Link Transit donates surplus vans to local nonprofits

NCW News
Ward Media

WENATCHEE — Link Transit has awarded five local organizations with used vans as part of its new surplus van grant program.

The recipients of this inaugural round of grants include Wenatchee Rescue Mission, Plain Food Pantry and Community Church, CAFÉ, Chelan Teen Center, and Parque Padrinos/Pinnacles Prep.

The program allows Link Transit to repurpose vehicles that have reached the end of their service life with the transit agency, donating them to qualifying non-profit organizations and government agencies instead of auctioning them off.

The awarded vehicles range from 5- to 11-passenger vans. While they no longer meet Link Transit's operational standards, all are fully operable and serviceable. Link Transit received twelve applications for the five available vehicles in this round. The competitive grant process is designed to support organizations that align with Link Transit's goal of providing mobility options for community members.

The next application period for the surplus van grant program is scheduled for spring 2025. Interested organizations can find more information on Link Transit's website.

The hospital achieved a 100% timely referral rate over the past year, with 92.3% of all deaths being referred for potential tissue donation.

CHELAN -- Bill Tsoulakas, Executive Director of Boys and Girls Clubs of Snohomish County (BGCSC), addressed the Chelan City Council at its bi-monthly meeting on June 25, following the announcement that the Seven Acres Foundation inked

CHELAN—Representatives from the Wenatchee Valley Humane Society (WVHS) addressed the city council on Tuesday, June 25, in the wake of Executive Director James Pumphrey's sudden departure the previous day. Pumphrey, who was listed on the council agenda as the presentation spokesman, was replaced by WVHS

Board President Patrick Davidson and Director of Operations Sgt. Nomi Stunzman.

Davidson spoke about both WVHS services and how the City of Chelan figures into the case and cost ratio.

Davidson opened his address with 2023 rescue numbers, reflecting that WVHS outperformed both state and national averages for shelters with

SWAT Team defuses armed standoff in Entiat

NCW News
Ward Media

ENTIAT — A potentially dangerous situation in Entiat was peacefully resolved last week when law enforcement successfully apprehended an armed man experiencing a mental health crisis.

Chelan County deputies responded to a disturbance call at approximately 11:03 a.m. on Tuesday, June 25, in the 15000 block of US Highway 97A. The subject, identified as Dalton Olson, 32, of Wenatchee, had armed himself with a high-powered rifle at his mother's residence.

According to authorities, Olson's mother managed to leave the premises safely and was met by responding deputies. The investigation revealed that Olson was prohibited from possessing firearms due to a prior incident and an existing court order.

When initial attempts to contact Olson failed, the East Cascade SWAT Team (ECST) was called to assist.

The specialized unit was deployed after detectives from the Chelan County Sheriff's Office obtained a search warrant for Olson and any firearms in his possession.

Using tactical expertise, the ECST successfully took Olson into custody without incident. He is expected to face two counts of unlawful possession of firearms under Washington state law.

The investigation is ongoing, according to officials.

One dead, one injured in early morning RV fire

NCW News
Ward Media

CHELAN — A residential fire in Chelan last week left one person dead and another injured, officials said.

The blaze, which erupted on Monday, June 24 around 1:16 a.m. on Ariel Lane, engulfed a fifth-wheel trailer and spread to two sheds, two vehicles, and ignited a quarter-acre brush fire, according to Chelan Fire and Rescue Chief Asher.

Upon arrival, fire crews found the trailer fully involved, with flames threatening multiple nearby RVs. Firefighters prioritized containing the brush fire to prevent further spread before tackling the main blaze.

Cider maker Endless Orchard wins top honors at Northwest competition

NCW News
Ward Media

PORTLAND, Ore. — Endless Orchard Hard Pressed Cider, a new entrant in the craft cider industry, has garnered attention at the 2024 NW Cider Cup by securing two awards, including Best New Cider of the Year.

The competition, held June 20 at Holocene in southeast Portland, Oregon, is regarded as the most rigorous cider contest in the United States.

Organized by the Northwest Cider Association since 2016, the event features blind judging and aims to elevate the cider category while providing feedback to cidemakers.

Endless Orchard, a business unit of Okanagan Specialty Fruits (OSF), also claimed a Gold Medal in the Herbed Botanical Category for its Boundless Blueberry Basil Cider. The company exclusively uses Arctic® apples, developed by OSF, in their cider production.

Don Westcott, President of OSF, explained the company's approach: "Arctic apples offer a unique non-browning trait, and the result is a cider that is in a class of its own and provides a truly one-of-a-kind drinking experience." He added that the venture reflects the company's commitment to sustainability and increased apple utilization.

The Best New Cider award is presented to the producer with the highest point value from medals among those who have been commercially producing for one year or less. This recognition comes just one month after Endless Orchard officially launched its tasting room.

"These two awards are a testament to our team's passion for crafting high-quality ciders that showcase the unique flavors and attributes of Arctic apple varieties," said Vicki Daigneault, General Manager of Endless Orchard Cider. "We are absolutely thrilled to be recognized with these accolades. I am so proud to see how far our team has come in such a short period of time, especially considering we only officially launched our tasting room last month."

The Northwest Cider Association, which organizes the NW Cider Cup, is a regional non-profit with nearly 300 cidery members. The competition serves multiple purposes, including providing feedback to cidemakers, educating cider enthusiasts, and promoting the cider industry as a whole.

Endless Orchard's cider production facility is located in Wenatchee, with a tasting room in Chelan. The company's Boundless Blueberry Basil Cider, which won the gold medal, is described as a blend of ripe blueberries and fresh basil, creating a complex flavor profile.

U.S. new-home sales slump to slowest pace since November

By MICHAEL SASSO
Bloomberg

New-home sales in the US slumped in May as elevated prices and mortgage rates continued to challenge the housing market.

New single-family home sales decreased 11.3% to a 619,000 annual pace last month, the slowest since November, government data released Wednesday show. The figure was below almost all estimates in a Bloomberg survey of economists and reflected declines in all four major US regions.

The sales pace is now at the low end of the range seen over the past year, suggesting limited momentum amid a lack of affordability. Mortgage rates dipped below 7% in mid June for first time since late March, but they remain more than double their levels from the end of 2021.

While high prices have scared off many buyers, a surge of inventory is helping affordability at the margin. The median sale price of a new home decreased 0.9% from a year ago to $417,400 in May. At the same time, the supply of available homes increased to 481,000, still the highest since 2008.

Bigbuilders including Lennar Corp. and KB Home are trying to combat the affordability challenge by buying down customers' mortgage rates

Later in life his love for airplanes shifted to flying radio-controlled models. He was a long-time member of the Wenatchee Red Apple Flyers and very much enjoyed his association with friends in that organization.

Dean was a devout Catholic and regularly attended St. Joseph's Parish in Wenatchee.

He also joined the Knights of Columbus and served with KC-Help, where he enjoyed helping people in need.

Dean was a loving father and husband and was preceded in death by his first wife Barbara in 1979, his daughter, Mary in 1994, and many beloved dogs over the years.

He is survived by his wife Dottie and his children - Marcy (John) Rumelhart of Spokane, Mike (Lisa) Nichols of Redmond, Beth (Reed) Hanson of Rexburg, ID, Julia (John) Dilley, of Olympia, and Tim (Amy) Dilley of Wenatchee, as well as 11 grandchildren and 5 great grandchildren.

My quest to unlock the key to Grandma B's chicken and dumplings

SCOTT SUCHMAN FOR THE WASHINGTON POST; FOOD STYLING BY LISA CHERKASKY FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

By JOAN NIESEN
Special to The Washington Post

My great-grandmother was a rock of a woman, a 5-foot-nothing field general in false teeth and pin curlers. She set things in order and made things right and told you exactly what you were doing wrong. She was always, unceasingly, maniacally doing: the laundry, the yardwork, the dusting and, of course, the cooking.

Her name was Evelyn Baldrige, but to me, she was Grandma B. I was lucky enough to know her for almost 13 years, which meant that, when she died, I was just old enough to understand how different she was from almost every other old lady I'd ever met. For starters, she never in all her 95 years seemed particularly old. She couldn't drive or swim. She didn't have a husband, and although she'd had one once, I understood that was a problem she'd fixed right around the time the Great Depression hit. She lived in a house in Farmington, Mo., the size of a woodshed, where my dad's high school portrait was the featured piece of artwork and the curtains smelled like bacon grease.

Grandma B was always frying something: bacon or chicken or occasionally squirrel. Mornings, she would disappear into a cloud of flour and emerge with biscuits while a pot of gravy bubbled on the ancient stove. Breakfast stretched into lunchtime, and then maybe, if I was lucky, she'd spend the afternoon making chicken and dumplings.

It was the one dish she made that I truly enjoyed. I was not a little girl who would gnaw a crispy chicken leg down to the bone. I was scared of dark meat, of cartilage, of accidentally nibbling something I should not. Gravy, with all its flecks and specks and who-knows-whats, made me shudder. But chicken and dumplings? I'd scoop seconds.

Grandma B died 24 years ago, and as the time without her stretches on, I've developed more than a few regrets about my not-eating habits, in large part because many of her best meals died with her. Grandma cooked without recipes, pinching and heaping and eyeballing. She made do with what she had, and she rarely let anyone help.

My mom, though, was smart enough to watch, and after

Grandma died, she started making chicken and dumplings on special occasions. It was a labor-intensive process: boiling the bird, shredding the meat, skimming fat off the stock and rolling the dough for the rectangular, noodle-like dumplings. I was too busy growing up to learn all the tricks, and eventually we got too busy as a family for a dinner that took half the afternoon to cook.

So when I asked my mom this winter whether she might help me re-create the recipe, she laughed. She jotted down some instructions, which were very much in the spirit of Grandma B's approach to cooking. As in, they were vague: Get a chicken, bring out the flour canister, stock up on butter; ready, set, go.

My first attempt was a mess. My dumplings - just flour, stock and an egg - turned to glue upon chewing, and a whole boiled chicken was excessive (and messy). The dish needed color, and it was thin, soupy. Enter carrots and leeks and a buttery roux to give the broth some body. I swapped an entire bird with bone-in, skin-on breasts, and in what felt like a stroke of yuppie sacrilege, I decided to make the dumplings along the lines of a French pâte à choux (the base for cream puffs, éclairs and more), melting butter with stock, adding flour, cooking the mixture down, then beating in an egg. With every new iteration, I managed to up the flavor (and the richness), and I could feel myself getting closer.

By my fourth or fifth try, my chicken and dumplings were good, but they weren't Grandma's. I was stumped - until I recalled the smell that hung like a cloud in her kitchen. Bacon fat. I thought about the little tin she kept in her fridge, how she'd let the fat cool in her cast-iron skillet and then pour it in the tin, each day another layer of rich, flavor-packed, glorified grease.

Grandma, I realized, made hundreds of vats of chicken and dumplings across nearly a century of change and catastrophe and shifting trends: rationing, inflation, Crisco, margarine. And through it all, Grandma fried bacon. The key to chicken and dumplings lay in that ancient tin.

It was a simple switch, trading butter for bacon fat in the roux, and as soon as the steam hit my nose, I knew I'd hit home. Finally, my chicken and dumplings tasted like her chicken and dumplings, and my kitchen smelled like one I can barely remember, a thousand miles and 24 years away.

Chicken and Dumplings

6 servings (makes about 9 cups)
Total time: 1 hour 45 mins

Bacon grease lends deep, smoky flavor to this version of chicken and dumplings, a stew full of thick, dense noodles. It is distinct from other variations you may see with the equivalent of drop biscuits simmered on top. The bacon grease is a key part of this recipe, but in a pinch, you can use butter. This dish takes a little while to come together, but the result is worth it. It makes an ideal Sunday supper during cold, dreary days.

To make this recipe go faster, wash and cut the vegetables for the stew while the chicken is poaching.

Make ahead: The poached chicken and broth can be prepared and refrigerated separately for up to 4 days in advance.

Storage: Refrigerate for up to 4 days. The stew will thicken as it sits, because the dumplings will continue to absorb the broth. Gently reheat over low heat until warmed through, adding more broth or water as needed to loosen, stirring occasionally. Refrigerate leftover broth for up to 4 days, or freeze for up to 3 months.

Substitutions: Can't find bone-in, skin-on chicken breasts? & Use chicken breasts or thighs with or without the skin or bones. Bacon grease & Regular salted or unsalted butter or plant-based butter. Dairy-free? & Plant-based butter.

Variations: If pressed for time, try making this dish using store-bought chicken broth and cooked chicken breast, such as from a rotisserie bird. Start with making the dumpling dough and pick up the recipe from there.

INGREDIENTS

- 2 1/2 to 3 pounds bone-in, skin-on chicken breasts
- 1 medium yellow onion (8 ounces), unpeeled
- 1 small bunch fresh chives
- 1 tablespoon whole black peppercorns
- 2 teaspoons fine salt, divided
- 5 tablespoons unsalted butter, divided, plus more as needed
- Generous 3/4 cup plus 1/3 cup all-purpose flour, divided, plus more as needed
- 1 large egg
- 1 medium carrot, scrubbed

- and diced
- 1 leek, white and light green parts only, thoroughly washed, halved and thinly sliced
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly cracked black pepper
- Pinch crushed red pepper flakes
- 3 tablespoons bacon grease (see Substitutions)
- Water, as needed

STEPS

In a large pot or Dutch oven, arrange the chicken skin side up and cover with enough cold water to submerge by 1 inch. Trim the root of the onion, then halve the onion through the stem; peel and dice one of the onion halves and set aside. Add the other onion half, with its skin, to the pot, followed by 4 chives, the peppercorns and 1 1/2 teaspoons of the salt, and stir briefly to submerge the aromatics.

Set the pot over medium-high heat and bring to a gentle boil, skimming off the gray scum at the surface as needed. Once the liquid is gently boiling, immediately remove from the heat and cover the pot. Poach the chicken until it registers 165 degrees on an instant-read thermometer inserted in the center of the meat, away from the bone, about 25 minutes. Transfer the chicken to a plate and let sit until cool enough to handle, about 15 minutes. Using your hands or two forks, shred the meat into bite-size pieces and transfer to a medium bowl; discard the bones and skin. While the chicken is cooling, strain the broth through a fine-mesh strainer; discard the aromatics. Measure out 4 1/2 cups of the broth, and refrigerate or freeze the rest for another use. Wash the pot and dry it thoroughly; you'll use it again.

In a medium pot over medium heat, combine 1/2 cup of the broth, 3 tablespoons of the butter and 1/4 teaspoon of the salt, and cook, stirring occasionally, until the butter melts. Meanwhile, finely chop 3 tablespoons of chives.

Add a generous 3/4 cup of the flour, and stir the mixture vigorously with a wooden spoon until it comes together into a dough. Continue to cook, stirring the mixture vigorously, until the dough is glossy and starts to pull away from the sides of the pot, 2 to 3 minutes.

Remove the pot from the heat and let cool for 5 minutes.

Add 1 tablespoon of the chives and stir with a wooden spoon to incorporate. Add the egg, and vigorously stir until fully incorporated, 2 to 3 minutes.

Generously flour a large sheet pan. Using a No. 60 disher or measuring spoon, scoop scant 1-tablespoon portions of the dough, gently rolling them in the flour on the sheet to coat. Generously flour your hands, then roll and flatten each portion into a rough oval slightly less than 1/4-inch thick. It's okay if the disks look irregular. Return the flattened ovals to the floured sheet pan. You should get 12 to 16 dumplings.

Return the large pot to medium heat, and melt the remaining 2 tablespoons of butter. Add the carrot, leek and diced onion, and season with the remaining 1/4 teaspoon of salt, the cracked black pepper and crushed red pepper flakes, stirring to combine. Decrease the heat to medium-low and cook, stirring occasionally, until the vegetables soften, 7 to 10 minutes. Do not let the aromatics brown; adjust the heat as needed.

Push the vegetables to the edges of the Dutch oven or pot, add the bacon grease to the center and let it melt. Whisk in the remaining 1/3 cup of flour and cook, whisking constantly to form a roux, until the mixture turns deep golden, 2 to 4 minutes. (It's okay if some or most of the vegetables get into the roux.) While whisking, gradually add the remaining 4 cups of the reserved broth to bring the mixture together. The mixture should be thick and opaque, similar to a cream-based soup; if it feels too thick, add additional broth or water, 1/4 cup at a time, to thin it out. Bring the liquid to a simmer, and gently add the dumplings one at a time, shaking off excess flour, evenly distributing them throughout the pot. (If needed, gently nudge the dumplings with a spoon to submerge them in the liquid.)

Reduce the heat to low, cover and cook until the dumplings slightly puff and look less fragile, 12 to 15 minutes. Add the shredded chicken, stirring carefully to distribute the meat without breaking up the dumplings. Cook, uncovered, until the chicken is warmed through, 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from the heat, divide the chicken and dumplings among bowls and sprinkle with the remaining chives. Serve hot.

or offering price breaks, and so far the strategy has kept the builders' order books full. Both companies reported profit gains in their recently completed second quarters.

Recent data indicate overall housing demand is improving this month. The Mortgage Bankers Association's index of home-purchase applications rose for the last three weeks to the highest level since early February.

Over the long term, the US still has a shortage of new homes, Lennar Chairman Stuart Miller said last week on an earnings call, citing "over a decade of underproduction."

Meantime, the supply of previously owned homes remains well below pre-pandemic levels, hampered by high borrowing costs that have discouraged sellers from listing their properties.

New-home sales are seen as a more timely measurement than purchases of previously-owned homes, which are calculated when contracts close. However, the data are volatile. The government report showed 90% confidence that the change in new-home sales ranged from a 26.8% decline to a 4.2% gain.

When drugs and the sun don't mix

I filled two water bottles from my kitchen sink on a bright, sunny morning in mid-July. I called over to my 6-year-old niece, Crystal, "Don't forget the bread!"

We had enjoyed a leisurely breakfast of French toast and eggs, then packed up the leftover bread to feed the ducks. Stashing the water bottles in my backpack, I grabbed my car keys off the kitchen table. Holding open the door to my apartment, Crystal proudly carried her sack of bread pieces out to the car.

Fifteen minutes later, we pulled into the parking lot of a small city park whose best feature was a mid-sized pond with friendly ducks.

The pond was next to a play area with sand, swings, and a jungle gym. Although other kids were at the pond, the ducks swam toward us when they saw us tossing small chunks of bread into the water.

Racing each other, the ducks scooped up or dived down for each piece. Crystal giggled as one duck stared at her, then nimbly caught the bread she threw to him mid-air.

Once we ran out of bread, we headed to the playground. It was noon, sunny, and getting hot. I was glad we came while the temperature was reasonable. Thirty minutes later, Crystal walked over to the table where I was sitting.

"Aunt Louise, I feel hot." When she got closer, I looked up from my magazine and gasped. Crystal's face was a deep tomato red.

I opened a bottle of water from my backpack and handed it to her to drink. As I drove back home, I felt devastated.

"How could this have happened?"

The answer was back in my apartment. When my eye caught the prescription bottle of medicine Crystal was taking for a skin infection, I checked the label. Sure enough, a small sticker warned about exposure to the sun!

Her antibiotic plus being outside in direct sunlight in the middle of the day triggered her skin reaction.

Exposing our skin to sunshine causes it to react by "tanning" or "burning." Sunlight contains ultraviolet radiation, wavelengths called UVA and UVB, which can trigger a rash, itching, and even sunburn. This exaggerated reaction to the sun is called photosensitivity.

Regular sunlight has approximately 20 times as much UVA radiation as UVB. Sunburn, skin cancer, and accelerated skin changes such as wrinkles and spots, called photoaging, are caused primarily by exposure to UVB radiation.

UVB rays are most intense between 10 am and 4 pm. UVB radiation also helps our skin produce Vitamin D.

In contrast, UVA rays trigger photosensitivity reactions in people taking certain medicines, like Crystal.

Thankfully, Crystal's red cheeks faded over the next few hours without further exposure to the sun. Her medicine had increased her skin's sensitivity to UVA wavelengths in the sunshine, and wearing sunscreen with UVA protection would have protected her skin from that reaction.

The effectiveness of a particular sunscreen is measured by how much protection it gives you against UV radiation, called its SPF, or Sun Protection Factor. The bigger the SPF number, the better the protection. For example, if you apply sunscreen with an SPF of 15 correctly, you could stay out in the sun 15 times as long without burning compared to without it.

Sunscreens come in two main types: chemical and physical. Chemical sunscreens work by absorbing specific wavelengths of UV radiation before they penetrate your skin, while physical sunscreens reflect and scatter UVA and UVB radiation.

Here Are 4 Tips for Avoiding Sun Sensitivity to Your Medicine:

1. Cover up.

AVOID direct sun and tanning beds until you finish your medicine. When outside, wear long sleeves and a hat with a brim at least 4 inches wide, or apply sunscreen with UVA and UVB protection.

2. Choose an SPF of at least 30.

But you can't just apply it once for all-day coverage. To ensure you get complete protection from your sunscreen's SPF, it's important to renew it frequently, every 2-3 hours.

3. Think ahead.

To be most effective, sunscreens need time to bind to your skin.

Apply sunscreen at least 15 minutes before you expect to be in the sun.

4. Don't skimp

when applying sunscreen. Be generous when applying sunscreen. The FDA estimates that an adult in a swimsuit should use about 4 and 1/2 teaspoonfuls when applying sunscreen to their whole body.

5. Reapply frequently.

Sunscreen should be renewed frequently, especially after swimming, playing in the water, or sweating. Also, remember to reapply after drying yourself off with a towel.

a government contract for the intake of dogs and cats. In 2023, WVHS took in 1,628 dogs compared with the national average of 1,121 and the state average of 1,071. Likewise, the number of cat intakes was 1,675 compared with 1,509 (state) and 1,194 (national).

A sobering aspect of Davidson's report concerned the costs associated with proper animal care, beginning with the $9,310 average annual total cost to provide care for a single Chelan animal. This includes officer time and training, case time and follow-up, transportation, and maintenance expenses. WVHS received 38 animals from Chelan last year.

It costs a minimum of $400 to train an animal control officer (ACO), and with hourly pay ranging from $20.70 to $24, the monthly gross wage per ACO is from $3,588 to $4,500.

Davidson described Stunzman, a WVHS staff member since 2016, as a "very well decorated" Director of Operations.

Stunzman is also well experienced. Among her awards is the 2021 Excellence in Animal Cruelty Investigation Award. She is a Washington Care and Control Academy graduate and TNR (Trap, Neuter, Release) and Fear Free certified, among other qualifications.

Chelan animal calls

WVHS received 503 Chelan calls last year and investigated 117. By category, they included:

- Domestic animals/Livestock at large - 60.
- Animals neglected/Injured - 30.
- Aggressive dogs/Animal bites - 22.
- Animal cruelty - 5.

There were 45 reports of lost and found animals.

Animals received from Chelan

- Strays: Dogs 15, Cats 8.
- Adoptions within the community: Dogs 12, Cats 4.
- Owner requested euthanasia: Dogs 6, Cats 4, Other 1.
- Owner surrender: Dogs 4, Cats 7.

The average 80-mile round trip to Chelan requires about two hours plus an average of one hour of case time, Davidson said. Costs for each truck trip at 19-20 mpg and $4.50/gallon fuel costs about $18. The average case follow up time before closure takes three to four days and 16-20 hours of APC to be the manager for them." That was in 1997, and other reservations wanted to follow Tulalip's example for their young people.

So, 17 years later the next location was at the Inchelium community center in 2014," said Tsoulakas. "Then it just went 'Boom!' so today we have three on the Colville Reservation, Nespelem, Keller, and we are talking with the Omak School District about maybe doing something there."

The Spokane Tribe mirrored Colville and now has a club at Wellpinit, the Warm Springs Reservation in eastern Oregon. Today, there are 26 clubs in Washington and Oregon operating under the 501(c)(3) mantle of BGCSC, with more coming.

When BGCSC helped Brewster re-open the doors of its club in 2016, it also signed a long-term lease on 24 acres of property south of Wenatchee with the Malaga-Colockum Community Council.

"There is a Boys and Girls Club cap here," said Tsoulakas. "The three in Eastern Washington - Tri-Cities, Spokane, and Moses Lake - are relatively new or did not have the interest or bandwidth to work in the valley."

Tsoulakas stressed that his group wants to complement what Chelan already has.

"We do not want to compete with or replace what is already here," said Tsoulakas. "You have great programs already. We want to fill the gaps and find out what those needs are."

Through conversations already held, he thinks he has identified one of those gaps.

"The real gaps appear to be the ages K through five," said Tsoulakas. "That's really our sweet spot anyway."

Tsoulakas said the focus would be on programs before and after school, non-school days, holidays, school breaks, and not just for Chelan, but Manson as well."

"Most of our clubs go all day, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.," Tsoulakas said.

Some council members had questions about funding sources for club operating costs and when or if the city will need to contribute.

"We are betting we can make it work without asking the city to support us, said Tsoulakas. "It's the same investment we have made in 26 other locations. You are number 27.

RV fire

One person reportedly sustained burns and was transported to Lake Chelan Community Hospital by a private citizen before emergency responders arrived on scene. Tragically, after gaining access to the fifth-wheel trailer, firefighters discovered one deceased individual along with several pets.

The cause of the fire remains unknown and is currently under investigation by the Chelan County Fire Marshal and Chelan County Sheriff's Office.

Chelan Fire and Rescue responded to the incident alongside Chelan County Fire District #5. The fire's rapid spread and the presence of multiple threatened structures presented significant challenges for the responding crews.

Authorities have not yet released the identities of the victims or provided an estimate of the property damage. More information is expected as the investigation progresses.
