BREWSTER – A group of 35 new United States citizens were invited to join history's greatest experiment in human democracy at a naturalization ceremony held in the Brewster High School gym last Tuesday, June 6.

In May of last year, BHS hosted a similar celebration for 43 new U.S. citizens.

Norma Gallegos, of Hand in Hand Immigration Services opened the proceedings. Welcoming remarks were delivered by Brewster School District Superintendent, Eric Driessen, and Keith M. Brown, Field Office Director for the Yakima field office of the U.S. Citizenship and Naturalization Services (USCIS).

mander, Denny Pittman, performed the posting of colors, and former Brewster High School graduate, Sonia Saravia, sang the national anthem.

USCIS Information Officer, Annabel Burch conducted the presentation of citizenship candidates and Brown delivered the oath of allegiance.

The Pledge of Allegiance was administered by Brewster High School junior, Sandra Esquivel.

Jon Wyss, community leader and government affairs director for Gebbers Farms, delivered the keynote address.

Finally, Brown presented the certificates of citizenship. After closing remarks, special recognitions and the retirement of the colors, the ceremony concluded and attendees enjoyed a congratulatory meal, complete with cake frosted with a motif of the Stars and Stripes.

Graduates mark Mansfield High School's 100th anniversary

MANSFIELD – It was a special night for two reasons at Mansfield High School last Friday, June 9. It was not only the commencement ceremony for the three members of the 2017 senior class, it was also the 100th anniversary observance for Mansfield High School.

Seniors Taya Backus and twin sisters, Jayden, (valedictorian) and Maiya, (salutatorian) Minatani were honored with gifts, good wishes, awards and, most utilitarian, scholarships, as they put the capstone on their final year as Mansfield students.

And scholarships there were for all three young women and awarded as follows:

Mansfield Scholars Foundation - Jayden Minatani, $1,200; Taya Backus, $800.

Mansfield Lions Club – Jayden Minatani, $700; Taya Backus $500.

Ethel Pool Memorial Scholarship – Jayden Minatani, $500.

Mansfield Sportsmen's Club – Jayden Minatani, $500.

Mansfield Professional Educators – Jayden Minatani, $200; Taya Backus, $200.

Marguerite Schmidt Memorial – Jayden Minatani, $500.

Mansfield Booster Club - $500 to each graduate.

Virgil and Pearl Gustin Scholarship – Jayden Minatani, $3,600.

Apollo Club Music Scholarship – Jayden Minatani, $1,000.

George Wilcox Memorial -

$2,000 to each graduate.

The Wilcox funds are renewable up to four years, making it a potential $8,000 resource for each graduate.

Jayden Minatani plans to attend Central Washington University where she will pursue a music composition degree. The $3,600 Virgil and Pearl Gustin Scholarship will be most helpful at CWU since that institution matches community scholarships, like those from the Gustins, dollar-for-dollar.

Jayden Minatani also received an award from the Mansfield Community Band.

Backus is headed for Wenatchee Valley College and CWU and major in elementary education.

Eighth grade students, Kody Angus, Tessa Johnson, Carter Shafer, Eddie Tapia and Xavier Tedder received their promotions to high school during the commencement ceremony.

Foul weather doesn't dampen Mansfield Playday

MANSFIELD – Farmers work with and in the weather, so when overcast skies threatened to rain on participants and spectators alike in the Playday parade last Saturday, June 10, the citizens of the Town at the End of the Rails did not seem to pay any notice.

Entries from the classes of 1967 and 1977 to Three Rivers Hospital and Tom Pinger's 1923 purple hot rod started at Kith Road, proceeded east up Main Street, turned around at Railroad Avenue and made their way back along the same route.

Three Rivers hosted a near-two-mile community walk that started at 9 a.m. in the Mansfield school parking lot, followed a loop around the town, and ended back where it began.

Just before the parade commenced at 11 a.m., Mayor Thomas Snell presented the town's annual Award of Merit to Darrin Nelson, who accepted the honor in the company of his wife, Wendy, daughters Lexi, 4, Hanna, 9, and son, Ty, 7.

Among Nelson's civil interests is the town's railroad history that he began exploring a dozen years back.

"When I moved back from Spokane about 12 years ago I didn't know much about the era," Nelson said, but since that time has gathered a large assortment of rail memorabilia. That collection includes sections of the original rail, ties, tie plates, spikes and date nails from which Nelson and his brother fashioned a display for the Mansfield Museum.

The head on the date nail has "69" stamped on it. Nelson explained its significance.

"Back in the old days they would put a date nail about every hundred ties or so," said Nelson. "That would let them

The Wenatchee-Mansfield branch of the Great Northern Railroad was laid to what became Mansfield in 1909 and served the area until the mid-1980’s.

“They took the line out in 1985 because they wanted to use larger cars that were too heavy for the 68-pound rail,” Nelson explained.
The cost to upgrade the old rail to accommodate the bigger cars was deemed prohibitive, so the line was abandoned.

Chamber launches Pateros sign fund raising campaign

By Mike Maltais-
STAFF WRITER

PATEROS – The Chamber of Commerce is stepping up efforts to raise sufficient funds to complete construction of the new Pateros sign along Highway 97 that will replace the original destroyed in the 2014 Carlton Complex wild-fire.

At the regular monthly meeting last Thursday, June 1, Sign Committee chair, John Roberts circulated a letter that will be sent to businesses in Pateros, Brewster and vicinity requesting donations to help cover the estimated $20,000 out of pocket costs required to complete the sign.

A road has been cleared to the sign site and the committee believes that laying the sign foundation will provide visible evidence to the community that progress is being made to finish the project.

The Chamber has raised about $1,000 but needs an additional $5,000 to pay for the concrete required for the sign base. Businesses are being asked to contribute a minimum of $150 so additional progress can be made before the 70th annual Apple Pie Jamboree on July 14.

Fundraisers are in the works to raise the remaining money needed from the community at large.

Sign donations can be dropped off at the Pateros City Hall or mailed to P.O.B. 374, Pateros 98846.

In other business, members put the final touches on the upcoming third annual Kids Fishing Derby on Father's Day, June 18. The event is free for kids up to 15 years of age. The Wells Dam Hatchery is providing 100 trout, Ag Supply in Brewster the tanks to hold them, and Yancey's Pateros Hardware the fishing rods and tackle. Derby hours are from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and volunteers are needed.

The Vintage Fair, scheduled for June 24 on the Pateros Mall, needs more vendors to sign on. Last year the event attracted 13 sellers but so far this year, only four have committed. Cost is $50 for a booth and interested parties can contact Chamber president, Libby Harrison at 509-679-8452.

The three-day Pateros/Alta City-Wide Yard Sales will run from June 23-25, and will be featured on map flyers that will be available at the city hall. Shoppers can expect close to two dozen sale sites to visit.

The Run to the River Bike Rally charity ride will be held Saturday, June 24, in Memorial Park during garage sale weekend. The rally begins at 11 a.m. and will include a beer garden, salmon bake at 1 p.m. and live music starting at 3 p.m. and lasting until the fireworks show.

day of the month, June 30. Golfers can register online at www.altalakegolf.com. The cost is $75 per person, or $85 with cart. Teams are $300 or $340 with cart. Hole sponsorships are available at $125.

Team swag, wine tasting, hole-in-one and long-drive/KP competition, silent auction, and great gifts and prizes will be included in the event.

The updated Chamber website now includes an event form that business owners can access and complete to announce any special events.

Brewster Boys and Girls Club director, Brian Paine reviewed BBGC's upcoming free summer meal program for area children that began June 12. Breakfast is from 7-8 a.m. and lunch from 11:30 a.m. – 1:30 p.m. Monday-Friday through August 25.

Paine also discussed membership packages for $65 per child per week, or $115 for two or more children from the same family. The package includes breakfast, lunch, snack and pool privileges. The BBGC will be open 13 hours daily from 5 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the summer. For more information contact Paine at 509-689-1192.

Brewster Chamber welcomes annual King Salmon Derby organizers

By Mike Maltais
STAFF WRITER

BREWSTER – The Chamber of Commerce convened its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday, June 6, with new officers for 2017 including President, Anna Marie Dalby, Vice President, Martin Hurtado, Secretary Mike Mauk and Treasurer, Chris Majors.

Brewster King Salmon Derby organizers Lori Kratzer and Randy Cole addressed the chamber about the 13th annual derby that will be held from Friday, August 4, through Sunday, August 6, this year.

Kratzer encouraged the chamber to find a vendor or two who can provide food and refreshments for the derby

Lori Kratzer, co-organizer of the salmon derby, urged the chamber to find a vendor to provide food for the derby visitors.

“Our gatherings are Thursday night at Sunday at noon for the awards,” said Cole. “That’s when you get everybody there.”

Cole proposed that the city give some thought to scheduling an event to “piggyback” on the salmon derby to take advantage of the 250 to 300 people from all around the state who attend the derby.

“We should catapult something else onto this event from your side,” said Cole, “And we’re open to anything.”

Cole said the derby is very conservative with its funds to ensure that it has ample resources to cover the following year’s costs. That approach helps create a revenue allowance for charitable donations to the community.

“Last year we had $7,000 or $8,000 and we donated to the Boys and Girls Club and the Senior Center,” Cole said.

Brewster King Salmon Derby co-organizer, Randy Cole, recommended the chamber create an event to coincide with the three-day derby

The chamber voted to include a message in an email to members advising of the vendor opportunity at this year’s salmon derby.

Brewster Police Chief Nattalie Cariker announced that National Night Out, promoting the community-law enforcement relationship, will be on August 1, from 4-9 p.m. in at Columbia Cove in front of the BBGC.

In other business, chamber members discussed such housekeeping topics as the group’s bylaws, finances, current membership campaign, dues guidelines, website and non-profit status.

Event committee members updated the meeting on the status of entries and vendors for the Fourth of July parade.

Brewster Boys and Girls (BBGC) Director, Brian Paine reported that the Brewster swimming pool opens for the summer on Monday, June 12.

Paine said he will be ordering Summer Camp t-shirts as soon as he determines how many to purchase based on the number of youngsters who register. In the meantime, Paine is accepting sponsors through this week who want their business names on the shirts for $125 per listing.

Paine reminded the chamber that BBGC has adjusted its hours to accommodate community needs and will be open 13 hours daily from 5 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Summer camp memberships are $65 per week child or $115 for a family with two or more children from the same family. The membership includes breakfast, lunch, snack and afternoon pool privileges.

Hooked on Kids Fishing Derby lives up to its title

By Mike Maltais

BRIDGEPORT – A visit waterside to Bridgeport’s annual fishing derby at Marina Park on Saturday, June 10, offered ample audible and visible evidence to justify the title “Hooked on Kids” that its originator, Neil Jacobson, hung on the event years ago.

Sitting on the bank and baiting his hook, 12-year-old Diego Ramirez held up his index fingers to illustrate the approximate 10-inch size of the trout he caught. Ramirez is still young by angling standards and experience will teach him that catch size estimates among veteran fishermen allow inflation at two to three times actual length.

However, Ramirez did well enough to win a $50 Walmart gift certificate for his angling skill.

More than two dozen of the 400 trout provided by the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) wore special tags that identified them as coveted prize winners.

Heriberto Lorenano and Brandon Sebashan each won a grand prize bike.

Alexander Vazquez and Abelaida Casillas netted $25 Walmart gift certificates.

Everyone left with a free fishing rod courtesy of the Cabela’s store of Post Falls. Other prizes included hats, shirts and fishing gear.

The derby started at 9 a.m. and weather conditions were ideal until a hail storm blew in at 1 p.m. from the south-east and drove everyone off

Brewster, Bridgeport schools receive Community Foundation grants

By Mike Maltais
Staff Writer

BREWSTER-BRIDGEPORT- The Brewster and Bridgeport school districts were among nearly two dozen North Central Washington elementary, middle and high schools that shared more than $80,000 in Stronger Schools Grants from the Community Foundation of North Central Washington (CFNCW).

The Brewster School District received $5,000 for its Robotics Team and Brewster Elementary was given $2,500 for its Page Ahead Children’s Literacy “Book Up Summer” Program.

Brewster Elementary Principal, Lynnette Blackburn robotics grant will be applied to the purchase of five laptops for coding and programming, Ozobots for color coding and customized VEX IQ Super kits.

“We believe with this program, our students will be future engineers,” Blackburn said. “They will be designing, constructing and programming customized robots.”

Students will work with Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) related concepts, develop critical thinker skills and the passion to pursue a job in a STEM field future career, Blackburn said.

Brewster Elementary School’s literacy coordinator, Karla Phillips commented on the Book Up Summer grant.

“Studies show that children, without the structure of school, instruction of teachers and access to reading materials, loose on the average more than three months of reading over summer,” said Phillips. “This is referred to as the ‘summer slide’.”

Phillips said students in kindergarten, first and second grades will each receive 12 new free books of their choosing during the final week of school.

“Studies have also shown that if a child chooses a book, that child will be more likely to read it,” Phillips said.

The Bridgeport Robotics Team robot formed part of this entry at the Vex Robotics Competition at Wenatchee High School. Vex Robotics is organized by Willem Scholten and Central Washington University.

Since this is the third consecutive year Brewster has received the grant, students in second grade that have been in the Brewster School District during kindergarten school district’s Summer Reading Program.

The school’s robotics team just started this year, but is already making progress.

“We made it to the finals, but did not place,” said coach Ian Hughes. “Pretty well for an all-novice team.”

Hughes said the class will use the grant funds to purchase computers “so we no longer need to borrow the school laptop cart in the library for our class to work on programming,” said Hughes. “We will be purchasing new robot components to expand our build limitations.”

Hughes said the latter is especially important since next year’s tournament “requires a more complicated design to manipulate the field elements.”

Grants ranging from $2,500 to $5,000 were awarded to three high schools, five middle schools, five elementary schools and seven school districts in Chelan, Douglas and Okanogan counties. Stronger Schools is a competitive program that supports enriched student experiences and teacher development opportunities in K-12 schools in the three-county area.

“The foundation feels strongly about supporting education across North Central Washington, specifically those innovative, supplemental programs and projects that take a classroom or school to another level,” said CFNCW’s Director of Community Philanthropy, Denise Sorom.

Schools and school districts can apply for $5,000 each to benefit school programs or district-wide needs and initiatives.

“This year we received more requests from schools than ever before – some that we haven’t supported in the past,” Sorom said.

CFNCW was established in 1986 and manages $64 million in assets through 400 individualized funds. It has awarded more than $35 million in grants and scholarships.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Unions don't want balance

Dear Editor,

They want to preserve their monopoly

Paul Parmley president of the NCW Labor Council, has some peculiar ideas about what constitutes a “balanced political process.”

In his June 8 response (“Teachers’ Unions Not Broken”) to Jami Lund’s May 17 guest opinion (“21st Century Unionism Starting in Central Washington”), Parmley accuses Lund and the organization he and I work for of wanting to “dismantle a balance of political thought that has been the cornerstone of what makes our democratic institutions a beacon to the rest of the world.”

In fact, just the opposite true. Absent right-to-work protections like those found in the majority of states, the playing field in Washington is nowhere close to being level because conservatives are forced to rely on voluntary campaign donations while liberal candidates can count on massive support from unions whose revenue is extorted from people compelled to give it.

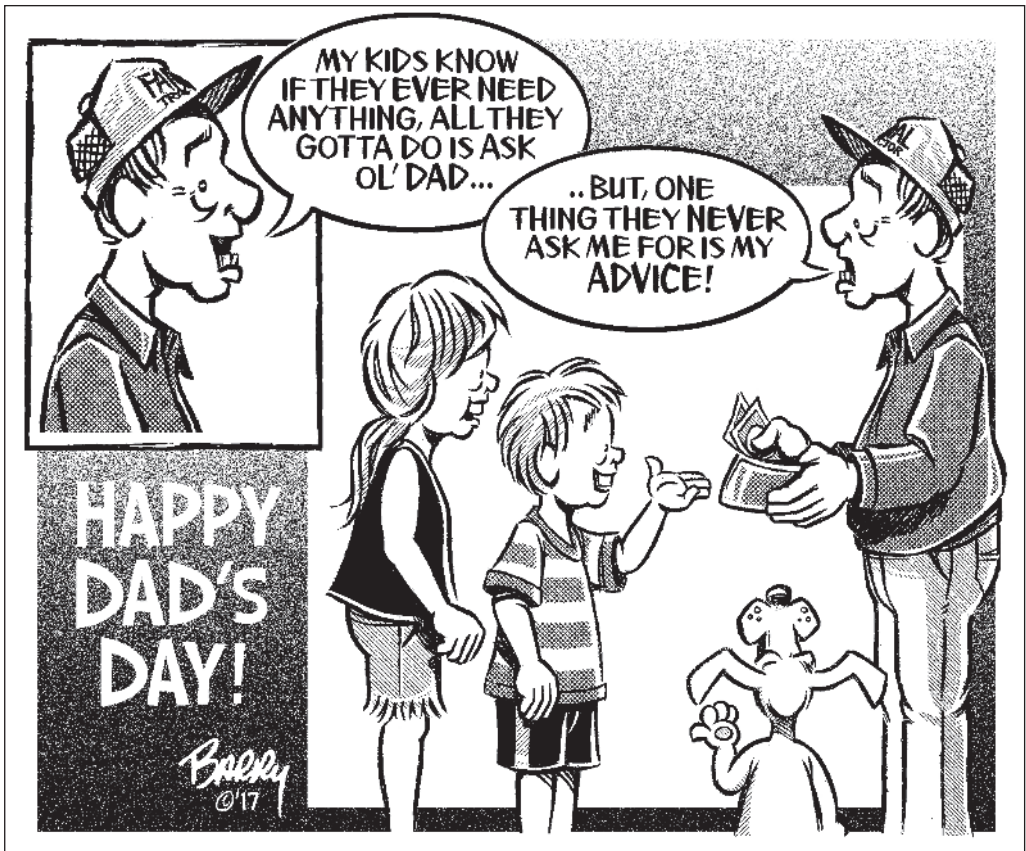

On paper, teachers and other public-sector workers have the right to opt out of full union dues and pay only an agency fee that doesn’t include what the union spends on politics. But in practice, the unions make this process so painful and complicated that few actually take advantage of it.

When workers are given a fair chance to opt out, they do so in droves. And the unions know it. That’s why the prospect of their members exercising – or even knowing about – their constitutional rights is so terrifying to them and the leftist politicians who benefit from this unfair monopoly.

Notwithstanding his laughably stated concerns, the last thing Mr. Parmley and the union leaders for whom he shills have in mind is fairness and balance. What they desperately want is to preserve a status quo under which the campaigns of candidates he doesn’t like can only be funded by people using their own money while his friends have almost unlimited access to someone else’s.

Money still rules in D.C.

We have a real piece of work for a president.

Despite Trump consistently touting throughout the campaign trail that he was a ‘different candidate’ compared to other politicians, his presidency has done little to validate those claims. His latest move to pull out of the Paris Agreement - despite overwhelming support amongst the American people - reveals yet another example proving he is no different from every other money grabbing GOP member of Congress.

The decision to pull out of the largest comprehensive agreement on climate change in history places the United States in the camps of Nicaragua and Syria: the only two countries who refused to participate in the universally supported agreement.

They had good reasons though for not signing, Nicaragua felt the agreement

DEAL WITH IT

was too soft on restrictions in developed countries, (which frankly it is) and Syria because they are amidst a bloody civil war.

So what’s our excuse? “I got voted to represent the citizens of Pittsburgh,” Trump cluelessly stated in his announcement to pull out of the agreement, “not the citizens of Paris.”

Good one. The actual reason, revolves around the same issue that has been entrenched in politics for a long time; money. If you look at it through that scope, then it should come as no surprise to find out the 22 GOP Congressman - and head of the Environmental Protection Agency Scott Pruitt - who urged Trump to pull out of the agreement, have been in bed with fossil fuel companies for years.

To illustrate this I took a look at the past campaign contributions over the last three election cycles (2012, 2014, 2016) for the 22 congressman. The sum of contributions from coal, oil and gas corporations in those three cycles totaled $10,694,284.

This of course doesn’t include the ‘dark money’ that is passed from oil interests - like the Koch brothers - to general slush funds to re-elect Republicans. Ever wonder why incumbents are so difficult to oust?

See, in our political system the only way to ensure your voice is heard, is to donate money to a campaign. The glaring problem with this “Pay-to-Play” system though is that it heavily favors the rich. They keep donating, and the politicians in turn make certain their interests are put first in line. As long as corporations continue to have the ability to donate vast amounts of money to campaigns, the will of the people will not be met.

This isn’t something new though “Pay-to-Play” has been going on since the fateful Citizens United decision in 2003, and applies to Democrats and Republicans alike. Trump ran on the baseline that he was supposed to be impermeable from the influence of money, because, well he was a “successful businessman”. Trump supporters should remember this, I mean, it was one of the biggest selling points of his campaign. So how is it possible that the man who wrote the art of the deal could be swayed by these corrupt politicians that he said he wanted to drain out of Washington?

It’s simple, although there are stark differences between Trump and GOP congressman (mostly with the latter using coherent sentences) their policies are the same. The rich get richer and screw everyone else.

So we shouldn’t be looking at this whole deal just through the science lens. Yes, the move should come as a blunt reminder that our president ignores clear facts and evidence, but states and everyday people will have the greatest impact combating climate change anyway. Hence the amount of states and cities that have already declared they will defy the president and comply with the Paris agreement.

Also keep in mind that - if the government wanted to - we could switch to 100 percent renewable energy right now, our government is just not inclined to support the idea with all the money coming in from fossil fuel companies.

Don’t believe me, go check out the solutions project.

Authors Note: For you high school students who are just getting interested in politics, I have a word of advice; stop listening to your parents and the pundits on TV that they cherish and start paying attention to the teachers, scientists and activists who have dedicated their life to the subject. The debate is settled, climate change is real.

The views and opinions expressed in this article are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of the publisher or NCW Media as a whole.

Send high school grads to work first?

Now that millions of teenagers across America have suddenly found themselves free of high school, they should be encouraged to find employment instead of immediately starting more school.

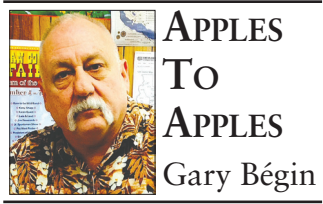

I know most of these recent graduates have already applied and been accepted to college, but I implore them, and their parents, to think twice about this scheme.

Parents can and should exercise so-called “tough love” and reason with their offspring to give work a try before becoming ensconced in another academic morass.

Far too many millions of our children will attend college, spend four years “learning” and then emerge thinking they are actually prepared for real life.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

The myths and fantasies and warped pictures of America handed to them by professors, many of whom themselves have never had to earn a paycheck from any entity besides their own universities, is patently false and misleading.

APPLES TO APPLES

Professors, for the most part, haven’t ever signed the front of a paycheck. Professors haven’t battled in war nor served in peace as members of the military.

I know there are many exceptions and I bless those that have served as business owners and servicemen, but it is the stark and brutal truth that our kids in college are being shepherded by sheep and not by actual shepherds, you know, the guys with big sticks who tell the sheep where to go.

I advocate a modest one year of work, foreign or domestic volunteerism, military reserve service or working with parents and being mentored by them before entering four years of questionable education.

Why am I so cynical?

Actual work leads to actual reality, or truth about life, and as the Bible saying goes, the truth shall set you free.*

I know of too many arrogant youngsters filled with loathing for their parents and grandparents because they have been set loose upon the land with false images of the perfect society and therefore find societal status quo woefully inadequate, often blaming anyone or thing older than they for the ills and injustices as exposed on television news and in the pop culture they so dearly love.

Can’t blame them completely as they were just fed four years of mostly liberal pabulum loaded with sugar and lies on everything from Islam and Israel to the environment and capitalism versus communism.

My cynicism is also the result of observation. If 10 million start college, by the second year seven million are left and by the third year five million and by the fourth year two million and upon graduation, those that are left still aren’t sure what they want to do and why they chose their majors in the first place.

Is it such a crime to show your child a recruiting pamphlet for the Air Force or encourage them to volunteer at the community food bank and Habitat For Humanity for a year before wasting your money in the college of their choice? Maybe even, gasp, suggest they try a trade school instead of tackling hundreds of books clouded by liberal bias written by lifelong students just recently removed from mom’s basement.

Give alternatives a try. Your sparkly-eyed Einstein will only benefit from the experience. Of course, parents who think their children are merely part of a great assembly line or somehow involved in a sprint against all other humans ought to themselves stop and smell the roses. Your child isn’t “losing” a year in a short race towards corporate success, but stoking-up on carbs before the great marathon we call life.
