Cashmere Farmers Market celebrates milestone, nonprofit status

By Quinn Propst Ward Media Staff Reporter

The Cascade Community Markets, which include the Leavenworth and Cashmere Farmers Markets, have a few reasons to celebrate as the 2024 season opens.

The organization has reached its 15-year anniversary and just earned official 501(c)(3) status, making it a federally tax-exempt nonprofit.

Cali Osborne, Executive Director of Cascade Community Markets, said the organization has worked for years to achieve 501(c)(3) status.

"This had been a goal since its formation, but the work was always too much without full-time staff to sort through five years of financials and write the 40-page application," Osborne said.

"I believe all non-profits hope to become a 501(c)(3)," founding board member Eron Drew said.

"It cements the non-profit status and allows the market to accept donations but also apply for grants that would otherwise be unavailable," Drew said. "This is a great achievement and one the current board should be proud of accomplishing."

Osborne said that the Cashmere Market opened for its fourth season on May 12, making it the first Farmers Market effort to stick it out in Cashmere.

The Leavenworth Community Farmers Market is moving to Saturdays and back to its original home at Lions Park.

Cascade Medical bids adieu to Commissioner Mall Boyd

By Taylor Caldwell Ward Media Staff Reporter

LEAVENWORTH—After a decade of dedicated service, Commissioner Mall Boyd bid farewell to her role on the Cascade Medical Board of Commissioners, marking the end of an era in community healthcare leadership.

"It has been a great pleasure to work with Mall. She focuses on what is best for patients, employees, and our community. She is well-prepared with thoughtful opinions and perspective but continues to listen to others who may think differently. The result can be better thinking than any of us would have done individually," said Board Commissioner Bruce Williams.

During her time on the board, Boyd worked with other commissioners to guide Cascade Medical through the pandemic and implement behavioral health services and the mobile clinic.

"In addition to her depth of knowledge about health care, she brings a perspective that is pragmatic, intuitive and also curious. She is an excellent listener, always respectful, and brings thoughtful insights and wisdom to every deliberation," said Cascade Medical Center CEO Diane

Before the pandemic, Boyd initiated community leader dinners at the hospital, which allowed the hospital to share its work with community representatives and hear feedback and ideas on how to better serve its district area.

"I think that was very beneficial. We had a lot of positive feedback...I think it really helped us as far as relations within the community," said

Additionally, she has served on many local boards, such as the Community Foundation of North Central Washington, Rotary Clubs, Icicle Creek Center for the Arts, and the school board.

Boyd moved from Estonia to Michigan when she was five years old. Growing up, she loved people and was always actively involved in different clubs and organizations.

"I tend to jump in with both feet," said Boyd.

Boyd started her people-oriented career early on as a personnel director, but things took a 180-

"We'd have morning coffee at John the Baker's with a lot of the other business community members and kind of solve the problems of the world in the community...People came and wanted to be involved in the community, and I see that continuing today," said Boyd.

However, the repetition at the lumberyard led Boyd to strive for more community involvement, prompting her to join the school board when her son entered kindergarten. Boyd served on the board for eight years, overseeing and navigating the WENATCHEE - Colonial Vista Community's oldest resident Mabel Hoffman celebrated turning 104 with a garden tea party, surrounded by 60 of her friends and family.

At 104, Hoffman still has a gregarious laugh, a sharp memory, and loves to socialize. Every Sunday, she walks herself across the street to attend church.

"They say I don't look my age, well what am I supposed to look like?" said

Hoffman says she didn't do anything specific to get to 104. She suspects eating vegetables and staying active has helped, but she credits her enjoyment of life.

"At every age, there's something good," said Hoffman. Hoffman spent almost her entire life in Cashmere, the exception of a couple years in Seattle during WWII, and moving to Colonial Vista when she was 96 and a half. She was the oldest of nine kids born to Norwegian Limited by career opportunity and the threat of a looming war, her father moved to Canada, then the U.S. as a young man. Her mother moved to the U.S. with her parents when she was 16 years old. The two had each visited Norway, and met on a ship returning to the U.S.

The couple raised their kids on an orchard in Cashmere, where Hoffman got into all sorts of trouble as a young child. She remembers escaping the front yard and walking down a busy logging road with her brother at three years old, finding herself on the roof at four, and even getting into lead and arsenic used on the orchards.

"Mom never worried about us,"

Former Wenatchee man sentenced to prison for fraudulently obtaining COVID-19 Relief Funds

NCW News Ward Media

SPOKANE Carnell O'Daffer, formerly of Wenatchee, has been sentenced to 12 months and one day in prison, followed by three vears of supervised release for fraudulently obtaining more than $117,000 in COVID-19 relief funding, according to an announcement by Vanessa R. Waldref, the United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Washington.

O'Daffer admitted fraudulently obtaining $117,400in Economic Injury Disaster Loan (EIDL) funding for his purported home appraisal business, Chelan Douglas Appraisal Services. However, at the time of his EIDL application, O'Daffer was not licensed as an appraiser, and conducting home appraisals. Instead of using the funds for their intended purpose, O'Daffer spent the loan proceeds on non-business expenses, including more than $39,000 for the purchase of a personal RV.

December 2022, O'Daffer was arrested in San Francisco. Following his initial appearance, he absconded from his pretrial release and remained at large until his subsequent arrest in March

"Mr. O'Daffer fraudulently obtained funds, set aside to help struggling small and local businesses during the COVID-19 pandemic. Mr. O'Daffer spent the funds on a recreational vehicle and a cross-country road trip. Then, while on pretrial release following his business was no longer his arrest, Mr. O'Daffer disappeared until he was arrested again a few months later," stated U.S. Attorney Waldref. "I am grateful for the excellent investigative work of the Secret Service and the COVID-19 Strike Force to hold Mr. O'Daffer accountable. My office's White-Collar team will continue to vigorously prosecute those who abuse misuse COVID-19 funding.' The case was investigated by the Eastern District of Washington COVID-19 Fraud Strike Force, the U.S. Secret Service, Spokane Resident Office and San Francisco Field Office, and the SBA OIG. Assistant United States Attorneys Jeremy Kelly and Tyler H.L. Tornabene prosecuted the case on behalf of the United States.

Dr. Doug Eisert, Pediatrician at Confluence Health, awarded Leah Layne Memorial Health Leadership award

NCW News Ward Media

WENATCHEE - Dr. Doug Eisert, a longtime pediatrician in the Wenatchee Valley practicing at the Confluence Health East Wenatchee Clinic, was recently awarded the 2024 Leah Layne Memorial Health Leadership Award.

Named after the late Leah Layne, a long-time campaigner and activist for rural health, the award is granted by the Washington Rural Health Association (WRHA) to an individual who exemplifies Leah's spirit, vision, foresight, dedication to rural health through demonstrated leadership skills by dedicating their time and talent to improving the health and well-being of others. Eisert was announced as this year's recipient at a WRHA luncheon held in Spokane on March 26.

Put forward for the award by Sarah Rafton, executive director of the Washington Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics (WCAAP), in her nomination she stated, "Pediatrician Dr. Doug Eisert has made a significant impact on child and adolescent vaccine coverage in the Wenatchee Valley, exemplifying prevention and public health, and preventing cancer. Dr. Eisert has stood out for his leadership in two immunization learning collaboratives where he improved vaccinations for children and adolescents by 24% at Confluence Health in Wenatchee and 15% at Confluence Health in East Wenatchee, impacting 6.215 patients. Dr. Eisert's leadership and the work of the clinic teams made a significant impact on health equity, improving vaccinations for Hispanic patients by 27.5%. In his work on increasing HPV vaccination at ages 9-10, Dr. Eisert helped the clinics improve vaccination coverage 31%, impacting 1,252 patients aged 9-10 at both clinics combined. Dr. Eisert is a true champion for Wenatchee Valley children and youth, improving public health and health for future generations."

Dr. Sherri Zorn, a fellow pediatrician and WCAAP quality improvement coach who also worked with Eisert on the efforts, commented, "Over and over, Dr. Eisert proved himself to be a gentle, wise, and innovative leader intuition with incredible about how to best support his teammates in their day-to-day work to improve vaccination rates and improve the health of Wenatchee's youth. He was a joy to work with; as a quality improvement coach, I learned so much from his questions, insights, and humility."

While thankful for the award and grateful for the recognition, Dr. Eisert was quick to emphasize that these successes were a team effort and a part of the work of the entire pediatrics staff. "We worked with several vaccine interest groups and tracked our successes and opportunities in making progress with increasing the vaccination rates of our patients. I give a big shout of thanks to Keri Hartman, certified medical assistant at the East Wenatchee pediatrics clinic, and to the entire team and staff for the big effort on vaccinations the last two years," remarked Dr. Eisert. "It always takes a team to be successful, and our group rose to the challenge. I am honored to receive the award, but everyone did their part."

"Dr. Eisert stands out to me as exemplar of WCAAP and our members - working every day to inspire and support his teammates in clinic to improve child and teen health, and public health," reflected Sarah Rafton after hearing her nomination had been selected to receive the award. "Dr. Eisert also models how we hope we can all treat each other as health care professionals: demonstrating personal interest in his peers and warmth in all he does."

OBITUARY

Dwight Goehner

Dwight Goehner was born to Walter and Alvina Goehner in May of 1957. He joined his sister Naomi and brother Keith in a loving Christian home, surrounded by numerous aunts, uncles and cousins, most of whom lived in the same Dryden, WA area. Dwight grew up helping his father and uncles with the family pear orchards.

He graduated from Peshastin-Dryden High School, where he enjoyed baseball and wrestling. At age 15, he was diagnosed with juvenile diabetes, which he fought for the rest of his life. Despite this, he consistently chose careers that allowed him to serve others. During high school, he began a work/study at Ward's Funeral Chapel in Leavenworth which also ran an ambulance service. He became the youngest licensed ambulance driver in WA state at age 17. He learned the funeral trade, and over the years, worked at Braun in Cashmere, and Betts in Wenatchee. He also served with his dad on the Dryden Volunteer Fire Department.

He later worked for Ballard Ambulance and became a paramedic through one of the first programs taught by Drs. Gill and Shipman. Dwight and his partners saved many lives and grieved over those beyond their help.

As a young husband, he was blessed with two children, daughter Christina and later son Christopher. They had great fun at Lake Wenatchee, going to Tillicum Village, Disneyland, camping trips, fishing, endless rodeos, speedy trips to Mariners games, and campfires on Cannon Beach.

Faithful to support his family, he often worked two jobs, while completing the Wenatchee Police Reserves Academy. He began patrol work as a Reserve Deputy then was hired by Sheriff Joe Collins. He graduated from the WA State Police Academy and returned as a full-fledged Deputy. He risked his life to serve and protect Chelan County.

After his law enforcement career, he returned to his agricultural roots and worked for Dovex Fruit. While there, he was diagnosed with diabetic kidney failure and, as a single parent, was committed to continue working and raising his children. Friends from his church volunteered to be tested and a match was found. A great friend donated her kidney, and the transplant lasted an amazing 27 years, saving him from many years of dialysis. He later had a pancreas transplant which lasted until his passing.

In 1997, he married Carol (Sexton) Smith, and they enjoyed 26 years of a loving marriage committed to Jesus. This marriage brought two bonus stepchildren, Kellie and Adam. Despite his full-time employment, Dwight helped Carol operate her small cherry orchard for 20 years until it was sold.

In his last role, he served Chelan County with Link Transit as a purchasing agent. He made multiple friends during his many years there, but poor health forced his early retirement.

Dwight enjoyed family gatherings, gospel singing, traveling in the RV, and driving his 1949 cherry red Chevy pickup. He was also an avid Mariners fan, even during the bad years. Dwight loved old Western TV shows, because they taught good morals. And NO ONE was excluded from his practical jokes.

While he had a good sense of humor, Dwight was serious about his faith, serving in many roles within the churches he attended.

He was confirmed in the Dryden church and was baptized by his father. He was a board member of Eastmont Community Church, which was founded by his parents. He was a trustee and worship leader at the Cashmere Methodist Church and sang at the Nazarene Church in Leavenworth. He then attended Sage Hills church, singing and making many life-long friends.

Dwight passed into heaven on May 4, 2024, at home surrounded by his wife and children. He was preceded in death by his parents, Walt and Alvina Goehner, and his in-laws, Leonard and Darlene Sexton. He is survived by his wife Carol; daughter Christina (Donny) Butts, Peshastin; son Christopher Goehner, Tampa, FL; stepdaughter Kellie (Robert) Rankin, Cashmere; and stepson Adam (Vanessa) Smith, Seattle. Grandchildren: Elijah and Alexis Robles. Mariah and Carly Rankin, Connor and Raylin Butts, Olivia, Penelope and Axel Smith. Great grandkids: Kaylani and Selena. Also surviving are his sister Naomi (Bill) Forsberg, Wenatchee; brother Keith (Lisa) Goehner, Dryden; brother-in-law Larry (Linda) Sexton, Monitor; numerous other family and friends.

A Visitation will be Thursday, May 9, from 5:00-7:00 pm at Chapel of the Valley, East Wenatchee.

A Graveside will be Friday, May 10, at 11 am at Cashmere Cemetery, Cashmere. A Memorial Service following at 2 pm will be held at Dryden Community Church, 681 Dryden Ave., Dryden; reception to follow.

At Dwight's request, NO TIES ARE TO BE WORN AT THE SERVICE.

Bulldogs Dominate CTL Championship Meet

By Jeff Carlson Cashmere Bulldogs Athletics

QUINCY - The Cashmere Bulldogs track and field teams put on an impressive show on Wednesday at the Caribou Trail League Championship Meet in Quincy. Both the CHS boys and girls claimed league championship trophies in a stunning fashion.

For the Cashmere girls, it was a day of triumph and personal bests as they delivered one stellar performance after another. Leading the charge was Raquel Pedraza, who secured victories in three events: Shot Put (32-4), Javelin (109-9), and Discus (111-6). Pedraza's remarkable feat was complemented by the impressive showing of freshman Brynne Patrick, who blazed to victory in both the 100M (13.11) and 200M (27.98), the latter marking a personal record. Freshman Mackenzie Van Bogart claimed victory in the 400M (1:03.46), while Taylor Kunz, also a freshman, showcased her versatility by winning the 100M Hurdles (16.50) and setting a personal record when she won the long jump (16-6.75). Junior Elsey McDevitt continued the trend of personal bests with her triumph in the 300M hurdles, clocking in at 50.93. With additional victories from Quinn Pace in the pole vault (8-0) and Brianna Talley in the triple jump (31-9), the Cashmere girls dominated the competition, culminating in victories in all three relays - the 4×100, 4×200, and 4×400 total of 153 team points, a staggering 73 points ahead of their closest rivals.

Meanwhile, the Cashmere boys team showcased their own brand of excellence, steamrolling their way to victory with a commanding display of talent. Keenan Knoll led the charge with a victory in the 800M (2:05.23), while Kaden Miller delivered two first place finishes with standout performances in both the 110M Hurdles (14.72, personal record) and the 300M hurdles (40.39, season record). With victories in the 4×100 and 4×400 relays, the Bulldogs' relay teams proved to be unstoppable. Brody Larson emerged victorious in the Shot Put (43-7), Marcelino Torres soared to victory in the

- and amassing an impressive javelin with a personal record of 153-2, Tobie Larson cleared 11-6 to win the pole vault, and Michael Acton claimed victory in the triple jump with a leap of 37-1. With a total of 151 team points, the Cashmere boys left their competitors in the dust, securing a commanding 93point lead over second-place Quincy.

With their resounding the CTL victories at Championship meet, the Bulldogs have set their sights on the upcoming District 6 Championship Meet next Thursday (May 16th) in Cashmere, where they will aim to secure their spots at the 1A State Championship Meet. The top two finishers in each event at the District Meet will qualify for State in Yakima (May 23-25).

Should you take a calcium supplement 2024

Q: Should I take a calcium supplement to help prevent osteoporosis (thin bones)?

Last fall, Ann, my 72-year-old sister-in-law, was going out to her mailbox when she slipped on her icy driveway and fell on the ice. But she not only fell down, but she kept sliding. Like a hockey puck, she shot down her icy driveway, right out into the street.

Luckily for her, there weren't any cars coming down the street. Unfortunately, she broke her wrist trying to brace herself when she fell.

After surgery to stabilize the fractured bones in her right wrist, her doctor informed her she had osteoporosis, or "thin bones." He prescribed Ann two new medications: a bone-building medicine plus a daily calcium and vitamin D supplement.

What are the benefits of taking calcium and vitamin D? Calcium does a lot more for us than just keeping our bones strong. Our muscles, nerves, and blood vessels depend on calcium to work properly. For example, every time your heart beats or you breathe, your heart and chest muscles work for you, keeping you alive and well thanks to adequate amounts of calcium in your blood.

If you run low on calcium in your blood, your body will take the calcium it needs out of your bones. It's like an ATM (automated teller machine) but extracting calcium instead of

If your blood needs more calcium than it has available, occasionally grabbing some calcium from your bones is not much of a problem. But consider this: if your body needs to find additional calcium regularly, these regular withdrawals will eventually weaken your bones, increasing your risk of a hip fracture or worse.

How much calcium do you

The Institute of Medicine recommends 1000mg daily of calcium for men and women up to age 50, and 1200mg for adults older than 50. Most postmenopausal women get only 600-900mg of calcium daily through their food. This falls short of the 1000-1200mg daily calcium goal by 100-600mg daily. Some women make up that difference by taking a calcium supplement.

Supplemental calcium tablets, capsules, and chewable caramels are easy ways to ensure women and men at risk for osteoporosis get their recommended daily dose of calcium.

Unfortunately, studies have shown that taking a calcium supplement may provide TOO MUCH calcium. This can result in increased risks of heart attack or stroke. It's theorized that there's a spike in blood levels of calcium when taking a concentrated calcium supplement, which may damage your blood vessels.

Taking calcium supplements has another dark side: they encourage the formation of painful kidney stones. For these reasons, bone and kidney specialists discourage their patients from relying on getting ALL of their recommended daily calcium from supplements.

Most forms of calcium sold as supplements are calcium carbonate or calcium citrate. Calcium carbonate is the most concentrated form of supplemental calcium. It is available as flavored chewable tablets (Tums) and large pills. Calcium carbonate causes constipation in some people.

Calcium carbonate is not well absorbed when taking acid-reducing medicines like omeprazole (Prilosec®) or lansoprazole (Prevacid®). Instead, you should choose calcium citrate. Have trouble swallowing large tablets? Calcium supplements are also available as gummies.

Here are 5 Tips on Getting Enough Calcium: 1. Eat calcium-rich foods.

Most people get 300mg of calcium daily from non-dairy sources. Dairy products like milk, yogurt, and cheese also contain 300 mg of calcium per serving. Green vegetables, oranges, and figs also contain calcium.

2. Check out the Calcium

Calculator app. This app lets you keep track of your calcium intake. You can also check the lists of calcium-rich foods on the International Osteoporosis Foundation website, www.

iofbonehealth.org.

3. You need more calcium and vitamin D when taking bone-building medicine.

Prescription drugs like alendronate (Fosamax®), rise dronate (Actonel®), ibandronate (Boniva®), and teriparatide (Forteo®) strengthen bones by adding calcium back into them. But if you don't have enough calcium in your diet, they won't work.

4. Limit doses of calcium supplements to 500mg at a

Your body absorbs calcium better at lower doses, avoiding a potential "spike" in your calcium level that can increase your risk of heart attack or

5. Get at least 400 IU of Vitamin D every day.

Vitamin D is necessary for your body to absorb calcium. You can get vitamin D from exposure. However, other good calcium sources include salmon (800 IU per 3 ounces), canned tuna (150 IU per 3 ounces), fortified milk (about 120 IU per 4 ounces), and fortified orange juice (80 IU per 4 ounces).

Bulldogs Fall to Kodiaks in Hard-Fought Semifinal Clash

By Jeff Carlson

Cashmere Bulldogs Athletics

CASHMERE - In a thrilling showdown at the Wenatchee Apple Bowl on Wednesday night, the Cashmere Bulldogs boys' soccer team battled fiercely against the Cascade Kodiaks in the semifinal round of the District 6 Tournament.

The Kodiaks entered the match as the #1 ranked team in the state, boasting an impressive 15-0-1 record. However, the Bulldogs refused to be intimidated as they brought a high-level of physicality against their crosstown rivals.

From the opening whistle, it was evident that both teams were evenly matched, with neither side willing to concede an inch. The first half saw the Bulldogs deliver a strong performance, creating scoring opportunities and testing the Cascade defense. In the 39th minute, Cashmere came agonizingly close to breaking the deadlock when a wellexecuted free kick from Nate Hodges threatened to put them ahead, only to be denied by a spectacular save from the Cascade goalkeeper.

As the match progressed into the second half, the Bulldogs continued to hold their own against Cascade's high-scoring offense, showcasing resilience and unity on the field. Led by standout performances from Dalan Smart, who made eight crucial saves, and a stalwart defensive effort from Ivan Gonzalez, Victor Ramos, Grey Jacobson, and Landon Baker, Cashmere managed to keep their opponents at bay for the majority of the match.

In midfield, JJ Herrera, Nate Hodges, Luke Fox, Juan Cacho, Angel Valdivia, Ethan Thiess, and Alejandro Rojas worked tirelessly to control the tempo of the game and provide crucial support to their teammates. Meanwhile, Ian McFadden, Alonzo Rojas, Emanuel Urrutia, and Alonso Mendoza spearheaded the Bulldogs' offensive efforts, testing the Cascade defense with their determination.

Despite their valiant efforts, the Bulldogs were dealt a heartbreaking blow in the dying moments of managed to break the scoreless deadlock with a goal in stoppage time, securing a narrow 1-0 victory.

Despite the result, the Bulldogs showcased immense courage throughout the match, pushing the #1 ranked team in the state to their limits and proving that they are a force to be reckoned with.

lost their orchard, and had to move into a barn with four rooms, and no electricity, plumbing, or water.

To survive, her mother raised rabbits for meat, grew a large garden, handspun sweaters, and baked bread from scratch. In 1939, Hoffman said her father passed away from cancer. Another immigrant, who her father had helped in the past, returned the favor to his mother, gifting her $300 to purchase a 7.5 acre orchard.

Despite the challenges, Hoffman looks back on her childhood fondly. She and her friends walked everywhere as kids, spending their time down by the river, or up at Flower Divide. They'd bob for apples and eat donuts off a string, make up plays and perform for their friends, and collect bottles for money to buy popcorn and a movie ticket.

"We didn't have toys, but we had imaginations," said Hoffman.

Hoffman graduated high school in 1938, and married her husband, who lived next door to the orchard, in 1941. The two lived in Seattle for a couple of years, while her husband worked in the shipyard. Hoffman was a licensed practical nurse.

She heard the U.S. had declared war in a news theater, and remembers the streets full of soldiers on their way back to base. The next day, she said, all of her Japanese neighbors were gone.

Hoffman and her husband eventually moved back to Cashmere and bought an apple and pear orchard up Yaksum Canyon, where they raised their four children. Hoffman would enjoy baking, sewing, and gardening. She and the kids would visit the library so often that the librarian called them the "readingest" family she knew.

"I really enjoyed raising kids and grandkids," said Hoffman.

Hoffman's husband died in 1987. In her later years, she got her driver's license at the age of sixty, and visited Norway three times. Her last trip was at 80 years old. She has eight grandchildren, and five great grandchildren.

'Bringing the community to your door' isn't just our slogan... It's our purpose

The Leavenworth Echo Cashmere Valley Record

Farmers Market

The Leavenworth Market will open for the 2024 season on Saturday, June 1, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Lions Park.

"The Leavenworth Market is changing day for the first time in 15 years and it's relocating back to the original location that the community just loved," Osborne said.

"While the Board of Directors aims to bring more shoppers to the Market, the goal isn't to simply capture more tourism dollars," Osborne said. "The goal is to harness the power of tourism to support our local small businesses and thereby create a stronger and more vibrant market for residents."

"I believe the market has been struggling a bit with visibility while it has been located at Osborn," Drew said. "I am hoping that this challenge is overcome by relocating back to the downtown corridor."

The Leavenworth Market began in 2008 when a group of vendors got together to discuss starting a new Farmers Market in Leavenworth.

"Danielle Gibbs, Jerrilyn Delaney, Eron Drew had been vending at the Leavenworth Farmers Market on Tuesdays, then owned and managed by the Wenatchee Valley Farmers Osborne said. "Along with other vendors and community members, they realized it was time for a change and decided to start a new market and operate it themselves."

"So in 2009, the Leavenworth Community Farmers Market was founded with a mission to promote both community and local agriculture," Osborne "They opened on Thursday evenings and soon found a location at Lions Club

Osborne said traditions set in, and the Leavenworth became Market community's cornerstone.

However, 2020 led to changes for the market.

"The market was forced to relocate, it was hot on the pavement, booths were spaced out and some vendors didn't attend, but it still provided a weekly outdoor space for the community to connect and the turnout was excellent," Osborne said. "And after that particularly strange year, the Market found a new home at the School District Office on Evans Street and settled in for three relatively smooth

"Meanwhile, in the summer of 2020, a group of Cashmere residents got together and applied for and received a grant to kick off a new Farmers Market," Osborne said.

LCFM was contracted to manage the first season for the Cashmere Community Farmers Market in 2021. After a successful first year, the committee gifted the Cashmere market to LCFM.

"Once the Markets were formally merged, the business name "Leavenworth Community Farmers Market" was no longer a good fit," Osborne said. "With the help of consultant Julie Edsforth. the board decided to rebrand and reorganize the business as Cascade Community Markets, a name to represent both market locations equally."

"In 2022, the Cashmere Market was relocated to its current home at the Cashmere Museum and has been steadily growing ever since," Osborne said. "Still open on Sundays from Mothers Day through mid October and now in its 4th season, the Cashmere Market is on its way to becoming another community cornerstone."

In 2023, the Cascade Community Markets Board of Directors reviewed the Leavenworth Market. After the 2022 season, they noticed that vendor sales had hit a plateau in 2016 and that in 2022, vendors made the same amount on average as they had six years prior, Osborne said.

'Other farmers markets in the state have seen consistent growth, even through the pandemic, as have most local businesses," Osborne said.

"The Board quickly realized that this plateau could be a permanent trend and if they didn't fix it, they would continue to lose vendors, struggle to replace them, and under-serve both the community and the vendors who rely on the Market," she

"After interviewing key stakeholders, surveying the community and the vendors, and working with the City and Chamber of Commerce, the board concluded that the Leavenworth Community Farmers Market should relocate back to Lions Club Park and transition to Saturday mornings," Osborne said.

The committee cited the need to harness tourism to support the numerous vendors whose products aren't necessarily weekly purchases for resident shoppers but which the residents still want to buy locally, she said.

"For example, jams, honeys and soaps are classic farmers market products but if the clientele is exclusively local and only buys those things once a month at best, the vendors can't justify attending the market every week," she said. "And if they only attend once a month, the whole market suffers from seeming small and inadequately stocked the rest of the month."

"But those products are exactly what tourists love to buy, so if the market harnesses that potential, we expect to see those vendors, and many like them, every week - thriving and serving both residents and visitors," she said.

"The same can be said for artists, meat and cheese vendors, jewelers, and even prepared food vendors, all of which the market's shoppers have been asking for for years," she said.

There are only 20 days of markets in Leavenworth each season, and the vendors, many of whom make their money seasonally, need every one of

Upper Valley Church Guide

PHOTOS COURTESY OF CLAIRE SEAMAN them. She said this is another reason the board cited for the change to Saturday mornings.

The board chose a morning market time to address high summer temperatures.

"The past several seasons have seen multiple heat waves of over 106 degrees and extremely poor air quality that have caused numerous market cancellations," she said. "While little can be done for the smoke, the board felt the second most important thing to fix about the market was the oppressively hot weather of summer afternoons in Leavenworth."

"Vendors were arriving at the market as early as 2 p.m. each week, meaning they packed, drove, and set up in the heat of the day, all of which was terrible for the produce and decidedly worse for the vendors," she said. "Cases of heat exhaustion and last minute cancellations were becoming all too common. So the move to the mornings was essential to keep the market open for as many weeks as possible.'

consolidation of the Peshastin-Dryden and Leavenworth school districts.

She and other board members stood their ground as they faced backlash for allowing the PD and Leavenworth students to choose a new mascot together as an act of inclusion.

"[A fellow board member] said, "Do you think we're doing the right thing?" and I said, "We are absolutely doing the right thing," said Boyd.

After selling the lumberyard, Boyd took a part-time job billing for the local clinic, was promoted to managing the clinic, and then, after some structural changes to the area's hospitals, was offered a job as a marketing coordinator in Wenatchee.

"I certainly didn't have the necessary skill set. I hopefully developed that with time, but I've had a lot of good mentors, in my various various roles," said Boyd.

Boyd stepped into the role with a learning attitude and focused on what she knew best: people. She helped the hospital organize its schedule to allow for new patients, and worked with doctors to improve their interpersonal skills. The elevated customer

Boyd retired in 2014 and then discovered an opening for a commissioner position at Cascade. Now, ten years in, she's ready to pass the baton to someone new.

"That's long enough. They need new ideas, new energy. We've got a really good board. I think there's a lot of interest in not only making sure that things are running well and such but also just in keeping up with current things," said Boyd.

Numbers Like puzzles?

Fun By The

Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
