Chelan PUD brainstorms new large-load approach in preparation for future data centers

By WILL NILLES Ward Media Staff Reporter

WENATCHEE – The Chelan PUD is taking public comments in relation to a new power supply framework that focuses on meeting the increasing demand of large-load customers in the county. These large-load customers mainly include large-scale facilities like data centers or manufacturing plants. As Microsoft continues the construction of a major data center in the Malaga area, the PUD seeks to plan ahead and prepare for a future of increased large-load facilities in the region while maintaining reliability and stability for their smaller-load customers.

The new framework intends to provide large-load customers with three major options for service:

1. Short-Term Supply: In which Chelan PUD provides wholesale energy to a large-load customer for an interim period of 1 to 5 years.

2. Customer Choice: A large-load customer identifies wholesale energy, which Chelan PUD can purchase and resell to the customer.

3. Negotiated Contract: At the board of commissioners' discretion, a largeload customer negotiates with the PUD to obtain an alternative power supply arrangement that includes a mix of different sources.

Through these three options, Chelan PUD plans to confront and assess the needs of each large-load customer within an organized and efficient system, allowing for the county to take on larger power loads while remaining one of the most reliable and affordable regions in North America. In protecting this reputation of reliability, the PUD established a set of guiding principles within its framework. These guiding principles include:

- Ensuring a neutral-to-positive impact on smaller-load customers

Maintaining reliability and stable, predictable rates

Preserving local control

- Achieving a comprehensive durable framework that treats largeload customers comparably and consistently

- Protecting existing management of hydropower through wholesale energy marketing strategy

With the demand for large-load facilities such as data centers rising in recent years, many community members feel uncertain about the ramifications of implementing these facilities within Chelan County. Retired PUD commissioner, Ann Congdon, attended the July 15 commission meeting where the large-load framework was unveiled, hoping to ask some clarifying questions.

"So what if [a large-load customer] comes to you and wants an incremental increase in load? How do you deal with that? Because it almost certainly is going to happen," Congdon asked, curious about the PUD's ability to handle the constantly growing data

Young cowboys and cowgirls set to compete at annual Chelan Jr. Rodeo

By QUINN PROPST Ward Media Staff Reporter

CHELAN - Young rodeo enthusiasts and their families are gearing up for the annual Chelan Jr. Rodeo on Saturday, July 27 and 28.

The rodeo is put on by the Chelan Rustlers Saddle Club and draws contestants from all over the state and parts of Idaho.

This year's competition will include a Saturday night rodeo for older competitors and a Sunday daytime rodeo for younger levels.

"On Saturday, we're gonna run our intermediates and our seniors on a Saturday night show," said Jodie Southwick, vice president of the Chelan Rustlers Saddle Club and cochair of the Lake Chelan Pro Rodeo. "It's something different," she said.

"We're giving it a shot just to kind of get the older kids to get to rodeo underneath the lights and give them kind of the feel of what it's going to be in the next step. And then on Sunday morning, we'll run the LPs all the way through the juniors and hopefully beat the heat a little bit."

The event is for high school seniors

Columbia River Drug Task Force scrambles to secure adequate funding, receiving $150,000 grant from Department of Commerce

COURTESY OF CHELAN COUNT SHERIFF"S OFFICE Sheriff Mike Morrison aims to confront drug issues in Chelan County despite lower state funding for drug task forces.

BY WILL NILLES Ward Media Staff Reporter

WENATCHEE - The Columbia River Drug Task Force (CRDTF) acquired $150,000 in grant funding from the Washington State Department of Commerce. The grant was allocated following a direct Ellensburg address from the CRDTF and other drug task forces across the state centered on the criticality of funding for drug task forces.

Though this new grant is sizable, Chelan County Sheriff Mike Morrison is concerned with the overall amount of funding that the CRDTF has received in the last year.

Lake Chelan Hospital completes memorial brick installation

Ward Media / Lake Chelan Mirror

CHELAN - Lake Chelan Health Hospital has completed the installation of its latest batch of memorial bricks, representing the final phase of Hospital Guild Y's successful fundraising project.

The Guild, a volunteer organization that has supported the local hospital since 1965, recently placed 69 laser-etched memorial bricks from its last sale in the patio adjacent to the Orchards Cafe.

This installation concludes the 2022 and 2023 Etched Brick Sales project, which has proven to be the group's most effective fundraiser.

Proceeds from the brick sales funded outdoor picnic tables with umbrellas for the patio, improving the hospital's outdoor areas for patients, visitors, and staff.

At a recent meeting, Guild Y introduced new leadership. Sharon Lukacs and Carrol Palmbush were appointed co-presidents, with Joey Bruno taking on the role of vicepresident.

Susan Fisher and Susan McKinnon will continue as treasurer and secretary, respectively.

The guild expressed appreciation for the community's support, noting contributions from local residents, second-home owners, and visitors to the Lake Chelan Valley.

Guild Y members are now focusing on their next volunteer effort: the upcoming Sip & Chip golf tournament in September, continuing their longstanding tradition of organizing fund-

One of 69 installed memorial bricks at Lake Chelan Health Hospital expresses gratitude to local voters. The brick reads, "MANY THANKS TO THE VOTERS OF CHELAN HOSP DISTRICT WITHOUT YOU THIS COULDN'T HAP-PEN," acknowledging the community's role in approving a 2017 bond measure that led to the new hospital's opening in December 2022.

operated on what they call 'Byrne JAG funds.' That comes from the federal government, and then those federal funds are issued to the state of Washington and to the Washington State Department of Commerce,' Sheriff Morrison explained how the CRDTF typically receives its funding and why he's been concerned as of late. "In the past, they have issued those funds out to drug task forces across the state. Most recently, starting last year, they took those funds and they reallocated them onto other projects. It was disturbing because there was no alternative provided to continuing to fund these drug task forces that are specifically set up to address, among other things, drug activities within communities."

The CRDTF is an organization consisting of members from the Chelan County Sheriff's Office, Douglas County Sheriff's Office, Wenatchee Police Department, East Wenatchee Police Department, Washington State Department of Corrections (WSDOC), and Homeland Security Investigations. Working in unison

The act of voting, often taken for granted, is the very foundation upon which our democracy rests. It is not merely a right, but a responsibility that we must embrace wholeheartedly.

In the upcoming primary, voters in Washington State will have the opportunity to shape the trajectory of our local communities and our state as a whole.

From State Senators and Representatives to County Commissioners and all the way up nor, Lieutenant Governor, and Attorney General, the decisions made at the ballot box will reverberate through every aspect of our lives. Too often, we find ourselves lamenting the state of our politics, the polarization that divides us, and the lack of progress on critical issues.

However, we must remember that change begins with us. By actively participating in the primary election, we can begin to bridge these divides and ensure that our elected officials truly represent the diverse voices and interests of our communities.

The stakes could not be higher. The policies enacted by those we elect will have profound consequences for our economy, our education system, our healthcare, and our environment. We cannot afford to sit on the sidelines and let others make these decisions for us.

Voting in the primary election is not a mere formality; it is an essential step in the democratic process. In many cases, the outcomes of primary races can effectively determine who will win in the general election. By making our voices heard now, we can ensure that the candidates who advance to November are those who align with our values and priorities.

To those who may feel disillusioned or apathetic about the political process, I implore you to reconsider. Your vote is your voice, and every voice matters. By casting your ballot, you are not only exercising your civic duty but also setting an example for others to follow. When we participate in the democratic process, we send a powerful message that we are engaged, informed, and committed to shaping our collective future.

So, mark your calendars for August 6, and make sure you are prepared. Ballots will be mailed to voters on July 19, and it is essential to return them to an official drop-off location by 8:00 p.m. on Election Day.

Take the time to research the candidates, understand their positions, and make an informed decision.

In a world that often feels chaotic and uncertain, voting is an act of empowerment. It is a reminder that we, the people, have the ultimate say in the direction of our communities and our country. Let us seize this opportunity to make our voices heard and to shape a future that we can all be proud of. The power is in your hands. Vote in the primary election on August 6.

with these agencies, the CRDTF aims to dismantle and prosecute criminal organizations engaged in drug trafficking and other illicit activities.

Though much of the CRDTF's operations include criminal investigations and seizures, Sheriff Morrison demonstrated an understanding that simply making arrests and targeting individuals will not solve any drug problems as he elaborated on WSDOC's crucial role within the task force.

"I don't expect that we're going to arrest our way out of this problem. We have the Washington State Department of Corrections included in our team that means we're also looking at rehabilitation, we work with recovery navigators... we've been working with the state. Earlier in 2023, we were there as Governor Inslee was in town along with Attorney General Ferguson trying to figure out how we can secure funding for a new drug and alcohol rehabilitation facility," Morrison reported optimistically.

In attempting to tackle drug problems in the region's communities, Sheriff Morrison expresses his concerns for community members who suffer from drug addiction as he hopes to revitalize the county's drug court and utilize it as a tool of helping those with drug charges find support options.

"I've been working hand-inhand with our judges and our prosecutors office, all trying to make sure we're getting this drug court back up and running, and providing alternatives to these individuals who I don't view as the darkness of society," he shared. "I see them as people who are struggling with addiction, and we want to find solutions for them. And I think the drug court has that option."

As state funding for drug task forces has staggered in the last year, the CRDTF gathered with other drug task forces in Ellensburg, addressing the Washington State Department of Commerce with their concerns relating to Commerce's divergence of drug task force funding into other projects.

This address and the expressed concerns of law enforcement around the state prompted the recent $150.000 in grant funding, which Sheriff Morrison worries will not be enough to sustain the CRDTF. "If we don't get funding from Byrne JAG and the HIDTA (high-intensity drug trafficking areas) program, the drug task force will go away. And there'll be no resources out there to focus specifically on this issue, which is killing members of our community," Morrison explained with certainty.

Though the CRDTF is somewhat desperate for outside funding, Sheriff Morrison remains confident that the Chelan County Sheriff's Office and its regional partners will continue to confront drug problems within their communities regardless of the drug task force's ability to receive adequate funding.

"When I came into office, we reworded our mission statement. And one of the lines you'll see in the beginning states, 'with the resources entrusted to us.' So, I will utilize whatever resources we have to best address the needs of the citizens, be there for them, and be an adversary to those threats for our community."

don's question, ensuring her of the PUD's ability to plan for the future through customer-based load forecasts. "The idea would be that we would look at these load forecasts and size of an RFP (request for proposal) to go procure energy in the wholesale market for the expected size of that load increase,"

PUD Director of Energy

Structuring and Trading, Mike

Bradshaw, responded to Cong-

Bradshaw shared, expanding on the PUD's thorough process of screening each large-load customer's proposal. "Each of these [three] options will go through with a number, and [large-load customers] might come in as 200 [megawatts] and we're gonna go through with that 200. If they come back and say they want 50 megawatts, for that extra 50, we're gonna go through these steps again."

In a later conversation about the future of power in Chelan County, Bradshaw commented on the importance of planning ahead within the PUD's complex, constantly shifting world of power infrastructure.

"I've been here for 20 years now and I grew up here too.

So, you see the agriculture that used to be here in town get pushed to the hill... Now, they look a lot different. So it's gonna be a little bit of a different world," he said, looking back at all the changes the industries of Chelan County have undergone over past decades in comparison to the new changes currently underway. "Each year, we put out an integrated resource plan that lays out the next 10 years of demand forecasts and load forecasts... so we're always having our forward view out there."

As the PUD continues planning its large-load approach framework, it will remain open for public comments until August 1. By August 5, the PUD commission will begin reviewing public comments, and in September, Bradshaw will present a finalized large-load package to the PUD Commission for consideration. A potential Commission vote on the approval of the package is then planned to occur in October.

The Lake Chelan Valley chapter of the foundation presented Smith, a member of VFW Post 6853, with a red, white, and blue comforter crafted by the local Thimblebuns quilting group.

The ceremony took place at Lake Chelan Winery, marking the beginning of Fourth of July week celebrations.

He continued with ROTC at the University of Maine, eventually rising to the position of Brigade Commander, overseeing 1,400 cadets.

After college, Smith was promoted to Captain while serving in the Corps of Engineers at Fort Richardson in Anchorage, Alaska. He later saw active duty in Vietnam, commanding a Combat Engineer Battalion in the central highlands.

Tracy Shaw, a presenter and quilter, emphasized the importance of the Quilts of Valor program in bringing comfort and healing to veterans, particularly those who faced challenges upon returning from Vietnam amid a divided nation. The Quilts of Valor Founda-

Paid for by Hawkins for Commissioner P.O. Box 1 • Wenatchee, WA 98807

Nina Florence Ellington Collier

January 20, 1935 - January 12, 2024

Nina wrote the following in 1981: "January was cold in Minneapolis, the night I was born - 20 degrees below zero and the next night 40 degrees below. My father, a Methodist minister, at church the next morning led the worship service, preached his sermon, and then announced the new arrival - me.

A4

Nine months later, my father transferred to Washington, taking a church in Seattle. The church was heavily in debt. Creditors were pounding on the door.

Nina Florence The Parsonage where Ellington Collier we lived had no hot water and little heat. Hot water had to be hauled from the church next door. The next few years brought moves to Chehalis, Pullman. Lewiston and Tacoma, bringing excitement, new neighborhoods to explore, new friends, but sadness when we left each city. World War II came and with it, many weddings in our living room, and dinner visits with servicemen and with grieving parents, as men went missing in action or were reported killed. Our entire family was very much a part of the life of the church, and l learned early to relate to many kinds of people any time of day or night.

School was a pleasure and quite easy for me. Grammar school and junior high were spent in Tacoma. We moved to Seattle again. In my junior year at Garfield High School in Seattle, I applied to be an exchange student to Germany. I was selected and got very busy learning German. At this time, we moved to another church, in the town of Chelan.

The year in Germany was rich and full of new experiences. 1952 was still a time of shortages. I learned what hunger was like. An unheated house in winter in northern Germany was very cold. Some friends taught me to ski. And I learned to walk wherever I needed to go.

I returned to Tacoma and enrolled in the University of Puget Sound, majoring in Speech and Drama and minoring in German, and taking teacher training courses. After graduation I spent a year in Boston. To learn a job skill, I worked in reducing salons. I met my first husband in Boston.

We married in 1959. We moved to Long Beach, California where he joined the staff of a large downtown church.

> In 1962 we moved to a small village in Northern California where my husband had his first single pastorate. Our son Breean was born there on Christmas Day. We then moved to San Mateo, where our son Kevin was born. My husband joined the staff of another large downtown church. A year later, we moved to Mill Valley. This was a time of fermentation and change in our marriage. We had a final separation in 1969 and a divorce in 1971. I returned to school, taking a fifth year for a teaching credential and became a reading specialist. I worked part time with gifted children and remedial readers.

In 1973, I married Jon Collier. We bought a house in Oakland where he worked as an architect. I started graduate studies at Hayward State University in educational psychology. Our life was pleasant and active with many friends. I found good private schools for Breean and Kevin.

Wanting to be closer to my mother and two siblings, my goal for a long time was to return to the Northwest, In 1977, Jon was hired as a consultant-teacher at The Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington. It is wonderful to live in a small caring community. We love the open spaces around us and the opportunity for hikes. Breean and Kevin have done very well in high school here.

We are in a fine church. A married couple at this church asked us if we would consider caring for a baby boy who came here from Guatemala. This has been a rich experience that has brought our entire family much happiness. Estuardo came to us when he was 14 months old, weighing only 12 pounds, covered with scabies, eczema and a staph infection and too weak to sit up or crawl or walk. He is now 21 months old. He has just had the second of three surgeries to repair his cleft lip and cleft palate. The surgeries were very successful, but he will need speech therapy. His transformation amazes even those of us who are with him day-to-day. If he can be adopted, we feel confident that he would continue to thrive with us.

I feel that my entire life is built on each event, some more critical than others. I am grateful for the family I was born into and the life we had together. I am very grateful to be the natural mother of Breean and Kevin, who at 18 and 15, give me enormous pleasure and good relationships. I am also grateful for Jon's children, Andrea and David. David, who lived with us during high school, taught me a great deal about music.

The community of the local church and the greater church, as well as my personal faith, are a very sustaining, integral part of my life. The gift of my loving husband truly ties my life together and makes possible my life as I know it today. I am very, very fortunate. I know that life is brief and yet what I do

Maire Esther Samuelson departed this life on July 13th, 2024 after a sudden illness. She was surrounded by love and care until her last breath. At the time of her departure she was a resident of

Cedar Hills, Utah. Maire was born on March 11th. 1943. in Crandon, Wisconsin, to Obed and Dora Samuelson, the eldest of their ten children. Upon graduating from high school, Maire married Allan Gueller. Allan's military service led them to reside in Fort Collins, CO, and Fort Lewis. WA, where they welcomed the first three of their seven children together. Children born to Maire and Allan were Scott, Jason, Dawn, Abe, Eve, Tonya, and Jonathan Gueller. The couple purchased a 40 acre farm in Montesano, WA, where she was able to indulge in her love of farming and animal husbandry. They raised a variety of animals, including chickens, turkeys, peacocks, cattle, pigs, goats, horses, and even a pet skunk. She often said that she'd never met a human she liked as well as her animals. Maire and with each moment can bring long meaning to myself and others. My goal is to continue to learn, change, and meet the challenges as opportunities."

It was forty years ago that Nina wrote this autobiography. Meeting Parkinson's disease and then Parkinson's dementia shortly later. was a challenge and a change that she learned from and faced with much courage and persistence as she bore its toll.

Nina is preceded in death by her sister Sarah Jewell Slind but survived by her brother Bill Ellington (Judy), sons Breean Beggs (Laurie) and Kevin Beggs (Dianna) and Estuardo Ben Collier (April), her stepdaughter Andrea Mulders (Hans), her stepson David Collier (Suzanne), her foster-daughter Kim Schram and 11 grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Her family invites you to a Celebration of Life at noon on August 9, 2024 at the Lake Chelan United Methodist Church, followed by a luncheon reception and fellowship and then a graveside remembrance at 3:00pm at the Chelan Fraternal Cemetery. Al resided in Montesano until the marriage dissolved in 1978. Maire married Daniel Black in 1980, in Anchorage Alaska, The couple briefly resided in Alaska, before moving to Washington State. They made their home in the Lake Chelan Valley, and welcomed in quick succession, children Krystina, Jillaine, Aaron, Naomi, and Lara Black. Maire suffered a devastating loss in 1986. when their infant son, Damon, was stillborn. The couple raised their family in the foothills of the Cascade mountains, where they farmed an apple orchard, and raised Arabian horses. The farm was everything to Maire, who could reliably be found moving sprinklers, working in her garden, mowing her endlessly expanding yard, and canning up a storm in the late summer. Although Maire left the area in the years following the dissolution of her marriage to Dan in 2012, her farm, and the Chelan Valley remained dear to her heart.

Maire's life was one of passion, creativity, and often chaos. She was a talented self-taught musician, who loved playing the piano and singing. She could often be found at her grand piano, perfecting a waltz by Chopin, or playing hymns. She frequently took up new hobbies, like oil painting, or stained glass artistry. She was known for her gorgeous bouquets, which were a result of many hours spent tending her flower garden. The result of these many pursuits often meant a slew of unfinished projects, passions set aside to be picked up another time, and an endless imagination for creative possibilities in landscape, gardening, music, and more.

Maire was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day-Saints, where she gave generously of her time and musical talents. In times of trial, she relied heavily upon her faith.

Maire was preceded in death by her parents, Obed and Dora Samuelson, sister Judy, brothers Dan and John, and beloved son Jonathan Niles Gueller.

Maire is survived by her sisters, Sylvia, Sonja, Ginger, Connie, Mabel, and Peggy.

Her children, Scott Gueller of Maire is also survived by numerous great-grandchildren.

Services were held on Saturday, July 20th at 9:00 a.m. at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, 195 W. Manson Hwy, in Chelan. A family-only graveside service followed, at the Chelan Fraternal Cemetery.

Chelan gathers community input for valley vision project

By QUINN PROPST Ward Media Staff Reporter

CHELAN - The City of Chelan is nearing the end of a series of listening sessions to learn what residents consider to be Lake Chelan Valley's core values and biggest challenges, as well as their ideas for the future.

The city retained Our Valley Our Future to conduct the Lake Chelan Vision project on behalf of the entire Lake Chelan Valley.

The listening sessions are part of a community-driven outreach and visioning initiative designed to identify and memorialize core community values, and lay the foundation for the Lake Chelan Valley's desired future. The project includes outreach to residents in an area stretching from Twenty-Five Mile Creek to South Shore to Chelan to Union Valley to Manson.

"The responses from this project are the first steps in crafting Lake Chelan Community Core Values - these are the areas that our residents hold near and dear to their hearts," Chelan Mayor Erin McCardle said. "From here, we will continue to drill down into those areas with future conversations so that we have a very clear direction for future planning and efforts."

"All of this work is part of our 2026 Comprehensive Plan Update that is required by the State of Washington," she said. "If you want to have a voice in the future of Lake Chelan, you must get involved. The Comp Plan is the driving document on which all future decisions are made.'

Six of the seven listening sessions have been held. The remaining listening session is geared toward families and educators.

There is no cost to attend a session, but registration is required. Participants can register at ourvalleyourfuture.org/ lake-chelan-vision-project/.

The remaining listening session for families and educators will take place from 5:30 to 7 p.m., Thursday, July 25, at the Lake Chelan School District Learning Center, 303 E. Johnson Ave., Chelan

Earlier listening sessions were well-attended. A dozen nonprofit leaders attended a listening session on June 13, and about 50 Latino residents attended one on June 27.

In early June, a community survey in English and Spanish was launched. OVOF coordinator Stephen Maher said more than 430 people completed the survey.

The English version of the survey can be found at https:// www.surveymonkey.com/r/ LCVP. The Spanish version can be found at https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/LCVPSpan. The survey will remain live through the end of July.

"About 56 percent of the respondents live in the City of Chelan and vicinity, about 25 percent live in the Manson area, and about 11 percent live along the South Shore," Maher said. "The rest are split between the Twenty-Five Mile Creek area and Union Valley, The vast majority (92 percent) say the Lake Chelan Valley is their primary residence."

Since mid-May, several community leaders and stakeholders have been interviewed as part of the project.

The project will extend into the fall months, culminating with a Community Summit in which residents will be able to offer feedback about the initial findings.

"As to what residents value most, the top responses to date have been centered on the natural environment and the lake itself, a small-town atmosphere and sense of community, access to outdoor recreation, the climate, public safety, the farms, and a more laid back slower pace in life," Maher said. "Residents are expressing concerns about the lack of affordable and middle market housing, population growth, loss of orchards and struggles in the agriculture industry, infrastructure needs, the labor pool, and overcrowding at parks," he said.

This is the first valley-wide community visioning work in the Lake Chelan Valley since 2006. OVOF is a nonpartisan, non-profit organization that strives to bring residents and organizations together to plan for a better future. OVOF conducts community outreach, visioning, and planning work, and guides the development of a community-generated, regional Action Plan every five years. This is the first time OVOF has assisted an individual community in NCW with outreach and visioning.

Chelan PUD restores billing operations after vendor cyber attack

Ward Media Lake Chelan Mirror

WENATCHEE – Chelan County Public Utility District (PUD) announced that billing statements will return to normal starting in late July, following a cyber attack on its long-time vendor, Change-Healthcare, earlier this year.

According to Chelan PUD officials, customers can expect their bills to include all the usual information, such as energy and water usage data, graphs, and delivery options.

Those who had previously signed up for electronic statements will once again be able to access their bills via Powerpay, the utility's online payment system.

Here's what customers can expect:

Electronic statements: Customers who signed up for electronic statements will be able to access their next bill via Powerpay. They will no longer receive paper statements in the mail.

• Powerpay password reset: If you have not logged into Powerpay in more than 60 days, you may need to reset your password. Call (509) 661-8002 for assistance.

• Autopay customers: Automatic payment will continue to be processed as usual.

Past statements: Historical bill statements have still not been recovered from the vendor and remain unavailable to staff or customers via Powerpay. We will continue to work on restoring this functionality.

"When we realized it might take weeks or even months for them to resume service, we made a hard decision to move away from our long-time vendor, and we made that decision quickly for the benefit of our customers," said Ian Fitzgerald, Chief Technology Officer at Chelan PUD.

In February, a ransomware gang known as Black Cat infiltrated ChangeHealthcare's

BLM issues amended fire restrictions order for North Central Washington amid wildfire risk systems, forcing Chelan PUD to create a basic billing format to maintain the billing schedule for its customers.

Since then, the utility has been working to restore full billing capabilities.

"Immediately, we established dedicated team that have been working hard to reestablish the billing process and support our customers through the transition," said Managing Director of Customer Utilities John Stoll.

"We sincerely apologize for the inconvenience and frustration this has caused our customer-owners. Customers continue to be our first priority.'

Chelan PUD has been providing electricity, water, and other services to Chelan County residents for over 80 years.

The utility stated that a dedicated team has been working hard to re-establish the billing process and support customers throughout the transition.

Forest Service imposes total campfire ban in Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest

Ward Media Lake Chelan Mirror

WENATCHEE – The U.S. Forest Service has announced a comprehensive ban on campfires across the entire Okanogan-Wenatchee National Forest due to escalating fire danger amid persistent hot and dry weather conditions.

The Stage 2 Fire Restrictions, which were implemented Saturday, July 20, prohibit all wood and charcoal campfires, including those in developed campgrounds and designated Wilderness areas.

The ban extends to recreational target shooting on forest grounds. Forest officials cited worsening fire danger as the primary reason for the expanded restrictions.

The measure aims to prevent human-caused wildfires during a period of heightened risk.

Under the new regulations, visitors may still use pressurized or bottled liquid fuel stoves, lanterns, and heating devices, provided they have an immediate on/off switch and are kept clear of flammable materials within a threefoot radius.

However, wood-burning camp stoves are not permitted.

The shooting restriction does not affect lawful hunting activities conducted under tribal treaty rights or with valid state-issued licenses during hunting season.

Firewood cutters operating in the forest must adhere to Industrial Fire Precaution Level requirements, as outlined by the Washington State Department of Natural Resources.

Forest officials urge visitors to stay informed about current fire restrictions and exercise caution while enjoying the national forest during this high-risk period.

The restrictions come as the Pacific Northwest braces for what meteorologists predict will be an unusually hot and dry summer, raising concerns about potential wildfire outbreaks across the region.

Ward Media Lake Chelan Mirror

SPOKANE – The Spokane District Bureau of Land Management (BLM) has issued an amended fire restrictions order, which went into effect on July 19, for lands administered by the BLM and Bureau of Reclamation (BOR) in North Central and Eastern Washington counties.

The order, which applies to Adams, Asotin, Benton, Chelan, Columbia, Douglas, Ferry, Franklin, Garfield, Grant, Kittitas, Klickitat, Lincoln, Okanogan, Pend Oreille, Spokane, Stevens, Walla Walla, Whitman, and Yakima counties, prohibits building, maintaining, attending, or using fires, campfires, or stove fires, including charcoal briquette fires. Liquefied and bottled gas stoves and heaters are permitted with proper clearance.

Operating motorized vehicles off developed roadways is also prohibited, and parking must be done in areas barren of flammable materials. Vehicles on public lands must carry a shovel and either a one-gallon container of water or a fully charged 2.5-pound fire extinguisher.

Motorcycles and All-Terrain Vehicles must have functioning U.S. Forest Service approved spark arrestors.

Smoking while traveling in timber, brush, or grass areas is prohibited, except in vehicles on roads, cleared areas, or on boats on rivers and lakes. Discharging or using tracer, steel component, or incendiary ammunition is also prohibited, with an exception for hunting with steel component ammunition.

Violations of the order may result in fines up to $100,000 and/or imprisonment for up to 12 months, as well as restitution for fire suppression and damage costs.

The restrictions are in response to the increased fire risk in the region and aim to prevent wildfires on federal lands.
