Superintendent Wilson brings school upgrade plans before council

By MIKE MALTAIS Ward Media Staff Reporter

CHELAN - Lake Chelan School District Superintendent Brad Wilson delivered a District Facility Plan update to the April 8 meeting of the city council, where he outlined priority projects and their estimated costs.

Wilson prefaced his presentation with acknowledgements to council member Jon Higgins, who serves as council liaison with the district, and council member Terry Sanders with the middle school, for their contributions

Wilson said the process is still in the pre-bond phase of the strategic plan adopted in 2023.

"We do not have an official bond resolution vet," said Wilson but addressed the steps leading to a recommendation for the November 2025 bond.

Wilson said the planning committee was very specific regarding the need to "improve facilities, not maintain, not modify" because the district has fallen behind with improvements when compared to neighbor schools. "Facilities feed into everything we do," said Wilson. Wilson reviewed the process of thought exchange surveys, student and community listening sessions, and more than half a dozen Facility Advisory Committee (FAC) meetings that contributed to the study completed by ALSC Architects of Spokane for the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI).

The survey grades school buildings based on standards set by the state.

Failing grade

Wilson noted that based on those state standards Morgen Owings Elementary (MOE), Chelan Middle School (CMS), and Chelan High School (CHS) all received failing grades.

"MOE was rated as poor, meaning only 30 percent effective," said Wilson. "Overall, we graded out at 50.30 (out of 100), an F in the school world."

MOE (built in 1948) deficiencies include:

- · Roofing and ceilings.
- Draining and plumbing.
- HVAC and electrical systems. • Fire protection.

Wilson said student safety is his greatest concern among the many issues at MOE.

"Elementary students having to cross the street every day to MOE is what I feel is our biggest safety risk on a daily basis," said Wilson.

CMS/CHS received 30 percent poor ratings as well (56.96/100). Needed upgrades include:

- Roofing
- Doors and windows
- Interior construction and ceilings HVAC and electrical
- Electronic security, integrated automation systems. Wilson added the non-ADA accessible weight room and a shop area not up to state industry standards.

"We're focused more than ever on career and technical education (CTE) providing students a pathway into the work force," said Wilson.

Wilson said student athlete facilities were not part of the study but Chelan's need attention.

"We don't have an all-weather track," Wilson said.

Navy Veteran Jim Taylor honored with Quilt of Valor continued his education with classes

By NORM MANLY Community Volunteer

MANSON - Jim Taylor, a United States Navy veteran and esteemed member of the Manson American Legion, Post 108, was recently honored with a Quilt of Valor during a ceremony held at the Lake Chelan Winery, March 8. The quilt, a symbol of gratitude for his service, was presented by Doug Marsh, a fellow American Legion member, and Jean Horner, representing the Quilts of Valor Foundation, Chelan Group.

Doug Marsh, a retired United States Navy, 1st Class Aviation Structural Mechanic and proud member of both the Manson American Legion and Quilts of Valor Foundation, took on the role of master of ceremonies. "As a veteran and representative of Quilts of Valor Foundation, it was a privilege to honor Jim and acknowledge his sacrifices for our nation. I would also like to extend my gratitude to Steve and Bobbi Kludt for hosting this event. Steve, a fellow veteran, has been a steadfast supporter of our local veterans," Doug remarked.

Doug was accompanied by Jean Horner from the Quilts of Valor Foundation's Chelan Group, who shared her deeply personal connection to the organization.

Jean reflected, "My journey with Quilts of Valor began during my son's two deployments to Afghanistan, where he frequently faced perilous situations. During his second deployment, while serving with special forces, I crafted a quilt for him. Each stitch was saturated with prayers for his safety, and the act of quilting brought me a sense of peace. Today, it fills my heart with joy to create quilts for others affected by war, recognizing their sacrifices and expressing gratitude for all they have endured.'

Lake Chelan Schools prioritizing student attendance

CHELAN - In a time when schools across Washington are facing rising rates of absenteeism, the Lake Chelan School District is giving the community something to celebrate.

According to new data from the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction (OSPI), 77.4% of students in the Lake Chelan School District attended school at least 90% of the time during the 2023-24 school year. That's well above the statewide average of 72.7%, and each of the district's main schools -Morgen Owings Elementary, Chelan Middle School, and Chelan High School - outperformed the state.

Educators across the district have focused on creating safe, supportive, and engaging learning environments. When students begin to miss school, staff reach out to understand what's going on and offer help. Whether it's a ride to school, a health issue, or social challenges, the goal is to remove obstacles so students can attend consistently. "When students are here, they learn more, they connect with others, and they build the habits that will carry them through high school and beyond.

Experts agree that regular attendance is one of the most powerful predictors of student success.

Even missing just two days of school per month - about 18 days over a year - can negatively impact academic performance and increase the likelihood of falling behind or dropping out later on. With nearly 60% of students identified as low-income and over 28% learning English, the

He added that Mt. Goat Field, not fully completed when it opened in 2013, lacks proper locker rooms, bathrooms, or concession stands. "Our kids change in a storage shed and we are woefully short on parking," said Wilson.

Cost projection

Following the status report Wilson laid out the projects prioritized by the 18-member FAC over the past two-plus years of deliberations.

"Our educational facilities need to be our priority," said Wilson listing the priorities and projected costs in order:

1. Replace rather than remodel the elementary school and add PreK. $54,740,000 ($4,044.314 2024 OSPI match funds available if bond passes) a. Located behind the cost projection of $0.86/$1,000 of assessed value for a 20-year bond provides the $70,000,000 funding needed. A bond requires 60 percent voter approval.

Wilson explained the advantages of a bond that provides the district with a larger upfront investment to make major updates, locks in current interest rates and construction costs, and can be repaid over a longer period.

The latter keeps the tax rate lower when compared to a capital levv.

Wilson noted that in 2024 Lake Chelan School District's tax rate ranked 263 out of 295 school districts and that Chelan is the lowest among 11 school districts in the fourcounty area encompassing Chelan, Douglas, Okanogan, and Grant counties.

Wilson concluded with the reminder that the school district is not relying solely on taxpayers.

"We are pursuing all available grants," Wilson said.

He added that the plan is not creating an additional campus that will create additional ongoing costs nor attempting to band-aid long term problems that will continue to cost the district for long term solutions.

revisits Economy & Efficiency Waiver, 4-day student school week

Lake Chelan Mirror Ward Media

MANSON - At their March 25 meeting, the Manson School Board reopened the discussion on pursuing the Economy Efficiency Waiver (4-Day School Week) for the 2025-2026 academic year.

Initially considered in the spring of 2024, the board opted not to apply then, choosing to address concerns from students, staff, and the community first.

Stakeholders can find information about the 4-day school week option on the district's website, including a Q&A document and an informational flyer.

Additional resources will be added as the decision approaches.

All stakeholders will be allowed to share their thoughts and opinions on a survey that was sent out on April 11.

If the board moves forward in considering this option, notice will be provided to allow for public comment at the April 28 board meeting.

"We understand that this is a significant decision, which is why we want to ensure that we hear from all stakeholders before any final decisions are made," Superintendent Tabatha Mires said.

"Your feedback will play a crucial role in shaping the decision-making process, and we are eager to hear your thoughts and insights. Together, we can ensure that any changes made are in the best interests of our students, families, and community."

Lake Chelan Ladies Golf Club opens 2025 season despite chilly conditions

Lake Chelan Mirror Ward Media

CHELAN - The 2025 golf season has officially begun at Lake Chelan Golf Course, with the Lake Chelan Ladies Golf Club commencing play despite lingering cool temperatures..

LAKE CHELAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Opening Day took place on March 27, drawing six participants who braved the chilly conditions to kick off the new season.

The inaugural event featured a "Surprise Opener" competition format that scored players based on their five best holes plus four worst holes, less half their handicap, with an additional three-stroke deduction for a "field goal" on hole 14.

In Division 1, Linda Reister and April Talley tied for first place, each finishing with a score of 32. Loa Servis claimed first place in the combined Division 2 and 3 category with a score of 34.5.

The opening day also featured notable individual achievements.

Reister recorded a birdie on hole 18, while Talley secured birdies on holes 1 and 15. Both Reister and Talley also registered chip-ins on hole 18.

By the following week, on April 3, participation nearly doubled with eleven players competing in the Monthly Medal competition, which rewards low gross and net scores by division, along with fewest putts.

In Division 1 results, April Talley won low gross with a score of 90, while Linda Reister secured low net with 78 and also led the division with the fewest putts at 32.

Division 2 saw Gena Fateley win low gross with 98, as Elona Teague claimed low net with 82 and fewest putts with 38.

In Division 3, Judy Johanson led with a low gross score of 108, Loa Servis won low net with 75, and Johanson recorded the fewest putts at 31.

No birdies or chip-ins were recorded during the April 3 competition, and the KP (closest to the pin) pot will carry over to future events.

Club officials noted that seasonal members who winter in warmer climates are gradually returning to the area, which is expected to increase participation in upcoming events as the spring season progresses.

Washington apple license plate program marks five-year anniversary, raises $142,000 for students

NCW News / Ward Media

WENATCHEE - The Washington Apple Education Foundation announced Thursday that its specialized license plate program has raised more than $142,000 for student scholarships over the past five years.

Since its 2020 launch, the apple-themed license plate has gained popularity throughout the state, with 1,239 plates currently on Washington roads.

The program directs $28 from each plate purchase and annual renewal toward scholarships for students from families working in the state's tree fruit industry.

"This milestone is not just about the number of plates it's about the students whose lives have been changed through the generosity of those who choose to support WAEF in this unique way," said Rolando Martin, WAEF Chairman.

"We are grateful to individuals displaying this plate on their personal and company vehicles. You are making higher education possible for hardworking, deserving young people."

The license plate program was developed through a collaborative effort between the Washington Apple Commission and the Washington Apple Education Foundation.

It has become a visible symbol of the state's agricultural heritage while providing financial support for education.

The Washington Apple Education Foundation serves as the charitable arm of Washington's tree fruit industry.

According to foundation officials, WAEF provides over $1 million in scholarships annually and offers professional and career development training throughout the year for student recipients.

Interested individuals can learn more about obtaining a Washington apple license plate through the foundation's website at https://waef. org/get-a-washington-appleslicense-plate/.

Chelan-Douglas Regional Port Authority's Trades District recognized for innovation in economic development

NCW News / Ward Media

OLYMPIA – The Chelan-Douglas Regional Port Authority received recognition for its innovative Trades District Project at the 2025 Washington Economic Development Association (WEDA) Awards held in Olympia on March 26.

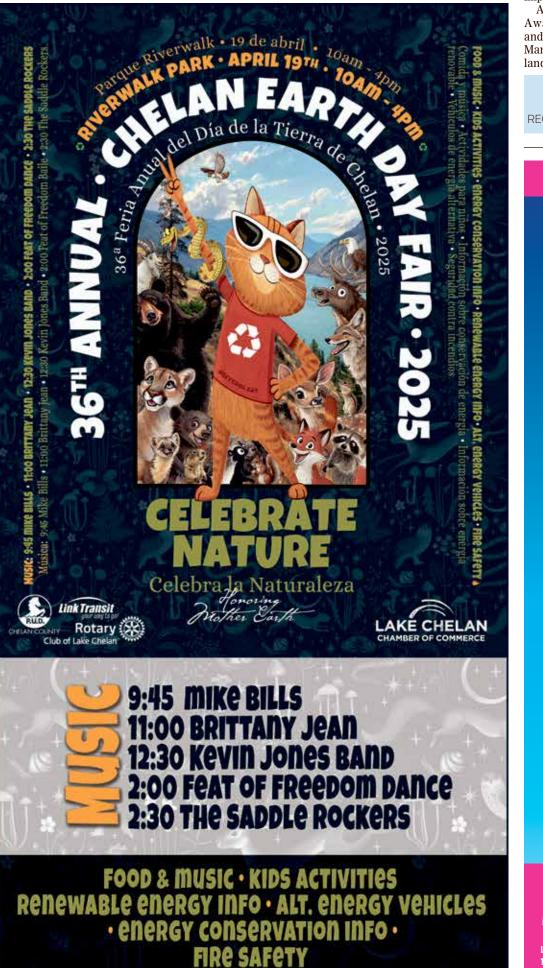

The project, which features 12 incubator spaces ranging from 1,584 to 2,175 square feet, was honored with one of two Innovation in Economic Development awards presented at WEDA's Winter/Spring Conference.

According to WEDA officials, the Trades District represents a pioneering approach to economic development, reimagining how communities cultivate business growth and entrepreneurship by focusing on tradebased, retail and service businesses rather than pursuing large-scale business recruitment.

"The Trades District is more than just a collection of buildings – it's a launching pad for entrepreneurs, a catalyst for local business growth and a long-term investment in the economic vitality of our region," said Brooke Lammert, Economic Development Specialist at the Chelan Douglas Regional Port Authority. "We are honored to receive this recognition from WEDA and proud to support small businesses with the space, resources and partnerships they need to succeed."

The project's success stems largely from its collaborative approach, partnering with organizations including the Small Business Development Center (SBDC) and the Hispanic Business Council. These partnerships ensure entrepreneurs from historically underserved communities receive mentorship, resources and guidance needed to navigate the challenges of business ownership.

WEDA, Washington's only trade association focused exclusively on economic development, presents its awards annually to recognize outstanding achievements in the field. This year, the organization's Awards Committee noted they received a record number of nominations from communities across the state.

"WEDA's Economic Development Awards celebrate outstanding achievement in economic development at the highest level," said WEDA Board Chair Betty Capestany, who also serves as the Director of Economic Development for Pierce County. "There are leaders across our entire state working tirelessly to grow jobs and strengthen economic vitality in their communities. These awards honor leaders and projects that are excelling in this impactful work."

Amanda Wallner, WEDA Awards Committee Chair and Economic Development Manager for the City of Richland, added, "We received a record number of impressive nominations from communities across Washington. The nominations reflect a unique array of the breadth and diversity of important work taking place by economic developers statewide. These projects are often complex and require extensive collaboration and creative partnerships."

The Trades District Project was one of two recipients of the Innovation in Economic Development Award, sharing the honor with the Clallam Forest Product Innovation Program from the Clallam County Economic Development Council.

The awards ceremony recognized achievements across multiple categories, including business recruitment, business retention/expansion, diversity and inclusion, and economic response and recovery efforts.

Chelan County District Court and Probation offer limited time debt relief program

By ANDREW SIMPSON Ward Media Staff Reporter

CHELAN COUNTY - Chelan County District Court and Chelan County District Court Probation will be working with Armada Collections with an account relief program designed to aid those who have unpaid fines or probation fees with the Court or its Probation office.

The County last offered such a program four years ago, and it turned out to be helpful for customers who had balances with Armada, a debt collection company, from those unpaid debts.

In a press release, Judges Allen Blackmon and Jonathan Volyn said "It is the Court's intent to provide an opportunity to pay off your court fines and fees, probation costs, as well as court-ordered victim restitution at a greatly reduced cost.' This two-month program, which begins April 14 and ends June 14, could prove key to allowing people who have already seen their accounts go into collections to rid themselves of the kinds of debt that cannot generally be discharged through bankruptcy.

Any debts resulting from anything more serious than a minor traffic infraction usually persist until they are paid in full, unlike most debt collections with statute limitations. For more information or to find out if you qualify for this program, contact Armada at 509-884-8000, the Chelan County District Court at 509-667-6600, or Chelan County Probation at 509-667-6656.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
