Cashmere expects nearly 400 new residents by 2045, no need to expand Urban Growth Area

By Kirk Beckendorf Special to Ward Media

CASHMERE - The city of Cashmere is projected to grow by approximately 386 residents over the next 20 years, according to Chelan County population data presented at a recent Planning Commission meeting.

Christina Wollman, a planning consultant with Perteet, Inc., detailed these projections to commissioners on March 3, guiding them through the initial steps of a land capacity analysis that will help the city prepare for anticipated growth through 2045.

"Washington's Growth Management Act requires local governments to 'plan for and accommodate' housing affordable to all income levels," Wollman explained, referencing state requirements that guide the planning process.

The analysis revealed that Cashmere will need approximately 340 additional housing units by 2046 to accommodate the projected population increase. These units would need to serve residents across seven income categories, ranging from those with no income to individuals earning more than 120% of the area's median income.

Wollman emphasized commissioners that the city isn't required to force specific housing

Fire District #6 raises alarm bells on funding deficit

The Fire District #6 addressed its financial situation with the public inside the Dryden Station community meeting room on March 6.

By Taylor Caldwell

Ward Media Staff Reporter

DRYDEN - Chelan County Fire District #6 has not updated its levy rate, which funds 99 percent of its operations, since 1955. Now, it's facing a $10.7 million funding gap that threatens its emergency response capabilities and puts homeowners at risk of losing wildfire coverage.

The district's levy rate is the lowest among fire districts in Chelan and Douglas Counties, collecting 31.5 cents per $1,000 in assessed property value. Under this rate, the district currently relies on an annual budget of $425,000 to oversee a coverage area that spans from Blewett Pass to Monitor, and includes areas of Cashmere that sit outside of city limits. It consists of one paid fire chief and 60 volunteers that

Camp Fire to host annual auction fundraiser on March 29

NCW News Ward Media

WENATCHEE — Camp Fire North Central Washington Council will hold its annual auction fundraiser Saturday, March 29, at the Wenatchee Convention Center, with proceeds benefiting Camp Zanika scholarships and youth programs.

The "Enchanted Forest" themed event will run from 5:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., featuring both silent and live auctions with a variety of items available for bidding. Attendees can check in beginning at 5:00 p.m., with dinner service starting at 5:30

The event will include a no-host bar, dinner, both silent and live auction events featuring a wide variety of items, decorated tables, photo booths, games, and networking opportunities.

Tickets are available at $60 per person for single entry, which includes dinner and one raffle ticket. Other ticket options include the "Fabled Pair" at $110, which provides entry and dinner for two people with three raffle tickets, and the "Mystic Grove Table" for $550, accommodating groups of 10 with 15 raffle tickets included.

The fundraiser has attracted several sponsors, including Downtown Kiwanis, Mitchell Reed & Schmitten, Smithson Insurance Services, Adobe, Gesa Credit Union, Zenbusiness, and Wenatchee Valley Medical Group, which is designated as a "Trailblazer Sponsor."

Interested individuals can purchase tickets through the Camp Fire website at campfirencw.org or by calling the Wenatchee office at 509-663-1609. The organization is also seeking additional auction item donations and sponsors to support the event.

Washington,

For Ward Media,

newspapers

he recent decision by the Trump administration to impose tariffs on Canadian imports may seem like a distant policy move, but for those of us in the newspaper industry, it hits close to home - both figuratively and literally. At Ward Media, we are deeply concerned about the ripple effects these tariffs will have on our ability to continue delivering highquality local journalism to the communities we serve.

One of the largest imports affected by these tariffs is newsprint. Canada supplies the majority of the paper used by newspapers in the United States, and as production costs rise, the financial burden will inevitably fall on local publications like ours. Unlike large national media companies with deep pockets, small and independent increase in costs may force us to consider options we don't want to - reducing the number of pages we print, reducing frequency of publication, increasing subscription rates and advertising rates, or even cutting staff. None of these options serve our mission to our readers. Beyond our company, this tariff threatens the future of independent journalism across the country. When small-town newspapers struggle or shut provide essential local news to down, entire communities lose access to the vital reporting that keeps them informed—about city government, school board decisions, local businesses, and even the high school sports scores so many of us look forward to reading each week.

This is not just about an industry—it's about the communities we serve. The strength of our democracy depends on a free and thriving press, and policies that increase costs for local newspapers only make it harder for us to do our job.

At Ward Media, we remain committed to serving our readers and fighting for the sustainability of local journalism. We will continue to adapt, innovate, and advocate for policies that recognize the importance of a strong, independent press.

Thank you for your continued support as we navigate these challenges together.

Leadership Institute of North Central Washington graduates inaugural class

NCW News Ward Media

WENATCHEE — The Leadership Institute of North Central Washington celebrated the graduation of its inaugural cohort on February 27, with 26 students from four counties completing an intensive civic leadership program.

The City of Wenatchee formally recognized the occasion by proclaiming February 27 as Leadership Institute of NCW Day during a city council meeting, followed by a graduation ceremony at the Wenatchee Valley Museum & Cultural Center.

"Strong leaders, with the tools and passion to participate fully in society, are key to strong communities," said Beth Stipe, executive director for the Community Foundation. "We spent over two years researching and evaluating program curriculum from all over the country to ensure that anyone who had the commitment and passion to get more involved in strengthening the social fabric of our communities would have an opportunity to enhance their skills."

The 20-session training program, held at Wenatchee College, Vallev uses curriculum developed by the Parent Leadership Training Institute, a national program founded 30 years ago to build civic capacity among community members. The program follows a structured approach beginning with a retreat, followed by ten sessions on personal leadership development and another ten sessions examining civics, public policy, government structures, budgets, and media studies.

The event featured a keynote address from Zulema Gomez, Director of Capacity Building at the National Parent Leadership Institute, speeches from graduates, and remarks from District 12 Representative Mike Steele.

As part of program requirements, graduates designed and implemented projects community addressing various needs, including emotional wellbeing resources, inclusive 4-H clubs, veteran services, afterschool programs, community gardens, and civic participation strategies.

"This program didn't just give me tools to help climb proverbial mountains - it gave me a crew and network to do it with, including the safety net of supportive people at the base," one participant shared.

Another graduate reflected, "My whole life would not be the same without this program. It changed the way I think, and now I know how to use my voice without being afraid."

The program originated from Our Valley, Our Future's Action Plan "Game Changer" initiative, developed with feedback from over 2,500 local residents seeking more representative civic leadership. A Civic Design Team was formed with representatives from multiple community organizations to develop the institute.

The Leadership Institute will expand to Grant County in 2025 and Okanogan County in 2026. The program is open to all adults with a passion for community improvement, regardless of prior leadership experience or education.

The Community Foundation of North Central Washington, established in 1986, manages $163 million in assets through more than 690 individual funds and has awarded over $63 million in grants and scholarships throughout Chelan, Douglas, Okanogan counties.

Those interested in joining a future cohort or learning more about the program can visit https://cfncw.org/ leadershipinstituteofncw/ for updates and application restricted access to destination resorts, is currently $783 adults and $407 children. The Epic Local Pass excludes peak days at Stevens.

For a limited time, skiers and riders who buy an Epic Pass now will also receive 10 Buddy Tickets and six Ski With a Friend Tickets. A Buddy Ticket offers 45 percent savings on a lift ticket. Ski With a Friend Ticket discount varies according to the daily rate at each resort.

Starting next season, Epic passholders will have expanded access to Verbier 4 Vallées, Switzerland's largest ski area. Located in Switzerland's Valais Canton, Verbier 4 Vallées includes six ski resorts spanning four valleys, with views of the Matterhorn and Mont Blanc.

Parking Changes

Next season, Stevens Pass plans to expand its reservation-based parking program to include 100 percent of its lots on weekends and peak periods until 10 a.m., offering a mix of paid and free carpool options.

reservation-based The parking program introduced this season in order to improve parking management and reduce the amount of vehicles on the highway. Reservations were required in 33 percent of its lots until 10 a.m. on weekends and during peak periods. According to Stevens Pass, over half of the reservations in those lots have qualified for free parking as a result of carpooling with four or more passengers per vehicle.

"I've been on-site in our parking lots nearly every weekend helping manage traffic flow and have observed a reduction in congestion by spreading out arrival times, which has improved the guest experience. Parking has been a top priority throughout my tenure, and I am confident this change is another positive step forward," said Ellen Galbraith, Stevens Pass General Manager and Vice President, in a press release.

Free parking will be available to guests carpooling with four or more people, a single adult with two kids aged 12 and under, or guests utilizing ADA parking. Guests who book a lesson will also be able to reserve a spot free of charge. Vehicles with fewer than four occupants, or those that don't meet the exceptions, will be required to make a $20 per vehicle reservation. Free parking without reservation will be available after 10 a.m., as space allows.

Conservation District announces March board meeting

NCW News Ward Media

WENATCHEE — The Cascadia Conservation District has scheduled its Regular Board meeting for Friday, March 21, at 1:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at the district office located at 1350 McKittrick St.,

Suite B, in Wenatchee.

Members of the public have multiple attendance options, as the meeting will be conducted in both in-person and virtual formats through call-in and Zoom capabilities.

Those wishing to attend in person are advised to contact the district office in advance due to limited space availability.

For additional details regarding the meeting, including virtual attendance instructions, interested parties can visit the district's website at cascadiacd.org or call the district office directly at 509-436-1601.

operate out of four stations: Peshastin, Monitor, Dryden, and Valley Hi, located up Blewett Pass.

At a March 6 community meeting, the fire district warned its constituents that Emergency Medical Services (EMS) would be cut in January 2026 if the budget remained static. Medical emergencies, especially those on Blewett Pass, would put more responsibility on ambulance companies and surrounding districts

"[Response will] take extra time, and if it requires an extrication, those ambulance companies don't extricate. You're trapped in your vehicle," said Michelle Mazzola of Resource Solutions, who assisted the district with its strategic plan.

The district would also consider suspending all of its motor vehicle accident responses, which account for 17 percent of the district's calls, as well as closing its Valley Hi and Peshastin stations. However, it would barely scratch the surface of the $10.7 million funding gap in unmet, mission critical needs.

About 85 percent of firefighting response calls originate from the Dryden Station, which has seen significant repairs in recent years. Last fall, the water main broke for the second time in five years, losing about 40,000 gallons of water before it was discovered, and shutting the station down for three months, according to Fire District #6 Chief Andy Lee. In 2023, a structural beam snapped under snow load. The crew had to call Fire District #3 at 2 a.m.

for help relocating its trucks and bracing the beam.

"Luckily...We just got back from a call. If we hadn't been here, we would have lost the whole building and the trucks," said Lee.

The other three stations were said to be in similar conditions, with A-frame beams no longer attached to the concrete pads at Valley Hi, sunlight coming through a hole in the Monitor station, and walls separating at Peshastin.

The district's equipment is no better; most of it has over-extended its lifetime by 20 to 30 years. While Lee's trucks require maintenance after nearly every trip, some of his tools don't even make it through the response.

"We do a lot of car wrecks up on Blewett Pass. And for a long time, this is what we were using: an old, hand-pump extrication tool. I don't know that I've ever seen this tool get anybody out of a car," said Lee.

The district has relied on hand-me-downs from other stations. Lee obtained a secondhand two-cycle pump from another district, which has also been unreliable on scene. When other stations replace their fire hose at 10 years, Lee takes it to replace his 30-year-old hose with pinholes.

The volunteers, who receive a $10 stipend for each call, are also working in aged out gear. Lee said by law, he needs to replace it every 10 years, or when he brings a new member on. However, unable to afford $2,000 to $7,000 a set, firefighters are outfitted in 20-year-old jackets and pants.

20-year-old jackets and pants. "This helmet looks fairly new, but it's from 2013. By law, I have to replace it. This helmet costs 500 bucks," said Lee. "So it's a toss up...Can I put this guy in this old gear? Yeah, but the second he gets hurt, L&I is going to hang me."

During the March 6 meeting, the district proposed two new options to replace its 1955 levy rate for the August ballot: 80 cents per $1,000 assessed value, and $1.40 per $1,000 assessed value.

"Very conservative commissioners, looking out for the public money, that's how we got here. So everybody meant well...Now, we're in a position that we have to say, okay, yeah, we want to be conservative... but we also have to look out for public safety," said Fire Commissioner Ray Schmitten.

For a home valued at $400,000, a homeowner would pay about $10 per month at the current rate. At the 80 cent rate, they would pay an estimated $27 monthly. At the $1.40 rate, they would pay about $47.

Each would pay about $47.

Each would provide the district with a $750,000 annual operating budget. At 80 cents, it would have an estimated $370,000 available annually to address critical needs. After 6 years, the district would still have $8.56 million in unmet needs.

"Even 80 cents, there's no guarantee EMS would come back," said Mazzola.

At the $1.40 rate, it would have $1.21 million annually to address these needs, shrinking the deficit to an estimated $3.52 million in six years. Comparatively, the annual funding would almost meet the $2 million annual budget of Grant County Fire District #8, which is similar in size when considering call volume, assessed value of property, and population served.

The district is currently seeking public feedback. In April, commissioners will decide on a proposed rate for the August ballot.

By Jake Goldstein-Street Washington State Standard OLYMPIA - Democrats in the Washington state House on Saturday approved an overhaul of the state's system for buying House Bill 1163 would require a state permit to purchase firearms. Majority Democrats pushed the bill through without any Republican votes. It's a big step forward for the idea, which didn't advance out of committee last year. The bill has attracted stiff opposition from gun owners and others who argue their constitutional right shouldn't require a permit.

But supporters say that the permit system — which about a dozen other states have on the books - would make Washington safer.

"We know that this policy works," Rep. Liz Berry, D-Seattle, the bill's sponsor, said on the House floor ahead of the 58-38 vote. It will make sure guns don't get into the wrong hands and diverted into the black market where they could be used in crimes, she said.

Rep. Darya Farivar, D-Seattle, said the new requirements will bring a greater sense of safety to neighborhoods like hers, Lake City, where gunshots can be heard nightly.

"They keep us up. They confine us to our homes as an unofficial curfew," she said. "This legislation will lift that unofficial curfew and let us

This policy, she said, "will ensure that everyone who decides to purchase a firearm understands the capabilities of the machinery. It will ensure people understand that this machinery can rob people of their safety, their freedom and their lives.' In a roughly four-hour debate that ran into the overnight hours Friday and resumed midday Saturday, Republican lawmakers proposed 27 amendments, all but one of which were rejected. Among those defeated by Democrats was a proposed exemption for veterans who received an honorable discharge from any branch of the U.S. armed forces.

Rep. Jim Walsh, R-Aberdeen, said the bill violates provisions of the state constitution that protect a person's right to due process, privacy and ability to defend themself with a firearm.

"This may be the worst bad bill we've seen so far this session," said Walsh, who is also chair of the state Republican Party.

The legislation goes beyond the 10-day waiting period and background checks already enshrined in state law.

Under the legislation, prospective gun buyers would need to first apply for a five-year permit from the Washington State Patrol. To get the permit, applicants must have completed a certified firearms safety training program within the past five years, with exceptions for police officers and active military servicemembers.

The state patrol's Firearms

Background Check Program would issue the permit within 30 days, or 60 days if the applicant doesn't have a state ID.

Controversial permit-to-purchase gun bill clears Washington House

Bruce Cheadle,

(509) 782-1659

If the applicant has completed the safety course, the state would have to issue the permit unless the person is barred from having guns, out of custody on bond awaiting trial or sentencing on felony charges, or the subject of an arrest warrant.

The bill also requires those seeking a concealed pistol license to similarly firearms safety training.

Prospective buyers challenge denied applications in court. And the state can revoke a permit if the person no longer meets the conditions. The state patrol would recheck eligibility for existing permit holders each year.

The agency estimates it would receive about 100,000 permit applications annually. Previously, the agency had projected double that.

In 2024, the state patrol got about 250,000 requests for firearm background checks. Of those, troopers denied about 3,400. Approximately half were appealed. Two-thirds of those appeals were successful.

The state patrol says it will cost $13.7 million in the next state budget to handle the new program. The amount rises to nearly $20 million in the 2027-29 budget. Fees collected for fingerprinting and background checks would offset the cost of the new permit-to-purchase program, according to a fiscal analysis.

Rep. Cyndy Jacobsen, R-Puyallup, offered an amendment Friday night to delay the permit system until the state patrol has implemented a program to certify firearm safety courses.

Washington's bill now heads to the state Senate.

The legislation is the centerpiece in a suite of bills this year aimed at curbing gun violence. On Wednesday, lawmakers in the Senate moved to expand the list of places where Washingtonians can't carry guns.

Under that bill, which the House will now take up, it would be illegal to carry a gun or other weapon in parks "where children are likely to be present," state or local public buildings and county fairgrounds. The measure also got no Republican votes.

Other proposals include limiting bulk purchases of firearms and ammunition, requiring gun owners to lock up their weapons in their cars and homes and adding new requirements for gun dealers.

A proposed excise tax on the sale of guns and ammo has stalled.

On a bipartisan note, senators unanimously voted this week to require a year of community custody, a status similar to probation or parole, for unlawful firearm possession convictions.

This story was updated to correct the headline to say the legislation was passed by the state House.

Yoga for Better Balance and Healthy Aging

By Joanna Dunn

Balance is an essential life skill.

If your balance has ever been compromised, you know how debilitating it can be. As we age, our ability to balance begins to decline. But balance is a skill you can improve no matter your age. Our bodies are very efficient -- they prioritize the movements and skills we use and let go of those there is a skill you wish to retain as you age - including balance - you must continue

If one of these signals is faulty, it can have far reaching consequences in terms of our ability to move easily through the world. Throughout life but especially as we age, we need to challenge our balance system to keep these signals strong and healthy. How to get started with voga

If you're not already practicing yoga regularly, first check in with your doctor to make sure that yoga is right for you. When first getting started with yoga, I recommend finding a slower paced, yet active class. This is essential, especially for those of us in the second half of life or later. When it comes to strengthening our balance mechanism, it is important that we feel safe but adequately challenged. A class that moves quickly or offers complex, advanced poses might lead to injury. While many find the energy of a group class beneficial, others might prefer one-on-one work with a skilled instructor. No matter how you get started with yoga, your future self will thank you as you begin to see the benefits in your physical health.

Healthy Smiles, Healthy Lives: The Importance of Regular Dental Checkups

Maintaining good oral health early, and identify potential is essential to overall well-being, yet many people neglect routine dental checkups. Regular visits to the dentist play a critical role in preventing serious dental issues and ensuring a healthy smile for years to come.

Professional cleanings and examinations help remove plaque buildup, detect cavities gum disease before it becomes severe. These visits also provide an opportunity for dentists to screen for oral cancer and other health concerns that may go unnoticed.

Beyond aesthetics, poor oral health has been linked to a variety of systemic health conditions. Studies have shown that gum disease can increase the risk of heart disease, diabetes, and other chronic illnesses. Infections in the mouth can spread to other parts of the body, emphasizing the importance of preventive care.

Routine checkups also serve as an educational tool. Dental professionals can provide guidance on proper brushing and flossing techniques, recommend products suited to individual needs, and address any concerns about diet and oral hygiene habits.

For children, regular dental visits help establish a strong foundation for lifelong oral health. Early intervention can prevent tooth decay, promote proper jaw development, and encourage positive dental habits from an early age.

While daily brushing and flossing are essential, they cannot replace professional cleanings and examinations. Dentists have the tools and expertise to detect issues that may not be visible or cause immediate discomfort. By scheduling regular checkupstypically every six monthspatients can prevent costly and painful procedures in the future. Prioritizing oral health is a simple yet impactful way to support overall wellness. By staying proactive with dental care, individuals can enjoy the benefits of a healthy smile and a healthier life.

The Power of Touch: The Science Behind Massage Therapy's Health Benefits

Massage therapy has long been recognized for its ability to promote relaxation, but its benefits extend far beyond simple stress relief. Research has shown that massage can aid in recovery, improve circulation, reduce pain, and support overall well-being. Whether used for relaxation, rehabilitation, or chronic pain management, massage therapy is a valuable tool for maintaining health.

Stress and Reducing Enhancing Mental Well-Being

One of the most immediate and well-documented effects of massage is its ability to reduce stress. Studies have found that massage therapy lowers cortisol, the body's primary stress hormone, while increasing serotonin and dopamine levels, which help regulate mood. This combination can promote a sense of relaxation, improve sleep quality, and even alleviate symptoms of anxiety and depression.

Aiding Recovery and Reducing Pain

Massage therapy is widely used in physical rehabilitation and sports medicine to aid recovery from injuries and manage chronic pain. By improving blood circulation, massage helps deliver oxygen and nutrients to muscles and tissues, speeding up the healing process. It also reduces inflammation, breaks down scar tissue, and improves flexibility, which can prevent future injuries. For those with chronic pain conditions such as arthritis, fibromyalgia, or lower back pain, regular massage can be an effective complementary therapy. By reducing muscle tension and enhancing joint mobility, massage therapy can help alleviate discomfort and improve overall function. Boosting Circulation and Supporting the Immune System Another key benefit of massage is its ability to enhance circulation. The rhythmic pressure applied during a massage helps move blood and lymphatic fluid through the body more efficiently, delivering essential nutrients while flushing out toxins. This process can boost immune function and promote better overall health.

drainage Lymphatic massage, in particular, is designed to stimulate the lymphatic system, which plays a critical role in the body's ability to fight infections and remove waste. By promoting lymph flow, this type of massage may help reduce swelling, support detoxification, and improve immune response.

Improving Sleep and Enhancing Relaxation

Massage therapy has been shown to positively impact sleep quality. The relaxation response triggered by massage can help regulate the nervous system, making it easier to fall asleep and stay asleep. This effect is particularly beneficial for individuals who suffer from insomnia or disrupted sleep due to stress, anxiety, or chronic pain.

Choosing the Right Type of Massage

There are several types of massage therapy, each offering unique benefits:

- Massage Swedish Focuses on relaxation and gentle muscle tension
- Deep Tissue Massage -Targets deeper layers of muscle and connective tissue to address chronic pain and tightness.
- Massage Sports Designed for athletes to aid recovery, enhance flexibility, and prevent injuries.

- Trigger Point Therapy -Helps release tight knots in muscles that cause pain and stiffness.
- Lymphatic Drainage Massage Supports immune function and reduces fluid retention.

Incorporating Massage into a Wellness Routine

For those looking to improve their overall well-being, massage therapy can be an excellent addition to a selfcare routine. Whether used for relaxation, stress management, pain relief, or recovery, regular massage sessions can provide long-term health benefits.

While professional massage is the most effective option, self-massage techniques, foam rolling, and stretching can also help maintain muscle health between appointments. By incorporating massage therapy into a wellness plan, individuals can experience both immediate relief and longterm improvements in physical and mental health.

As awareness of the science behind massage continues to grow, more people are recognizing its role in holistic health care. Whether seeking relief from stress, managing chronic pain, or enhancing overall well-being, massage therapy remains a powerful and accessible tool for a healthier life.

development but must create opportunities for developers to build properties across all income brackets.

"The City is not required to force the development of specific levels of housing, but is required to create the opportunity for developers to build any of the range of properties," Wollman told the commission.

Preliminary findings indicate that land currently available within Cashmere's city limits appears sufficient to meet the projected housing needs. The study examined vacant and redevelopable properties within various zoning areas, including singlefamily, multi-family, suburban and airport residential zones.

"The lands within the City, that could be developed into multi and single family residences, exceeds the estimated housing need over the next 20 years," Wollman said, suggesting that no expansion of the Urban Growth Area will be necessary to accommodate expected growth.

Community outreach regarding the 20-year planning process is scheduled to begin this spring, allowing residents to provide input as Cashmere develops its longterm vision.

The population and housing projections were derived from Chelan County data, which provided growth estimates for the county and its municipalities.
