Senior Center votes to revisit city ownership proposal

By MIKE MALTAIS
Ward Media Staff Reporter

PATEROS - The Brewster-Bridgeport-Pateros Senior Center Board of Directors voted to reconsider an earlier offer from the City of Brewster that involves an agreement to transfer ownership to the city that would assume liability and maintenance costs of the building located at 109 Bridge Street.

The original agreement originated in the summer of 2019 when the Center approached the city council for assistance with operating and maintenance costs. The subsequent agreement that this request produced has been on the back burner since February 2021, when the Senior Center declined to approve the contract in a simple yes-no response from the membership.

At the monthly board meeting last Wednesday, August 28, David Burdick reported on a discussion he had with city Director of Finance Misty Ruiz, who suggested that the city and the Senior Center revisit that earlier proposal.

"The big benefit for the Senior Center will allow any money you make can go into your fund rather than for upkeep," said David. "They can get grants for that."

Over the past few years, the Center's financial position has improved substantially, thanks largely to revenues its Thrift Store has generated since being expanded to include half of the building's large main room.

President Kay McVay and Treasurer Charlene Knox noted that senior centers in Okanogan, Twisp, Entiat, and Soap Lake are among those that are city-owned facilities. It was suggested that representatives of those organizations be consulted for comments and ideas regarding their experiences with a city-owned relationship.

Burdick agreed to serve as Senior Center spokesman at a future meeting of the city council to reopen discussions.

Salmon Derby host

The board voted to serve as the nonprofit host of the 2025 Brewster King Salmon Derby. Derby organizer Mike Mauk addressed the board members with an overview of the annual event, proceeds dispersal - a portion to the Center, Brewster Boys and Girls Club, Brewster HS scholarship - and considered a novel proposal from the board.

Mauk was asked if the Center could

Third annual Brewster Thunderfest welcomes hydros to Columbia Cove Park

BREWSTER - The newest addition to the Pacific Northwest Boat Racing Association competition circuit, the Brewster Thunderfest - Tony Newton Memorial Regatta, is coming back to Columbia Cove for its third running on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 7-8.

The event is named in memory of Tony Newton, who discovered his passion for racing in 2005 and crewed for multiple teams until 2018, when he passed away in his sleep at the Manson Hydrofest. An award in his honor goes to a standout crew member during the weekend.

Brewster resident Jim Labrie originally brought the event to town with test and tune days.

"I used to get people coming over and want to test boats," said Labrie. "We would go to Brewster because of the boat launch there. I always felt that with the right things in place they could turn the event into maybe a place for nationals where boats would come from all over the country to race."

Unlike last year when the river had been lowered, water conditions should be better this year, Labrie said. Shallow water is a nemesis at many venues and must be closely monitored for hazards.

Labrie recounted several shallow water incidents - one in Pateros - where drivers were killed or injured when their boats flipped in the shallows.

Brandon Cushing flipped his hydro in Pateros on the sandbar in 2015 and nearly drowned before rescuers could access the cockpit and remove him. Cushing later drove the Miss Pateros and is the current owner of Miss Pateros II, being driven by son, Kannon.

QUAD CITIES - The first week of school is always one of mixed emotions between students who have a long view of their future and career, those who welcome the camaraderie of friends and favorite sports or activities, and those who lament the unfettered freedom of unstructured days.

Waiting for all three groups is a core of dedicated teachers and professionals who have spent the three intervening months trying to prepare for the best possible reception for what is to them not just a job but a calling.

In the middle is reality.

Brewster

Perhaps one of the most significant changes for the Bears is the elevation of former teacher and football coach Jake Johanson to high school principal.

Johanson is entering his 14th year working in the Brewster system, so he is no stranger to returning students, particularly given the many hats—from culinary to coaching—he has worn while there.

"I have served as a special education teacher, leadership teacher, high school football coach, culinary, and senior success teacher," said Johanson. "I am ecstatic to begin this new journey as high school principal."

Johanson was born in

Colville Tribes receive $200,000 grant to study former casino site

NCW News
Ward Media

OKANOGAN — The Confederated Tribes of the Colville Reservation will receive $200,000 in grant funding to assess the potential redevelopment of the Old Okanogan Casino-Bingo Hall.

The grant is part of a $2 million initiative by the Washington State Department of Commerce to expand the state's portfolio of project-ready industrial sites and attract manufacturing activity to rural areas.

The funds will support a comprehensive evaluation of the former casino property, including a rail improvement study, electrical feasibility study, traffic analysis, water supply assessment, wastewater infrastructure assessment, and market study.

This project is one of eight selected across Washington to receive grants ranging from $200,000 to $350,000. The initiative aligns with the state's goal to add 300,000 new manufacturing jobs over the next decade, as outlined in the 2021 Building Economic Strength Through Manufacturing (BEST) Act.

Commerce Director Mike Fong said, "We're delighted to award these grants to support some exciting projects envisioned in rural communities around the state. These sites have the potential to attract manufacturers with good jobs that can be a catalyst for additional economic activity."

The Colville Tribes' project represents an opportunity to repurpose an existing structure for potential industrial or manufacturing use. Specific plans for the site have not been disclosed.

State officials expect these investments to make Washington more competitive in attracting businesses and create economic opportunities in rural areas like Okanogan County.

Eight municipalities—Brewster, George, Omak, East Wenatchee, Quincy, Moses Lake, Wenatchee, and Leavenworth—have officially proclaimed September as Digital Equity Month.

The event underscores a regional effort to bridge the gap in digital resources, with participation from diverse entities, including NCW Libraries, Confluence Health, Microsoft, and various community organizations.

Tickets are available at $10 for NCW Tech Alliance members and $15 for the general public. Organizations that have made digital equity commitments can attend free of charge.

WDFW officers to start wearing body cameras

NCW News
 Ward Media

OLYMPIA — The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW) will equip all 152 of its commissioned law enforcement officers with body-worn cameras starting this month.

The program will enhance accountability, transparency, and safety in natural resource law enforcement. It follows a comprehensive review and trial period that incorporated feedback from officers and stakeholders.

“This program advances our commitment to our core values and our mission to protect our natural resources and the public we serve,” said WDFW Police Chief Steve Bear. “Deploying body-worn cameras to our officers will help us build trust and relationships with all communities in Washington.”

The initiative’s goals include providing a clear record of interactions, improving communication with the public, deterring misconduct, and offering resources for training.

Funding for the program, totaling $915,000, was allocated by the Washington State Legislature in the 2023-2025 supplemental operating budget. This allocation was part of a broader effort to support local law enforcement agencies across the state.

Chelan-Douglas Regional Port Authority looks to provide ground transport solutions for Pangborn Airport travelers

By: WILL NILLES
Ward Media Staff Reporter

WENATCHEE VALLEY— The Chelan-Douglas Regional Port Authority (CDRPA) is seeking to improve Pangborn Airport’s limited ground transportation options, more efficiently connecting the vital airport’s nearby communities to the rest of the world.

The drive to improve the airport’s ground transportation options follows the formation of a temporary Air Service Task Force, an entity designed to investigate Pangborn’s needs and establish strategic priorities to meet them.

CDRPA Director of Airports Trent Moyers described the important questions that the Air Service Task Force is formed to address.

“What’s the level of service that we want to provide here,” he asked, “and how do we go about doing that? What are the challenges that we need to face and overcome? Some of them are financial challenges, some of them are operational challenges, but that’s really the goal, to look at the level of service we want to be able to provide.”

With Air Service Task Force strategic priorities 1 and 2 focusing on the need to recruit flight carriers with more frequent and more affordable flights, strategic priority 3 centers around a major missing piece within the local region as a whole, ground transportation to and from the airport. This issue is especially prominent for travelers arriving at Pangborn Airport late at night and early in the morning, times when on-site car rental businesses are closed.

In the hopes of confronting this issue and providing travelers with a more convenient means of connecting to NCW communities, CDRPA members plan to meet directly with the airport’s on-site Enterprise and Hertz rental agencies and discuss late-night/early morning service options.

“We’ll be meeting with the two different car rental companies that are out here,” Director Moyers mentioned. “Enterprise and Hertz, in the following week to chat about their operations and see how we can all provide a service that their customers are expecting as well.”

The Air Service Task Force isn’t solely focused on car rentals. As CDRPA CEO Jim Kuntz explains, the drive to improve Pangborn’s ground transit services is multilayered and aims to help both long-distance travelers and those staying in the local area.

“We have a two pronged approach,” CEO Kuntz revealed, “one [component] is trying to get the car rental agency counters to be open at midnight, so that people [arriving on a late flight] that want to rent a car have that option. Today that option doesn’t exist. The second component is flyers that might be coming into the valley who don’t want to rent a car, but they’re trying to get to a hotel, and how do they do that?”

In looking for ways to tackle these issues, the CDRPA board considered various options including the use of Uber or other gig services. However, commissioners raised concerns about the major lack of drivers for these services in the local area, especially during the late and early hours of the day.

“And so the question is,” Kuntz proposed, “can we work with a taxi group or some type of transportation where we would know there would be some options available for the travelers coming into the valley?”

Overall, the CDRPA aims to boost Pangborn’s local convenience and dependability, cementing the airport as a vital resource for the local region, an airport locals want to fly out of.

“What we want to do is encourage people to fly out of Wenatchee,” Kuntz shared. “And people fly airports that are convenient and cost effective, so we need to position Pangborn as being cost effective and convenient.”

Pursuing this massive undertaking, the CDRPA’s major goal is to use Pangborn Airport to connect its local NCW communities to the world.

As Director Moyers shares, “The key word is ‘connected.’ So, connectivity is what’s important, if the flights don’t line up from here to Seattle to get you connected to the rest of the world, that can be a problem.”

EAST WENATCHEE — RiverCom 911, the emergency communications center serving Chelan and Douglas counties, has purchased 12.7 acres of land for $1,422,400 to construct a new facility, the agency announced Thursday.

The property, located at the intersection of 5th Street NE and N Lyle Avenue in East Wenatchee, will house a new 911 Emergency Communications Center. This acquisition comes as RiverCom’s current 8,300-square-foot space in the Wenatchee Police Department has become inadequate for the region’s growing needs.

A 2019 study determined that RiverCom requires approximately 14,000 square feet to maintain efficient operations. The agency’s lease with the City of Wenatchee is set to expire in 2029, further necessitating the move.

Doug Jones, RiverCom Executive Director, said, “We are pleased to take this first step toward a new RiverCom facility for our region. The RiverCom board is committed to creating a state-of-the-art facility that will serve as a hub for emergency communications and coordination for decades to come in service to our valued communities.”

The new location was selected for its accessibility, growth potential, and optimal conditions for radio communications across RiverCom’s two-county service area.

RiverCom, established in 2002 and operational since July 2004, serves as the regional 911 point-of-contact for Chelan and Douglas counties. The agency processed approximately 60,000 911 calls in 2023, not including non-emergency calls for service.

As the project moves forward, RiverCom has begun preliminary facility design and cost estimation processes. The new center aims to enhance emergency response services for the growing population of about 115,000 residents across the 4,741 square mile service area.

The Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission designated CenturyLink as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier within its service area for universal service purposes. CenturyLink’s basic local service rates for residential voice lines are $32.00 per month and business services are $48.50 per month. Specific rates will be provided upon request.

CenturyLink participates in the Lifeline program, which makes residential telephone or qualifying broadband service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers may qualify for Lifeline discounts of $5.25/month for voice or bundled voice service or $9.25/month for qualifying broadband or broadband bundles. Residents who live on federally recognized Tribal Lands may qualify for additional Tribal benefits if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone or qualifying broadband service per household, which can be either a wireline or wireless service. Broadband speeds must be at least 25 Mbps download and 3 Mbps upload to qualify.

A household is defined as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Services are not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in these programs. Consumers who willfully make false statements to obtain these discounts can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from these programs.

Ecology Dept. offers $10M in grants to combat air pollution

NCW News
Ward Media

OLYMPIA—Wenatchee and East Wenatchee have been identified as communities facing significant air quality challenges, particularly from fine particulate matter (PM2.5). The Washington State Department of Ecology has launched a new grant program to address these concerns.

The department is offering $10 million in grants, funded by the state’s Climate Commitment Act (CCA), to support local projects in 16 communities and participating Tribes that are heavily impacted by air pollution.

“Designing grant programs for communities, by communities, is part of the state’s growing body of environmental justice work,” said Laura Watson, Ecology’s director. “That work recognizes everyone has a right to a clean, safe, and healthy environment, and that this can best be achieved by working alongside diverse groups of partners and local community members.”

The grants aim to fund planning, community engagement, and development of projects to improve air quality. Eligible projects include supporting free yard waste collection, replacing old residential wood stoves, or incentivizing carpooling.

The application period for these grants is open through October 24, 2024. The department will prioritize applicants with experience in community engagement and projects supporting environmental justice goals.

According to the department’s statement, “Washington Air Quality in Overburdened Communities Grants are supported with funding from Washington’s Climate Commitment Act. The CCA supports Washington’s climate action efforts by putting cap-and-invest dollars to work reducing climate pollution, creating jobs, and improving public health.”

This initiative represents an opportunity for Wenatchee and East Wenatchee to address their ongoing air quality issues, particularly related to PM2.5 levels.

North Central Washington child care centers awarded $400,000 in state renovation grants

NCW News
Ward Media

WENATCHEE - Three child care providers in North Central Washington will receive a total of $400,636 in state grants to improve their facilities, as part of a larger $7 million initiative to upgrade early learning centers across the state.

The Washington State Department of Commerce announced the grants for minor renovations to enhance health and safety in licensed childcare facilities. The funding comes from the Early Learning Facilities Program, which has awarded more than $180 million since its inception in 2017.

Cascade Christian Childcare in Wenatchee will receive $167,636. We Care Daycare in East Wenatchee will get $33,000, while the Okanogan School District #105 in Okanogan will receive $200,000, the largest grant among the three local recipients.

The grants will fund improvements such as updated playground equipment, sanitation spaces, fencing, HVAC upgrades, and light fixtures. The initiative supports critical facilities that provide parents with childcare options and ensure access to high-quality care.

Commerce Director Mike Fong emphasized the importance of these grants, stating, “These grants sustain critical facilities that give parents choices to meet their family’s needs and ensure more access and availability to high-quality child care.”

The Department of Commerce, in collaboration with the Department of Children, Youth, and Families, evaluated 179 applications requesting over $21 million in total. With requests more than triple the available funds, the selection process considered factors such as the number of childcare slots serving low-income families, the project location relative to other early learning facilities, and projects in rural or low-income areas.

This latest round of grants will help maintain and improve childcare access in North Central Washington, supporting both families and local economies in the region.

Wenatchee and has spent his entire life in North Central Washington. He attended school in the Methow Valley School District and Pateros School District and graduated from Eastmont High School.

“I received my AA from Wenatchee Valley College, Bachelor’s in Education from Central Washington University, Master’s in Special Education from Grand Canyon University, and my Principal Certificate through Eastern Washington University,” Johanson said.

Johanson and wife, Kayla, have three children and will celebrate their 15th anniversary this September.

Travis Todd replaces Greg Austin as the Bears’ new Athletic Director.

Pateros

The change that dwarfs all others at Pateros is the four-day week that will give students every Friday as an off-day with the flexibility to continue with educational goals and other pursuits. The school board approved the new format last July.

Both the Pateros Treehouse Early Education Center and the Brewster Boys & Girls Club are providing options for all age levels to ensure that students are exposed to added opportunities while meeting educational benchmarks.

Mansfield

“Mansfield is installing an all-weather track, which should be completed by the end of September,” said Bruce Todd. “It’s paid for by a Healthy Schools-Healthy Kids grant from AG West and a very generous donation from Jim and Dianna Mickelson.”

In the next year, Mansfield is tackling a substantial building renovation with the help of a Small District Modernization Grant through the state Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction

Mansfield K12 Principal Lisa Guzman said staff additions include:

- Marina Darlington, part-time position teaching K-12 art and foreign language.
 - Beck Bertrand, a part-time shared position with Pateros SD K-12 teaching music and foreign language.
 - Genevieve Sherwood, Special Education teacher.
- “I would like to add that our district has implemented a school-wide Student Showcase,” said Guzman. “Students will be building 21st century skills into their daily work as they explore their interests, learn to solve real-world problems, and make decisions within their own education.”

The initiative culminates in two parts:

1. A showcase in January where students will share their midway point.
2. In May, when they will share either their end point or next steps.

Guzman added that staff are really excited about the positive impact this will have on student education and post-secondary endeavors. It measures results, but it is still too early in the school year to measure results. Superintendent/Principal Scotti Wiltse will be one of the first to render an opinion.

“I haven’t heard anything yet, but it is early,” Wiltse told The Quad last Thursday, August 29. “We have only completed three regular school days. I’d say give it a couple of weeks, and we’ll start hearing how folks are doing with it.”

Bridgeport

Facility renovations remain in play at Bridgeport, but the school instituted successful workarounds last year and is looking at the home stretch.

“Our high school remodel is still in progress, and the HS gym and locker rooms are not available to use at all this fall,” said Athletic Director Ryan Allstot. “We hope to be in for basketball season.”

Thunderfest

Last year, the Monkey Business, racing in the 2.5-liter stock division with Seafair winner J. Michael Kelly at the wheel, caught a sponson in a turn and executed a 180, landing upside down. It had to be towed to the dock to be righted.

Brewster allows a longer course - 1 1/4 miles—than Pateros, with four laps equaling a mile. Labrie said the only issue this late in the year is the milfoil, which can get in the rudders and block the water input, causing motor damage if not caught in time.

“Brewster does not get the wind that Pateros does,” said Labrie referring to the part of the second day of the Terry Troxell Memorial Regatta that had to cancel due to high wind gusts.

Race categories with awards for the top three Thunderfest finishers in each class include:

- Vintage
- 2.5 Litre Modified
- E350
- 2.5 Litre Stock
- 1 Litre
- 1.5 Litre Stock
- Cracker Box
- Sportsman Advanced
- Sportsman Entry
- 360CCH

“I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude for your unwavering support and guidance throughout your many years of dedicated service as a school board member for the Brewster School District,” said Blackburn. “Your commitment to the education and well-being of our students has made a profound impact on our community.”

Blackburn praised Becker’s tireless efforts that both

“Your leadership, wisdom, and dedication have been instrumental in creating an environment where students can thrive and succeed.”

Blackburn expressed gratitude for Becker’s selfless service and the positive influence he had on the education of countless individuals.

“Your legacy will undoubtedly be felt for years to come,” Blackburn concluded.

NUTRITION: A National Concern

PARENTS: Children don’t yet realize that weight is more about having a healthy body and less about how that body looks. To put it into perspective, explain that carrying extra weight means the body must work harder—and that extra work can keep a person from feeling their best.

Comparing Apples and Oranges

$1 \text{ orange} = 53¢ + 17¢ + 64¢$
 $1 \text{ apple} = 82¢ + 12¢ + 35¢$

Grocer Joe is thinking about the price per pound of apples and oranges. Which costs more? Write the price per pound on each crate.

Nutrition Maze

Our bodies need different kinds of nutrients to perform at their peak. The different nutrients we need come from different kinds of food.

Look at the nutrients below. Then follow the maze to find out what each nutrient does for your body and what foods provide each nutrient.

Protein Vitamins Calcium

Carbohydrates

We get these by eating bread, cereal, pasta and other foods made with grains. These give us energy.

Fruits and vegetables are an important source of these. They make our hair shine, our eyes sparkle and our bodies healthy.

We get this from meat, fish and beans. In order for our muscles and organs to grow and be healthy, our bodies need this.

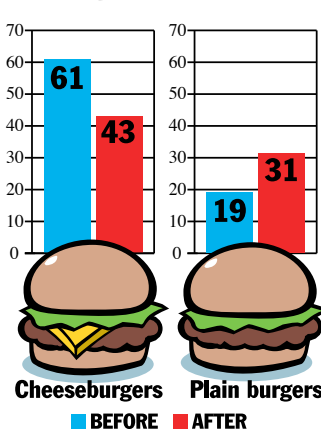

We can get this from a variety of foods including dairy products, dark green leafy vegetables, soy beans, almonds, figs, broccoli and butternut squash. Our bodies need it to grow and keep our bones strong.

Standards Link: Health: Students know the nutritional value of foods.

Posters Make a Point

When a high school in Pennsylvania put up posters telling students how much fat was in different foods, the students changed what they ate for lunch.

Burger Sales

Look at the graph that shows what kinds of food they chose before and after the posters were put up. Then answer these questions:

- How many fewer cheeseburgers were chosen after the posting of the nutrition posters?
- How many more plain burgers were chosen than cheeseburgers after the posting of the nutrition posters?

What do you think the nutrition posters said about the fat content of cheese?

Important Ingredients

Good nutrition is a key ingredient for good health. But there are two more important ingredients you need as well. Use the code to discover them.

SECRET CODE:
 O) / \ + - □ × \ / ✓ \ × \ |
 A C D E F I L N O P R S T X Y

Talking Heads

Look for newspaper pictures of people’s heads. Cut some of these out and glue them onto a piece of paper. Write down something for each one to say about eating well. Draw a bubble around the words to make the pictures look like comics. Ask if you can post these in your lunchroom!
