By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BRIDGEPORT -- An adult male who sustained a single gunshot wound last Friday, July 21, in Bridgeport is reported to be in stable condition and recovering at Confluence Hospital in Wenatchee, according to a report last Saturday, July 22, from Douglas County Sheriff, Harvey Gjesdal.

The incident was reported at about 11:05 p.m. when the victim was transported to Three Rivers Hospital in Brewster.

The shooting occurred near the 800 block of Fairview Avenue and was reported to Okanogan County Dispatch.

"The shooting had occurred in Bridgeport so Douglas County Deputies were dispatched to the scene," said Gjesdal. "The victim was flown to Confluence Hospital and is reported to be stable condition."

Gjesdal said the case remains under investigation and no additional details are being released at this time.

"Anyone with information on this shooting is asked to call the Douglas County Sheriff's Office or RiverCom dispatch immediately," Gjesdal said.

The Douglas County Sheriff can be reached at (509) 884-0941. The number for RiverCom 911 is (509) 663-9911.

Wet a line at 12th annual Brewster Salmon Derby

BREWSTER – Salmon fishermen from around the Northwest are aiming their fish finders at Brewster in anticipation of the 12th annual Brewster King Salmon Derby, Friday-Saturday-Sunday, August 4-5-6.

More than $20,000 in cash and prizes for the largest salmon caught in the adult, youth and child divisions will be just part of the fun and excitement.

A Kid's Sockeye Derby was added last year to encourage more youth participation. The 2016 winning sockeye weighed 3.16 pounds.

Anglers have until Monday, July 31, to purchase tickets and can register online at brewstersalmonderby.com.

Last year the derby drew 226 paid entries with 122 king salmon crossing the scales.

The largest king caught in the adult division tipped the scales at 26.06 pounds and the youth division winner weighed 15 pounds.

Sources at Yancey's Pateros Hardware, where many visiting fishermen stock up on fresh bait and tackle, said last Tuesday that about 30,000 salmon have passed over Wells Dam so far and should be cruising the Upper Columbia during derby time.

National Night Out returns to Brewster, Aug. 1

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER – Reserve the four hours between 5 and 9 p.m. Tuesday, August 1, to participate in National Night Out and meet some of the folks who make it their business to look out for your family's welfare and safety.

The Brewster Police Department is hosting the event at Columbia Cove Park, 604 W. Cliff Avenue in a continuing effort to build its police-community partnerships.

Millions of neighbors in thousands of communities across the nation come together at the annual event to promote police and citizen interaction under positive circumstances.

The Brewster Chamber of Commerce will provide free food while the Brewster Boys and Girls Club will provide a variety of family fun and games.

Pateros Council approves Pederson Road Project, other resolutions

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – At its regular monthly meeting, Tuesday, July 18, the city council approved the Pederson Road Neighborhood Project that will resolve ownership and utility issues in the 20-unit, 2.78-acre Pateros Trailer Court and address a long-range plan for the approximate 75-acres comprising the Pederson Road neighborhood.

The council approval followed the city's receipt of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) planning funds applied for in March 2016.

Council also approved a resolution allowing Erlandsen & Associates to proceed with consulting and survey services to adjust boundary lines on Beach and Chris streets adjacent to Pateros School District property.

Earlier surveys performed by both the school and the city revealed that property lines were not in alignment with those of as-built conditions.

Council members also approved a deed correction for Ives Street where it runs through school property and has been found to be outside the deeded property lines.

"This feels really good to clean this all up," said mayor Carlene Anders. "I think it's going to help for the next 50 years down the road."

The Ives Landing landscape contract was awarded to low bidder, Wilson and Wilson Landscaping of Pateros, in the amount of $34,754.15 as a result of bid requests issued on June 8.

In a vote to establish clear guidelines for city staff to follow, council approved a resolution adopting Policy and Procedure for Work Orders.

Tapani Underground, Inc. of Battle Ground, was the lowest among four bidders for the city's Cemetery Reservoir Project. Tapani's was the only bid below $2 million and matched the city engineer's estimate of $1,868,659.84. Council approved Tapani for the job.

The city received two bids for its Test/Production Wells Project and awarded the contract to Blue Star Enterprises of Richland, the low bidder at $94,598.31.

Council also approved two vacations of rights-of-way related to properties adjacent to the school, after Erlandsen & Associates discovered the discrepancies.

"We actually found both of those while surveying for the school," Chris Erlandsen explained.

"So, this will clean both of those properties and give them to the school," Anders confirmed.

Council approved the vacations conditional upon the school covering the costs incurred.

City planner, Jord Wilson advised council that he has discussed the issue and attendant costs with Pateros School Superintendent, Lois Davies.

Brewster PD investigators determine kids cause of Vista Park blaze

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER – Police department fire investigators have concluded that youngsters playing with a lighter near the Vista Park Homes Apartments, at 509 S. Fourth Street, caused the fire that eventually destroyed two of the complex's 13 buildings that left more than two dozen residents homeless, July 12.

A media release from Brewster Police Lieutenant, Kelly Hook said that a witness "identified several young juvenile males playing with a lighter and burning items near the concession stand just south of the apartment complex."

Hook said three juvenile males identified as being at the scene were interviewed and confessed to burning paper near the fire's origin.

"Because of the age of the juvenile males there were no arrests made at this time," Hook wrote.

The case was referred to the Okanogan County Prosecutor for further review.

"Any charges will come from their office," Hook wrote.

This pile of debris adjacent to the northwest corner of a Little League concession building was identified by Brewster police investigators as the origin of a fire that damaged two buildings in the Vista Park Homes complex July 12.

The flames damaged the stand and ignited to a border of arborvitae and other screening vegetation as it spread to the residential buildings.

Fire units from Brewster, Bridgeport, Pateros, Okanogan, Malott, Omak and Methow responded to the call and quickly confined the blaze to two of the 13 buildings in Vista Park.

The Brewster Police Department and Public Works Department, Douglas County Sheriff's office and Washington State Patrol managed traffic and street access

Residents displaced by the fire damage, who had no other place to go, took shelter at a Red Cross shelter set up at Brewster High School.

Earlier this year, the Brewster City Council approved the transfer of the 25-unit Vista Park Home complex, the city's only Low-Income Housing Tax Credit (LIHTC) property, to the Okanogan County Housing Authority.

While the ownership transfer was approved at the council's March 8 meeting, the actual paperwork had not yet been finalized at the time of the fire, said Brewster city clerk, Misty Ruiz.

"The buildings were fully insured," Ruiz said.

The fire, deliberately started by several youngsters playing with a lighter, burned the shrubbery along the west side of the Vista Park Homes and spread to two buildings before firefighters brought the blaze under control.

Three Rivers Hospital sponsors free student sports physicals

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER -- Three Rivers Hospital Foundation is sponsoring free sports physicals for all students in the Brewster, Bridgeport, Mansfield, Methow Valley, and Pateros school districts at the Brewster Boys and Girls Club (BBGC), from 4-7 p.m. Thursday, July 27.

Volunteers from Three Rivers Hospital will be at the BBGC Brewster Boys and Girls Club to administer the physicals. Parents must be in attendance or send a signed permission slip for students to receive a physical.

"We are providing this service as part of our mission to serve our community by developing philanthropic support for Three Rivers Hospital in their goal to provide the ideal patient experience for our families, community, and visitors," a TRH media release said.

The service is part of the TRH vision "to ensure that each of you in our hospital district, the largest in the state of Washington, can receive exceptional healthcare close to home," the release said.

Citizens will soon be able to find more online information about the Three Rivers

Canyon Creek fire contained, hot spots will be monitored

By MIKE MALTAIS
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS -- It's all over but the monitoring of leftover hot spots on the Canyon Creek fire that started a mile north of Carlton on Saturday, July 15, and expanded to 1,200 acres before being contained Tuesday evening, July 18.

Evacuations alerts have been lifted, State Route 153 is open and engine patrols and the fire lookout will continue to watch the site after the Type 4 Incident Management Team departed the site last Sunday, July 23.

Hot spots remain within the fire footprint but since they are well within the fire perimeter, firefighters will be used sparingly for safety reasons.

"Extinguishing hot spots that do not pose a threat to containment lines would present unnecessary risk to firefighters," said Incident Commander, Kathleen Russell, in a media release on Saturday, July 22. "We must consider exposure of firefighters to risk versus the benefit of the actions we are asking them to take."

Since the interior pockets of combustible fuel are well within the containment perimeter, "exposing firefighters to work in steep, treacherous canyons would not provide worthwhile benefit," Russell said.

Trustee crews from the Washington Department of Corrections stepped in to continue mop-up and fire line suppression repair as agency firefighters were relieved.

Those crews, the incident command post and other support infrastructure left the area last Sunday. The Washington Department of Natural Resources (DNR) personnel will patrol the fire throughout the summer, "supported by the sharp eyes of Lightning Bill from the Leecher Mountain Lookout," U.S. Forest Service Public Information Officer, Shannon O'Brien said.

While the ignition point for the fire appeared to be immediately adjacent to the east side of State Route 153, the cause of the fire remains under investigation, said sources at the DNR's Northeast Region headquarters in Colville.

DNR crews in Twisp, 11 miles to the north of the fire were the first to respond to the blaze that broke out just after noon on July 15. A water tender based at the Pateros fire hall was dispatched at 12:45 p.m. to provide support.

Fire conditions remain high throughout the area as weather forecasts call for more hot weather in the weeks ahead.

Methow Valley Chamber Music Festival July 27-August 5

SUBMITTED BY JENNIFER STEPHENS, METHOW VALLEY CHAMBER MUSIC FESTIVAL

WINTHROP - Methow Valley Chamber Music Festival Enters 22nd Season 2017 Festival welcomes artists from around the world to a beautiful natural setting Classical musicians from China, London, New York and Seattle will headline the 22nd annual Methow Valley Chamber Music Festival, which runs July 27 to August 5 at Signal Hill Ranch near Winthrop.

Artistic Director Kevin Krentz is committed to presenting chamber music that is inspiring and uplifting. "We present live, energetic, virtuosic, extravagant music," he said. The year's program features familiar names like Beethoven and Brahms, works by less familiar composers like Schnittke, Smetana and Turina, as well as pieces that were composed or arranged by one of the performers. "There's something for everyone, even those who have never heard chamber music before," promises Krentz.

The Centerstage concerts have become a much-anticipated event each summer in the Methow. Along with returning Festival favorites and new world-class award-winning artists, the Festival also welcomes Washington state Poet Laureate Tod Marshall to the stage.

The concerts are held at Signal Hill Ranch, perched high on Signal Hill between Winthrop and Twisp, featuring breath-taking views of the surrounding valley. The grounds open at 6:00 PM for dining and socializing, with local vendors providing food and drink for purchase. A pre-concert presentation begins at 6:30 p.m., with the main concert following at 7:30 p.m. After the concert, patrons are invited to stay for an Afterglow party to meet the artists and gaze at the stars. The July 27 and 29

Afterglows will feature local astronomer Dave Ward, who will provide telescopes for viewing the stars.

Concertgoers can also visit The Piano Garden, a sculptural installation of a dozen pianos planted in the ground, and the visual Wall of Art, featuring works from local artists.

In addition to the main concerts, the Festival hosts many free events around the Methow Valley. A full schedule, program and ticket information can be found at www.methowmusicfestival.org.

Tickets for the Methow Valley Chamber Music Festival are $30.

Twisp mayor elected to Association of Washington Cities Board of Directors

SUBMITTED BY ALICIA SEEGER MARTINELLI, AWC

OLYMPIA -- The Association of Washington Cities (AWC) announced that Twisp Mayor Soo Ing-Moody was recently elected to its Board of Directors. She represents AWC district 3, representing cities in Chelan, Douglas, Grant, and Okanogan Counties.

Delegates representing cities across the state elected Ing-Moody to the AWC board during the association's Annual Business Meeting on June 22 in Vancouver, Wash. As AWC director for district 3, she represents one of AWC's largest geographic districts, which includes 37 cities and towns in the quad county area. AWC district 3 is a largely rural eastern Washington district, with 32 of the cities in the district with populations less than 5000, and 13 of these less than 1000.

"I believe in AWC to represent the interests of all cities and towns throughout Washington regardless of size or location," said Ing-Moody. "It's an honor to have been elected to serve on the AWC board and be part of the team to represent all cities and towns across our state. AWC focuses on the issues that matter most to cities and towns to ensure our municipalities thrive with equity of access to vital resources in support of sustainable public services affecting healthy economies, public safety, and social wellbeing."

Ing-Moody was appointed to the board in 2016 to fill a vacancy. She started on the Twisp council in 2010 before becoming mayor in October the same year. She was most recently re-elected mayor in 2015. She is actively involved in regional transportation planning and economic development organizations, and serves as co-chair of the Okanogan Council of Governments.

The AWC Board of Directors is the association's governing body. The board is comprised of 25 directors, 23 of whom are mayors or city councilmembers from Washington cities or towns, and two non-elected city officials who also serve as the president and past president of the Washington City/County Management Association.

AWC serves its members through advocacy, education and services. Founded in 1933, AWC is a private, nonprofit, nonpartisan corporation that represents Washington's cities and towns before the state legislature, the state executive branch, and with regulatory agencies. Membership is voluntary. However, AWC consistently maintains 100 percent participation from Washington's 281 cities and towns. AWC also provides training, data and publications, and programs such as the AWC Employee Benefit Trust, AWC Risk Management Service Agency, AWC Workers' Comp Retro, AWC Drug and Alcohol Consortium, and AWC GIS Consortium.

For information about all new and re-elected officers and directors, visit the AWC website.

They're ba-a-a-ck! Mormon crickets (actually, shieldbacked katydid), who made their appearance in unusual numbers through various parts of Okanogan and Douglas counties last year, are back again this year, although in visibly lesser numbers than 2016. Often seen crossing country roads, like the female pictured here, Mormon crickets are roadkill opportunists, indifferent to the victim, even when it's a member of their own species.

Tips to make the most of your next outdoor adventure

(STATEPOINT) - Spending time enjoying nature is good for the body and mind, helping to reduce stress, increase focus and provide opportunities for physical activity, say studies. Unfortunately, our busy schedules sometimes don't allow us to get outside as often as we'd like.

But there is no time like the present to plan your next outdoor adventure. As you make your preparations, consider these tips for making the most of your trip.

Get Informed

Visiting a new place?

Learn more about the area, investigating its natural and social histories before you hit the trail, river route or campsite. You'll be more likely to identify rock types and plant and animal species with a bit of knowledge. This can also help you understand and appreciate what you are experiencing with greater depth.

Use Tech Tools

New tech gear is augmenting the outdoor experience for both casual adventurers and hardcore enthusiasts. For example, the Smart Outdoor Watch WSD-F20 from Casio has a rugged build, low power consumption GPS, is water resistant and features dedicated apps for outdoor activities. If downloaded prior to your journey, full color maps can be used offline. And because it offers a range of tools that can be used independent of your smartphone, including an altimeter, barometer, thermometer and compass, it frees up users to fully enjoy their adventures. Other features include a Location Memory app, which enables you to customize maps with markers and text so you can revisit otherwise unmarked spots, such as a great viewpoint or fishing spot.

Be Prepared

It's hard to be at one with nature when nature itself is making you miserable. So be prepared for all kinds of weather and climate conditions. If you are camping, patch or replace tents that are worn or torn and bring a tarp for extra protection. Check the weather report for temperature, precipitation and other factors and pack the proper clothing and sleeping bag accordingly. Make sure socks and shoes or hiking boots are in good shape so that long hikes don't cause you any undue pain. And of course, don't leave civilization without a first aid kit, water, sunscreen and insect repellent.

With a bit of extra preparation, you can take your outdoor adventures higher and farther than ever before.

Tips to keep outdoor summer fun going after dark (STATEPOINT) - Your outdoor summer fun doesn't have to stop after sundown.

Whether you're hosting a backyard barbecue, enjoying an evening hike, or simply hanging out with friends and family, these lighting tips from the experts at Energizer can keep summer fun going long after dark.

- Barbecuing? Ensure the grill master has sufficient lighting to do the job safely. Strategically placed lanterns on patio tables and near the grill will ensure the meat is cooked to perfection and guests enjoy a well-lit al fresco dining experience. Consider lanterns which provide 360-degree uniform lighting, such as those from Energizer, which have dimming capabilities, offering you more control of your outdoor lighting scheme.

- You may be closely familiar with every rock and stick in your backyard, but guests probably aren't. Before your next party or barbecue, illuminate pathways where guests will be moving about. Battery-powered or hardwired options will give guests sure footing throughout your yard.

- Incorporate flashlights into the fun itself. On your next camping trip, stake out a space for a game of flashlight tag. Bring enough lights so everyone can join in on the fun. Afterward, head back to the campfire and let your flashlight make your scary story that much spookier.

- Use the right lighting tools for evening hikes and neighborhood dog walks. A lightweight headlight with pivoting functionality can help you direct light where it's needed and keep your hands free to clear bramble, get a tighter hold of that leash, or snap a photo of the evening sky. Consider headlights from Energizer, which are water resistant and drop-tested to stand up to tough conditions.

For more lighting solutions that will brighten your summer nights, visit Energizer.com/lighting.

With the right lighting tools, your summer adventures can last long after the sun has set.

OBITUARY & MEMORIAL POLICIES

NCW MEDIA, INC.

An obituary is a way for family member(s) to commemorate a loved one's life and to notify the larger community of the deceased. Obituaries are also used for historical and ancestral data.

Memorials are another way of letting the community know about the life and memories of the person who has died. A Memorial is different from an obituary. An obituary is usually current while a memorial can be written later.

Obituaries and memorials need to be typed and emailed no later than Friday by 4:00 p.m. to be placed in the next available issue(s). Please call for cost of an obituary and which NCW paper(s) that it will be placed in to.

Cost of the obituary/ memorial is due at the time of placement. Funeral homes and chapels can submit obituaries by Noon on Monday, unless a holiday.

Obituaries are priced per word while Memorial ads are per column-inch.

Hirst failure jeopardizes revenue needed for state collective bargaining contracts

SUBMITTED BY SENATOR PHIL FORTUNATO

OLYMPIA—Democrats' failure to prioritize a fix to the state Supreme Court's Hirst decision on water rights is jeopardizing revenue needed for state collective bargaining contracts. The Hirst decision radically departed from decades of past precedent and practice in establishing permitting rules for rural properties to drill wells.

The decision makes rural development prohibitively expensive in some areas. The result of the confusion and red tape created by Hirst is that properties impacted lose value—and local and the state governments lose property tax revenue.

In Skagit County, where Hirst-like water restrictions have been in place a few years, water restrictions have devalued more than 780 parcels and lost more than $22 million in value.

I've expressed my support for the state collective bargaining contracts several times. But Democrats can't go around avoiding a clearly needed Hirst fix with a high fiscal impact, and then claim what's needed for revenue is tax increases. Their failure to get serious about Hirst jeopardizes money needed for state contracts and basic services. State workers should be as irate as rural property owners because it's going to hit us all.

The fiscal impact of Hirst on local property taxes is up to $200 million over four years as the economy improves. In addition, Hirst is expected to cost the state revenue from reduced real estate excise tax collections and cost jobs and revenue due to foregone construction projects.

Democrats are dismissing Hirst as a rural problem that they don't need to care about instead of seeing it as a key fix that's simply restoring fairness to rural property owners, construction workers, local governments and every state employee who would like to see their wages improve.

Failing to fix Hirst is throwing hundreds of millions of dollars away. We can't afford that, so the question boils down to this: Do the Democrats want to solve this problem that's been cruelly unfair to rural people and reduced needed revenue for state contracts, or do they want to please Seattle activist groups? As for me, I side with fairness for rural people and fully funding the state contracts. I hope state workers see this and start speaking up for a Hirst fix as well.

State Senator Phil Fortunato is a Republican from Auburn.

Income tax rate creep - Hollywood edition

BY JASON MERCIER

When the income tax salesman comes to your door promising to make you an offer you can't refuse remember to choose wisely. If you don't the next words you may hear out of his mouth will be "I am altering the deal. Pray I don't alter it any further." Though always sold as a targeted tax on the rich, income tax rates inevitably grow "to infinity and beyond!" Don't believe me? Let's take a look at the income tax rate experience across the country.

U.S. income tax rate

1913: 1% to 7%

Today: 10% to 39.6%

Note: Top rate grew as high as 94%

California income tax rate

1935: 1% to 5%

Today: 1% to 13.3%

Oregon income tax rate

1930: 1% to 5%

Today: 5% to 9.9%

Now you may say that Washington is different and "surely you can't be serious" that type of income tax rate creep would happen here. "I am serious and don't call me Shirley."

But just in case you need a little more proof, let's look at the last state to be seduced by the income tax salesman. In 1991 Connecticut decided to take the income tax plunge. How is that working for them? You could say they are "mad as hell" and "not going to take this anymore!" According to the Wall Street Journal:

"The wealthiest state in the U.S. is having trouble collecting enough money to pay its bills, and the Democratic governor doesn't think taxing the rich is the answer anymore... Gov. Dannel Malloy has twice before bet that taxing the wealthy would help solve the state's fiscal problems. But neither increase resulted in sustained revenue growth, according to his administration, which says it would be a mistake to do it a third time."

Closer to home the Washington State Department of Commerce likes to draw a contrast with income tax states by bragging about how our state is income tax free. This strategy is working so well we're "going to need a bigger boat" to accommodate those moving to the state. Does it really matter if we give up the state's non-income tax advantage? Yes, according to former Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer. As reported by Puget Sound Business Journal:

"A citywide income tax, Steve Ballmer said, could jeopardize Seattle's position as a leader in the technology industry. The former CEO of Microsoft (Nasdaq: MSFT) said during a radio interview that, while Seattle has a lot going for it in terms of recruiting, retaining and creating companies, the increasing cost of living and doing business threatens the city's economic prosperity... Washington's lack of an income tax is one of the state's main recruiting advantages over California. Enacting an income tax in Seattle, Ballmer said, would lead to fewer jobs."

Aside from the economics of an income tax the City of Seattle appears to be responding to concerns about the legality of its proposal by saying "I am the law!"

As all-powerful as the Seattle City Council may be, a former Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court and former state Attorney General respectfully disagree writing in this Seattle Times op-ed:

"The Legislature cannot impose a progressive or other nonuniform tax on income, either directly or indirectly. Now, Seattle City Council wants to pass an illegal income tax, mincing no words in a May Day resolution that it intends to adopt a citywide income tax by midsummer. This proposed measure ultimately will fail... As we have seen time and again with income taxes at any level of government, the initial threshold — set to tax 'the wealthy' and attract votes — inevitably is lowered while the tax rate is increased. Before long it becomes just another tax on the middle class."

One thing is certain, if Washington via Seattle manages to open the door to an income tax we will constantly be hearing from the taxman "I'll be back" as rates creep up.

Jason Mercier, Director, Center for Government Reform, Washington Policy Center (Tri-Cities office), 2815 St. Andrews Loop, Suite F, Pasco, WA 99302, (509) 547-2234

My struggles obtaining discounted ketchup, oy vey*!

Modern American business now seeks to do everything via smart phone apps, websites, texting and gasp, "digital coupons." Now, being fond of ketchup, especially on my "freedom fries," hamburgers (free range) and even salmon (wild caught) cakes, I was exhilarated to discover ketchup on sale for .99 cents each, limit two.

The limit of two was never a problem, I would just go back a dozen times until my lust for discounted condiments was satiated.

I saw the digital coupon next to the normal coupons with the little dotted lines and a miniature scissor embedded in them as if the average shopper was too stupid to figure out that they should use a cutting implement of some sort to remove the greatest deal on earth from the newspaper insert. I just tore it out anyway. A more visceral move, because that's how I roll.

Before I was allowed to even view the coupon I had to divulge my voting record, proof of citizenship and any affiliation with the Communist Party, aka extreme-liberal Seattle bunch.

Unfortunately my computer isn't hooked up to a printer, so even though I saw the online coupon, saliva drooling onto the keyboard, I couldn't take advantage of the offer. I decided to brave the experience anyway and go for the gold - the red-gold that is.

When I finally went to buy my beloved Heinz at the check out, I decided to be proactive and explain to the checker that "I did not have a computer" and see if that white lie would suffice.

Hallelujah, it worked. So I went back again and this time I went to a different cashier and I tried another method that I call "puppy eyes." This involves appearing somewhat sad and turning your head slightly and giving the cashier that look like you are just a helpless little fuzzy thing and won't you please help an old man out? Hallelujah! It worked again.

Not wanting to use the

APPLES
APPLES
Gary Bégin

same system too often, lest I attract attention from the coupon police, I decided to employ a third method of getting my beloved "smashed tomatoes encased in a squeezable plastic bottle."

It is called name dropping.

I made friends with a lady in customer service, we'll call her Cathy. I diverted her attention by talking about lottery tickets and made small talk and then I struck for home. "I don't have a computer or a smart phone, but I would sure like to buy this ketchup." Cathy immediately sensed my devotion to the task and obvious love for one of 10 million products sold by this "ginormous" food store. I was dripping with sincerity and it went straight to her bottom-lined heart strings. She looked at me sympathetically and said, no problem, just tell the cashier that Cathy said it was OK.

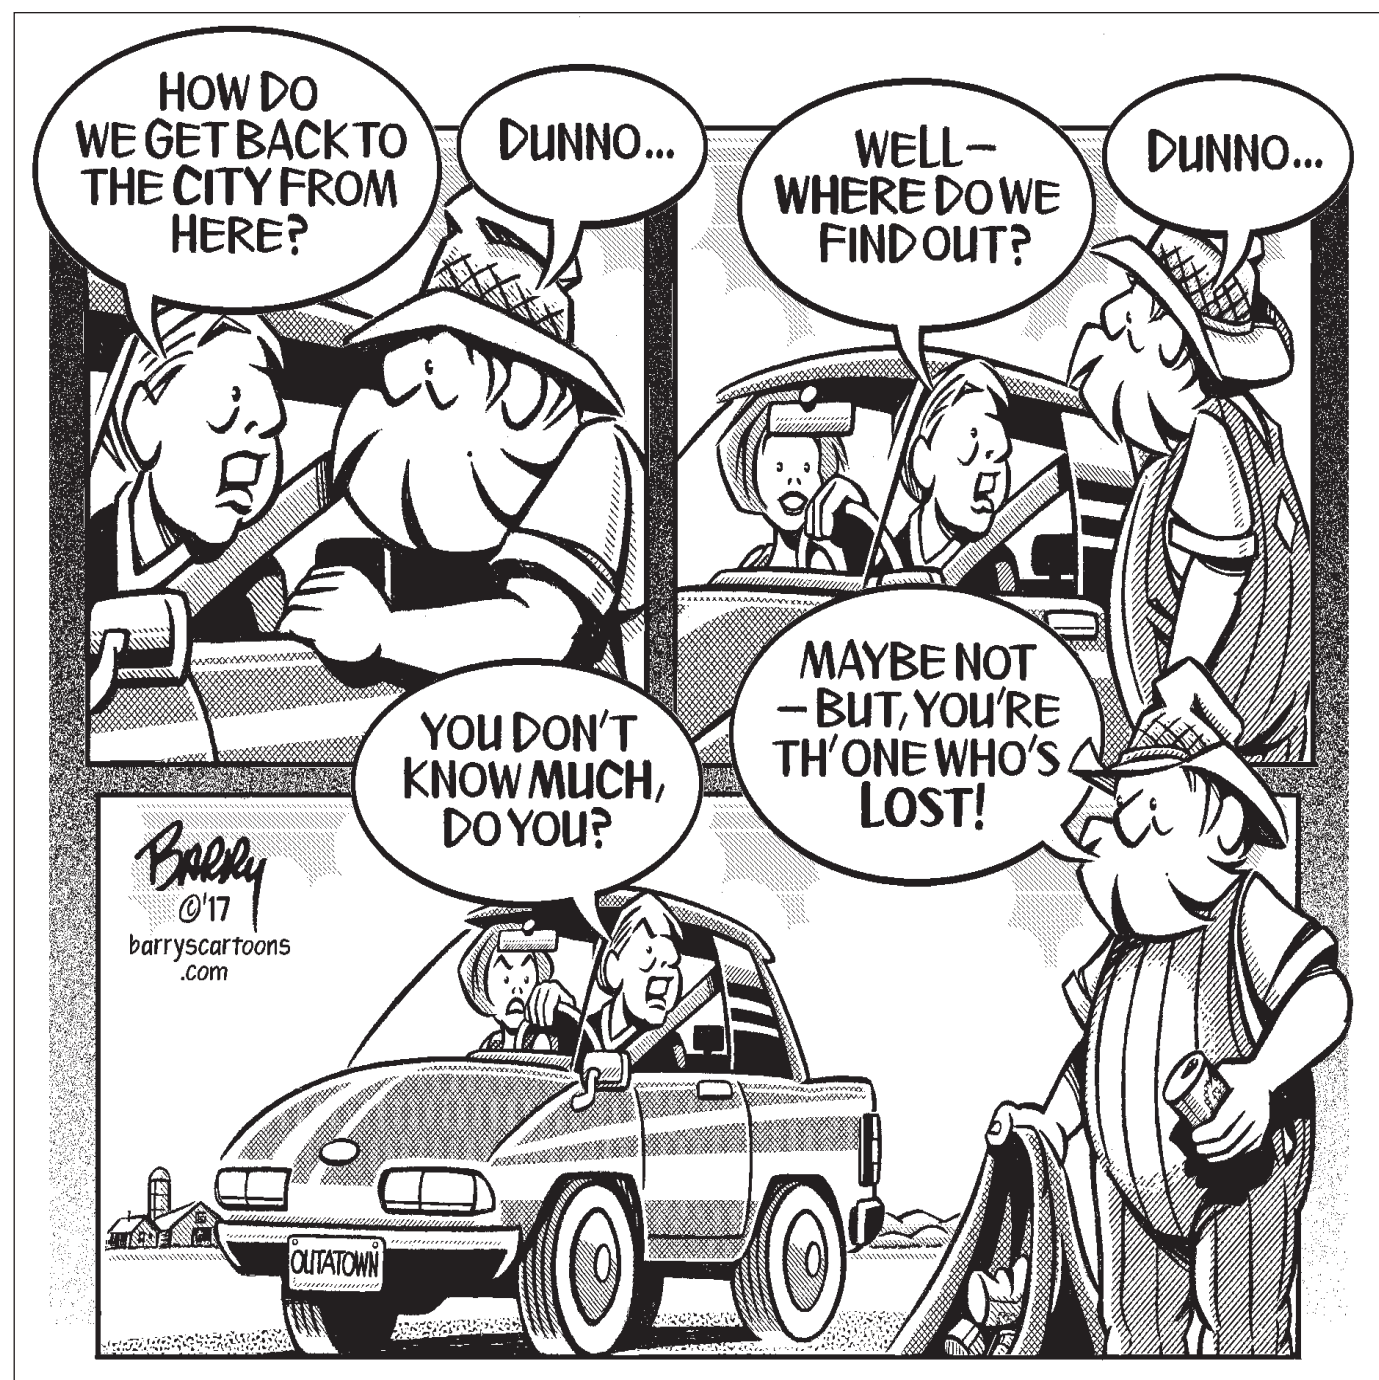

That was it ladies and gents, I was in again...the two-at-.99 cent-each ketchup was mine. Huzzah, huzzah! It would indeed be a happy Fourth.

Alas, the next day my wife said she was going to the same store. I explained my three no-fail methods to obtain the ketchup. She came home empty handed.

"There was some young girl at the register who just didn't care," my wife said. "Did you mention Cathy?" No. "Did you say you had no smart phone or computer?" Yes, but she just didn't care and that was that. "Did you attempt the puppy eyes ploy?" I tried, but I just can't look as sad as you.

With that I couldn't argue. This technology-impaired graybeard wins again.

"Oy vey" is a Yiddish phrase used to express dismay or exasperation, often abbreviated to "oy" (woe is me).
