvnIdA for a list of approved and non-approved campfire options. Most of the forest remains in an Industrial Fire Precautionary Level III in which all firewood cutting is prohibited. Contact local national forest offices for woodcutting information.

BREWSTER - They waited until the second half to do it, but the Brewster Bears, on the strength of two touchdowns from freshman running back Gio Nila, held off a tenacious Liberty Bell team for a 14-6 win in last Friday's home opener at Champion Field. Nila rushed from three and five yards out for the two scores.

Nila had nine carries for 42 yards, plus two pass receptions for another 12 yards.

Head coach Jake Johanson credited his defense with holding the Mountain Lions to a single TD that came after Brewster turned the ball over deep in Bears' territory on the Senior Connor Wiggs called a quarterback keeper after the second TD and ran the ball for the second conversion attempt for Brewster's final points.

Johanson singled out the play of several on his team who help contribute to Brewster's first-game win.

Junior Alfredo Nila "played a great game on defense leading the team with eight tackles, a sack and one blocked kick," Johanson

Senior defensive back Ricardo Gallaga added six tackles and a pass break-up to the defensive effort.

"Anthony Talavera had a huge sack on third down to force them into a long passing situation late in the game," Johanson said.

Wiggs connected on eight of 12 passes for 38 yards and added another 40 yards on the ground.

At the offensive wide receiver position, Ricardo Gallaga carried the ball 11 times for 46 yards and caught five passed for another 25 yards.

The Bears face Omak of the 1A Caribou Trail League in a non-league encounter on the road at 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 8

"Omak will be a huge test for us as we move forward," said Johanson. "We get some more bodies for this game and will have to run the ball more effectively and play great defense again to have a chance against them."

Pateros, Bridgeport teams fall to non-league opponents

By MIKE MALTAIS STAFF WRITER

PATEROS - The Billygoats varsity football team put up a good first half fight but lost to a surging Cusick team 68-26 in the final two quarters of their first home game last Friday, Sept. 1.

The Panthers fielded a team of large players who wore down the Pateros varsity as the game progressed. Cusick led by only eight points, 28-20 at halftime but used their running game and two-point conversions to pile on the points through the third and fourth quarters.

Coach Marcus Stennes said his team "played a good first quarter both offensively and defensively but fatigue and lack of tackling" allowed Cusick to extend the score in the third quarter.

The Billygoats' combination of quarterback Jeremy Piechalski to receiver Ivan Ceniceros kept Pateros in the game in the first half "but it just wasn't enough," Stennes said.

Piechalski connected on 12 of 30 passes for 299 yards. Ceniceros caught six of 14 passes for 149 yards and two touchdowns. Receivers Andrew Gonzalez (2-5) and Dan Rossman (2-3) each scored a TD.

Pateros will be on the road this Friday, Sept. 8, to play Tekoa-Rosalia.

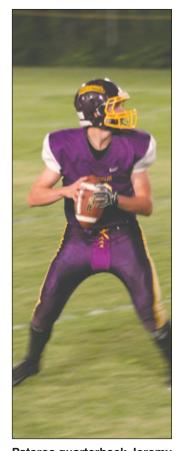

"This week we are focusing on our defense and getting in much better shape," said Stennes.
