Icicle Creek Center for the Arts presents 'Into the Woods'

By QUINN PROPST Ward Media Staff Reporter

LEAVENWORTH – Icicle Creek Center for the Arts is gearing up for its second live theater production of the season, featuring Stephen Sondheim's "Into the Woods."

"Into the Woods" weaves together characters and storylines from classic fairy tales to create a sophisticated take on well-known stories.

"So a lot of folks are gonna recognize some of the classic sort of fairy tale characters, Cinderella, Little Red and the Wolf, Jack and the Beanstalk," said McKenzie Baird, who handles marketing for ICCA and is the choreographer for this production.

"So we're looking at those fairy tales and part of the idea is what happens after you get your ever after, like your happy wish that you wanted," she said.

"A big portion of this show is about family and community. It's written that the first act feels like the exploration of the fairy tales that we sort of know, and it has that little bit of that Disney magic feel that all of these characters go through the arcs that we love, where they get their final goal they, you know, where they just get past whatever it is that's in their way whether it's the wolf or the beanstalk or different things."

"And then act two really, to me, it feels like it examines what is ever after really, what is getting your wish, what is really important and it asks a lot of big questions about what we value.

Director Diana Trotter has a way of bringing the production down to earth in a way that highlights the lessons in the second act, Baird said.

"I think one of the ways that we're doing that is that the set design and the costumes actually are as well, are really minimal and pared back," she said. "It feels like you get to sort of reuse your imagination in the way that you would when you first heard these kinds of fairytales as a kid."

Trotter may be familiar to audiences from her previous performance this season as

Hearing Examiner considers public's concerns over Leavenworth Adventure Park requests

By Taylor Caldwell Ward Media Staff Reporter

LEAVENWORTH The public hearing with Hearing Examiner Andrew Kottkamp over Leavenworth Adventure Park's (LAP) requested changes to its conditional use permit (CUP) had a large public turnout on Mar. 29.

The hearing was held to consider the LAP's request to amend its conditional use permit to allow live acoustic music outdoors and amplified music indoors, extend indoor operations to 10 p.m., and drop its ticketed parking requirements.

The City of Leavenworth Staff Report recommended amending the CUP to allow for live acoustic music outside until 8 p.m. and acoustic music inside until 10 p.m., indoor operations to extend until 10 p.m., and to drop ticketed parking on the condition that the city could still require another parking report.

In terms of parking, members of the public voiced complaints about overflow parking of vehicles, RVs, and buses on Icicle Road, raising concerns about congestion and safety. Some expressed concerns that the street parking put bicyclists and pedestrians at risk, while others saw the congestion as an impediment to a critical egress point in the case of an emergency.

"My primary concern is parking and overflow onto Icicle that

City Council moves forward with Osborn Playground, Glacier Lot and road safety study

By Taylor Caldwell Ward Media Staff Reporter

LEAVENWORTH - City Council had a packed agenda for its Mar. 26 meeting. Main highlights included approving a playground equipment purchase, Glacier Lot construction bid award, and a grant for a road safety study.

The Neighborhood Playground Committee (NPC) will move forward with its equipment purchase for the new Osborn Playground after receiving unanimous approval from the City Council. After receiving feedback through the community survey, the NPC will add the inclusive whirl, sensory dome, and vista arc sphere. The purchase totals just over $1.1 million.

The City awarded a construction bid to KRCI, LLC of East Wenatchee for the Glacier Lot Improvements Projects.

Roller skating every Wednesday at the Festhalle

By Marlene Farrell Special to Ward Media

LEAVENWORTH -On Wednesday nights from January to April, the Leavenworth Festhalle comes alive with a burst of swirling activity; it's the weekly skate night. Outside it might be cold, dark and damp, but inside there's the warm yellow light, happy pop music playing, and a few dozen people skating in circles.

While quite a few kids zip around, their parents watching from a perimeter of folding chairs, there's also skating wizards, some former derby, some talented teens, gliding sleekly forward, then backward, and even with a spread eagle, where the two feet are facing in opposite directions. Little cones dot the center line for those wanting to practice weaving skills. It's a welcoming atmosphere.

This is the second year of weekly skate nights. Each season begins after New Year's and the cleanup of holiday decorations. Season's end happens when May's warm weather makes indoor sport less necessary.

cover the cost of cleaning. Coffin and her colleagues donate their time. Hosting involves checking folks in, getting liability waivers signed, coming up with themes for each week's costume contest, and awarding winners each week thanks to gift card prizes donated by the Fudge Hut.

"Last year there were a few slow weeks, but this year, we've had consistently high attendance," Coffin said. Attendance on a Wednesday night averages between 40 and 50, though it's less at any one time because families with young children usually come early and leave early, while adults trickle in later. There are a few passionate skaters who stay the whole two and a half hours.

Music is essential to elevate the roller skating experience. Coffin has brought in DJs, but mostly the music is selections from a Spotify playlist. To add variety, Coffin lets attendees sign up to be DJ for a night, using their own playlist.

The fun is spreading mostly by word of mouth, and the weekly themes are posted on the Leavenworth Festhalle Facebook page as well. Having one's own skates (or roller blades) is a limiting factor. However, a number of skaters either dusted off old skates or purchased skates (used high quality skates on eBay is a good option) because of the enticement of the weekly frolics to break up the dreariness of late winter and early spring.

Festhalle skating nights, even with a busy schedule of Running Start and afternoon track practices. "I meet up with my friends there. Sometimes we dress up. We practice tricks like table tops, the train, and the coffin.

"Going to the Festhalle is something to look forward to," Farrell went on. "There really isn't any other good indoor surface to skate on in Leavenworth."

Local dad, Chris Auty, started bringing his five-yearold daughter, Penelope, to the Wednesday skate nights to help her learn to skate. He held her hand and walked around with her the first week. "She's independent now and doesn't need me," he said. "She wants to hang out with her friends." Penelope's interest in skating has grown so that she talks about it all week in anticipation.

Danielle Gibbs comes to the Festhalle nights for herself and also to do something fun with her kids, Napiqua, 17, and Phoebe, 11. "I'm getting braver," Gibbs said. "You gain a different sense of balance, like when you're backward skating." She is a fan of learning new things; she's also taking Western swing dancing lessons at the Senior Center in Wenatchee. Gibbs has an ambition to eventually be able to pull off some roller skating dance moves.

Local Event Co. (www. thelocaleventco.com), an event planning, rental and venue booking service, coordinates events at the Festhalle and hosts the skate nights. Owner Ashley Coffin explained how it began with the sense that the Festhalle was underutilized.

"There are not a ton of options of things to do this time of year," she said, "We started a kids play session on Tuesday mornings. Then someone asked if they could rent the Festhalle for skating." Rather than requiring a rental, Coffin decided to offer a weekly skate night since the logistics would be easiest under their organization.

A small $5 entry fee helps

"You're never too old to skate," said Lori Sanders, who started skating this year when she saw it mentioned on Facebook. She hadn't skated in thirty years. "It brings back good memories for me. There are people of all ages skating together. It's a good vibe."

Alice Farrell, 17, prioritizes

She loves it because, as she said, "It's a great option for all ages in the winter. And it's not super crowded."

Auty echoed the sentiment, saying, "It's a wonderful use of space."

Farrell mentioned the importance of camaraderie. "Skating at the Festhalle means being part of a roller skating community; skaters are nice, outgoing and willing to help each other with improving skills."

The new system, which is already in use by neighboring counties such as Grant, Okanogan, and Kittitas, will send emergency alerts via text, email, or voicemail in both English and Spanish. Sgt. Jason Reinfeld of Chelan County Emergency Management emphasized the importance of the switch, stating, "By utilizing Everbridge, we will create emergency alert uniformity in the region, which will boost reliability in those circumstances when we need it the most." The Everbridge system will be used to send alerts for emergencies such as evacuations and potential safety hazards like boil water orders. Sgt. Tim Scott of Douglas County Emergency Management added, "This new system will help us send alerts more efficiently. It equips us with the tools to effectively communicate important information with the public during emergencies and other critical situations." Users who were previously registered with AlertSense, the former emergency messaging system, will have their information automatically transferred to Everbridge on April 1. Citizens not registered to receive emergency alerts are encouraged to sign up online for Chelan County or Douglas County alerts or download the Everbridge mobile app. With wildfire season approaching, Sgt. Reinfeld recommends that everyone keep their cell phone location turned on to ensure they receive emergency notices quickly, even if they are not signed up for Everbridge. The switch to Everbridge is expected to improve the efficiency and reliability of emergency communication in Chelan and Douglas counties, helping to keep residents informed and safe during critical situations.

House leaders have expressed frustration and concern over the decisions. Senate Republican Leader John Braun and House Republican Deputy Leader Mike Steele expressed profound disappointment with the Ninth Circuit Court's dismissal. They argue that the redrawn maps compromise the political representation of Latino voters in the Yakima Valley rather than enhance it. Particularly contentious is the relocation of Senator Torres, the first-ever Latina senator in Central Washington, out of her district.

In pursuit of knowledge: Cascade High School's academic clubs elevating education

LEAVENWORTH-At the forefront of Cascade High School's (CHS) extracurricular activities are its thriving academic clubs. From science to business and journalism, these clubs offer students a platform to explore their passions, sharpen their skills, and foster Publications a community of like- Group minded students.

Among CHS's academic clubs that have seen extraordinary success in recent years, including winning national, state, and local prizes, are the Future Business Leaders of America High School (FBLA), Knowlege Bowl, Technology Student Association (TSA), the Environmental Sustainability Club, Speach & Debate, and the Publications Group. FBLA High School is the division of Future Business Leaders of America that helps high school students prepare for careers in business through academic competitions, leadership development, and educational programs. At the core of the CHS FBLA's lies its commitment to providing students with hands-on experiences, mentorship, and networking opportunities. Under the guidance of faculty advisors Tammy Murphy, a CHS computer science & IT teacher, and career technical education and business teacher Kirk Sunitsch, as well as student leaders seniors Julian Valdez, Breanna Loomis, sophomore Emma Radach, and freshman Elliot Tiegel, the Club has competed annually at the Washington FBLA State Business Leadership Conference (SBLC), at which FBLA members from across the state meet in Spokane for four days of training and business scenario competition. This year, twelve students are preparing to compete at state. The best performers at the state conference advance to the National Leadership Conference. In addition to traditional educational approaches to learning business ventures and preparing for competitions, FBLA members receive daily hands-on business experience running the CHS student store.

Another CHS club that literally has hands-on - on a buzzer, that is, to chime in to answer questions in quiz-based competitions that test players on a wide variety of academic subjects - is the CHS Knowledge Bowl team. The team, advised by math and science teacher Dayle Massey, captained by junior Caroline Menna, and further comprised on the varsity squad of seniors Adrian Renner-Singer, Ellie Holm and Isabel Menna, and juniors Savanna Rowles and Caden Peterson, finished fifth in this year's state championships after being state runner-up last year and state champion the year before. Competitions are based on topics covered in high school, such as math, science, history, language skills, literature, music, and geography. Each of the nine Educational Service Districts in Washington hold regional Knowledge Bowl competitions to determine which schools make it to the state tournament, held annually at Wenatchee High School. at state," commented Holm, who continued: "We always have very high expectations for ourselves, especially after having been state champions. That said, placing fifth in the state this year is definitely something we can be proud of."

"Proud" is also a word frequently used when speaking of TSA, "an organization that promotes STEAM - science, technology, engineering, art, and mathematics – competitions $% \left({{{\left({{{\left({{{\left({{{\left({{{\left({{{c}}}} \right)}} \right.} \right.} \right.} \right.}} \right)}_{0.05}}} \right)$ and careers," informs TSA advisor, and photography & visual arts teacher, Teara Dillon. "Of the 35 kids in our chapter, 29 qualified for state this year. There we had several students who made the podium, meaning the top five in their event - and mind you this is out of over 1,800 Washington state high school students: [senior] Dillon Munly and [junior] Ethan Flansburg for transportation modeling; [junior] Mia Dreis for children's story illustration, [sophomores] Cordelia Freeland and Anja Lungren for problem solving; [sophomores] Kairus Krejci, Kyrianna Ross, and Cosimos Terranela for fashion design. We also received the award for largest chapter for one of the divisions."

Matching the prowess of their academic club peers is the CHS Speech and Debate Club, whose mission is to empower students through competitive speech and debate and to create a platform March." After sending five of its members to state competition last year, the Club had another strong performance at the qualifier this year, under the student leadership of senior Beanna Loomis and juniors Coal Fiano and Mia Schons, taking second place for small schools and scoring a plethora of individual awards.

Bringing the focus a little more locally for the last two years is the CHS Environmental Club. Jump started by last year's president, senior Isabel Menna, the Club, advised by Massey, with current officers juniors Caroline Menna and Hazel Eschen, and senior Ellie Holm, has brought into school, via brown-bag speaker luncheons for the edification of the greater CHS community, local and regional sustainability leaders ranging from the Coleville Confederated Tribes to the Chelan-Douglas Land Trust to an alumnus founder of SheFly, a women's line of sustainable clothing. The Club has also in the last two years: partnered with local recycling non-profit Waste Loop and the CHS Facilities Department to begin composting at CHS; proposed the idea to Waste Loop of having its president be an advisory member to the Waste Loop Board as a means of broadening and deepening the relationship between Waste Loop and the Club; teacher Roselyn Robison, this year's editorial staff, comprised of Isabel Menna, Maddy Black, Caroline Menna, Paige Runions, and Avery Houghton have just completed, with their staff, the 2023-24 Ursa Major and their seventh month of this school year's Kodiak Chronicle. Under the steady hand of Robison's leadership and counsel the last four years, CHS Publications has excelled, not only being published regularly in The Echo and winning numerous prizes from the Washington Journalism Education Association, it has also been awarded, each year, either first or second place nationally from the American Scholastic Press Association. In addition, the same press association awarded Menna (Isabel) in 2022, the national "Outstanding Story in a Digital Newspaper." "Ms.

Robison is truly an amazing teacher and advisor," asserts Menna (Isabel), a senior. "I can't imagine any other teacher being able to pull off what she has done these last four years, every semester of which I've been with her and witnessed first-hand. Ms. Robison has transformed the Publications Group into one of the best in the country, which is no small feat for a small, rural public school. I'm so proud to have been with her all these years - and learned so much from her. I'm excited to follow the Group from afar to see how much more they will achieve." "Academic clubs play a pivotal role in shaping the intellectual landscape of our school," remarked Principal Rudy Joya. "They not only complement our academic curriculum but instill in students a sense of curiosity, collaboration, and leadership." The impact of the clubs extends far beyond the confines of the classroom. Through teamwork, mentorship, and hands-on learning experiences, students develop invaluable skills that will serve them well beyond their high school years.

Cascade School District's mission is "Continuous Student Development," to "cultivate potential for lifelong success." CHS's vibrant academic clubs stand as a testament to the district and school's commitment to that success by nurturing the minds of tomorrow's leaders. With each meeting, competition, and triumph, these clubs inspire a new generation of students to reach greater heights and leave an indelible mark on their communities, if not the world.

for young voices to be heard and celebrated. Speech and Debate not only builds confidence, boosts classroom performance, improves communication, increases critical thinking skills, and provides life skills vital to future success, it is often called one of the most useful activities in which a student can participate in high school. Boys Soccer continues undefeated streak

The Cascade Kodiaks boys soccer team has been on a roll this season, maintaining their undefeated record with impressive wins against Chelan and Quincy.

On March 26th, the Kodiaks faced off against the Chelan Goats, delivering a dominant performance that resulted in a 6-0 victory. Angel Sandoval led the charge with a hat-trick, while Shane Slette, Karsten Bowles, and Jaxson Groby each added a goal to the scoreboard. Coach Jesus Sandoval praised his team's ability to maintain possession and recover the ball quickly, but noted that there is still room for improvement in the final third of the field.

The Kodiaks continued their winning ways on March 28th, defeating the Quincy Jackrabbits 3-1 in a physical match played in wet conditions. Maverick Miller opened the scoring for the Kodiaks off a corner kick assisted by Ryan Denega. Quincy managed to equalize before halftime, but the Kodiaks pulled ahead in the second half with goals from Angel Sandoval and Shane Slette. The Kodiak defense, anchored by goalkeeper Max Spiegel, held strong to secure the victory.

Assistant Coach Raul Mata acknowledged the importance of the win against a tough Quincy team, praising the boys for their character and ability to perform under pressure. The Kodiaks now hold a 6-0 overall record, with a 3-0 mark in league play. The team will enjoy a well-deserved break during spring break before returning to action on April 6th for a non-conference match against the Elma Eagles. With their undefeated streak intact, the Kodiaks look poised for a successful run through the remainder of the season.

While mouth guards are nearly ubiquitous with athletes, more and more people of all kinds are similarly protecting their teeth with night guards. When and whether you need a night guard, though, isn't always obvious.

If you've been waking up with a sore jaw or if your dentist notices signs of teeth grinding-known as bruxism—or if you are under a lot of stress and anxiety, or if you take certain types of medicines, you may develop issues which can often be corrected by wearing a night guard.

"Night guards are a great appliance to help minimize the effects of bruxism, including tooth chipping or other damage caused by grinding and clenching," said Kyle Dosch, DDS, Delta Dental of Washington's dental director and member dentist.

If bruxism is left untreated it can lead to jaw problems,

"They get to meet new friends and rekindle old friends. It's special. Plus, it whips them into shape," said Corky Broaddus, a Senior Center Board Member and former president.

The Otago Exercise Program, developed at the University of Otago in New Zealand, is an evidence-based program designed to reduce falls and fall-related injuries in high-risk adults.

One participant, Loretta Camp, was experiencing excessive falls due to Parkinson's disease, prompting her to start the program a few months ago.

"I would just turn and I'd fall down," said Camp. "It has benefited my balance greatly. I haven't fallen once since I started this program."

The National Institute of Health attributes higher risks cheeks. If a dentist diagnoses you with bruxism, they may suggest you use a night guard to help alleviate further damage.

tooth loss, and damage to your

Benefits to wearing a night guard

Wearing a night guard can have a host of benefits:

Protects your teeth: Night guards can stop damage to your teeth before it starts, including damage to fillings, cracking or chipping teeth.

Prevents headaches: People with bruxism can get frequent headaches because of the pressure of grinding or clenching their teeth all night long.

Less jaw pain: Grinding your teeth takes work. You use your jaw muscles, and all that activity at night can cause you to wake up with jaw pain.

Night guards can be custommade at the dentist's office or purchased over the counter at a drugstore. Over-the-counter night guards come in two types: a one-size-fits-all type you put on directly out of the box or a boil-and-bite version, which helps create a moderately customized version.

Dental experts say your best choice is the custom-made option. Your dentist will make a night guard using impressions of your teeth that fits your mouth better than a storebought version. While custommade night guards are more expensive, they also last longer and are often more comfortable than over-the-counter versions. Delta Dental of Washington's Plus Ortho Plan covers night guards provided by a dentist.

of falling to multiple factors of aging, such as depression, reduced muscle strength, balance, and gait changes. In the United States, according to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), one in four adults aged 65 and older report falling each year, totaling over 14 million.

The program begins with assessments in which individuals perform a series of strength and balance tests. For eight weeks, participants meet for an hour twice a week, doing exercises such as weighted knee extensions, squats, and hip abductions. They are encouraged to complete the exercises a third day a week on their own and build up to incorporating a 30-minute walk three times a week. Then, participants complete another assessment before continuing the workouts for an additional eight weeks, making it possible to track their progress.

"I think people respond to the idea of being able to see improvement and having it proven to them," said Jenn Crawford of Cascade Medical Center.

Prior to the Otago Exercise Program, the Senior Center offered general exercises led by community members. However, several years ago, it received the opportunity to have Cascade Medical professionals lead balancespecific training programs. For seniors who have participated in both options, they've noticed a specific difference in their balance in everyday life with the Otago method.

"I was using a cane before. I'm not now," said Marjory Blake, who has participated in both the prior exercise classes and the entirety of the Otago offerings.

The exercises themselves offer tangible results, but the program has a heavy social component. The program offers a structured routine to get out of the house and hang out with friends while they exercise. For these two reasons, the program has increased enormously in popularity, so much so that part of the group has to move outside to complete some exercises. According to Crawford, the program has completed over 100 assessments on Leavenworth creates dangerous situations. It has happened, and I see no reason to change the original conditions that were set. The operator has not met those conditions," said resident Doug Gann.

In his closing statement, LAP Manager John Sutherland argued that the overflow parking had significantly reduced after the park moved to a reservation-only system. The city staff report

Mrs. Bennet in "Pride and Prejudice."

The cast of ten includes local favorites like musical educator Cathy Bronson, Bradley Stieger, Phil Lacey, Marcus Wolf (previously Mr. Bingley and Mary Bennet), Christopher Puckett (previously Mr. Darcy), Jessica Hamilton, Mr. Michela Muñoz-Brown, Andy Meyers, Cherisse Martinelli, and Gracie Butterfield.

"I think that it's a pretty stellar cast," Baird said. "Everybody is really talented and also working extremely hard, and the product that they're making, I think it's probably the best thing I've seen in our area in the last like three or four years."

"It's a chance to get, you know, professional theater in a region that doesn't typically get it. We typically have to travel to Seattle, or we have to travel to places like Spokane for touring things," she said.

The show runs April 5-7 and 11-14. For showtimes and tickets, visit icicle.org.

also noted that complaints about overflow and oversized parking had ceased after the collaboration between the city, county, and LAP resulted in the implementation of signage, clarified parking instructions on the LAP website, and communication with patrons. Kottkamp said he would take the reservation-only system into consideration when making his final decision.

The primary concern for music and extended hours was additional noise. Some residents felt the two should be reserved for the downtown core and LAP held to a different standard due to its height and proximity to neighborhoods despite being in the tourist commercial zone.

Many felt that the existing parameters offered some noise relief from the excessive screaming throughout the day, which was the primary point of discussion during the hearing.

"The ability to enjoy my home and yard has been adversely affected by the Adventure Park, mainly from the constant screaming and yelling being emitted from the coaster riders," said resident Charles Hamstreet.

The LAP completed its noise study required by the CUP in January in response to public comments regarding its amendment request. The report concluded that the noise was within municipal code. However, those in opposition at the hearing were dissatisfied with the location and timing of the study and stated that canyon echoing, foliage, and park attendance should have been taken into consideration.

Those who testified about the screams had varying levels of experience and opinions. Some expressed hearing constant screams every day, while some only heard it under certain circumstances. Those who heard the screams unanimously found them to be unnerving and a safety concern. However, others claimed they either never heard it or that it wasn't loud enough to compete with other city noise.

"I think we have to understand that there's noise from other parts of Leavenworth as well at equal or even more sensory level sound, and they didn't have to go through sound studies and other things to make that possible for them. I just think fairness is the key point here," said resident Kurt Peterson.

The hearing had an overwhelming amount of opposition to the park, but a handful of supporters were also present. Those who were in favor of the amendments viewed the original conditions as unfair, potentially harming a business they believe has been a unique and positive addition to Leavenworth.

Kottkamp said he would have a decision in 10 working business days for the music, hours, and parking requests. However, Kottkamp was unable to address the complaints about screaming or the noise study, as it was not included in the request.

"All of that testimony that came out is very important, very valid, very relevant, but it's not part of the three changes that the applicant has requested today. Now that being said, that doesn't mean the issue of human noises from the coaster ride should not be further considered," said Kottkamp.

Kottkamp suggested seeking out a second public hearing to address the noise and mitigation options.

WENATCHEE - Senator Cantwell, Representative Schrier, leaders of Yakama & Colville Tribes, NOAA, U.S. and Washington State Departments of Fish and Wildlife, and Chelan and Douglas County PUDs gathered at Rocky Reach Dam on Mar. 29 to celebrate the 20th Anniversary of the Mid-Columbia Habitat Conservation Plans.

"I'm delighted to be here 20 years later, to see the progress, to see the measurable results, to see the collaboration and the friendships that have taken place in this particular part of the United States. Trust me, a lot of people could learn from the example set by these agencies, by these organizations, by these people, all to work together for the betterment of salmon and our region," said Sen. Cantwell.

20 years ago, Rocky Reach, carried by the intent of the Habitat Conservation Plans... This intent means that the river systems and fishery that sustain Yakama people would be healthy and abundant, like they were with resources reserved under the Treaty [of 1855]," said Christopher Wallahee, a Tribal Council Member of Confederated Tribes and Bands of the Yakama Nation.

Jarred-Michael Erickson, Chairman of the Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation and biologist, also spoke about the value and the success of the collaboration, as well carrying the work on to further efforts to hold federal dams to the same accountability as the local PUD standards, work on partnerships in Canada to add further protections on the Upper-Columbia.

Chelan PUD's HCP requires Rocky Reach and Rock Island dams to achieve 91 percent combined survival rates for adult and juvenile salmon. In a summary of the project survival, Spring Chinook Salmon had a combined survival rate of 93.85 percent at Rock Island Dam, and 92.52 percent at Rocky Reach Dam.

"Indigenous knowledge and perspectives that [the tribes] bring to the table with this agreement, make us smarter in our decision making, and it holds us accountable to work harder to fulfill our trust responsibilities," said Jennifer Quan of NOAA.
